BRITISH CAPITAL FRIENDLY TO CANADA AND WILL BE AVAILABLE SHORTLY FOR SOUND INVESTMENTS

Premier Ferguson Finds London Financial Houses Well Disposed, Especially to Ontario.

RETURNING AUG. 8.

Trying to Secure High Grade of Boys For Ontario Farms.

LONDON, July 21 (Canadian Press Cable)—"I have been in touch with many big financial houses here and without exception I have found them all entirely friendly towards Canada, particularly Ontario," said Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, premier of Ontario, to the Canadian Press yesterday.

"We can of course borrow money cheaper just now in New York than in London," Premier Ferguson continued, "but they tell me here that the currency is likely to be stabilized in the course of six or eight months, after which there should be every opportunity for sound industrial propositions in Ontario getting capital readily from London."

Premier Ferguson said he had found considerable appreciation here of recent Ontario legislation whereby English financial and commercial interests could nominate Canadians to represent them on the spot with practically full powers of directors. This perhaps in the course of time would lead to a change in the method usually followed by British promoters who did not always realize the necessity for having expert Canadian brains and energy to work Canadian propositions.

Seeking Farm Boys

Another matter to which Premier Ferguson has given some attention is the migration of youths of a superior class for training as farmers. "We want a good grade of boy," he said, "who after a few years' training will be able to take up a holding on his own account, with, perhaps, some help from his parents at home. The overseas settlement committee is helping towards boy emigration of a general class on a 50-50 basis but at the present time this scheme fails to reach the class of youths that we are most anxious to get in touch with.

"I had a two hours' talk with the secretary of the overseas settlement committee today and it is possible tthat some new scheme may develop which will prove attractive to the lads who, if they make good, will command a little capital."

Scant Canadian Publicity

With reference to alleged unfriendly criticism of Canada in the British press Premier Ferguson said: "Most of it arises simply from the fact that we do not get proper publicity here. When I pick up an English first-class paper I find a page devoted to foreign and dominion affairs of which only a few paragraphs relate to Canada. The financial pages often carry only meagre information concerning affairs in the Dominion of Canada. We could get a much better showing if this matter were followed up properly. I shall look into it further."

Premier Ferguson intends to go to Scotland early in August, and sail for home on August 8.

EMPLOYMENT IN CANADA BETTER

Reports of Trade Unions Indicate Improved Industrial Condition in June.

19 LABOR DISPUTES.

OTTAWA, July 21. — (Canadian Press).—The employment situation in Canada during May continued to show improvement. At the beginning of June the percentage of unemployment among members of trade unions throughout Canada was 7 per cent., as compared with 8.6 per cent. at the beginning of May, and 7.3 per cent. at the beginning of June, 1924. The employment index number which is based on the number of workers employed on January 1, 1920, as 100, stood at 94.5 for June 1, this year, 90.8 for May 1, this year, and 98.2 on June 1, 1924.

The average cost of a weekly family budget of 29 staple foods was $10.44 at the beginning of June, as compared with $10.48 for May; $9.85 for June, 1924; $10.23 for June, 1923; $11.18 for June, 1922; $11.16 for June, 1921; $16.92 for June, 1920 (peak), and $7.49 for June, 1914.

Nineteen industrial disputes were in progress during the month of June, involving 13,906 employees and resulting in a time loss of 313,179 working days, according to this month's number of the Labor Gazette.

DOUBLE CLEBRATION.

MILLSBURY, Mass., July 21.—Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Rice and Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin O. Paine were married at a double wedding ceremony 52 years ago. They recently had a "double celebration" of the anniversary.

MORE CUBAN SUICIDES.

14 Dead and 5 Dying, Record For 4 Days.

HAVANA, July 21.—Six more persons committed suicide in twenty-four hours, making a total of fourteen dead and five dying for four days, in the unusual wave of self-destruction reported last week from all parts of Cuba.

The latest victims were three men, two girls and a woman. The girls, 16 and 17 years of age, took their lives because of disappointment in love.

One of the suicides, Benjamin Crecente, who recently inherited $90,000 took poison and left a note saying he was "a very sick man, tired of life."

POLICE CALLED TO UNION FIGHT

Candidate For Anthracite Miners' Presidency Was Knocked Unconscious.

THREE MELEES.

WILKES BARRE, Pa., July 21 (Canadian Press). — All available police and detectives were rushed to the Y.M.C.A. building late Monday, following disturbance among the 600 anthracite miners at the Biennial Convention of District No. 1, United Mine Workers of America.

Three general melees were reporte within a half hour, resulting in a second call to headquarters for reinforcements.

George Isaacs, district vice-president, who is planning to contest the election of Rinaldo Cappellini, was knocked unconscious in one of the mix-ups. Police were compelled to club another delegate into submission and drag him from the hall.

When the delegates were quieted, twenty officers were ltft to patrol the convention hall.

The disturbance followed an address by Mayor Daniel L. Hart in which he pleaded for peace. Thomas Kennedy, international secretary-treasurer, and G. J. Golden, president of District No. 8, were on the platform with President Cappellini during the fights.

WILSON QUOTED BY SCIENTIST AS AN EVOLUTIONIST

Julian Huxley, Senior Demonstrator at Oxford Quotes Letter.

CHILDISH BELIEF.

Bryan Refuses to Accept Evolution Because It Is Cruel, He Says.

(By Julian Huxley, M. A., Senior Demonstrator in Oxford University, written especially for United Press, copyright 1925 by United Press).

OXFORD, July 21—I have just seen an interesting letter written in 1922 by the late President Wilson in answer to a questionn concerning evolution. It is quoted in "Science" for 1925, page 647, and should interest William J. Bryan as the president's former secretary of state. Wilson wrote: "Of course like every other man of intelligence and education I do believe in organic evolution. It surprises me that at this late date such questions should be raised." Bryan in his latest pronouncements states that Darwin's theory of natural selection is cruel, therefore we ought not to believe it. This is a particularly good example of the mental practice indulged in by all children and most primitive theologians of believing things because they are what we like instead of because they are true. War is cruel, but it would not have helped France if she had refused to believe in its existence in August, 1914.

FOOD CUT OFF.

Foreigners at Wuchow Are Boycotted By Storekeepers.

PEKING, July 21. — (Canadian Press).—Advices from Canton say that food supplies have been cut off from all British residents at Wuchow as well as from the United States gunboat stationed in that harbor. It is added that the British Consul at Wuchow has advised all British subjects to leave because of the boycott against them.

British Defer Decision On Naval Construction

LONDON, July 21 (Canadian Press).—Final decision on naval construction has been deferred until the cabinet council Wednesday, when it is expected Premier Baldwin will make a statement in the House of Commons explaining the course decided upon and the ground for his decision.

The government's view is that the whole question is not one of principle, but of expediency. It is believed, therefore, that the upemployment problem may enter largely into the decision. It is still maintained in autihoritative quarters, that there will be no question of W. C. Bridgeman's resignation as First Lord of the Admiralty.

GERMAN DESIRE FOR AGREEMENT SHOWN IN NOTE

French Pleased With Berlin's Reply and Expect Guarantees For Frontiers.

SECURITY PACT.

Exchange of Views Will Continue—Evacuation of Cologne Not Mentioned.

PARIS, July 21 (Canadian Press) —The German reply to the Frech observations on Germany's offer of a security pact, which was handed to M. Briand, the French foreign minister by the German ambassador, Herr Von Hoesch last evening, has created a favorable impression in official circles. It permits of hope that negotiations for the guarantee of the frontiers of France and Belgium will proceed with chances of success.

The note dissipates the fear based on information from Berlin that the Reich government would make the negotiations for a pact dependent upon the early evacuation of Cologne. The only reservation which Dr. Stresemann, the German foreign minister, makes concerns the entry of Germany into the League of Nations an the consequent obligation on the part of the Reich to participate in League action to protect the frontiers, under Article 16 of the covenant. This reservation is supposed to apply particularly to an eventual demand for the right of way for French forces to cross German territory to go to the aid of Poland or other countries of Eastern Europe that might be attacked by the Soviets.

The note evidences a desire to reach an understanding with France, it is couched in terms which lead French officials to suppose that Berlin regards the negotiations for a security pact as really under way.

Contrary to general expectations, the German note fails to suggest a conference between the interested parties, and exchanges of views will consequently continue through the regular diplomatic channels. M. Briand will communicate with the Allies before the publication of the note Wednesday.

BRYAN CALLED TO STAND BY DARROW

Testimony of Anti-Evolutionist Leader in Absence of Jury.

DAYTON, Tenn., July 21 (Canadian Press).—Court was adjourned in the Scopes' case late Monday with William Jennings Bryan on the witness stand under examination of Clarence Darrow of defence counsel who had called Mr. Bryan to testify in the absence of the jury.

The calling of Mr. Bryan, associate counsel for the State, came unexpectedly, after the defence had completed reading and placed in the records statements of a group of scientists and Bible scholars whose testimony had been excluded from the jury.

The argument, which observers expected to begin yesterday, was indefinitely delayed, as prosecution counsel indicated they might place Mr. Darrow and his associates, Arthur Garfield Hays and Dudley Field Malone, on the stand as State's witnesses.

Darrow Apologized.

After he had been cited for contempt, Clarence Darrow, defence lawyer, apologized to Judge Raulston for one of his statements of a few days ago and the judge accepted his apology.

SCOPES GUILTY BREAKING LAW DECLARES JURY

But No Pronouncement on Evolution Versus the Bible.

FINE OF $100.

Bryan's Testimony Expunged From Records of Case By Judge.

DAYTON, Tenn., July 21.—(Canadian Press).—John T. Scopes, Dayton school teacher, was found guilty by a Rhea County grand jury to-day of violating the State law against the teaching of evolution, and fined $100.

Scopes was summoned before the bar. Judge Raulston told him of his conviction by the jury and levied the fine.

"Have you anything to say, Mr. Scopes?" asked the judge.

"Your Honor, I have been convicted of violating an unjust statute," replied Scopes. "Any action other than I have pursued would be in violation of my idea of academic freedom."

Scopes added to the court in his statement, that he would continue to oppose the law in every way in his power as he considered it an unjust law, and in violation of the Constitution.

Arthur G. Hays, for the defence, made a formal motion for arrest of judgment. Judge Raulston pointed out that the law of Tennessee permits sixty days for perfecting an appeal, and the bond pending the outcome of the appeal was fixed at $500. It was announced the bond would be arranged for at once and an appeal made to the Supreme Court meeting at Knoxville.

Judge John T. Raulston retired from the court-room at 9.45 this morning to dictate his charge to the jury. The end of the "evolution test" was brought in sight by the agreement of the attorneys to give the case to the jury and permit the record to show a verdict of "guilty" without argument.

Bar Bryan Testimony.

Previously, the Judge had ruled that the evidence given yesterday by Wm. Jennings Bryan should be expunged from the records. "I ieel that the testimony of Mr. Bryan can shed no light on any issue that will be pending before the higher courts," he said. "The issue is whether Mr. Scopes taught that man descended from the lower order of animal."

Defence Counsel Arthur G. Hays, for the purposes of perfecting the record in the event of an appeal, read a list of witnesses the defence would have offered had they been permitted to do so, and took formal exception. He also asked that the record show that Scopes had a contract to teach in Rhea County School from Sentember 1 to May 1.

Wm. Jennings Bryan, in discussing the expunging of his testimony, suggested that the views of defence counsel had not been brought out as clearly as might have been. Dudley Field Malone, for the defence, reported that members of his side of the case were ready at any time to make their views public when such an issue was germane.

CAR CAUGHT FIRE.

Frank Costello, of Downeyville, Unable to Check Blaze.

LINDSAY, July 21 (Special)—On Sunday while Mr. Frank Costello of Downeyville and several friends were proceeding to King's Wharf his car suddenly took fire, caused, it is supposed, by a short circuit. The flames spread with such rapidity that it was impossible to save it. The occupants escaped without injury.

FOREIGN LOANS BY U. S. REACH IMMENSE TOTAL

Vast Sum of Nearly Ten Millions Invested By Private Capital.

HEAVY THIS YEAR.

Europe Leads Borrowers, and Canada Has Obtained Large Share.

WASHINGTON, July 21 — The dependence of foreign nations upon the American money market has been emphasied by the latest government calculations dealing with foreign loans, which show that foreign securities publicly offered in the United States during the first six months this year amounted to $551,591,000. No loans to foreign governments were offered in Great Britain for the same period, as England adopted a restrictive policy, with the recent return to the gold standard and, in fact, was forced to arrange with the Federal Reserve System and American private interests for the establishment of $300,000,000 in credits with which to maintain the pound at parity.

In a review of the situation made available yesterday, Theodore R. Goldsmith, of the Finance and Investment Division of the Department of Commerce, estimated that after allowance was made for refunding issues, total American foreign investments now have reached $9,500,000,000, possibly triple the amount just before the World War. This total does not include the $12,000,000,000 of war-time debts of foreign nations to the United Stacts Government, the bank credits of $300,000,000 established in Great Britain and $40,000,000 in favor of Denmark, or the recent $50,000,000 credit to Italian banks, all to be employed for the support of their

BEE STINGS MOTHER'S BREAST WHILE HER BABY IS NURSING AND CHILD DIES FROM SHOCK

Grandson of George Stevens and Son of Mrs. Ethel Chapman is Victim.

IN AUTOMOBILE.

Three Months Old Baby, Laughing a Moment Before, Suddenly Stricken.

A three-months'-old infant, John Stevens Chapman, a grandson of George Stevens of this city, is lying dead at Belleghem's Funeral Parlor as a result of a bee stinging his mother yesterday.

Several members of the Stevens family were nearing Belleville, in a car belonging to Charles Stevens of Milwaukee, on a visit to Mr. Stevens' father, when a bee evidently drawn in by the suction of air alighted on the breast of Mrs. Ethel Chapman, here on a visit from Chilliwack, B.C., as she was nursing her only child. The bee stung Mrs. Chapman, who screamed. The car was stopped and the other members were gathering around Mrs. Chapman to render her assistance when it was noticed that baby, which had been laughing a moment before, had become limp and was foaming at the mouth and nose. Almost immediately the child became unconscious.

Then the throttle of the car was opened wide and the party headed for Belleville at all possible speed. A stop was made at the first doctor's residence This doctor was not at home, but a lady at the house was hastily pressed into the car to direct them to the next physician, Dr. Cronk, who was fortunately available, Dr. Cronk immediately left a patient whom he was attending, dismissed several others who were sitting in the waiting room and applied himself to the task of ministering to the unconscious baby.

He gave the child a hypodermic and applied a pulmotor in the endeavor to stingulate respiration, but his little patient died within an hour without having recovered consciousness. Dr. Cronk stated that death was caused by the shock of the bee sting on the mother, which was transmitted to the child. There was no mark of any kind on the child.

Mrs. Chapman was confined to bed today, prostrated with grief. The sting on her breast gives no cause for alarm.

Mr. Chapman is still at Chilliwack, but has been wired of his son's death and is expected here in a day or two.

BRITISH MINERS HOLDING ALOOF FROM INQUIRY

Only Representatives of Mine Owners Attended Government's Conference on Monday.

NO PROGRESS MADE.

Owners Decline to Withdraw Wage Proposals Which Miners Denounce.

LONDON, July 21. — (Canadian Press).—The Government's efforts to bring the miners and mine owners into a conference to negotiate a new agreement were seconded Monday by the Right Hon. Hugh Pattison MacMillan, chairman of the Government Inquiry Board, who appealed to the owners to withdraw their proposals for a new agreement, which the miners had declared utterly inacceptable. The representatives of the mine owners are not disposed to yield on this point, and Mr. MacMillan expressed the opinion that punctilio was standing in the way of a conference.

The miners continue to boycott the Govefnment inquiry, which yesterday was attended only by representatives of the owners. Meanwhile the negotiations for forming a big combine of unions dragged in the same way. It is impossible that such an alliance can be arranged in time to help the miners should a big lockout occur July 31, with the expiring of the mine owners' notices of their intention to terminate the existing agreement. Each union would need to take a ballot of its members, and the necessary formalities to make the alliance effective would occupy several months, even were the various union executives agreed, which clearly is not the case.

CRISIS IN WOOL TRADE.

LONDON, July 21.—The Yorkshire wool trade is in the throes of a crisis such as has not been known for nearly a century. The employers threaten to lock out 62,000 employees unless they agree to a reduction in wages, and the employees are threatening to strike on July 25, unless the employers' proposals for the reduction are withdrawn in the meantime.

Four years ago, the workers in the wool industries accepted reductions in their pay, which, it is now claimed, total a construction toward the rehabilitation of the wool trade of £30 for each man and £30 for each woman. The workers claim that the employers' new scheme could result in saving only one per cent. of the cost of production.

Local Demand.

The workers contend that the present stagnation in the wool trade is not due to foreign competition, but to the decrease in the demand in this country for woollen goods.

There is a deadlock at present between employers and employees in the wool industry, but the employees declare that unless the employers withdraw their proposals, all the workers, members of the unions and non-members, will be called upon to cease work on Saturday.

NEW FLAG PLAN IS DISAPPROVED

Grand Master of Orange Lodge Condemns Action of Government.

CITIZENS LOYAL.

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 21. — (Canadian Press).—"We cannot regard with other than the strongest disproval, the action of the Dominion Government in appointing a committee to receive suggestions for the design of a Canadian flag," declared Loftus H. Reid, of Toronto, Grand Master of the Grand Black Chapter, Most Worshipful Grand Lodge of British America of the Loyal Orange Order, in his address at the annual convention of the Order here last night. "Let it be remembered," he added, "that the Order-in-Council provided for a flag of entirely new design. It is difficult to conceive that the leader of the Government could fall so low in his appreciation of the loyalty of the overwhelming majority of his fellow-citizens to the Union Jack, to permit the issuance of such an order. It could not be done by any one who loves the Empire. In deference to public opinion the order has been cancelled, but there is need of a constant vigilance."

A TOTAL LOSS.

British Steamer is Stranded on Reef in Philippines.

MANILLA, July 21. — Canadian Press. — The British Steamer Egremont Castle is aground on Pubbataga Reef in the Sulu Sea and is leaking badly. It is feared that she will be a total wreck. The ship has a cargo of sugar and is bound for New York.

First Wheat Fields In Alberta Cut On Saturday

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., July 21.—(Canadian Press)—Harvesting of spring grain started Saturday at Taber, when three fields of wheat were cut. They will give average yields. The binder started in a field of barley at Raymond yesterday. Harvest will be fairly general all over Southern Alberta by August 5, one of the earliest harvest dates on record. Indications are that the fifteen-year average will be harvested in wheat in South-Western Alberta, with only irrigated fields giving a bumper crop.

MAKE HOSPITAL SERVICES FREE TO THE PUBLIC

Mayor Turner Would Change Character of Isolation Hospital.

ASK FOR GRANT.

Board of Health to Approach Province—Meeting Held To-day.

Three householders waited upon the Board of Health at the meeting, which was held this morning. The medical health officer was empowered to visit two of the properties for the purpose of inspecting conditions while the other party agreed to install plumbing if given a period of two months to effect necessary changes.

Tenders were read concerning the delivery of twenty tons of coal to the city building. H. B. Taylor's tender at $14.75 was accepted.

W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., was then called in to discuss the obtaining of a government grant toward the Isolation Hospital. Mr. Bradburn suggested that a deputation be sent to Toronto to lay the matter before the proper authorities. Later, he suggested that letters be circulated to other cities regarding this matter, in order that a co-operative interest might be stirred up.

Moved by Mayor Turner and seconded by C. H. Rogers, that the secretary write to various cities in order to get this information.

Mayor Turner drew the attention of the board to articles written by Dr. J. W. S. McCulloch, dealing with waste of public funds in health administration His Worship was fully in accord with the suggestions as made by Dr. McCulloch, re mapping the province and forking districts under one health board in charge of a full time health officer.

His Worship also suggested that the Isolation Hospital should be free, adding that it would be an inducement for people to send children there when the first signs of a contagious disease were evident. This, the Mayor pointed out, might greatly restrict the ravages of epidemics.

In regard to the former suggestion it was agreed that a conference be held with the Board of Education at the earliest possible opportunity for the purpose of endeavoring to get all matters pertinent to public health under one administrating body. The matter of the hospital was laid aside for a subsequent meeting.

The following account of expenses was received and passed:

Canadian Packing Company, $9.38; Higgins Hardware, $13.30; Geo. Sloan & Co., $22.75; Thomas Gilgour and Son, $11.49; Sanitary Ice, $15; Bell Telephone, $7.01; Peterboro Utilities Com., $39.03; Peterboro Utilities Com., $1.75; Grant and Thorne, $2; N. E. Staples $15.08; E. F. Mason, $32.03; T. Anthony, $30.58; W. H. Hamilton, $7.50; Frank H. Dawson, $11.10; J. John, $8; W. J. Kent, $19.20; James Juby, $12.60; Wm. Brown, $24.40; Jordan Bros., $20.65; Peterboro Hardware Co., Ltd., $6.95; J. C. Turnbull Co., Ltd., $2.

SNAKE IN COURT

Austrian's Pet Manifests Interest in Prosecuting Attorney.

VIENNA, July 21.—The love of Frank Gise, the actor, for snakes was responsible for getting him into court recently. One of his pets, a boa constrictor, caused much worry and fright to neighbors as it lay basking in the sunshine in front of the actor's home. Summoned to court, he packed his pet in a suitcase.

When he arrived in court he unwound the coils and deposited his writhing burden on the board before the judge. The snake began to manifest unusual interest in the prosecuting attorney, at whom it stared persistently though not unkindly. The owner took it up and wound it around his neck to demonstrate the perfect gentleness of the reptile. The court approved and released the actor with his pet, especially as the director of the zoo testified to the unvenomous nature of the snake.

WEEK END RAINS TEMPORARY AID TO GRAIN CROPS

But Drought Continues in Southern Parts of Alberta and Saskatchewan.

GOOD IN MANITOBA.

Estimated Yield Cut 30 Per Cent. In Some Sections of Prairies.

WINNIPEG, Man., July 21. — (Canadian Press).—Liberal rainfall over an extensive area on the prairies during the week-end greatly relieved the parched state of the crops in many districts, but continued drought conditions in the southern sections of Alberta and Saskatchewan are causing some anxiety, states the weekly crop report of the Canadian Pacific Agricultural Department.

In certain areas of Saskatchewan the protracted heat wave is said to have brought about a depreciation ranging from twenty-five to thirty per cent. in prospective yields, estimated in June. In southern parts of Alberta the damage is reported to be even more serious up to the present. Manitoba boasts of the brightest crop outlook, although most points in the central and northern districts of the two other provinces report prospects as exceedingly favorable. Practically all wheat is headed out, and a considerable percentage of early fields are in the milk or early dough stage. From present indications, the report says, cutting should be general by the middle of August.

Rust and Hail Damage.

Red rust is in evidence in a few sections of Manitoba and Saskatchewan, while a trace of black rust have been found. Hail also has taken a further toll in parts of Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Barley cutting on a limited scale has commenced in Manitoba. The fall rye crop is doing well and is almost ready for the binder. Crop conditions continue generally satisfactory throughout the province, but rain would prove beneficial.

In the south-western areas of Saskatchewan the moisture reserve is near exhaustion, and unless there is more than an average rainfall during the next week or two, the yields will be low.

Where Rain Is Needed.

Drought and extreme heat materially changed the crop outlook in the southern districts of Alberta. Summer fallow, however, is holding out fairly well. Good rains have fallen in the central parts of the province and helped the crops.

A number of points along the Edmonton, Dunvegan and British Columbia railway are badly in need of rain.

The non-irrigated sections of British Columbia have suffered during the recent heat spell. Tree fruits and field crops generally are developing well.

RHODES MEETS SCOTIA MINERS

Preliminary Conference With Executive of Miners—New Premier Welcomed.

NO STATEMENT.

SYDNEY, N.S., July 21.—(Canadian Press).—Premier E. N. Rhodes and Col. Gordon Harrington, Minister of Mines, met the district executive of the Nova Scotia miners yesterday, preliminary to the conferences which will open to-day between all three parties concerned in the coal fields tie-up, the Government, British Empire Steel Corporation and miners.

The first of these meetings is being held at headquarters here of the Corporation. President Roy Wolvin and Vice-President J. E. McLurg will represent the Corporation and the entire district board of the miners is on hand.

Yesterday's conversations were entirely preliminary, and no statement was given out except that they were held. It is not expected that much official information will be made public until concrete conclusions are reached.

The arrival of the Premier and the Minister of Mines was heralded with a procession of some thirty motor cars through the streets, which went out some distance to meet the Government party. Flags were flown in the city in their honor. Last night a reception was held at Wentworth Park, preceded by a motor procession. Both the Premier and Col. Harrington addressed the gathering.

PRESENTATION TO DEPARTING PASTOR

Springville People Met to Bid Mr. Craw Farewell.

SPRINGVILLE, July 21.—A very pleasant evening was spent by Springville congregation on Friday last, July 17. The purpose of the evening was to spend a social evening with their former pastor, Rev. Mr. Craw. Supper was served in the church about 7.30. Owing to the unfavorable weather, it was necessary to serve it inside. After every person had enjoyed a generous supply of good things, a short programme was rendered, with Mr. S. Fairbairn in the chair.

Following was the programme:

Chorus—"All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name."
Solo—Miss Daisy Murray.
Reading—Miss Jean Fairbairn.
Solo—Miss Marion Clark.
Reading—Miss Tripp.
Solo—Mr. Bruce Herron.

The Chairman then announced a dialogue as next on the programme. He asked Mr. and Mrs. Craw to come forward to assist in it. An address was then read to them, and they were presented with a handsome club bag for Mr. Craw and some beautiful cut-glass for Mrs. Craw. Mr. Craw made a lengthy reply, and stated that the time spent as pastor had been most enjoyable and prosperous to him. The meeting closed by singing the doxology, and Mr. Craw pronounced the benediction.

BOAT TO LINDSAY RETURN BY TRAIN

A Delightful Water Trip to Scugogville by the Steamer Stoney Lake.

By Frank Russell

Yesterday ushered in the first of those delightful summer trips for this season, viz., outward bound by steamer to Lindsay, the passengers returning by rail. Nearly two hundred people availed themselves of this always delightful trip which is very acceptable and looked forward to by many of the inhabitants of this city.

As usual the outward trip was made by the sturdy little S. S. "Stoney Lake" with Captain Scollard in command, assisted by his capable and attentive crew.

The Start

At 7.35 a.m. the mooring ropes were cast off at George Street wharf and ere long the steamer was passing through the first lock The lift-lock was then negotiated and the party steamed up through the canal.

Some people find fault with this canal part of the trip, voting it slow and uninteresting"; but at every turn there is some pretty spot to arrest the attention of the voyager while the foliage on each side was very pretty, freshened by the recent rains and certainly the trip now under consideration did not seem "slow" and it certainly did not seem any length of time when we found ourselves at Lakefield at 10.30 a.m., two hours and a quarter after leaving the lift-lock. We took on a few voyagers at different points up the canal.

Negotiation of the lift-lock only occupied two and three quarter minutes. Young's Point was reached at 11.10 a.m. when luncheon baskets seemed to be the order of the day, they being by that time in great demand.

The Trip on the Lakes

It was just delightful. At 12.15 we reached Burleigh Falls, where the writer called to mind many pleasant times spent on the picnic of the former Saint John's Church Choir which were so efficiently carried out by Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Devery; Mr. Devery for many years being the able and indefatigable organist and choir master at the church just mentioned.

At 1.45 p.m. we reached Buckhorn and at 3.45 p.m. we were passing through Bobcageon Lock. Then the tea or supper baskets became very evident. At 5.30 p.m. we entered the Scugog River in the least interesting part of the voyage, and at 6.30 p.m. we were alongside the wharf at Lindsay. There everybody went on shore as the steamer was to stay at Lindsay until Wednesday morning, running a trip for the benefit of the good folks of Lindsay on Tuesday and returning to Peterboro on Wednesday with a [illegible] the reverse direction, bringing passengers by boat to this city, the voyagers returning to Lindsay by train in the evening.

The Weather

Although at an early hour on Monday morning the skies looked by no means favourable we had a beautiful day for this trip, which by the way, is to be repeated next Monday. Shortly after leaving the George Street Wharf the sun was shining brightly, there was a pleasant breeze and the presence of a few large, white, flocky clouds prevented the sun's rays from being too hot, the temperature being "summer heat" well tempered by the aforesaid gentle, genial breeze.

Enjoyment On Board

A regular band had not been engaged, consequently we had no prostitution of music such as one is apt to get when a jazz orchestra has its way. But there were able and willing fingers ready to play music for dancing, and these performers were heartily welcomed and appropriately thanked for their services. In particular I may refer to two young ladies, the Misses Doris, who were ever ready and a gentleman whose name I did not hear. These also provided music for singing and those present were entertained by several gentlemen who sang songs [illegible] the late war. Such songs as "It's a Long Way to Tipperary," and others which were then in vogue but which one has not heard for many a day were very pleasingly rendered.

Everybody appeared to be very happy and cheerful and on all sides one heard expressions of having had an extremely pleasant trip. There were a few children on board, who were very well behaved and did not in any degree interfere with the pleasure and comfort of their elders.

The Return Home

In disembarking at Lindsay the late voyagers strolled round the not too lively town of Lindsay, eventually concentrating at the railway station, where four vestibule cars, one of them being an observation car were in readiness for the reception of those returning to Peterboro. After a short wait these were attached to the tail of the regular 8.20 p.m. train for this city, and shortly after nine Peterboro was reached, farewells said and the party then left the station for their respective homes, everyone expressing the delight at the pleasant outing and the enjoyable day spent.

Personally I had a very pleasurable day myself. I renewed old acquaintances with several I had met on the same trip in bygone years, and made new friendships. I was very hospitably entertained for my meals at the captain's table and I'll dare bet I enjoyed the day's pleasuring as much as any one present. The officers and crew of the Stoney Lake, as usual, did all in their power to promote the comfort of their passengers.

"BRINGING UP FATHER" — Geo. McManus

J. NELSON STONE IS NEW MEMBER OF THE COUNCIL

Chosen Unanimously to Fill Place of R. S. Southworth, Resigned.

TWO PRESENT.

Nominators Were Only Ratepayers Present When Name Was Proposed.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 21—J. Nelson Stone, president of the Liberal Association of Northumberland County, was unanimously elected a member of the Town Council last night to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of R. S. Southworth.

When Clerk John F. McGregor called the nomination meeting to order at 7.30 the only citizens present were D. A. Owen and E. F. Plummer. The former placed Mr. Stone's name in nomination and this was seconded by Mr. Plummer. The two then left and up to 7.30 the only voters to drop into the Council Chambers were Councillors Kingston, J. D. Cumming and W. J. Dunstan. No more names were presented and when several others showed up about 8.30 the poll was closed.

Mr. Stone says that while he does not desire the position he will accept it in order to save the town further expense. He has had years of experience in municipal work, have been a member, and also reeve of the Percy Township Council before coming to Campbellford. In 1919 he was elected to the Town Council and was deputy-reeve in 1920, 1921 and 1922. He is secretary of the Seymour Agricultural Society and his choice for his new position will be a popular one as he is well versed in every detail of civic business.

INVESTMENTS LOW DEPOSITS DECREASE

London Banks Say Figures For May Poorest Since 1921.

The average figures of the London clearing banks for May disclose the lowest level at which deposits have stood for many years past, according to advices received by Bankers Trust Company of New York, from its British information service. In fact the banking statisticians state that the present total of £1,636,448,000 is the lowest shown since the banks resumed the publication of their monthly average figures in 1921. Another low record since the resumption of these statements is provided by the total of investments, £291,063,000. It is stated for more than a year past the banks have been steadily realizing their investment holdings and employing the proceeds in advances. A steady increase in the latter during the past 18 months is stated to be mainly reflective of gradual trade recovery which has appeared during that period, but the fact that the recent increases in the advances have been accompanied by more than usually sharp reduction in deposits coupled with poor trade reports in many of the industrial centres during the past month or two, encourages the view that borrowing in order to meet the demands of the tax gatherer, may have been responsible for a considerable part of recent expansion in advances.

The ratio of advances to deposits continues to rise; at the end of May it was 52.9 per cent., or four points above the ratio of May of last year, but the ratios of individual banks show a wide range, the highest of the Big Five being the Midland, 57.8 per cent., and the lowest the Westminster, 40.9 per cent.

WEDDING BELLS.

KELLY—HORKINS.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 21. — [illegible] motored to Toronto last Friday to attend the wedding on Saturday forenoon of Mona, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horkins, the latter residing with her children in Toronto. The groom was Dr. Vincent Kelly, of London, Ont., the ceremony being held in St. Clare Church, Rev. Father McCabe officiating. Only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties were present. Among the guests were Mrs. T. A. Coughlan, of Hastings, a cousin of the groom.

After their honeymoon trip, Dr. and Mrs. Kelly will reside in London. The bride is well known in Campbellford, having been born and raised here and educated in the local Public and High schools.

SPLIT IN CABINET ON PROGRAM FOR 4 NEW CRUISERS

Opposition Papers Say There is Crisis in Baldwin Government.

MINISTERS DIFFER.

Some Support Economy While Others Support Sea Lords' Plans.

LONDON, July 21 (Canadian Press). — Anti-Government newspapers continue to print stories about a crisis within the cabinet over the naval construction programme.

There seems to be no question that there is a strong divergence of opinion among the ministers over the building of new cruisers, one section adhering emphatically to the demand for the immediate laying of three or four, which the Sea Lords, headed by Admiral Earl Beatty, are alleged to have made, while others among the ministers favor the postponement of cruiser building in the interest of economy.

A variety of reports are printed in the morning newspapers, but authoritative quarters are responsible for the statement that W. C. Bridgeman will not resign as First Lord of the Admiralty, as has been rumored. Nothing definite will be known until Wednesday, when the cabinet is ta meet. A statement by Premier Baldwin in the House of Commons is looked for them.

MAKING READY FOR EXECUTION

Russell T. Scott To Be Hanged Friday, Say Authorities.

CHICAGO, July 21. — (Canadian Press).—Preparations for the execution of Russel T. Scott were started again yesterday, and he will be hanged on Friday, unless something again intervenes to save him. Last Friday it was a last minute reprieve by the Governor.

Yesterday Scott, who still is in the death cell under constant guard, was visited by his wife, Katherine, with whom he conferred at length. He also asked for paper and pencil and took notes during the conversation.

He was also the recipient yesterday of a telegram, the contents of which he did not disclose.

JAPAN EXPRESSES 'A DEEP SYMPATHY'

Announces She Has Sent a Friendly Note to China.

TOKIO, July 21. — (Canadian Press.) — The Foreign Office announced to-day that it had sent a note to China through Kenkichi Yoshizawa, Japanese minister to China, on July 10, advising her in a friendly manner that agitation for revision of treaties was inappropriate at present. The note suggested the cessation of anti-foreign agitation and the restoration of order before taking up the matter of treaties. It adds that Japan felt "a deep sympathy with China, prompted by the fact that she once suffered the same experience from unusual treaties with foreign powers."

PROHIBITION BENEFITS

Working Classes in India in Greatly Improved Condition.

LONDON, July 4.— (Associated Press.) — Prohibition [illegible] India have greatly improved the condition of the working classes, in the opinion of C. V. Mehta, a member of the executive council of Bombay, who arrived in England recently on a visit. Mr. Mehta, who was formerly minister in charge of excise, estimated that in Bombay the drinking was about a third less than before the dry campaign began.

During strikes or any serious trouble, Mr. Mehta said, all liquor shops in Bombay are closed. Three years ago during the non-cooperation movement, when volunteers picketed liquor shops in Bombay and Poona, there was practically no consumption of alcoholics for five months, and the authorities found that the condition of the workers had distinctly improved.

"The majority of Indians have virtually been abstainers for centuries, so it was easy for us to work toward prohibition at a quicker rate," said Mr. Mehta, "and in two and a half years we were able to reduce consumption from 2,800,000 gallons to 1,800,000 and there has been a relative improvement in the condition of the masses as a result."

PENSION RECORD.

MANSFIELD, Ill., July 21.—The record for drawing a pension was held by James G. Thomas, a Mexican war veteran, who died here recently. In 75 years and six months his pension totaled $22,046.23. He was 97 years old at the time of his death.

CANADA'S BIGGEST SINGLE BUSINESS

Post Office Handles More Than a Billion Letters Yearly.

FEW MISTAKES

The post office department is the biggest single business in Canada—at least, it has the widest reaching span and most intricate number of details to be looked after. The estimated number of letters, post cards, parcels, circulars, etc. carried in Canada's mails last year was 1,200,000,000 and the expenditure of the post office department aggregated $28,305,936.57, while the net revenue of the department was $29,100,491.92, showing a profit of $794,555.35. With the exception of 1915 and 1922, when there were deficits the department has had a substantial surplus ever since 1902. This speaks well for the efficient management of the department and the ability of the civil servants who constitute its personnel.

There are about 12,300 post offices in the country, stretching from the farthest northern points to the United States border, and from the Atlantic Ocean to the Pacific. In each post office, there is a postmaster, but not all of these are permanent paid officials of the department, many running a post office in conjunction with another business and being paid on a percentage or contract basis.

2,000,000 Dead Letters.

Out of the 1,200,000,000 letters, etc., handled in 1924 by the department, some 2,000,000 went to the dead letter office as being undeliverable, and over $21,000 was found by the department in undeliverable letters. Of this sum, over $19,000 was returned to the owners, the rest being deposited to the credit of the receiver general owing to the fact that the letters containing the sums making this total could not be delivered and had no return address or clue to the identity of the senders.

The inspection service of the post office department is a big organization and during 1924 it received 338,041 inquiries regarding lost and mistreated mail matter. Of these 266,650 were satisfactorily adjusted.

Stamps are another big item. During the year stamps to the value of $31,063,161.72 were sold.

HYBIRDS MUSICAL

Found That Cosmopolitan Families More Likely to Produce Genius.

Nowadays, when musical nationalism is so much to the fore, we are apt to over look the fact that many of the greatest musicians have come of a mixed nationality, and some people claim that the more cosmopolitan a family is the more likely is it to produce geniuses. In England, certainly, there is the striking instance of the Novello family, [illegible] produced at least a number of very highly talented members. Beethoven was a German of Dutch extraction, and Brahms a German of Danish extraction. Feruccio Busoni, the pianist and composer, was half German and half Italian, as is Wolf-Ferrari, the composer of "The Jewels of the Madonna"; Sgambati, the Italian composer, had an English mother; Frederic Delius, the English composer comes of a German family of remote Dutch extraction; Frederic Lamond is a Scot, whose parents or grandparents came from Middle Europe, and Eugene d'Albert is also a Scot of Teutonic or Alsatian extraction. And quite a large number of musicians who are generally credited with being Germans: Haydn, List, Dvorak, etc., come from the Slav races and were born outside Germany.

VILLAGE REAPPEARS

After [illegible] Centuries of Seclusion Antrona Piana Floats Again.

SAAS-IM-GRUND, Switzerland, July 21.—Reappearance of a village inundated more than 300 years ago was noticed recently at Lake Antrona. A landslide caused the water level to recede and gradually the ruins of the old village comprising 42 buildings, were disclosed. The village of Antrona Piana was flooded by a monster spring freshet and has lain submerged for three centuries.

OUTLAWS MEET SECOND DEFEAT

SCORE WAS 5-0.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 21.—The Outlaws sustained their second defeat of the season last night, when the fast travelling Hydro team shut them out by the score of 5-0. The game was much closer than the score would indicate, and was the finest game played in the League this year, being featured by many snappy plays. The result leaves the League race much closer and has injected a great deal of interest into the remaining games, which all have a great bearing on the final standing. The teams:

Outlaws—Daniel p, Davidson c, Thomas 1b, Ibey 2b, Fox 3b, McAvoy and Anderson ss, Baker rf, Dunk lf, Bailey cf.

Hydro—Johnson p, Ansell c, Adamson 1b, Watt 2b, Caulby 3b, Saunders and Tinney ss, Beatty rf, Meyers lf, Nesbitt cf.

IMPROVE GUN-FIRE

New Method Devised for Making Ballistic Wind Useful.

HONOLULU, July 21.—(Associated Press).—A scheme for taking ballistic wind, to be used in correcting the ranges of guns in night firing, has been devised by Major John H. Hood of the 15th Coast Artillery at Fort Kamehameha here, and is announced to have passed successful tests in improving the accuracy and precision of fire.

Portable searchlights, capable of revolving both vertically and horizontally, were trained on a pilot ascension balloon 26 inches in diameter as it rose. The speed and direction were computed, as is done at the meteorological station during the day. This is said to have been the first time the idea of tracking a small balloon at night had been tried.

The experiment was carried out successfully by the operator of the light the first time and without field glasses. Atmospheric conditions were adverse, with low clouds and a heavy wind velocity; nevertheless the balloon was tracked for 1,500 yards. Military experts said that with better equipment it could be tracked as high as 3,000 yards.

SOME HAIL DAMAGE.

But Crop Reports From the West Show Situation Generally Good.

MONTREAL, Jul[illegible] 21. — Canadian Press, — Beyond reports of hail damage from the districts lying between Saskatoon and Regina little or no crop damage fro[illegible] any cause is shown in the Canadian National Railways crop report for the week ending July 18th issued yesterday. Many points in Alberta and Saskatchewan reported the need of rain up to Saturday. The weather report this morning show considerable rain fall in the west on Sunday, which would improve the situation in some districts.

LONDON, Ont., [illegible]adian Press. —Arnold Smith, aged 19, an employee of the London Life Company, and son of W. W. Smith, was drowned at Port Stanley Harbor yesterday afternoon in an attempt to swim across from the light house pier to the car ferry dock.

PLAN ABROGATION FOREIGN TREATIES

Chinese Party Will Start War to Instal General Feng as Ruler.

LONDON, July 21 — (United Press)—The Pekin correspondent of the Daily Express reports that the Kuo Ming Tang party at Canton is planning a session at Pekin to consider abrogation of foreign treaties and inauguration of civil war to install General Feng Yuh Siang, "the Chrstian General," as head of a radical movement.

OBITUARY.

C. H. MURNEY.

George Henry Murney died at Springville on Monday, July 20. The funeral service will take place at the residence on Wednesday, July 22, at 1.30 p.m., and interment at 2.00 at Centreville Cemetery.

Friends and acquaintances kindly accept this invitation.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 21.—The funeral of the late Mary Marguerite, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Grills, of Seymour East, was held Tuesday morning to St. Mary's church and cemetery, requiem mass being celebrated by Rev. Father Phelan. The deceased passed away Sunday following an operation in a Peterborough hospital. She was in her 15th year. She is survived by her parents and one sister and three brothers.

THE HORN-TOOTERS.

The city of Detroit has passed a bylaw providing penalties for motorists who unnecessarily disturb the peace by using their auto horns too frequently.

That sounds like good business.

Of all the irritating pests that modern conditions have produced the "horn-tooter" is probably the most obnoxious.

He drives up to a house in a quiet neighborhood, and instead of getting out and quietly informing people that he has arrived, he proceeds to play a solo on his loud-speaker.

And the longer he has to wait, the louder and longer he toots, until his departure leaves behind frayed nerves, awakened babies and a homicidal complex that suggests the desirability of having a sawed-off shotgun ready for his next visit.

Another place he favours is a traffic jam where, heedless of the fact that the drivers in front of him cannot proceed, he insultingly tootles away on his horn until the front rankers have to fight against an impulse to go back and gag the Klaxon by stuffing the driver into it.

We have plenty of horn-tooters in Peterboro, and unless the example of Detroit is followed some citizen whose nerves have been strained to the breaking point is liable to declare an open season and go gunning for the worst of the offenders.

And a jury of married men whose offspring have been awakened night after night would not have to leave the court-room to reach a verdict of justifiable homicide.

THE CAMPING TOURIST.

Several years ago when plans for attracting tourists to Ontario were being launched the opinion was expressed that before this Province entered upon an ambitious programme it would be first necessary to increase the hotel accommodation, particularly at the summer resorts.

There would be no use in bringing in hordes of visitors if there were no place for them to stay, it was argued, and that opinion seemed to be sound.

Judging, however, by the present year's experience, there is plenty of accommodation available.

The motor tourists who are to be found in all parts of Ontario just now are not looking for hotels.

They carry camp equipment with them in nine cases out of ten, and all that they ask is a chance to camp wherever night overtakes them or their fancy leads them.

The majority of the cars from over the line noticed on Peterboro's streets are not carrying people to the summer hotels in the north.

Their occupants are nearly always campers who do not require the accommodation of the hotels.

It is an angle of the tourist question that deserves some attention.

These good friends who come to camp by our lakes and streams are welcome; we're glad to see them and have them come back again.

But there must be many other residents of the United States to whom the motor camp offers no attraction.

To the Examiner it would seem good business if some effort were made by the Ontario Tourists' Association and the Provincial Government to reach such people and "sell" them on Ontario.

Millions of dollars are invested in summer hotels throughout the Province, and it does not seem desirable that many of them are only half-filled.

THE VETERANS' UNION.

To the movement to unite all Canada's war veterans into one organization along the lines of the British Service League, as advocated by Earl Haig, the Examiner wishes every success.

The meeting of local veterans here tomorrow night should result in some practical steps being taken to bring this city's ex-service men into the union, which appeals to any one who has taken any interest in the situation as the only possible method that will ensure permanent results.

It is not necessary to stress that point.

That many veterans of the war are not at present members of any of the existing organizations is well known.

It may be touching upon delicate ground, but it is also a recognized fact that many Canadian-born ex-service men have been particularly reluctant to ally themselves with these organizations.

What is needed is a movement broad enough and appealing enough to bring the whole body of returned men back to the comradeship of war days.

It can be done—but it must be done soon or it will never be done.

There may have to be sacrifices made by the organizations that have been carrying on; the results will, however, justify the sacrifices.

REAL SKILLED LABOR.

It has been well said that the products of the Canadian farm are as much the result of skilled labor as the output of our factories and workshops. The point is frequently overlooked when the trade and commerce of the Dominion are being discussed, either in the House or out of it. But the Government is not oblivious of the fact, although the average city worker imagines that all the farmer has to do is to let nature do his work, while he reaps the increase.

The farmer's work is never done, and he, of all men in the world, earns his bread on the principle of the Edenic law. Last year our total exports were valued at $1,045,010,000, and more than half these exports originated on Canadian farms. Thus, from east to west, more than half the workers of the Dominion are employed in the cultivation of the land and kindred activities.

The Government is doing its share to promote and foster this great source of wealth and prosperity. In the Department of Agriculture there are some 1,390 employes, including civil government, permanent and temporary, in fourteen branches, whose salaries in the aggregate to almost $200,000 a year. These staffs are engaged in general dairy work, extensions of markets, dealing with insects and other pests, production and sale of tobacco, the fruit industry, contagious diseases of animals, meat and canned goods, live stock and seed control. The heaviest item next to civil government is the meat and canned goods branch with 244 employees, costing more than $38,211 per annum, or othereabouts.

All this money is expended in an effort to make farming more and more a scientific undertaking and occupation. A great deal of good is being accomplished, and results are likely to be much better as time goes on. Farmers, like other people, do not care too much for paternalism, too many prohibitory enactments, too many rules and regulations, but they live up to the letter and spirit of legislation when it is really beneficial to agriculture.

To succeed in any branch of farming needs application, skill, experience and uninterrupted energy, together with the use of the latest information and knowledge available. We hope the time is not far distant when the Canadian farmer will find his occupation paying him on a more generous basis. The men who built up the country since pioneering days deserve well at the hands of every section of the public. Their encouragement and ultimate prosperity is the sure foundation of permanent well-being, so far as Canada is concerned.

EVOLUTION AND THE DAYTON AFFAIR.

It is well to be clear in our minds what the trouble is at Dayton, in Tennessee.

The legal case is this: the Tennessee Legislature passed an act prohibiting the teaching of the doctrine of Evolution, so far as the Public Schools of the State are concerned. A school teacher, Mr. Scopes, disobeyed the law. The State authorities began a prosecution. Mr. Scopes' defence is that the law is ultra vires of the State Legislature. He argues that the State law is an infringement of a superior law, the constitution of the United States, which guarantees religious liberty.

In short, Mr. Scopes holds in effect that the State of Tennessee in forbidding his teaching of Evolution in a State school interferes with his religious liberty. Of course, he is wrong in that. Nobody asks to prevent him believing in Evolution as much as he likes. Nobody is interfering with his personal right to doctor religion any way he wants for himself. The legal point at issue is merely whether a Public School teacher can defy the orders of those who employ him.

To understand how the fat has got in the fire, one must go farther back. The State law was passed by the Legislature after a discussion in which it was argued that the doctrine of Evolution was contrary to the truth of the Bible. Consequently, many in Tennessee and elsewhere who support the law think they are fighting for the Bible; while on the other hand undoubtedly, many who are supporting Scopes believe that they are fighting against religious bigotry. And the great mass of the public, wishing to believe in both the Bible and the logic of science, are curious to see what will come out of the controversy, and whether any real light will appear on a subject of tremendous import to humanity. Hence the universal interest.

* * * *

Of course, the fact that Scopes is wrong does not make the State of Tennessee right, in so far as its law prohibits explanation in its schools of what is meant by the theory of Evolution, as we understand the law does. Scopes, as an employee, is wrong, and doubtless will be found so by the courts; the State of Tennessee, as a champion of the Bible, is wrong also, because it is enacting that ignorance is a good thing in Bible championship. Most of the intelligence of the world has got past that.

* * * *

Beyond question, the theory of Evolution conflicts with the theory that the Bible is literally and verbally accurate in every word. But in this regard, useful discussion can not be assisted by ignorance of what is meant by either Evolution or religion. In respect of the Bible, serious-minded people are now broadly divided into two classes—the Fundamentalists and the Modernists. The former are those who believe in the verbal or plenary inspiration of the Bible, as the case may be; and as interpreted by old-time, orthodox theologians; literal hell-fire, a strictly Hebraic observance of the Sabbath; an Apocalyptic Heaven, whose streets are paved with gold, and upon the banks of whose Elysian rivers are seated saints in white robes playing harps; in angels with wings inhabiting celestial spaces; in an actual physical resurrection of the dead, and a judgment delivered from a Great White Throne descended from the skies on a great last day. The Modernists, on the other hand, accept all the moral and ethical teachings of the Bible: they believe much of it is symbolical and not intended to be taken literally, because much of it was written or uttered by prophets and teachers who spoke in symbols, parables and metaphors. They believe in a God, a Divine Christ, an immortal soul, spiritual rewards and punishments for good and evil, and a Hereafter. Generally speaking, they do not consider themselves obliged to accept unquestioningly statements which have a bearing on physical existence where these are not supported by conclusions offered by science.

* * * *

The doctrine of Evolution, therefore, is not something that distracts the minds of the Modernists. It is believed in by at least nine-tenths of the scientific world—not by a mere handful of scientists, as Mr. Bryan suggests—and by a majority of all educated persons, including many, if not a majority of Christian ministers. It really only should involve in the minds of religious people whether this world and all its wonderful and changing phenomena, and the myriadfold forms of life and substance which exist in it have been separate acts of creation or were gradually evolved from primordial forms of matter and life, the transformation being effected in accordance with Divine and permanent laws of Nature. The scientist sees no conflict in a belief in Evolution with that in a great creative First Cause which controls and directs the destinies of all things. Darwin himself never lost faith in God or gave up allegiance to his church, although he felt keenly and suffered much from the denunciations of the orthodoxy of his day.—Ottawa Journal.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, July 20—Market was just about steady with last week's closing prices for anything of good quality. But trade was slow, and it looks as if last week's experience of heavy carryovers of common and uncommon and unfinished grass cattle will be repeated. There was a moderately heavy run of nearly 5,000 in the market, besides 923 billed through. There were several hundred stale cattle from last week's carry over.

Export fat steers steady from $7.50 to $8; export bulls, $4.50 to $5.25. Rovers and Maybee took 500 exporters during the early trading.

Butcher cattle, choice handyweight $7 to $7.50. One load of extra choice heavy beef steers sold to the Harris Abattoir at $8.75. Common and butcher stuff anywhere from $5 to $6.00.

Butcher cows slow and a little easier at $4.75 to $5.25, tops.

Calves steady, $9.50 to $10, tops.

Lambs steady, $16 to $16.50, tops.

Hogs 25c higher at $13.75 off cars for today's deliveries.

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, July 20 (Canadian Press).—Sterling exchange rates were quoted here today as follows:

Sterling demand $4.85 3-8.

Sterling cables $4.85 7-8.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, July 20 (Canadian Press).—Little business was transacted in the Montreal grain market today, there being little demand from foreign buyers for any kind of goods. The only sale reported was a few odd loads of oats to the United Kingdom. No. 2 feed grade selling at 1-4c per bushel under the Winnipeg July option, c.i.f. Montreal.

Owing to the weakness in the Winnipeg market for oats, local prices were reduced 1 1-2 to 2 cents per bushel.

The exports of butter from the Port of Montreal for the week ending July 18, were 18,977 packages which showed a decrease of 9,425 packages as compared with the previous week, and an increase of 15,920 packages with the same week last year, and the total shipments for the season to date have been 87,209 packages in excess of the same period of 1924.

The receipts of butter today were 6,498 packages, as compared with 8,284 for the same day last week, and 2,615 for the corresponding day a year ago. The undertone to the market continues strong and prices are steadily tending upwards, but business was reported quieter over the cable and the movement for local account was small.

Cheese Export Heavy.

The exports of cheese from the Port of Montreal last week were 60,745 boxes, which shows a decrease of 17,240 boxes, as compared with the previous week, and an increase of 21,543 boxes with the same week last year, while the total shipments from May 1 to date have been 147,998 boxes larger than the same period a year ago.

QUEBEC BUTTER AUCTION

MONTREAL, July 20 (Canadian Press).—At the Quebec Federated Co-operative Society auction sale held here today there were 2,250 packages of creamery butter offered of which 1,500 packages No. 1 pasteurized creamery sold at 38c per lb., which showed an advance of 1-8c per lb., as compared with the previous sale, and 36c per lb was bid for 750 packages No. 1 creamery, withm 37c per lb. asked.

BELLEVILLE CHEESE

MONTREAL, July 20 (Canadian Press).—At the United Dairymen Co-operative auction sale of Belleville cheese held here today, the offerings amounted to 2,217 boxes of which 1,417 boxes No. 1 white sold at 22 5-16c per lb., and 800 boxes No. 1 colored at 22 1-4c per lb., f.o.b. Belleville for shipment to Montreal. These prices as compared with a week show an advance of 15-16 to 1c per lb.

EGG PRICES

OTTAWA, July 20 (Canadian Press).—Fresh egg market gained further strength last week and cleared firm. Very little change is anticipated except in fancy stock which is expected will go higher.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Ills., July 20 (Canadian Press).—Biggest arrivals of new winter wheat this season, together with more favorable weather than recently in the Spring wheat belt led to a fresh set-back in wheat prices today. The wheat market closed easy, 3-4 to 2c net lower, Sept. 1.54 1-4 to 1.54 3-8, and Dec. 1.55 to 1.55 1-4, with corn 1-2 to 5-8c off; oats 3-8 to 3-4c down, and provisions showing 7 to 17c decline.

Receipts of newly harvested wheat today at Chicago, St. Louis, Ohaha and Kansas City reached o tatal of 1,638 carloads, and in this connection the trade was further impressed by the fact that cutting of wheat had already spread to the northernmost tier of States, having started in North Dakota. Opinions were prevalent, too, that recent sharp advances in price had discounted crop damage reports, and that a reaction in the course of the market was to be looked for, besides, weather conditions have taken a turn for the better, with temperatures cooler and with welcome rains north of the Canadian boundary, both in Saskatoon and in Alberta as well.

A THOUGHT.

EVEN LOVE.

It is a poor and timid love that fears the test of absence.

The miracle of true and lasting affection is implicit confidence.

Infatuations and small passions may be extinguished by absence, but noble and ennobling love grows deeper and more beautiful through the same experience.

While the welfare and safety of love are sometimes impaired by long absence, there is no denying that short absences serve to inspire greater interest and to increase affection.

Even love of the most undying sort occasionally needs a change of environment and too much bliss or too much calm content is a good deal like a diet, that, never changed, in time palls on the appetite.

1. This is the season when vacations are in order— married or contemplating matrimony, why not take a vacation from the one and only one?

This is the season when the pangs of parting may be soon forgotten in the joys of meeting; even love needs a vacation.—The Silent

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT.

Toronto Man Was Adjusting Safety Device on Rifle.

LINDSAY, July 21.—(Special).—Mr. H. Young, 33 Stevenson Avenue, Toronto, is in the Ross Hospital here, the victim of a shooting accident which occurred on Sunday. Mr. Young, accompanied by his brother, was spending the week-end on Gull River, about a mile and a half from Coboconk, and while endeavoring to place a safety device on a 22 rifle, the weapon was accidentally discharged, the bullet entering Mr. Young's left knee. He was carried to the village, where Dr. Ingram attended to his injuries, and later taken to Lindsay, where the bullet was located by the X-ray and later extracted.

FOREIGN LOANS

currencies.

It is generally believed that Great Britain will be forced to continue her restrictive policy with regard to foreign loans for another eighteen months or two years, as she cannot spare much capital during the early fight for the maintenance of the gold standard. As evidence of this has been supplied by the recent suggestions that considerable loans might be sought here by Australia, a selfgoverning division of Great Britain, although under more normal conditions such loans are usually obtained within the United Kingdom Canada also has obtained about $65,000,000 of new capital in the United States during the last six months.

It is believed that the total of American foreign investments, particularly if the wartime debts of France, Italy and Belgium to the United States are funded during the next few months, as now seems probable, will increase to well over $10,000,000,000 by the close of the calendar year 1925. There have been reports that a number of loan proposals are awaiting the debt funding negotiations which are to take place here in August and September. If the funding negotiations are successful it is believed there will be two results: Removal of the objection of the Coolidge Administration to the flotation of certain desired loans and flotations by the foreign Governments at lower interest rates than now are possible.

How Loans Were Distributed

According to the Commerce Department estimates of America total foreign investments, exclusive of the $12,000,000,000 of war-time intergovernmental debts are distributed as follows:

Government guaranteed obligations: Canada and New Foundland $1,125,000,000; Latin America, $915,000,0000; Europe, $1,665,000,000; Asia and Oceania, $442,000,000; total, $4,417,000,000.

Industrial securities and direct investments: Canada and Newfoundland, $1,420,000,000; Latin America, $3,225,000,000; Europe, $450,000,000; Asia and Oceania, $280,000,00; total $5,375,00,000.

These figures give a total of both classes of foreign investments of $9,522,000,000.

Details of the flotations during the first six months of 1925 are given by Mr. Goldsmith. The par value of foreign securities publicity offered in the United States, he says, amounted to $551,591,000 as compared with $379,700,000 for the corresponding period of 1924.

The amount of new capital, arrived at by deducting refunding issues from the total, amounted to $437,266,000, or more than double that for the first six months of 1924. There was also a large increase in the number of issues. Up to July 1 of this year, sixty-three foreign issues were brought out as compared with forty issues offered during the first half of 1924.

SPECULATORS SELL

Bargains in Real Estate at the Inflation Period Now Disposed Of.

BERLIN, July 21—Foreign speculators in Berlin apartment houses recently have been selling their real estate by auction. During the inflation period many tenement and apartment houses in Berlin were bought by foreigners for the equivalent of from $100 to $400, as the purchases were usually purely speculative the buildings were not kept in repair and the municipal governments has seized rents to keep the buildings in condition.

Forced sales became quite common with consequent court actions. Many of the proprietors have preferred to sell the properties for what they would bring rather than spend money for repairs.

FRIENDS CIRCULATE PETITION ASKING CLEMENCY FOR CROSSEN

Serving Six Year Sentence in Kingston For Manslaughter —Signed in Campbellford.

TUG TIED UP.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 21.—T. F. Hall, of Cobourg, barrister, is in town circulating a petition asking for executive clemency for W. J. Crossen, who is now serving a six-year sentence in Kingston for the killing of Byron McCroaden, when the latter was trespassing upon a private fishing ground, of which Crossen was overseer. This is the same petition to which reference has previously been made in the Examiner, and which has been circulated in Cobourg.

The petition is being signed by all the leading residents who appear to be of the opinion that Crossen has been sufficiently punished for an error committed through a mistaken idea of his duty.

Favor Contract Plan.

Interested residents are signing a petition asking that work on the Market street and Oliver road sewer be started as soon as possible so that it may be completed and connection made before the cold weather sets in. The petitioners also ask that the work be done by contract so that they may know at the outset just what the sewer is to cost them.

Watering the Streets.

For the first time in six years the main streets are being watered instead of being given an application of oil, this work being done in response to a petition from the property owners interested. No oil, it is understood, will be purchased this year. The tank used is the one which came with the new road roller and is being operatedby Harry Seaborn.

Repairing Tug.

The tug Grosebeak, Captain Galaigher, of Peterborough, is tied up at the government dock here undergoing repairs. While towing a scow loaded with cial and while near Trent Bridge, the main shaft was broken and the boiler, too, suffered injury. A. H. McKiel towed tug and scow to Campbellford with his power boat. Josh Harnden is repairing the boiler with his electric welder, but the tug will have to be fitted out with a new shaft.

The Gloria and the Fern, small yachts from Toronto, passed through Monday bound for the upper resorts.

Personals.

Mayor McArthur, Police Chief Rouse, Reeve Corbitt, Dr. Kerr, Charles Wood and Harry Routhwell, all of Cobourg, were the guests of Harry Greenus, of Cobourg at the Sedgwick House, Trent River.

Very Reverend Archdeacon Davidson, former rector of St. John's church, Peterborough, was in town on clerical business yesterday.

Mrs. Routh, of Toronto, is visiting Mrs. Harry Townsend, Rear street.

Owing to the illness of the rector, Rev. G. C. Clark, the services in Christ church were conducted on Sunday by Lay Reader A. J. Jenkins.

BETHANY PERSONALS

BETHANY, July 21. — Mr. Harold McKinley of Detroit is the guest of relatives and friends for a couple of weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Sisson (nee Luella Nurse) arrived home Monday after having spent their honeymoon in England and other points abroad.

The estimated tourist revenue traffic was worth $143,000,000 in 1924, and is rapidly increasing, and that 1,200,000 tourist cars entered Canada in that year.

RUPTURE RELIEF

Appliance Expert Coming

Rupture(as defined) is not a tear but a dilation of the muscles and the distention of the membrane into the form of a sack (caused in the first place by weakness, and pushing force of internal weight and finally developing an external swelling in the groin through strain or violence) therefore subject to retention! Don't wear a truss pad where the lump is ,but be fitted where the rupture is. It's different, so says Thos. F. Egan, Appliance Specialist, 1057 College Street, Toronto, who will visit Peterboro, White's Hotel (173 Charlotte street) Friday (hours 9 a.m. till 9 p.m.) 1 day only, July 24.

Egan's new "Curative", "Curatrus" and "Easyfit" appliances with retentive shield acts, feels and retains more like the hand than anything yet invented. It gives a mild exercising massage, permits free circulation and allows nature to strengthen the parts in the shortest time possible. Light, cool, neat, does not slip and cuts little. Made to measure in a variety of forms for men, women, Children, infants. These new appliances being designed in conformity with the retentive principles as set forth by the world's latest textbooks are now receiving the highest approval. They embody all the principles as now approved of and used in New York, London, Paris, and are effecting better result than ready-made old-fashioned trusses. If interested, now is the time to make yourself safe for your work, so do not miss this opportunity to all and have a personal free demonstration and examination of samples. You will thus save time, money and worry in the end. It costs you nothing to investigate. "The best in the world". Note dates; call at Rial office for Mr. Egan's sample room. Tear this out as a memo.

MANY SURPRISES AT CUP SHOWER

Unique Affair Was Held in Honor of Lakefield Bride.

LAKEFIELD, July 20. — Mrs. Gordon Northey and Mrs. Osborne were joint hostesses of a unique cup and saucer shower for Miss Jean Thomson on Friday afternoon. The guests, who numbered eight, exclusive of the guest of honor, were seated at the tea table, which was decorated with pink and white sweet peas. A large bouquet of the same fragrant blooms fastened to the chandelier formed a hub for streamers of white ribbon, to each of which a cup was suspended, which were fastened at the place cards of the guests, which rested on the accompanying saucer. When all were seated a smart "maid" in black gown with cap and apron demurely carried in the tea, which was poured by the bride-elect. Delectable refreshments were served and a very jolly time was spent.

In wrapping the cups and saucers the hostesses appropriately used copies of the Lakefield News, and amid much merriment the bride and groom-elect and the hostesses departed with Louis Sabatino in his sedan car, which was also decorated with sweet peas. The shower was especially delightful, having so many surprises and keeping all the guests on their toes with anticipation.

Those present were: Mrs. J. C. Smith, Mrs. F. S. Brown, Mrs. Stewart, Miss Myrtle Payne, Mrs. J. R. Hull, Mrs. Leonard and Miss Graham. In the absence of Miss Elsie Sherin, her mother, Mrs. W. Sherin, took her place.

May See Foxes.

Mr. George G. Hendren has opened his fox farm to the public from 2 to 4 p.m. for the week of July 20, when his thirty-six silver black foxes may be seen without charge.

Band Concert.

The Citizens' Band is giving an open air concert on Thursday evening. These concerts are very popular and are well patronized. The village is very proud of the band, and deservedly so, as its progress has been exceptionally good.

Gained Certificates.

Miss Bessie Madill and Mr. Francis J. Condon have passed their examinations at the Peterboro Normal School and received second-class certificates. Misses Jean Ridpath and Viola Ridpath received third-class certificates.

The annual lawn social of St. Paul's Church will be held on Thursday, July 30, this year.

B. C. FIRES ALARMING.

Southern Interior of Pacific Province Is Ablaze.

VICTORIA, B.C., July 21.—(Canadian Press).—With little or no improvement over the week-end, British Columbia started this week with an extremely grave forest fire situation on its hands. Reports from all districts assembled by the forestry service Monday, indicate that conditions in almost every part of the province are cause for alarm.

Fires reported so far outstrip in number the total for a similar period last year. Up to date, 1,029 forest fires have been reported in the province as against 568 last year. The southern interior is ablaze now. No fewer than 386 fires have been reported in this area, and more are feared as the woods are growing more parched with every hour of scorching heat.

TRENT RIVER NEWS.

TRENT RIVER, July 21.—The L.O.B.A. No. 179 held a sale of fancy articles and home-made cooking at their hall Friday afternoon. Tea was served during the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred McGovern of Oshawa spent the week end at the latter's parental home with Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Lawson.

Mrs. Carter and Miss Nixon returned to Toronto today from spending two weeks at the Cook cottage.

Mrs. George Dickson and Miss Margaret returned to Campbellford today after spending two weeks at their cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. Jewett and children of Toronto have taken Mrs. Geo. Dickson's cottage for a couple of weeks.

LODGE MEMBERS MEET IN SESSION

Grand Orange Representatives in 95 Annual Convention.

VANCOUVER, July 20. —(Canadian Press). — Prominent members of the Grand Orange Lodge of British America are in Vancouver for the ninety fifth annual session of the Order, the fifty first session of the Grand Black Chapter and the thirty second session of the Ladies' Orange Benevolent Association which open here to-day. Delegates will be guests of the city at luncheon on Wednesday.

CONTRACT SECURED

Local Firm Appointed to Carry Out Alterations on Hospital.

COBOURG, July 20.—Henderson Bros of this town have been awarded the contract for the alterations which are to be made to the dining room at the Ontario Military Hospital.

Attended Funeral Here.

Mrs. Harry Eccles, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Denny, Mr. and Mrs. C. McKane, Mr. Edward Welsh and Miss Margaret Welsh, all of Peterborough, were in town the first of the week attending the funeral of the late Mrs. Michael O'Brien.

WELCOME PERSONALS

WELCOME, July 20.—Rev. and Mrs. Bunner and two daughters, Miss Gladys and Miss Vivian of Bowmanville, are visiting their daughter, Mrs. Clare Simmons.

Mrs. G. R. Clare and Miss Meta, visited at the Welcome Parsonage on Thursday, later they motored to Belleville, and were accompanied by Rev. D. R. Clare.

Mr. Jones, underwent an operation on his eye, in a Peterboro' Hospital, on Wednesday.

A number from Welcome attended the Union picnic at Port Briton, on Thursday.

A very unique and interesting League meeting was held in the United Church on Thursday night, when addresses were given by three young ladies, all daughters of previous pastors of the Welcome Circuit.

After the opening exercises, Miss Luella Rorke, of Peterborough, was called on. She spoke on the subject: "Are the Japanese dishonest?" She said that the question was so often asked, she would try to answer it. This impression has been given in some of the Canadian text books.

The Japanese are taught that finders are not keepers. The children are taught to hand over to the police the smallest things found.

Miss Rorke told a couple of instances where wrist-watches were lost by some of the missionaries and recovered. Also of a sachel containing money that was left in a motor bus, and found at headquarters.

She said it was quite safe to give baggage and money to a stranger and he would procure tickets and checks, and meet them at the station.

The Japanese are dishonest in talking. In order to please they will make promises they cannot keep.

They are dishonest in foreign trade because they have been taught that by the foreigner.

Honesty is always found where there are Christian Ideals.

Miss Vivian Brunner, who has been teaching the past year in the Hampton Institute for negroes, spoke next. She spoke of the need of education for negroes, after the civil war, and the founding of Hampton Institute, on Chesapeake Bay in Virginia, to prepare the negro to meet life.

Both High School and College courses are taken, followed by the Normal course. Domestic Science is taught the girls and instruction in trades given the boys. There are over 200 buildings in connection with the Institute.

Miss Gladys Bunner, then spoke of some of her experiences of the past year while attending Boston University. She told of social service work in an Armenian church in Chesley, near Boston, where she worked during week ends.

She also told of the students' World Campaign for Peace, and of addresses given at a banquet, given under the auspices of this organization.

The missionary Vice-President then took the chair, and called on Ernest Bamsey and Austin Chestnut, who gave interesting papers, on the subject: "The contribution of Methodism to the Development of Canada." A vote of thanks was given to all the speakers of the evening.

BALL ADMITS HE LIED TO RESCUE RUSSELL SCOTT

Believed Him Innocent, Says Detroit Man, Whose Telegram Stayed Execution.

PREYED ON MIND.

Scott's Lawyers Hope For Commutation of Sentence —No Sign of Brother.

CHICAGO, July 21.—Another ray of hope, that one of the amazing last hour developments, which saved him from death on the gallows last Friday would become tangible enough to prove his innocence during a seven-day respite, has been extinguished for Russell Scott, erstwhile Canadian promoter.

James M. Ball, a Detroit telegraph operator, who last Friday declared that he witnessed the shooting of Joseph Maurer, Chicago, drug clerk, and that Russell was innocent of the slaying, has admitted that the story was a romance, concocted "for the sake of humanity."

Ball said that he "told a lie to save one whom I believe innocent," but that when he found that his story was not accomplishing anything, he decided to admit the facts.

No Sign of Brother.

This was the second blow that Scott has received since his dramatic reprieve six hours before he was to hang. The stay of execution was ordered by Governor Small, when a Detroit telegram purporting to be from Robert Scott, the condemned man's brother, confessing the murder, was received. According to Russell's story, Robert, also under indictment, did the shooting.

The sender of the telegram promised to surrender the next day, but nothinngd developed. Various other communications were received, however, one a letter purporting also to be from Robert, mailed in Chicago last Thursday night. In this it was stated that he was seriously ill, but would give himself up as soon as he was able.

May Have Been Ball.

Scott's attorneys still are pinning hopes for a commutation on affidavits they said they had from two unnamed women reported to have been in the drug store at the time of the shooting.

Ball indicated that he may have been the one who sent the telegram from Detroit to the governor. Declaring that Scott's predicament preyed on his mind, the operator said he first decided to concoct a telegram purporting to be from Russell's brother, "but I though it out a little while further and lastly struck the idea of representing myself as a witness."

MANY AT CHURCH IN SPITE OF HEAT

Interesting Sermons Were Preached in Cobourg Churches.

COBOURG, July 21.—Interesting services were held in Cobourg churches Sunday and were well attended notwithstanding the warm weather. In view of the great interest which is being taken in these subjects at this time and the famous trial at Dayton, Tenn., where modernist teaching has been so hotly attacked, the theme taken by Rev. Temple Stannage Boyle, D.D., "Evolution and Christianity" was of much interest at St. Peter's church on Sunday evening. He was heard with very great interest.

The King Street United Church.

At the King street United church, Rev. Adam Hamilton, M.A., took for his evening subject "Lost in the Backwoods" and gave a short lecture on Mrs. Traill's story of Rice Lake, which is one of the very best descriptions of early settlement days in this district.

Division Street United Church.

The new pastor of this church, Rev. Dr. Brown preached in the morning service to a large congregation and Rev. W. A. Bremner at night. The church has now thoroughly organized with the following gentlemen as members of the session: Humphrey Skitch, John Russell, Thos. Davidson, Alex Young, Geo. Tinney, E. A. Hoskin, W. H. Hopper, J. W. Odell, R. L. Ralls, Geo. Goodrich, Andrew Ferguson, A. J. Gould, D. S. Haig, M. E. Hall, F. Hempstead, John Brown, C. C. Hare, Geo. Love, Dr. Wilkins, G. T. Wagar, F. Staples.

Committee of Stewards—Dr. Garland, J. E. Skidmore, C. H. Winter, M. W. Sparling, A. R. Willmott, John Bennett, A. Rambelow, D. Jex L. M. Harris, E. Guillett, J. G. Nichols, O. F. Allison, John Morrow, Jas. McKinnon, A. Cochrane, S. L. Joyne, J. D. Haig, Stuart Henderson, J. D. Hayden, Archie Russell, S. Throop.

These committees met for organization and appointed W. H. Hopper secretary of the Session and the Official Board. J. E. Skidmore was appointed chairman of committee of stewards and treasurer of congregational funds. Major Jas. McKinnon was appointed secretary of stewards and Dr. Gorland and J. W. Odell treasurer of the missionary fund. Mr. A. J. Gould was re-appointed pew steward.

New Name For Church.

A committee was appointed to act with the pastor in selecting a new name for the church and the congregation was invited to co-operate in this, and make suggestions.

On Sunday, July 26, a special service will be held to ordain and induct the members of the session.

Secured New Quarters.

The Christian Science Society has rented a store property on King street and is holding services there instead of in a private dwelling. The room is nicely fitted up.

At the continuing Presbyterian Church, Rev. T. W. Goodwill continues to minister the spiritual needs, of a very earnest, enthusiastic congregation. The Sunday services there were well attended as well as at the Baptist church, where Rev. J. N. Norton preached timely sermons, his theme in the morning being "A New Circumference."

Rev. Father Corkery Ill.

Rev. Father Corkery has been indisposed of late and was on Thursday taken to a Peterborough hospital for treatment.

PICNIC AT RICE LAKE.

First Day's Outing of United Church Sunday School.

WESTWOOD, July 21. — The first Sunday school picnic of the United Church was held at Birdsall's picnic grounds at Rice Lake on Tuesday afternoon. The weather being ideal for picnic seekers, a large number took advantage of a day at the lake and spent a very enjoyable afternoon.

Bathing and swimming proved a delightful pastime for the younger grils and boys, while a game of baseball played by the men and older boys caused a great deal of amusement and hearty enthusiasm.

During the afternoon, under the direction of Rev. J. Archibald and Miss Jessie Davidson a full list of races was staged; suitable prizes being awarded the winners.

The supper, as usual the crowning feature of a picnic, was enjoyed by all, after which a game of soft ball was played by the married ladies versus the single ladies, the latter winning.

Twilight coming all too soon, the gathering dispersed, after spending an afternoon of recreation and pleasure.

DIED AT RESORT.

Heart Failure Caused Death at Sturgeon Lake.

LINDSAY, July 21.—(Special). — The sudden death took place Monday morning at Kentstone, Sturgeon Lake, of Wenzel K. Jones, aged 37 years, son of a wealthy resident of Pittsburg, Pa. The deceased arrived at the resort on Saturday, and had planned to spend a three weeks' visit at the resort. Heart failure is given as the cause of death. The body will be taken to Pittsburgh.

A mink is generally thought to be a cruel and vicious animal, fearing man and to be feared. I used to think so.

Some of our pet opinions of birds and animals come in for rather rude shocks, when we begin to observe the wild life as it is.

The mink is a savage little animal among the wild folks, but, strangely enough, when he runs into the company of human beings, he acts for all the world as though we are so very interesting that he hates to leave us.

One summer, when up at a camp, north of Montreal, I had some very nice experiences with a wild mink. How long he had been watching us, it would be hard to say. He was probably around when we got there and we had been there ten days when I discovered him.

The children were playing on the beach and making castles of sand. I was up on the veranda, sitting with a pair of opera glasses in my hands, watching for birds and keeping an eye on the children. Suddenly, when looking towards the rocks near the beach, I detected a mink. Of course I just guessed it was a mink, since I had never seen one, but it was a mink for sure.

I was going to jump up and rush to the rescue of my small children, but the actions of the mink were such that I was sure he was more curious about those children and the sand castles than I was about him. I said nothing. I just watched.

The mink would get up behind a big rock, peek over and watch for a moment or so, then seek a nearer rock and get a better view. He would decide, at times, that his curiosity was dangerous and go scampering off, then creep back again and see some more.

He finally decided that the children were too good to miss, so he sprawled his long wiggly body on the top of a huge rock, less than fifteen feet from the children, and remained there, interested and amused. If the view of the scene would be obstructed by one of the children moving about, he would move his head, trying for a better view, and sometimes shift his position. His curiosity won him our friendship.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

CAUSES OF BALDNESS AND THE REMEDY.

More nonsense is preached about the hair than almost any other subject in physiology or medicine. Every barber and every doctor and almost every layman has his personal theory about hair and the causes of baldness.

Let us review our knowledge of hair: Each individual hair consists of the shaft and bulb. In the middle of the bulb is the "papilla," really the core and the only permanent part of the hair. The growth of the hair takes place by changes at the very root. New cells form and the shaft is pushed upward.

The root consisting of the bulb and papilla lies deep in the scalp. The youngest part of the shaft is the part in the scalp and as we go up the shaft, the oldest part of the hair is found at the tip.

An individual hair is good for about four, years we are told. When its ready to quit, a new hair forms on the papilla and this gradually pushes the old hair out of the canal.

This process is not unlike the development of dahlias or tulips, is it? The old plant dies, but the bulb continues good, and next year will gives us another plant.

The hair we see is really nothing but dead tissues, like the scales which can be rubbed off the skin. The living growing, vital part of the hair is hidden in the scalp.

Washing the hair affects it unfavorably no more than washing the hands harms the skin. Things you put on your hair "to make it grow" are of no consequence, except in so far as they stimulate or improve the circluation of blood in the scalp.

The hair cannot grow without blood to nourish the growing part of each individual hair. The new cells which produce the growth of the hair cannot be strong and vigorous cells, without an ample supply of rich blood to feed them.

Suppose you had a garden hose to supply your flowers with water. If you were to attach a screw clamp to the hose and screw it down tightly so to flatten and compress the hose, they would say you had gone crazy. Instead of a forceful stream of water you would cut it down to a mere trickle.

If you wear a heavy and tight hat, pulling it down on your scalp, you are doing the thing which will squeeze the blood vessels, cutting off the supply of blood to the roots of the hair. That is fatal to your crop.

The cells of the hair require sulphur. Foods rich in this element should be taken by persons who have thin and sickly hair. Eggs, milk, the cereals, potatoes—these are a few of the food stuffs rich in sulphur.

Good health, with forceful heart and vigor of body, will go far toward keeping the hair. Going without the hat does two things—it takes pressure off the scalp and it permits the rays of the sun to stimulate the scalp and thus to increase the supply of blood to that region.

Perhaps these hints will help you to keep your hair and to have more of it.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

ORDERS RADIO IN COFFIN.

Californian Expects to Hear What Is Going On After He Dies.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 20.—(Associated Press).—Sam R. Kimball, an aged San Fernandino Valley rancher, has placed an order with a Los Angeles undertaker for a twelve-hundred-dollar steel coffin equipped with a radio receiving set.

Mr. Kimball explained that he was convinced that the soul lingers near the body until the day of judgment, and he would be able to "hear what is going on in the world" after he died.

A FRIEND OF THE FAMILY

FAMOUS "FIRSTS"

By Temple Manning

THE UNCHANGED ARDOR OF THE FIRST LOVE LETTER.

A few years ago a young man, not very well known, engaged in a debate with several learned scientists. The subject of the debate was, "Has civilization progressed since pre-historic days?" The learned scientists took the affirmative side. They could prove, they said, that civilization has progressed by leaps and bounds, and anyone who disputed this fact was—well, a fool!

The young man smiled and awaited his turn. His opponents pointed to the thousands of scientific inventions which have been introduced within the last few centuries. They spoke of the new forms of government and of the higher social life which has evolved slowly.

Then the young man pleaded his cause. He said that new discoveries and inventions were only to be expected. They indicated no abnormal growth of the mind. If the Greeks had lived a few centuries longer, the development of labor-saving devices would have come from them. Democracy was introduced by the Romans, who abandoned it because of petty political jealousies. All these things, the young man continued, were the result of normal growth. "But has human nature changed?" he asked.

The wise men admitted that human nature is to-day exactly what it was two thousand years ago—that human emotions and thoughts and ideas have reached a standstill.

And there is one emotion—human love—which has not been affected one whit by the march of ages. Although the status of marriage has changed gradually—and radically—courtship, in all its old forms, remains the same. A letter which was unearthed several years ago from the ruins of Babylon breathes the same devotion that lovers demonstrate to-day. This letter was evidently written by a young man who had gone to Babylon to make his fortune and who wanted his sweetheart to join him there and become his wife.

A Babylonian "Love Brick."

Here is the ardent love epistle in full:

"To Bibeya from Gimil Marduk: May Shamash and Marduk grant thee, for my sake, to live forever. I write this to inquire after thy health. Let me know how it goes with thee. I am now settled in Babylon, but I am in great anxiety because I have not seen thee. Send news when thou wilt come, that I may rejoice at it. Come in the month of Arakhsamna (November-December). Mayest thou, for my sake, live forever."

mosquitoes are on the warpath

DON'T let mosquitoes spoil your summer. Spray them with Flit.

Flit spray clears the house in a few minutes of mosquitoes and disease-bearing flies. It is clean, easy and safe to use.

Kills Household Insects

Flit spray also destroys bed bugs, roaches, ants, and insect eggs. The cracks and crevices where insects hide and breed are readily reached by Flit.

spray. Spraying Flit on garments kills moths and their larvae which eat holes. Extensive tests showed that Flit did not stain or injure the most delicate fabrics.

A Scientific General Insecticide

Flit is the result of exhaustive research by expert entomologists and chemists. More than 70 formulas were tested on various household insects before Flit was finally perfected. Flit is a 100% effective insecticide containing no inactive (inert) ingredients.

HAL COCHRAN'S DAILY POEM

Aw, go on, smile a bit! There, that's the boy! Gee, when you smile, you just bubble with joy. Pickin' you up isn't meant to annoy, but holdin' you seems just like handlin' a toy.

Say, little honeybunch, whence came the red, that right on the peak of your cheekbones is spread? Wish you could know all the things that are said of the cuteness of you, from your toes to your head.

Wee bit of hair that is shiny as silk. Blue eyes that sparkle on seeing some milk. Piggies that wiggle whenever we touch. Tears? Well, they never appear very much.

My, but we'd like to explain, if we could how happy we are through your bein' so good. Still, we would love you all over again, though you were cross-like and bad, now and then.

You are the reason why folks often say that little things count, in their own little way. When we want happiness, brim full of glee, we know we can count upon you, Teddy B.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DORIS MAKES A MISTAKE.

Doris sat very quiet, watching the brownish-gray grasshopper perched on the very tip end of a blade of grass.

The gentle breezes swayed the grass and the grasshopper spread out its grayish-green wings, rubbed them with its back legs and began to sing merrily.

"Goodness, I'd give my new hat to ——" began Doris, when something touched her dress, and looking down Doris spied a wee little elfin face smiling up at her. "Well, of all things, Squeedee, where did you come from?"

"From Joyland, of course," laughed the elfin. "And I hope I'm in time to save your new hat. What were you going to bet?"

"I was just wishing I could understand what Mr. Grasshopper was singing about," laughed Doris.

"That's where you are fooled," said Squeedee. "Hello, there, Mrs. Grasshopper. I want you to meet little Doris. She has been enjoying your pretty song."

"I'm mighty glad to know you, Mr. Grasshopper," laughed Doris, thinking Squeedee had made a mistake. "Squeedee called you Mrs. Grasshopper and ——"

"He's right," chirped the grasshopper. "I am Mrs. Garden Grasshopper and I live right here in the stone wall. What's wrong with that?"

"Well, of all things," laughed Doris.

"I'm Mrs. Garden Grasshopper."

"Mrs. Grasshopper, I beg your pardon. I never knew before that the females of the grasshopper family could sing."

"I guess Mr. and Mrs. Garden Grasshopper are the only family where they both sing," laughed Squeedee. "And it certainly does seem nice to hear you singing. It makes a hot day seem cooler to me. What makes you so happy go-day?"

"Who wouldn't be happy?" laughed Mrs. Garden Grasshopper. "I have just buried my first set of eggs. You should have seen them. Oh, they were so pretty."

"Buried them?" laughed Doris. "How in the world could you do that?"

"Why, with my little sword," chirped Mrs. Garden Grasshopper, holding out the queer-looking little sword-like thing at the end of her body. She opened it and Doris could see several blades. "My, but I sure did dig a big hole in the ground with that sword and then let my eggs slip right down into it. Haven't I reason to be happy? Mr. Garden Grasshopper was so proud and happy to think he's going to have a family he's gone off to tell the neighbors to tell the glad news. I must go back home now. Come around a little later in the Summer and I'll show you my family." And Mr. Garden Grasshopper jumped from one blade of grass to another until she reached the stone wall, where she disappeared in one of the cracks, and Doris and Squeedee could hear her singing merrily.

Doris stayed very quietly until she saw Mr. Garden Grasshopper return and go in between the cracks of the stone wall. Then she crept up and made a chalk-mark on the stones so she would know just where the grasshopper family lived when she came back the next day. Then, thanking Squeedee for her pleasant morning, she ran into the house to help her Mama get lunch.

MY EUROPEAN EXCURSIONS

By Edwin Robb Peters

CLIMBING INTO THE GIANTS' HOME.

Jotunheimen, the vast mountain regions between the upper parts of Valdres and Gudbransdal, known as the "Giants' Home," will be any Norwegian visitor. I climb in at his window by motor car from Fagernes to Bygdin. The purest mountain air I've ever breathed came over those mountain plateaux and glittering lakes, where peaks as sharp as needles barred entrance to his inner chambers. The Bygdin hotel was on the edge of its lake and at the very entrance of the mountain land, where more energetic climbers will penetrate, but the motor will go upstairs for anyone these days and from its cushioned seat you can gaze on the majesties of Galdopiggin, Glittertind and Store Skagastolstind.

"I LOVE THIS COUNTRY OF VIANDEN."

When Victor Hugo came to Vianden on the eastern border of the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg, he expressed himself thus, "I love this country of Vianden." So would you. It stands in the midst of charming pastoral scenery, with houses the whitest, cobblestone streets the cleanest and standing on a crag in the midst, the beau ideal of a walled medieval castle that is all that dreams have dreamed. To be served, as I recently was, in its modest inn with fresh trout from its little river and wine from its vineyards, at a price ridiculously low, involuntarily brings sighs of regret for the time that must elapse before I see it again. If you motor, and love "sandpaper roads" to a city of the old Crusades, drive to Vianden.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

WEDNESDAY, JULY 22.

According to this day's lunar transists, which are emphasized in effect by certain mutual aspects, new enterprizes or constructive initiative in the old business are discouraged. They are under a disruptive influence, which carries hazards of fraud, misrepresentation and treachery, as well as unsuccessful litigation. Avoid quarrels and beware accident.

Those whose birthday it is may expect an active year, but one in which new projects are subject to fraud, duplicity and litigation. All affairs may be jeopardized by rashness and disputes. Physical injuries should be guarded against. A child born on this day may be determined and enterprising, but may be impetuous and quarrelsome. It should be given training and discipline to overcome these obstacles to its success.

SUGGESTIONS FOR SOLVING CROSS-WORD PUZZLES

Start out by filling in the words of which you feel reasonably sure. These will give you a clue to other words crossing them, and they in turn to still others. A letter belongs in each white space, words starting at the numbered squares and running either horizontally or vertically or both.

The solution will appear in to-morrow's paper.

APPEAL IS MADE TO MINE OWNERS

Suggest That They Withdraw Proposals Unacceptable By Miners.

LONDON, July 21.— (Canadian Press.)—The Government's efforts to bring miners and mine owners into conference to negotiate a new agreement was seconded yesterday by Rt. Hon. Hugh Pattison Macmillan, chairman of the Government Inquiry Board, who appealed to owners to withdraw their proposals for new agreement which miners had declared utterly unacceptable. The representatives of mine owners are not disposed to yield on this point. Miners continue to boycott Government inquiry which yesterday was attended only by representatives of owners.

NO CHARGE.

Attorney General Says Mrs. Rodger is Very Plucky Woman.

TORONTO, July 21.—(Canadian Press). — No charge will be laid against Mrs. W. R. Rodger, the woman who shot and fatally wounded Mat Kolidee at St. David's on July 15th, when the latter attempted to rob the branch of the Imperial Bank of which her husband, Mr. Rodger, is manager.

Attorney-General Nickle stated that the case had not been referred to him by the local Crown attorney concerned, but that if such reference were made he would recommend that no legal action be taken. Mrs. Rodger, he thought, had shown herself to be a very plucky woman.

When The Babies Are Cutting Teeth
THE MOTHER SHOULD USE

During baby's teething time, the bowels become loose and diarrhoea, dysentery, colic, cramps, etc., manifest themselves; the gums become swollen, and cankers form in the mouth.

This is the time when the mother should use "Dr. Fowler's," and, perhaps, save the baby's life.

FALLS FROM BOAT INTO DEEP WATER

Young Son of Captain Lost —Little Hope of Recovering Body.

MIDLAND, Ont., July 21 (Canadian Press)—When the freighter Glencairn sailed from this port Friday she carried Mrs. Hudson, wife of Captain Dalton Hudson, and their two sons. Shortly after passing the Soo on Sunday afternoon Erme, younger of the two children, fell overboard and was lost. As the water is about 250 feet deep there is little hope of recovering the body though a tuge is going up from here to assist in the search.

DAUGHTER BORN TO RAJAH'S FAVORITE

Mumtaz Begum Gained Notoriety in Murder Trial.

LONDON, July 21. — (Canadian Press). — A despatch to the Daily Express from Bombay says that Mumtaz Begum, former dancing girl and favorite of the Maharajah of Indore, gave birth to a daughter yesterday. The customary celebrations in honor of the birth of a child were numerously attended. Those present included Mumtaz' great-grandmother, who is reputed to be 130 years old.

Mumtaz Begum gained much notoriety last May during the trial of nine persons accused of murdering Abdul Kadir Baula, Bombay merchant, who had befriended Mumtaz after she fled from the palace of the Maharajah and took up her residence in the home of the merchant.

GRASSHOPPERS' OPERA

Insects Valued for Their Musical Qualities in Tokio.

TOKYO, July 21.— Singing insects are now on sale by street vendors along the Ginza, the gay "Main Street" of Tokyo. The principal warblers of the insect variety are crickets and long-horned grasshoppers. To the Japanese the "song" of the cricket and the grasshopper lends a peculiar charm to the summer evening.

The diminutive insects are sold in quaint bamboo cages, decorated with silk ribbons. Prices range from fifty sen to as high as twenty-five yen each.

GOVERNMENT READY.

Tells Magistrates to Prepare to Swear in Special Constables.

LONDON, July 21. — (Canadian Press).—The Westminster Gazette says the Government has asked all London magistrates to fix the dates on which to swear-in special constables in the event of an industrial emergency. It is understood that this is part of the Government's preparations for taking charge of transportation and food supplies in case of strike or lockout.

LONDON TO HAVE FREIGHT RAILWAY

Will Be Underground and Relieve Present Lines of Congestion.

LONDON, July 21. — (Canadian Press).—The Daily Graphic says that United States capitalists have just completed preliminary plans for giving London the biggest underground railway system in the history of transportation, involving an outlay of £35,000,000.

A network of freight railways below the level of the present passenger subway system is planned, the idea being to speed up the surface traffic by transferring freight haulage from the streets to the new railway system. The scheme has been designed by an English engineer.

Let's Talk It Over

Answering a Protest.

Here's where S. R. N. relieves her mind and breaks into print.

MISS EGOTIST:

The letter "I" is your most popular one, isn't it? I have read a number of your letters and the more I read the more I wonder if the boss does really pay you for the kind of stuff that is printed under your name.

It seems that you are at your best when knocking anyone that doesn't agree with you. Wouldn't this be a great little world if you could run it? I bet you would uplift the poor downtrodden women, wouldn't you?

Your ignorance would be refreshing if it were not for the fact that certain simple minded people are influenced by the drivel you write. You are the sort of a woman who would make a man's life miserable, if you ever did land a man. I suppose that I shall be the recipient of a wonderful bawling out on this account. All the education that was useless to that empty skull of yours will be turned loose against me, I suppose.

Well, I hope this does you some good but I don't imagine it will, for you are one of those "know it alls" that can't be told anything. Yours in disgust—and thanking God that I am not one of your "pals."

S. R. N.

No, I'm not going to "bawl you out." This column is not used for the purpose of free advertising. If, after clipping the above and pasting it in your scrap book you still feel the need of printer's ink to immortalize your thoughts, see the classified ad department for space rates.

But she's right about the pronoun "I" being my favorite word, Pal. It is. I use it constantly and consciously. I talk about myself, about the things I've done, the folks I've known, and the thoughts that I have had.

Why?

Because by telling what a fool I've been, telling of the years I've wasted, and the mistakes I've made I may be able to save someone else from doing the same. I talk about myself because I don't know anyone who has been a bigger fool than I have been.

There is some compensation in having been a fool if you have sense enough to recognize your folly. It is particularly worthwhile if thereby you are enabled to prevent someone else from being the same sort of an idiot under the same given circumstances.

We are all children, groping in the dark. The least any of us can do is to extend a friendly hand and a comforting word to others who are also trying to find their way.

The "bosh" really pays me for the stuff that is printed under my name, not because I'm a clever or a wise person, but because I have been all sorts of a fool and most kinds of a sinner. I can reach out my hands in sympathy to the other folks who have been foolish and bad.

It's because I've needed a Pal myself—because I have been so miserably sad and lonely that I offer my friendship to those who are lonely. I want you for a friend, Pal—you friendless one—because I want you to believe that I am not just a newspaper writer who is smart at so much a word. I want your friendship because I need it, down in my heart. I'm [illegible]

[illegible] very good and wise [illegible] to do. I [illegible] that I am very wise—very good—I've made mistakes. I am [illegible] my many mistakes, as plainly written, are plain to me. I can't erase them from my life. But if there are grown Pal, and you're making a mess and I leap and perhaps a little advice from somebody who's tried most everything once, then my hands are open to you and I'll help you if I can.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

What should a girl say when she is introduced to another girl?

QUESTION BOX.

QUESTION BOX: It is merely necessary to say "How do you do," when you are being introduced to anyone, whether it be a man or lady. However, if you have heard about the person to whom you are introduced, and if you are especially glad of the opportunity to meet them, you might add some interesting personal comment.

GOOD MANNERS

In walking about in the foyer of the opera house, a gentleman leaves his coat in the box or in his orchestra chair, but he always wears his high hat.

HOME TOWN RECIPE.

We are very grateful to two subscribers for responding so promptly to a request for a formula for making a rose jar (pot pourri). The mixtures are different in composition, so we publish them both. The first comes from Mrs. A. L. Kent, 493 King street:

4 ozs. orris root, 3 ozs. oil of cloves (or bruised cloves), 2 ozs. gum benzoin, 4 ozs. Calamus root, 6 ozs. angelica root, 10 drops true oil of cinnamon, 40 drops oil of bitter almonds, 1 drachm essence of bergamot, 40 drops English oil of lavender, 30 drops oil of verbena.

Gather fresh rose leaves to nearly fill the jar. Sprinkle some salt through them and allow to stand for a few days. Then pour over them the above mixture. It will perfume the air for years.

(In this connection, it is a better system to spread the leaves, well sprinkled with salt, on newspapers to dry for a few days, before putting them in the jar.)

The second recipe comes from Mrs. R. B. Dean, 114 Hunter street west:

1 oz. rose leaves, 1 oz. lavender flowers, 1-2 oz. orris root (coarse powder), 1 drachm powdered cloves, 1 drachm powdered cinnamon, 1 drachm powdered allspice, 1 oz. table salt. Mix thoroughly.

THE SEASON'S MID-DAY.

This is an in-between season with regard to clothes for women. A mere man might think that the very thinnest of flimsy summer wear would occupy the attention of the feminine world in this weather, but then men belong to that class of human that wears warm clothing on cold days and cool things in the dog days and governs its thoughts accordingly.

Every woman knows that the time to think of summer wear is in February and March, and July and August bring thoughts of fall suits and winter wraps. In December, miladi wears thin silk stockings and bares her throat to the icy blast. In August, she does a fur neckpiece, like the careful little kewpie who always takes special care of his neck. In January, she wears a straw hat, and in melting summer weather, she puts a warm little felt on her curls. So it goes.

This is the season too, of sales. Warm-looking coats may be purchased in some of the stores, at half price, along with quantities of dresses of all types, left over in stock and marked down, away below their original value. This would be an excellent time to stock up on the low-priced lingerie, also, that is on view in so many of the shops, because vests and step-ins and envelope effects don't vary much from year to year. There are pretty things in pale-tinted undies on the counters, pale yellows and pinks and blues, trimmed with dainty little French rosettes and creamy lace.

It is the mid-season, the middle time, the "mezzo giorno" of the summer, when the clock stops momentarily and the busy pendulum of fashion is at rest.

A SMILE means the same thing in every language.

About Ourselves And Other People

By Winifred Black

THE HOST WITH THE HORRIBLE MIND.

The garbage pail man came in to spend the evening last night.

No. I don't mean the garbage man, I've seen the garbage man and he looks as if he might be rather a decent sort—when he is through with the garbage.

I would not be at all surprised to find out that he is as neat as a pin and as clean as a pink—when he is off duty.

The garbage pail man is different—very different indeed.

Oh, he looks all right. He's tall and fresh-colored and he takes his daily tub and he wears the smartest kind of smart clothes—petticoat trousers and all.

Successful man he is, too, so far as money goes.

I don't know how he made his money, but he has made it anyhow. They say he paid an income tax of something like a hundred thousand dollars this year.

He is a widower and he is very devoted to the ladies—gives parties for them off and on with plenty of flowers and lots of decorations and all kinds of wonderful things to eat and to drink.

But I have noticed that women who go to his parties once don't seem to be perfectly wild to go again.

I'd as soon go downstairs and take the cover off the garbage can and sit and spend the Summer's evening there as to sit on the porch with the moon shining and the wild cucumber vine foaming over the pillars and scenting all the air with its woodland perfume—and then have the garbage pail man come and tell us the kind of stories he likes.

Not clever stories, not wicked little stories with the really smart point to them—just dull, stupid stories that no decent woman nor no decent man ought ever to hear in all the round and swinging world.

Ill-smelling stories with no sense to them and no wit and no humor. Dissecting-room affairs, hospital mistakes, death-bed grotesque arrays—everything that is fine and beautiful in the world held up to coarse ridicule and vulgar amusement.

If the world looked to me as it appears to look to him—a thing of sordid horrors—I would walk out unto the end of the pier some moonlight night and let the blue waters of the cool lake wash me clean—once and for all.

Remember the old immovable rim, motorists?

A puncture—then dirt, barked knuckles, delay!

Autoists nowadays would not put up with anything like that; but people are still buying electric ranges with many antique features.

An outstanding feature of the new Beach Electric Range is its accessibility for repairs.

To replace a heater coil in the cooking unit, you open up the top of the range as you would open a book, disconnect the ends of the wire, remove the old coil and insert the new one. You don't have to remove the burner or call in an electrician.

And remember — the Beach is the fastest electric range on the market—brings a quart of cold water to the boiling point in 8 minutes.

Any Beach dealer will explain the unusual features of this unusual range.

CAMPBELLFORD PERSONALS

CAMPBELLFORD, July 21.—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sarginson and two children, of Peterborough, motored down on Sunday and are visiting at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Duck, Queen street, and also attended the funeral of Marguerite Grills, fifteen year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Grills Seymour East, a niece of Mr. Sarginson.

Mr. E. D. Maybee and friend, Miss Irene Barnes, of Toronto, are visiting at the home of the former's mother, Mrs. J. Archer, Garry street, and sister, Mrs. Fred Todd, Seymour East.

Mrs. Richard Bartlett of Toronto, formerly of Campbellford, is visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. William Grills, Sr., English Line and other realtives at Petherick's Corners.

Mr. W. H. Ashton has returned home after a short holiday at Algonquin Park with Mrs. Ashton and their daughter, Mrs. W. A. Johnston and family. While at Algonquin Park, Mr. Ashton received word of the illness of his mother, who had reached the age of 91 years, and who passed away last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ashton visited their mother before her death and also attended the funeral at Little Britain.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bertrand of Meyersburg, (formerly Mrs. McMillan, of Norwood), have arrived home from their honeymoon and taken up residence on the groom's fine farm, four miles south of the town.

Mrs. Egan and her mother, Mrs. Adamson, who have spent the past few months at the parsonage with their sister and daughter, Mrs. Rev. Elliott, left last week to visit their sister and daughter, Mrs. Rowe, of Parry Sound.

Mrs. William Sarginson, of Peterborough, came down to attend the funeral of her granddaughter, Miss Marguerite Grills, which took place on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur K. Johnston, who have been visitin, their mother, Mrs. Clark Johnston, of town, and uncle, Mr. Will Stanwood and other friends for the past two weeks, leave on Saturday for their home at Dauphin, where Mr. Johnston is station agent for the C. N. railway.

Mr. Thomas J. Craighead and his mother, Mrs. Craighead, Mrs. James Thomson, Miss Rose Holonby and Mrs. George McComb spent Friday at Belleville, the guests of the latter's sister, Mrs. Frank Reid.

Miss Hazel Labrash and Miss Gertrude Callaghan, returned on Monday after spending the week end with friends in Kingston.

Mr. Harold Comerford of Madoc, spent Sunday at the home of his aunt, Mrs. George McComb, Rear street.

Mr. Gordon Cochrane left on Monday for Bracebridge, where he has accepted a position with the Hydro.

Friends of Mr. H. E. Southern will regret to learn that he is confined to his home through illness, but will be glad to know his condition is improved.

A gloom was cast over the home of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Grills, Jr., Seymour East, early Sunday morning, when their eldest daughter, Marguerite, passed away after an illness of several years' duration. The deceased was a bright and loving daughter and greatly beloved by all who knew her. She bore her suffering with patience, a month ago undergoing an operation in Peterboro Hospital. Surviving are her parents and five brothers and sisters. The funeral took place Tuesday morning to St. Mary's R. C. church, where requiem mass was sung by Rev. Father Phelan, interment taking place in St. Marw's cemetery. The family have much sympathy in thier sad bereavement.

APPEALS IN HAVELOCK.

Peterborough Counsel and Judge Huycke Attend Court To-day.

His Honor Judge Huycke, G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., S. T. Medd, and Miss Mabel Moore, official court reporter, left for Havelock this morning, where court will be held by Judge Huycke, to hear assessment appeals from the Court of Revision, in Havelock. Havelock has been quite a centre for assessment appeals, and it was famous a short time ago because of certain income tax assessments that were made, in which a very large number of railway trainmen were interested.

Dr. Thompson and Dr. Holcroft and other well-known citizens are on the list to have their appeals heard.

GERMAN REPLY IS CONCILIATORY

Communication Opens the Way For Negotiations on Security.

EVACUATE RUHR.

PARIS, July 21. — Canadian Press —Germany has replied in a conciliatory manner to the allied observations concerning her suggestion for a security pact, guaranteeing her western frontiers, and it is agreed with but few excepti , that the German communication, while far from removing all obstacles to a settlement of the security pact opens the way for negotiations from which an understanding may emerge.

Meanwhile the evacuation of the Ruhr region by which the French and Belgian forces of the occupation is going on apace, belief being expressed that by July 31st, virtually all of the allied troops will have left the Ruhr within a year after the Dawes plan became effective.

FINE PAINTINGS OF NATIVE BIRDS

Major Brooks, Canadian Artist, is Making Series of 34.

TO BE EXHIBITED.

Major Allan Brooks, the great Canadian painter of wild birds, acknowledged to be the finest bird artist in America, has just finished and delivered to Wallace Havelock Robb, the first four birds of a series of thirty-four which he is doing in full colors for the children of Canada, through the generosity of a reader of the Nature Lore feature (now appearing daily in Canadian newspapers), who sent to Mr. Robb a big cheque, which enabled him to order these paintings, and first high grade and accurate paintings of birds of Eastern Canada to ever be shown in Canada.

It is planned to exhibit these original paintings to the folks in towns where Nature Lore is read and to later exhibit them throughout Canada and to reproduce them for distribution to the Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, Schools and Nature Clubs.

A special exhibit of some of Wallace Havelock Robb's wild bird photographs will also accompany the Brooks' exhibit.

Brooks' paintings are not only accurate, but they command very high prices.

CALM REPORTED ON RIFFS' FRONT

May Precede Storm, is the Opinion of Military Experts.

RIFFS ARE MOVING.

FEZ, French Morocco, July 21. — (Canadian Press).—The situation is calm along the battle front, where the French troops are facing the rebellious Riffian tribesmen. It may be the calm before a storm, in the opinion of military observers, for the moment is probably more favorable to the Riffian offensive than it ever will be now that French reinforcements are arriving. Air scouts report a movement by a part, at least, of the troops being held by Abd-el-Krim for a mass manoeuvre. These troops are said to be moving in a northward direction, which, if confirmed, would show that a Riffian leader intends to establish himself on the hills from which the French would find it almost impossible to dislodge him.

RAIN RECEIVED IN DIFFERENT WAYS

Some Farmers Welcome It For Root Crops—Others Don't Like It.

TORONTO, July 21. — Canadian Press. — Very acceptable for the growing grain and root crops, as well as for the pastures, but with a somewhat opposite effect among farmers in the middle of the hay and wheat harvesting, were the copious showers which descended on Southwestern and Central Ontario to-day.

Considerable damage was reported to wire transmission facilities by electrical disturbances which accompanied the rain.

REPORT EXAGGERATED.

Government Says There Were Not 1,000 Drowned in Floods.

TOKIO, July 21. — (Canadian Press).—While Japanese newspapers publish reports that more than a thousand persons were drowned in the floods which occurred in Central and Southern Kobea last week, the official Government reports declare these figures to be greatly exaggerated.

Home-Making Helps

By Wanda Barton

ELECTRIC HELPERS WHO DO NOT GO ON STRIKE.

Old houses or apartments not plugged for electric attachments are being remodelled to accommodate them.

The vacuum cleaner is quite equal to one extra maid and does a bigger, better job than she can do. The attachments that clean the mattresses do a splendid job, cleansing the mattress and puffing up the pillows like new. It pays to invest in all the attachments, for they each furnish their share of efficiency in the general cleaning operations.

Those who have electrified a serving wagon for dining-room use find great comfort and pleasure in using the percolator, toaster and grill for their table cookery. Double sockets are provided where the floor current is adequate, so that as many service cords may be attached as are needed. The joy of making really sure-enough pancakes right on the table is one within our reach with an electric grill. The batter is in a pitcher, the griddle top is of aluminum that needs no greasing.

The breakfast alcove under these conditions becomes a kitchen as well as a breakfast room. The grill has several attachments, such as the small frying pan, tiny saucepan, griddle, and even a tiny broiler.

We never knew the delight of having available night lights before that were efficient for reading in bed, arranged on the headboad or above the bed just at the right angle.

To have all ones pretty lamps, candles, side lights and top lights on switches, so that pressing a button illuminates the entire system, is not only a wonderful comfort, but a great labor-saving operation as well. This can be done at such a small outlay that even the modest home may be equipped in this fashion.

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1925

Sports

By HEDDA HOYT

NEW YORK, July 21.—(United Press).—

"Time usta was" said Moll Malone
"When sporting togs had tone
When dames was dressed in tailored frocks
That covered ever bone."

"But now the garb for open air
Is chiffon strewn with roses—
And horse-hair hats quite wide enough
To shield protudin' noses."

Sports costumes this season are worn only when one indulges in sports. One does not see them at the racetracks, country clubs or pool matches as one did last season when the women in the grandstands dressed in sports attire in honor of the occasion.

Today the favored frock for all outdoor occasions is chiffon. The favored hat is hair braid. In place of the sports shoe we have the Deauville sandle in white or color or white piped in color. Hosiery is white, nude or of a shade matching the frock. Blond satin slippers with matching hosiery are worn with frocks of light tannish shades and black patent pumps with buckles are sometimes worn.

Printed chiffon frocks with huge rose design, full sleeves gathered into a narrow wristband, flaring hems and short skirts are numerous. Color most common are black and white, red and blue, green and white, red and white and pastel-rose on navy. Handbags, beads, hats and parasols perform the duty of carrying out the color scheme of the print. A few light silk dresses of slim belted type are all that remain of the one-time sports vogue. These are worn with matching small felt or straw hats. White frocks trimmed in color and matched with vivid scarfs and hats are plentiful. Where a short sleeved frock is worn, beige suede wristlet gloves are worn with matching hosiery.

A FASHION MODEL'S DIARY

By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE TELLS ABOUT SOME DAINTY LINGERIE.

The manikins at Madame's shop have been very busy lately sewing for themselves.

When the usual mid-Summer slump comes we always have time to sit about our manikins' room and sew and talk.

The girls have made a simple crepe frock or two, and now they seemed to have turned their attention to underthings.

"There's nothing like starting a movement," Gaby remarked today. "I began on underwear first, and now almost every one of the girls has started making underthings."

"Well, you've been so busy preaching the good points of batiste underwear for hot weather, that there's no wonder we all started in to make some," I replied.

Gaby took a new hold on the bit of white she was hemstitching and replied: "Well, one of the clients who always looks so unusually fresh and cool when she tried on frocks told me she would never consider anything but batiste underthings in the Summer, and I liked the idea so I started to work immediately."

"I think they wash better than anything, and they do seem cooler," I replied. "I like the idea too."

"Don't you think this shirt is a nice one?" Gaby asked.

She held up a dainty batiste undershirt. It had side seams which curved out gradually, and Gaby explianed that she cut it to fit rather close about the upper part, and had sloped the seams to give ample room below. She explained:

"I like this kind better than the skirts which have straight side seams and have to be drawn up at the top with ribbon."

I did like the shirt, for Gaby had done double hemstitching about the top and also made a little squared off design with it, enclosing some dainty sprinsg of embroidery.

"What kind of shoulder straps do you like best for your shirts?" I asked her.

"I like wash ribbon," Gaby replied. "Filet lace also is excellent, for it launders beautifully."

Let's Talk It Over

Answering a Protest.

Here's where S. R. N. relieves her mind and breaks into print.

MISS EGOTIST:

The letter "I" is your most popular one, isn't it? I have read a number of your letters and the more I read the more I wonder if the boss does really pay you for the kind of stuff that is printed under your name.

It seems that you are at your best when knocking anyone that doesn't agree with you. Wouldn't this be a great little world if you could run it? I bet you would uplift the poor downtrodden women, wouldn't you?

Your ignorance would be refreshing if it were not for the fact that certain simple minded people are influenced by the drivel you write. You are the sort of a woman who would make a man's life miserable, if you ever did land a man. I suppose that I shall be the recipient of a wonderful bawling out on this account. All the education that was useless to that empty skull of yours will be turned loose against me, I suppose.

Well, I hope this does you some good but I don't imagine it will, for you are one of those "know it alls" that can't be told anything. Yours in disgust—and thanking God that I am not one of your "pals." S. R. N.

No, I'm not going to "bawl you out." This column is not used for the purpose of free advertising. If, after clipping the above and pasting it in your scrap book you still feel the need of printer's ink to immortalize your thoughts, see the classified ad department for space rates.

But she's right about the pronoun "I" being my favorite word, Pal. It is. I use it constantly and consciously. I talk about myself, about the things I've done, the folks I've known, and the thoughts that I have had.

Why?

Because by telling what a fool I've been, telling of the years I've wasted, and the mistakes I've made I may be able to save someone else from doing the same. I talk about myself because I don't know anyone who has been a bigger fool than I have been.

There is some compensation in having been a fool if you have sense enough to recognize your folly. It is particularly worthwhile if thereby you are enabled to prevent someone else from being the same sort of an idiot under the same given circumstances.

We are all children, groping in the dark. The least any of us can do is to extend a friendly hand and a comforting word to others who are also trying to find their way.

The "boss" really pays me for the stuff that is printed under my name, not because I'm a clever or a wise woman, but because I have been all kinds of a fool and most kinds of a sinner. I can reach out my hands in sympathy to the other folks who have been foolish and bad.

It's because I've needed a Pal so—because I have been so heartsick and lonely that I offer my friendliness to those who are lonely. I call you Pal because I want you to believe that I am your Pal—your friend—someone who cares—not just a newspaper writer being smart at so much a word. I offer my friendship because I need yours—because, deep in my heart, I'm lonely too.

Perhaps some very good and wise woman could do this job the way it ought to be done. I do not know. I only know that I am neither very good nor very wise—and that I make a number of mistakes. I am no oracle—no pearly oratory, no gilded wisdom drops from my lips. But if things are wrong, Pal, and you're needing a warm hand clasp and perhaps a little advice from somebody who's tried most everything once, then my hands are out to you and I'll help you if I can.

STEAMER ASHORE.

Danish Freighter is Aground on Chatham Bar.

CHATHAM, Mass., July 21. — Canadian Press. — The Danish freighter, Anna Jensen, of Windsor, N. S., for New York, went ashore early to-day on Chatham Bar.

The Coast Guard Cutter Ossipee, responed to the vessel's radio call for assistance. The vessel was reported in no danger.

HOME TOWN RECIPE.

We are very grateful to two subscribers for responding so promptly to a request for a formula for making a rose jar (pot pourri). The mixtures are different in composition, so we publish them both. The first comes from Mrs. A. L. Kent, 493 King street:

4 ozs. orris root, 3 ozs. oil of cloves (or bruised cloves), 2 ozs. gum benzoin, 4 ozs. Calamus root, 6 ozs. angelica root, 10 drops true oil of cinnamon, 40 drops oil of bitter almonds, 1 drachm essence of bergamot, 40 drops English oil of lavender, 30 drops oil of verbena.

Gather fresh rose leaves to nearly fill the jar. Sprinkle some salt through them and allow to stand for a few days. Then pour over them the above mixture. It will perfume the air for years.

(In this connection, it is a better system to spread the leaves, well sprinkled with salt, on newspapers to dry for a few days, before putting them in the jar.)

The second recipe comes from Mrs. H. B. Dean, 114 Hunter street west:

1 oz. rose leaves, 1 oz. lavender flowers, 1-2 oz. orris root (coarse powder), 1 drachm powdered cloves, 1 drachm powdered cinnamon, 1 drachm powdered allspice, 1 oz. table salt. Mix thoroughly.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

What should a girl say when she is introduced to another girl?

QUESTION BOX.

QUESTION BOX: It is merely necessary to say "How do you do," when you are being introduced to anyone, whether it be a man or lady. However, if you have heard about the person to whom you are introduced, and if you are especially glad of the opportunity to meet them, you might add some interesting personal comment.

GOOD MANNERS

THE SEASON'S MID-DAY.

This is an in-between season with regard to clothes for women. A mere man might think that the very thinnest of flimsy summer wear would occupy the attention of the feminine world in this weather, but then men belong to that class of human that wears warm clothing on cold days and cool things in the dog days and governs its thoughts accordingly.

Every woman knows that the time to think of summer wear is in February and March, and July and August bring thoughts of fall suits and winter wraps. In December, miladi wears thin silk stockings and bares her throat to the icy blast. In August, she dons a fur neckpiece, like the careful little kewpie who always takes special care of his neck. In January, she wears a straw hat, and in melting summer weather, she puts a warm little felt on her curls. So it goes.

This is the season too, of sales. Warm-looking coats may be purchased in some of the stores, at half price, along with quantities of dresses of all types, left over in stock and marked down, away below their original value. This would be an excellent time to stock up on the low-priced lingerie, also, that is on view in so many of the shops, because vests and step-ins and envelope effects don't vary much from year to year. There are pretty things in pale-tinted undies on the counters, pale yellows and pinks and blues, trimmed with dainty little French rosettes and creamy lace.

It is the mid-season, the middle time, the "mezzo giorno" of the summer, when the clock stops momentarily and the busy pendulum of fashion is at rest.

A SMILE means the same thing in every language.

About Ourselves And Other People

By Winifred Black

THE HOST WITH THE HORRIBLE MIND.

The garbage pail man came in to spend the evening last night.

No. I don't mean the garbage man, I've seen the garbage man and he looks as if he might be rather a decent sort—when he is through with the garbage.

I would not be at all surprised to find out that he is as neat as a pin and as clean as a pink—when he is off duty.

The garbage pail man is different—very different indeed.

Oh, he looks all right. He's tall and fresh-colored and he takes his daily tub and he wears the smartest kind of smart clothes—petticoat trousers and all.

Successful man he is, too, so far as money goes.

I don't know how he made his money, but he has made it anyhow. They say he paid an income tax of something like a hundred thousand dollars this year.

He is a widower and he is very devoted to the ladies—gives parties for them off and on with plenty of flowers and lots of decorations and all kinds of wonderful things to eat and to drink.

But I have noticed that women who go to his parties once don't seem to be perfectly wild to go again.

I'd as soon go downstairs and take the cover off the garbage can and sit and spend the Summer's evening there as to sit on the porch with the moon shining and the wild cucumber vine foaming over the pillars and scenting all the air with its woodland perfume—and then have the garbage pail man come and tell us the kind of stories he likes.

Not clever stories, not wicked little stories with the really smart point to them—just dull, stupid stories that no decent woman nor no decent man ought ever to hear in all the round and swinging world.

Ill-smelling stories with no sense to them and no wit and no humor. Dissecting-room affairs, hospital mistakes, death-bed grotesque arrays—everything that is fine and beautiful in the world held up to coarse ridicule and vulgar amusement.

If the world looked to me as it appears to look to him—a thing of sordid horrors—I would walk out unto the end of the pier some moonlight night and let the blue waters of the cool lake wash me clean—once and for all.

Remember the old immovable rim, motorists?

A puncture—then dirt, barked knuckles, delay!

Autoists nowadays would not put up with anything like that; but people are still buying electric ranges with many antique features.

An outstanding feature of the new Beach Electric Range is its accessibility for repairs.

To replace a heater coil in the cooking unit, you open up the top of the range as you would open a book, disconnect the ends of the wire, remove the old coil and insert the new one. You don't have to remove the burner or call in an electrician.

And remember — the Beach is the fastest electric range on the market—brings a quart of cold water to the boiling point in 8 minutes.

Any Beach dealer will explain the unusual features of this unusual range.

HORNSBY STILL LEADING BATTER SPEAKER HAS DISPLACED COBB

Cardinals' Manager Continues First in National League, But Indians' Pilot Now Leads the American.

The manager of St. Louis Cardinals, Rogers Hornsby, still sets the pace for the batters in the National League. His mark now is .424. Kent Greenfield of the Giants also continues to lead the pitchers of the league, having scored six victores and having met one defeat for a mark of .857. The leaders in other phases of play follow:

Most runs scored — Cuyler, Pittsburgh, 91.

Most hits made—Bottomley, St. Louis, 127.

Most two-base hits—Bottomley, St. Louis, and Carey, Pittsburgh 27 each.

Most three-base hits — Cuyler, Pittsburgh, 14.

Most home runs—Carey, Pittsburgh, 14.

Tris Speaker manager of the Indians, has taken the American League batting honors away from Ty Cobb of the Tigers, who set the pace for the last few weeks. The Indian's pilot has a mark of .4043 while Cobb's is. 4041. Stanley Coveleskie of the Senators is the league's leading pitcher, having twelve victories and one defeat to his credit. The leaders in other phases of play follow:

DRAFTING ROOM WON C.G.E. LEAGUE

Defeated Production 10-6 in Final Game for Championship.

The C. G. E. field at the corner of Wolfe and Park streets, was the scene of an exciting game of softball last night when the teams representing the Production and Draughting Departments met in the finals of the C. G. E. Shop League. The final score was 10-6 in favor of the Draughtsmen.

Sam Calladine occupied the mound for the losers and pitched good ball, but his support was wobbly, a few dropped flies being costly. His opponent, Jackson, received airtight support, Prest being particularly in the limelight. Both teams turned in some snappy fielding stunts, and extra base hits were few.

WOOLER TEAM WINS IN SOFTBALL GAMES

Defeated Printers and Knights in Exciting Contests.

The Soft Ball team — Austin,, Maunles, Brown, Fox, Curry, Stacey, Rogles, Whitney and Ruttan—are winning their fame as players. On Tuesday evening of this week the Printers nine visited the Wooler softball artists, and staged an exhibition game of Canada's new summer sport. The Wooler team won by the score of 10 to 8 after an exciting contest, .

On Friday evening the Knights of Columbus of Trenton came out to win. But the Wooler team again won by the score of 24 to 12. The exciting contests are drawing large crowds.

MUCH DEPENDS UPON THE GAME HERE TOMORROW

Another Win for Petes Would be Bad Setback for Oshawa.

NEARING THE FINISH

And Every Game is of Great Importance in Settling the Argument.

The Oshawa crew will be here tomorrow for a twilight game at Riverside Park with the Petes, and one of the tightest lights of the campaign should eventuate.

A loss to the Motorists would leave them two games behind and with the schedule rapidly rushing to its completion the handicap would be a heavy burden for Oshawa to carry. They will be full of fight tomorrow and the Petes will have to show their best wares to earn the verdict.

The game will start at 5.15 o'clock and a big crowd will undoubtedly witness this important clash.

The Petes played great ball at Oshawa Saturday and a repetition of the same brand tomorrow would give the local fans plenty over which to enthuse.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

I have been experimenting some with several average golfers, with the open stances. For the general guidance of golfers I have always advocated the square stance. The commonest fault of the average player, however, is over-swinging and it occurred to me that golfers might be led automatically to overcome this by adopting the open stance for all swings. In the open stance the left foot is drawn back some—a few inches—toward the left. Doing this not only shortens up the back swing that is too long, but it gives the body great freedom after the ball is hit so that a good follow through is accomplished.

SPORT GOSSIP AND COMMENT.

The present Central Ontario League race is the most sensational in the history of the organization, made so by the fact that three of the teams, Oshawa, Kingston and Peterboro, have been closely bunched all the way, and Belleville, the fourth club, has punch enough to make it dangerous at all times. At present Kingston and Peterboro are a game ahead of Oshawa, and tomorrow's games with Oshawa playing here and Belleville in Kingston will be of much importance.

* * * * * * * * *

The Petes got the jump on Oshawa Saturday by beating the Motorists at home and, incidentally, driving Dainty off the mound, the first time since his connection with the Central Ontario League that he has been chased to the showers. A win over Oshawa again in tomorrow's fixture would be of great help in ensuring Manager Johnston's crew a place in the play-off series, and at the same time it would make Oshawa's path a rough one. There is, in fact, so much hinging upon the result that the most exciting struggle of the year should develop.

* * * * * * * * *

Although Dainty may be sent right back at the Petes, the odds are that Manager Reeves will call upon his other southpaw, Lennox, to attempt to subdue the local talent. Lennox has a victory over the Petes to his credit, and has been turning in a nice card for Oshawa. Nothing has been given out from the Peterboro camp as to who will go to the hilltop for the Johnstonites. The game will be called at 5.15 o'clock, and many fans who are unable to see a Saturday game will appreciate this mid-week opportunity of seeing the Petes in action.

* * * * * * * * *

The Petes have been more handicapped than any of the other league teams, by reason of inability to use all its players in away-from-home games. Herb. Wolfe and Bob Ross have been missing from a number of games. Wolfe's hitting would likely have turned the scale in several of the games lost by the Petes away from home, for the fast centre fielder has been clouting the old pill at a merry clip.

* * * * * * * * *

Peterboro ball enthusiasts will be glad to see that Tris Speaker has been retained for next year as manager of the Cleveland Indians, despite the yapping of a section of the fans who wanted "Spoke's" head because of the failure of Cleveland to get anywhere this season. Speaker's hitting, in spite of his managerial troubles, has been one of the outstanding features of the campaign, and he may yet annex the crown as the American League's champion batter for the season.

SPRINTING AND MASSAGE COMES FIRST; SOCCER ILLS IS RIGHT INSTRUCTION

An Expert's Advice to Young Players by Welsh Internationalist.

SOCCER NOTES

A Player Can Only be Transferred Once During the Playing Season.

Billy Meredith, the Welsh wizard, believes that the decline in the standard of soccer could be stopped by the right measures, but mourns the fact that instead of teaching the game clubs are urging the authorities to make it easier for the new generation as a spectacle. If this goes on there will arise, says Meredith, a race of stereotyped players without individuality, and he continues: "Things are bad enough now with a system of training which has for the least part of design the cultivation of ball play. Sprinting and massage come first of all, and when the ball is out the usual procedure is futile shooting in."

Ball Control the Thing.

An important part of Meredith's cure for present-day soccer ills is right instruction in ball control. He was one of the boys of Chirk School that sent almost forty good players out into the world, among them the Morrisses, the Owen's, Lot Jones and Stan. Davies. The boys played with a tennis ball which they were very careful to control because immediately the ball went out of bounds it was back to the school and lessons immediately. "One method of mine," says Meredith, referring to later years, "to keep the eye and the feet in trim was to take a ball on to the terraces. Playing with a ball in this way teaches nimbleness of foot and versatility of control. Nowadays the man who can skip the track is held to be in good training; in my days we would have a ball and I have known a locker broken open in order to get one.

Little Details Count.

"When I said we are not producing the true type of young players I have been asked, if it is so, how I explain it. My answer is that the picture theatre, and the dancing craze have a great deal to do with it. In my time we used to burn every moment of daylight and twilight at the beginning and the back-end of a season out with a ball. Now, the youngsters find a counter attraction for their enthusiasm until the week-end. All round there is not enough attention to detail."

Too many players, Meredith claims, pay too little attention to their boots. There is provision in the rules for the use of bars and studs, and because the latter have become fashionable, not because any greater efficiency has been proved, not one in a hundred plays with anything else. It has not occurred that cross-bars might suit them better.

SOCCER NOTES.

On Thursday evening the local junior derby takes place on King Edward Park between last year's cupholders, C.P.C., versus De Laval, for Ex-Mayor Taylor's Trophy. The Junior League leaders have defeated C.P.C. already in the league; therefore, the cupholders are out to retain the cup.

The Senior League game for Saturday is between the Quaker Oats and Thistle at the Oval. Kick-off at three o'clock. Referee, Alex. McKinley.

Canadian Woollens were given permission to play in Campbellford on Saturday afternoon.

The junior fixture for Saturday afternoon is Masseys versus Canadian Packing Co. in an exhibition match at King Edward Park. Kick-off at 3 o'clock. Referee, Stan. Willis.

The re-play of the semi-final Peck Cup is between the Quaker Oats and Thistle and will be played on Saturday, August 1st.

The Coleman boys who play with the Vet juveniles will not be allowed to be transferred to the Woollen juveniles, because they have only one more game to play.

All Massey players are requested to attend practice game on Wednesday evening at King Edward Park at 6.30 prompt.

Thistle team will hold practice game tonight and Thursday evening on King Edward Park.

J. Sharman, ex-C.G.E., G.W.V.A. and Massey player, was transferred to Warsaw.

Last year Richmond scored 38 goals during the season, and this season so far he has got 14 in all, while Mitchell follows him with 4 goals.

Fowler, a De Laval player who played for Masseys on Saturday against Dummer, has to appear before the Junior Executive next Monday and explain his action of participating in that game. Dummer can protest this drawn match and receive full points.

All soccer officials and enthusiasts should study the following rule, which refers to juniors:

Rule X (b)—In the event of any senior club not desiring the further services of any player, he will be allowed to transfer to any second division team, irrespective of how many games he has played for the seniors, but MUST PLAY, at least, ONE league match before participating in a cup tie. . . .

(c)—No player can be transferred after 1st September in any year, nor can a player be transferred MORE THAN ONCE in any current season.

INQUIRER: No! Frank McKinley is one of the pioneers of local football. He has been an official of the Board of Directors, then was Secretary for two years. At the request of many enthusiasts, he became "knight of the whistle" in the seniors, and is at present an amicable adjucator in junior circles. It is a well-known fact that Frank is an authority on soccer. If you have any problem, ask him.

The Throw-In Rule.

Some misunderstanding has arisen in connection with the new throw-in law. It has been stated that the change was not approved at the meeting of the International Board in Paris, but it is quite clear from the printed circular of the proceedings, issued by the F.A., and confirmed by Mr. F. J. Wall, that it was. So that the law in future is that "the player throwing the ball in must stand with both feet on the ground outside the touchline facing the field of play, and shall throw the ball in over his head with both hands in any direction, and it shall be in play when thrown in." This rule is not lawful in Canada until next season.

RUNNERS PASSED ON BASE LINES

Jack Hall Precipitated Dispute When Umpire Missed Error.

KIWANIS WON

A little crowding of players and spectators along the third base line cost the Royals the Midget League game played at the King Edward School grounds last night, the Kiwanis team winning 6-2. In the fourth inning, with the Royals leading 2-1, Jack Hall, scoring from second on Sowden's single, caught up and passed McDuffee, who had held third, fearing that the fly would be caught. Owing to the large number of players and spectators crowded along the line, Umpire Frost missed the event, while his working mate, Billingsley, was watching Sowden rounding first base. The umpires refused to call Hall out, and after that play two runs were scored, which, with one scored before the disputed play and two scored on it, gave the Kiwanians 5. They added another for good measure in the fifth, making it 6-2. The Royals, in the gathering darkness, scored 6 with only two out in the sixth, but the game was then called and the score reverted.

Routley had the Kiwanis lads eating out of his hand in the first three innings. They managed to nick his delivery for four hits, but with men on he tightened up, and in the second inning struck out two men with the sacks crowded. In these three innings the ultimate winners had seven men left on bases. Then came the break in the fourth, and Routley retired in favor of Goodson, who was touched for three hits in a row for one run.

Harry Doughty hurled throughout for the winners. He was inclined to be wild, passing four and hitting another, but he allowed only one hit, a double with two men on, in the five innings. In the sixth, which was erased from the records, the Royals got next his delivery for six hits, while he walked another.

ULCERATED TOOTH POISONED BOXER

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20 (Associated Press).—A Coroner's jury found here today that Pancho Villa, flyweight champion of the world, who died here last Monday "came to his death through personal neglect of an ulcerated tooth, resulting in blood poisoning, and not as a result of the fight or the unskilled administration of the anaesthetic."

The fight referred to was with Jimmy McClarnin in Oakland on July 4. Villa died after the administration of an anaesthetic at a local hospital preliminary to an operation for a gland swelling on his neck brought about by the ulcerated tooth.

The body of the little fighter was taken aboard the liner President Harrison today for shipment to Manila. Villa's brotherin-law, Jose Concepcion, will accompany the body to the Island capital.

State Athletic Commissioner William Hanlon, who was present at the fight, testified at the inquest that Villa appeared to be in shape for the battle.

RAIN NEEDED IN FIELDS OF WEST

Hot Weather is Causing Considerable Uneasiness in Saskatchewan.

GOOD IN NORTH.

REGINA, July 21 (Canadian Press) — The hot weather of the past two weeks and the consequent dorought and forced maturity of crops has caused a certain amount of uneasiness, according to telegraphic reports received from crop correspondents by the Saskatchewan Department of Agriculture but prospects for a good wheat crop are still promising in the greater part of the province. The best crops appear to be in the centre of the province and in the northeast. In the southwest hot weather and winds have dried up the soil, and the crops are suffering for lack of rain.

CITY LEAGUE NOTES.

The first game of the junior play-offs is scheduled for Thursday evening at 5.30. The C.G.E. and Lakeviews are the contending teams and the game will go the full nine innings. The Electricians finished first in the scheduled games, with last year's champs right on their heels, and there will be a hard fight before the right to represent the league in the O.B.A. A. play-offs is assigned to either team. Bob Ross will call the balls and strikes, and his running mate on the bases will be Jack Mc-Carney, and the fans may be sure of seeing a good game, properly handled.

The Kiwanis victory last night, though disputed, closed up the race in the midget series. The Royals were out in front with a lead of a game and a half, which was cut to half a game. All three teams have a chance to finish for the play-offs and a victory for the Rotary team on Thursday night would result in a three-cornered tie. The present standing is:

	Won.	Lost.
Royals	3	2
Kiwanis	3	3
Rotary	2	3

With only one game separating the three teams, every game assumes great importance, and the fans would put an evening to good use by stepping down to the King Edward school grounds to look the lads over. Every game is a battle from the word "Play ball," and the teams play almost errorless ball.

This week's game in the midget series is:

Thursday—Royals at Rotary.

In the Bantam series there are two games. The Rotary Bantams visit Dufferin Park to-night for a game with the East City team, the Dufferin All Stars. On Friday the Athletes will visit the Rotarians at the King Edward school grounds.

Fast ball was played in the first of the juvenile play-off games, and the winners will have to fight hard for victory in the next encounter. Although the Knights have the edge, the Kiwanians are apt to surprise them in the second game. This will be arranged for some time this week and both teams are practising faithfully. Whichever team wins, the city will be well represented in the play-offs for the Ontario title.

The Knights of Columbus juvenile team will practise to-night in the Sacred Heart grounds, and in view of the importance of the approaching game, every player is requested to be on hand for a workout.

Every title played for in the O. B.A.A. series has been held by a Peterborough team except the Senior and Juvenile crowns, and the teams that will represent the city in those two series this year bid fair to cop the honors that have so far eluded the grasping hands of the local teams.

ONTARIO RESORTS CHARM ROXY GANG

Famous Radio Entertainers Enchanted By Tour of the Province.

TORONTO, July 21.—"When the time came to feed the inner Roxy, we were as hungry as lumberjacks. When night came, we were good and tired and did not have to be rocked to sleep. And we caught so many fish, I can scarcely look a goldfish in the face."

The speaker was the famous Roxy, of "Roxy and his Gang," known to millions of radio fans. They were the guests last evening of Colonel W. H. Price, Provincial Treasurer of Ontario, at a dinner in the National Club. They had just returned from Algonquin Park and Nipigon, famous haunts of anglers, where great strings of gamy bass and speckled beauties fell prey to their cunning.

Roxy will describe Ontario's paradise to the eight million radio devotees who listen to the continental broadcasts. "We are enchanted with Ontario," he said, addressing fifty or more leading business men present at the dinner as guests of Colonel Price. "We have sailed and paddled across your lakes, explored the underground workings of your wonderful gold mines and visited your industrial plants and we are returning to New York refreshed and exhilarated. We are going to tell the people of the United States what we have seen."

Colonel Price, who presided, announced that as a result of Roxy's broadcasts from Queen's Park, $3,000 had been subscribed for the purpose of buying radio headpieces for bedridden veterans of the Great War and he had no doubt that $20,000 would be obtained before the lists were closed. In addition, hundreds of letters had been received from all parts of the United States and Canada expressing appreciation of the programmes broadcast by Roxy and his Gang. Ontario would receive a tremendous amount of advertising as a result of the visit of these famous artists.

STRATTON TROPHY TOMORROW'S PRIZE

Clubs From Far and Near Send Quota Bent on Victory.

To-morrow will witness a great gathering of bowling enthusiasts from this section of the province, congregating on the green of the Peterborough Bowling Club in competition for the Stratton Trophy at present on exhibition in the window of McWilliams and Company.

The main trophy, flanked as it is with an imposing array of secondary prizes, makes a very impressive display which should result in keenly-contested games. The Consolation prizes consist of the Warne Trophy and various articles of silverware, including a casserole and a cream and sugar set.

The Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club was started about twenty-five years ago, and played on the green now in use by the Knights of Columbus Club, known as the James Stevenson property. At about 1903 the change was made to the property now in use.

In 1911 Hon. J. R. Stratton donated what is known as the Stratton trophy, which is now the major prize. This trophy is not only well worth playing for, but is acknowledged as being among the most beautiful and valuable prizes which is open for tournament play in Canada.

Four Times Here.

Four times this trophy has been won by Peterborough rinks. In 1913 and 1914 by J. E. A. Fitzgerald; in 1923 by J. W. Mayneord, and in 1924 by Jack Bacon. R. J. Wray, of Belleville, captured it in 1919, 1920 and 1922. When first put up for play it was won by D. Hall of Oshawa, in 1911. In 1915 it was held by Rev. T. D. McCullough of Port Hope; in 1918 by A. E. Walton of St. Mathew's Club, Toronto; in 1921 by McCullough of Cobourg. During 1916 and 1917, owing to the war, the trophy was not for competition.

Thus it may be seen that the bowling prize has travelled considerably since the time of its release, and it is certain that when the rinks are drawn to-morrow the play will be of a tense and absorbing character.

The Peterboro Club has now a membership of 75, and those members will be loath to see the bowl leave the city after its two-year sojourn here.

Other clubs which come from hither and yon will be all the more eager to wrest the prize away from the present holders. Those interested in the pastime should accordingly take time to watch the friendly contests which will ensue.

JIMMY HALL IS OUT OF THE GAME

AMERICAN BUYS CZAR'S FURNITURE

Bid Half a Million at Auction Sale of Palace Furniture.

LONDON, July 21. — (United Press).—The lavish furnishings of the Czar's famous personal dining-room are going to the United States, according to the Morning Post, which says an unnamed American bid $500,000 for the outfit and got it Monday. The bid was made at the first day of the sale, being conducted by the Bolsheviks to dispose of the furniture of the winter palace.

WORK ON NEW DAM TO START AT ONCE

Contract Awarded to Toronto Firm—Power Development, Too.

The new dam, Number Four, on the Otonabee, just north of Peterborough, will now be constructed, it is expected, by early fall. This is to replace the old wooden dam which has been in existence for a great many years, and is now in a considerable state of disrepair.

G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., for the last two or three years, has been trying to get this dam constructed, but only succeeded this last Session. A vote of $120,000 was placed in the estimates by the Dominion Government and it is expected that this work will immediately start.

The Russell-Miller Construction Company, Limited, of Toronto and Montreal, was the successful tenderer. The contract contains a fair-wage clause(, according to Mr. Gordon, and as the source of labor will be largely drawn from Peterborough the Peterborough labor prices will govern.

Mr. Gordon further said that he had the assurance of Sir Adam Beck that the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission would construct concurrently a power generating plant, which would develop approximately 2000 H.P. This will be availabe for the City of Peterborough, and the immediate neighborhood, and would remove for the next two or three years, to some extent, the fears of local manufacturers and business men as to a power shortage in the city.

The federal member further stated he had in mind another dam which should be constructed, if he can successfully obtain a vote next session, which will add approximately 1500 H. P. more for the city's development. sit up again.

"TOO MANY KISSES."

Lively Love-Comedy at Royal—Dix At His Best.

When in Rome do as the Romans do.

And that's what Richard Dix does in his new Paramount star picture, "Too Many Kisses," which opened yesterday at the Royal Theatre. Not that the story is laid in Rome or anything like that.

In "Too Many Kisses," adapted for the screen by Gerald Duffy from the Cosmopolitan Magazine story, "A Maker of Gestures," by John Monk Saunders, Dix has the role of a care-free young American who "works" in his father's mining office in New York City.

In his "spare time" Bob Gaylord is a ladies' man in every sense of the word. "Too Many Kisses" have brought poor Robert into court time and again to answer breach-of-promise suits and his father's patience with him is just about worn out.

At any rate, Bob finds himself unceremoniously shipped off to the picturesque little town of Potigny in the Pyrenees — far from the madding crowd—and wild women. He thinks this is the case, anyway, and is more than agreeably surprised when his business abroad brings him in contact with the most beautiful girl he has ever seen.

Running true to form, Bob falls in love with her. Complications arise. Julio, a fiery Basque and captain of the guards of the town, considers Yvonne (Frances Howard) his own personal property and he tells Gaylord so. Bob all but laughs in his face and tells the wily fellow, if not in so many words, that he is going to marry the girl and that ought to close the matter.

But Julio isn't to be side-tracked. It's not his custom to give up his "woman" so easily — not without a little killing on the side. He has Bob kidnapped and carried a prisoner into the mountains while he goes about courting Yvonne.

The rest of the picture is taken up with how Bob escapes, arrives on the scene just as Julio is about to carry Yvonne off, beats him up and takes the girl himself.

Here's a picture that has everything — romance, drama, comedy, thrills. It's the greatest Dix picture ever.

AT THE CAPITOL.

COLLEEN MOORE IN "SALLY."

With a reminiscence of the little-girl larking propensities of Mary Pickford and also a strong resemblance to Mabel Normand in her palmy days, Colleen Moore makes a spiffy heroine as "Sally," the little foundling who emerges, butterfly-like, into the role of a Broadway dancing star.

"Sally" is peppy and zippy, and she isn't a "vamp." The pretty, black-haired star, of the real, honest to goodness flapper type, is exactly the sort of person to enact the part of "Sally" to perfection. It is seldom that a movie production gives one the impression of having had everyone of its actors, minor and otherwise, absolutely hand-picked. Every single character is excellent and the part seems to have been made for the one portraying it. Outside of the attraction of the central figure, the other characterizations are outstanding, particularly that of the down at heel Russian Grand Duke. This gentleman, the exiled ruler of Checkergovinia, with a pair of uncertain ankles and a habit of requiring that his hand be saluted with deference at awkward moments, is equally good as the dish-washer in the restaurant of his old friend or as the sparkling attraction of a gay society crush. The hero, too, is the popular type, and a perfect foil for the temperamental little "Sally," she of the dancing feet and the gingham gown, who achieves later her ambition to be a popular dancer and star on Broadway.

Little "Miss Bowling Green" and "Mr. St. Patrick" have a certain amount of trouble in the episodes which end in a final happy close-up, but they have lots of fun in the meantime. The difficulties that beset the path of "Sally," intent on becoming a dancer, and taking the job of a dish-washer in a restaurant in the interval, and of Blair Farquar, her suitor, are complicated by the presence in the background of Noskerova, the famous Russian siren who has been a figure in the lives of Farquar and the Grand Duke both.

"Sally" is one of those pictures that are artistically produced. Besides the combination of a sparkling star and a good supporting cast it has a human interest story, with the pathos and fun of life intermingled in a tale that is somewhat fairy-bookish in outline, but extremely entertaining, and interesting from start to finish. The waifs and strays of Bowling Green open the production, but the triumphant little Broadway star closes it, and she and her lover have an exciting time on the way to the denouement. What more could be asked for light entertainment for a warm summer evening?

Along with the feature are the usual good short reels, and the ridiculous comedian, Lloyd Hamilton, with his speckled tie and dignified deportment, in an amusing comedy.—Jeannette.

POWER HOUSE BURNED.

Canning Co. Station Was Destroyed—Cause of Fire Unknown.

VINELAND STATION, July 21. — (Canadian Press). — The power house of the Culverhouse Canning Co. here was destroyed by fire early this morning from a cause not yet known, the loss being estimated at $5,000. Aid was requested from the St. Catharines fire brigade. Chief Cram and a small detail responded.

Around The City.

Fire hydrants and alarm boxes in the centre of the city are decked in a fresh coat of red paint.

An automobile, the property of the Perfection Stove Co., of Sarnia, was damaged by fire yesterday forenoon at 10.50 at 225 Hunter Street. The fire originated through the heating of the metal, the result of welding being done in connection with repairs to the body of the car. All the upholstering of the car was destroyed.

A half ton truck with a Toronto license number attracted considerable interest today. From the article which peeped out at the corners it was apparently used as sleeping quarters for some people who were taking a cheap method of touring the province. The passer-by was attracted by the large number of pennants from various Ontario cities. The pennants were strung all round the car and purported to show that the journey had included Niagara Falls, and the Muskoka District.

WILSON QUOTED

It is surely time that humanity learns to face facts and also to learn that only by facing facts are they overcome if unpleasant and made the best use of if pleasant.

Truth is one of humanity's ultimate values. It is for freedom to search for and discuss and proclaim truth that science fights the tyranny of fundamentalism.

What strikes an Englishman is the extraordinary nature of evidence admitted in the trial contrasted with that not admitted. Apparently Bryan thinks he has scored a point when he elicits the fact that scopes classified man as a mammal. Since he possesses the same organs and plan of structure as other mammals, but not as for intance fish, or birds or insects it is difficult how else to classify him. On the other hand, the refusal to admit scientific testimony shows that the case is really prejudiced and Darrow's comments on the Judge's rulings do not seem strange to the outsider.

OPEN DISCUSSION AT VETERAN MEET

Ex-Soldiers of Peterborough Will Consider Organization of Great League.

Tomorrow night will see an effort made by Peterborough war veterans to arrive at a decision regarding the action to be taken on Earl Haig's proposal for unification of all ex-soldiers of the Great War.

So far as is known, the Peterborough G.V.W.A. is the first organization of its kind to take the matter up in this manner, inviting all ex-service men to an open meeting for discussion of the issue. If the plan goes through it will mean the merger of the G.W.V.A. and other soldiers' organizations in a great united body representative of all ex-service men.

For some reason the G.W.V.A. has never at any time had the whole-hearted support of the ex-service men. In Peterborough the organization has only been held together by the efforts of a little body of men who have often contributed from their own pockets to keep the association functioning.

If any other organization can be formed that will appeal to all classes of ex-service men, the G.W.V.A. will merge its identity and resources. This is the object of tomorrow night's meeting, the discussion of ways and means, and to gain an expression of opinion from ex-soldiers in the city. It is not a meeting of the G.W.V.A. but is a gathering to discuss whether the G.W.V.A. can be improved upon and if so, to organize the men to do it.

Ex-soldiers should be actuated by a spirit of unselfishness in consideration of this question. While they may have come unscathed out of the war, many of their friends need help in gaining from the Government recognition of their claims because of war injuries, This can best be given through a great united organization such as is planned, keeping watch alike upon the justice of claims made and the justice of help given.

They have that help coming to them.

DECISION TAKES UNEXPECTED TURN

Bequest To Mission Board Was Annulled By Justice Rose.

TORONTO, July 21.— (Canadian Press.)— What was expected to be a decision of importance was given by Justice Rose at Osgoode Hall to-day, but it took an unexpected turn.

He annulled a bequest that had been made by a farmer of Otonabee Township, Ontario, to the Home Mission Fund of "the Presbyterian Church in Canada." It was expected there would be a contest between the United Church of Canada and the continuing Presbyterian church, but Mr. Justice Rose decided that the bequest should be distributed among the persons legally entitled to share in the estate of the late Mrs. Oliver Moore. Her husband when he died ten years ago directed the money was to be left to the church on his wife's death, and when she died there was $4,000 in the estate.

FINANCIAL NEWS.

Mining Market Featured By Gain In Kirkland Lake

TORONTO, July 21 (Canadian Press).—Kirkland Lake was the predominating factor of the Standard Mining Exchange today, moving up to 42 at noon, a gain of a quarter point. The volume of trading on the whole was light, but the market had a firm tone. Hattie Preferred and Tough Oakes were also prominent, the former advancing 5-8 at 7 1-4 and Oakes 2 points at 37 1-2. Keeley improved 2 at 178.

Prices Drop Suddenly As Soon As Market Opened

CHICAGO, Ill., July 21. — Canadian Press. — With selling general, much of it on standing orders to stop losses at pre-arranged limits, wheat prices underwent a sharp fall to-day as soon as the market opened. July delivery in particular showed extreme weakness as a result of the enlarged receipts of winter wheat, favorable weather throughout the spring crop territory, however, with the cutting of the new wheat begun in Canada, counted as an even more bearish factor. Opening 7-8 to 1 1-4c lower, September 152 to 153 1-4 and December 152½ to 154 was followed by a further setback, September droping to 150 7-8 and December to 152.

Fine growing weather for corn tended to pull down corn and oats prices and so likewise did wheat weakness. After opening unchanged to 3-4c lower, September 104 5-8 to 104 3-4, the corn market showed a material decline all around.

Oats started unchanged to 3-4c off September 44 3-4 to 45, Later the downturn became general. Provisions were responsive to lower quotations both on hogs and on grain.

General Rise In Prices With Few Exceptions To-day

TORONTO, July 21 (Canadian Press)—Brazilian and Smelters, with Winnipeg Railway, featured this morning's session of the Toronto Stock Exchange. A busy market continued, and though there were occasional recessions, stocks as a whole continued their upward trend. Brazilian made a further gain of a quarter at 59 1-4, registering a new current high of 59 5-8. Smelters advanced 1 5-8 to 99, and Winnipeg improved a quarter at 50 1-4. McIntyre was also a feature, touching 19.00, a 25 cent gain. Bread issues were again prominent, Preferred strengthening a half but common easing 3-4 at 46 1-4. Atlantic Sugar preferred eased a half.

Steady Improvement On New York Exchange To-day

NEW YORK, July 21 (Canadian Press) — Steady improvement continued throughout the forenoon trading in Wall street with construction operations successfully conducted in a variety of merchandising, oil, chemical, food, agricultural machinery and independent steel issues. Iron products shared with Sloss Sheffield an increase in buying prompted by prospective advances in pig iron prices, mounting 15 points on a small turnover. General Electric was the feature of the high priced industrials scoring gain of four points before noon, while Continental Can, Montgomery Ward, May Department Stores, Associated Dry Goods, General Banking and Cudahy Packing joined in the upward movement with advances of 1 to 2 1-2 points. Profit-taking in Mack Trucks, New York Air Brake and Goodrich Rubber was readily absorbed.

Call Money renewed at 3 3-4 per cent.

MAKES NO FIGHT OVER HIS TRIAL

Hathaway Appears in Police Court in London To-day.

LONDON, Ont., July 21 (Canadian Press).—There will be no long-drawn-out legal battle by Leslie Hathaway's counsel, J. M. McEvoy, the daring robbery of the Thorndale branch of the Bank of Montreal at 3.10 o'clock on the afternoon of July 3.

The police court proceedings this morning were brief, the attitude of Hathaway's counsel, J. M. McEvoy, K.C., showing quite plainly that a plea of guilty would likely be entered sometime during the ensuing week.

Later in the morning it was definitely established that counsel is prepared to plead guilty, having received instructions to this effect from Hathaway and his future brother-in-law, H. W. Reid, the young Peterborough lawyer who was in the car when Hathaway was captured in Toronto on Sunday night.

Crown Attorney Judd, Mr. McEvoy and Mr. Reid held a 40 minute conference in the police magistrate's office before Hathaway's case was called this morning, and as a result, on the assumption that Hathaway would admit his guilt, the Crown did not press for a plea this morning. While Hathaway was remanded to jail for a week, it is expected that he will appear in court before that time, in fact just as soon as Mr. McEvoy has time to prepare a plea for leniency based on his youth and the fact that he has never been in trouble before.

MUSIC IN PANIC

Instance Where Band Has Saved Lives and Averted Tragedy.

Music plays many an important role—in education, in church worship, in home life—yes, in practically every conceivable phase of human life or endeavor.

Even in panics— perhaps few have thought of music in this connection—it has frequently taken a noble part. Time and time again some quick-witted musician has sprung to the front, in fires and panics, and, by means of instrumental music and songs, prevented audiences from the terrible danger that comes with hysteria.

Our grandfather, perhaps, recall the instance of the famous Boston Jubilee, when 12,000 people were gathered in a flimsy auditorium. A great storm arose and lightning tore open the roof. A huge cloud of dust arose and this was taken for smoke. "Fire, fire, fire!" rang out all over the hall, and a stampede for the doors was instantaneous.

Just then Charles Godfrey, who was conducting the British Grenadier Band, arose and swung his organization into a spirited performance of the "Star Spangled Banner." His quickness of wit saved the day, and what might have been a tragedy was eventually turned into a delightful concert.

Other cases of this nature could also be cited.

RUSSIA PLANS PORT

To Facilitate Loading of Big Liners With Export Oil.

MOSCOW, July 21.—Russia has decided to build at Touapse on the Black Sea, a special oil port in order to facilitate the loading of big ocean steamers with oil for export. The bulk of Russian oil export is now concentratted at Touapse. The long discussed project of building an oil tunnel from Grozny to Touapse has been approved by the State Planning Commission. It is expected work will begin this year, and the tunnel will be complete by 1928.

ROBBERY CLEARED UP.

18 Year Old Employee Pleads Guilty to the Theft of $399.

GALT, Ont., July 21 (Canadian Press).—The robbery of the Grand River Railway office at Preston early on Monday morning has been cleared up. Last night the C.P.R. police arrested J .D. Elliott, an 18-year-old employee, charged with theft. In court at Preston today, before Magistrate J. R. Blake, he pleaded guilty to the theft of $399 and was remanded a week for sentence. He is out on bail of $2,000. It was announced by Crown Attorney Bowlby that restitution had been made. Elliott was a ticket clerk in the office.

COUNCIL HEARS PROPOSAL FOR TURNING OVER STREET RAILWAY SYSTEM TO THE CITY BY HYDRO

F. A. Gaby and W. R. Robertson Appeared at Conference and Explained Plan By Which Operation Could Be Made to Break Even.

COMBINE BUS AND TROLLEY SERVICE.

Fifteen Minute Service Except in Rush Hours, With Jackson Park and C.G.E. Lines Replaced By Motor Buses —Bus to East City.

A proposition that the City should take over the Peterborough Radial Railway, at present a losing proposition, and by spending $75,000 on it, so rehabilitate the system that it would break even, was submitted to the Council last night by F. A. Gaby and W. R. Robertson of the Hydro Electric Power Commission. The aldermen present asked many questions and will consider the proposition, along with Mr. Gaby's report to the Commission and a copy of the agreement at a special meeting of the Council.

Action of some sort, said Mr. Gaby, is imperative as the present equipment cannot last much longer, and the Commission had no funds to buy new. The Commission was under no obligation to run the system at a loss and might have to abandon it if the City couldn't take it over.

Under the scheme proposed, the Jackson Park carline would be entirely done away with, and the tracks, which are old, torn up. The street car service on the .CG.E. line would be discontinued except at rush hours and the service on Water street, north of Hilliard street and on Lock street, south of McGill street would be cancelled. A bus would be put in service, starting at the Monaghan road and proceeding by way of Chamberlain street, Lafayette avenue, Park, Dalhousie, Aylmer, Sherbrooke, George, Hunter, Roger and Douro streets to the corner of Woodbine avenue and Armour road. Another bus would run from the corner of Charlotte and George streets, by way of George, Hunter, Park and McDonnell streets to the Monaghan Road. The shortening of the George street line would make it possible for two cars to give fifteen minute service, where four now give ten minute service. One car would run on Charlotte street and give fifteen minute service.

Except at rush hours the present service is too great, said Mr. Gaby, and a fifteen minute service that could be depnded on to adhere to its schedule would be preferable. At rush hours a seven and a half minute service would be provided.

When asked by Alderman Greene why the Commission didn't make these changes and run the system as a paying proposition Mr. Gaby pointed out that the only place the Commission could get the funds is from the Provincial Government, which body, he said, would be likely to say that it was entirely a question for the people of Peterborough to finance.

In introducing the subject, His Worship Mayor Turner referred to the meeting with the Hydro Electric Power Commission in Toronto several weeks ago, when a number of the Aldermen went as a deputation to ask for the paving of the devil strips on Water street and George Street. He said he had hoped that a proposition would be submitted in writing but that Mr. Gaby had come down instead to explain the matter.

Efficient Management.

Mr. Gaby said that the Commission did not wish to force the city into anything but suggested that it was in the best interests of municipality to take over the ownership of the system and let the Commission run it. The efficiency of Hydro operation was proven in Guelph, where a railway losing annually $40,000 was taken over and $300,000 spent on its rehabilitation. Despite the increased burden of $18,000 for interaest on this sum, the deficit was reduced to $12,000.

Nothing had been done to rehabilitate the Peterborough system because the Commission had no funds for such a purpose. The system, along with other outside interests, such as gas plants and pulp mills had been taken over in the Central Ontario clean-up deal. The statement was made by the Primfe Minister at the time that the Province was taking the system over for the municipalities. The time has now come, said Mr. Gaby, to put this into effect and unscramble the system, so that the province would retain only the development and sale of energy.

System Run Down.

The Peterboro system has been

JAIL FOUR FOR BRUTAL MURDER

Alleged to Have Beaten Farmer to Death on Lonely Manitoba Road.

FOREIGNERS' FEUD.

WINNIPEG, July 22—Four men, alleged to be implicated in the murder of John Rodway, 55, a farmer who was bludgeoned to death on a lonely country road Sunday night, were arrested by the Provincial Police late yesterday. The men, who were brought to the Provincial jail here are; Sebastian Kuduydkuk, Peter Kasper, John Medwed, and Alexander Chapuck. They are all farmers of Inwood district, where the murder was committed and are about 30 years of age.

Inwood is about 60 miles north of Winnipeg and the population is mostly foreign. A neighborhood feud is held responsible for the slaying of Rodway.

OTTAWA EXCURSION FORTY YEARS AGO

Peterboro Party 400 Strong Headed by Fire Department Band.

OTTAWA, July 22.—How many remember the time when in 1885 (July 22) an excursion 400 strong came here headed by the fine band of the Peterboro fire department, and including the Peterboro lacrosse team. The Ottawa fire department, under Chief Young, turned out to meet the Peterboro firemen, and the Ottawa boys gave an exhibition of how quickly they could get a stream on. This exhibition was given in front of the city hall.

The Peterboros and their friends went out to the Metropolitan grounds where the Metropolitans, who were in fine form, took the visitors into camp to the tune of three straight, in 18, 25 and 15 minutes. The Mets. that day consisted of St. Denis, J. Whyte, Grant, Devine, Deslaurier, Taylor, Pratt, Mackell, Burns, Jack Dunn, Kent and Perkins; M. M. Pyke was field captain.

While the match was in progress the Peterboro band played selections in various parts of the city. The newspaper decision was that the Peterboro band was the best band that had ever visited Ottawa. This band, it appears, though made up of members of the fire department, was attached to the 57th Battalion of Peterboro and wore the uniform of that battalion.

By the way, an excursion of 400 people was a big event here 40 years ago.

Daring Robber Feared That Bank Employes Would Suffocate.

NERVY STUNT.

Passed Through Village in Same Car an Hour After the Robbery.

LONDON, Ont., July 22.—(Canadian Press). — Leslie Hathaway, charged with robbing the Thorndale Bank of $6,000 and remanded in Police Court yesterday, is the nerviest bandit the local police have known. In the same auto he had used in the robbery, Hathaway returned to Thorndale less than an hour after he had held up the employees of the Bank of Montreal branch there and looted premises. The purpose of this second visit to the village was to ascertain whether or not robbery had been discovered, and if it had not to notify some of the yilagers so that no harm would come to the four bank employees he had locked in the vault at the point of a revolver. Hathaway was anxious lest the bank employees suffocate.

FEZ IN DANGER FROM RIFFIANS

Condition Is Serious Because Tribesmen Command Road.

IMPROVE TRENCHES.

MADRID, July 22 (Canadian Press) — The position of Fez, the seat of the French headquarters in Morocco, is described as serious in despatches reaching here, because of the occupation by the rebellious tribesmen of strategic points over the road from El Arba de Tissa to Ain Aicha where the Riffians have entrenched themselves.

To combat the situation, it is declared that the French command has organized in El Arba de Tissa a column composed of six battalions provided with heavy artillery. All along the front the enemy is improving the entrenchment works and taking every step to meet the French offensive.

"Be Yours to Hold It High"

(By H. T.)

CITIZENS in sympathy with Canada's veterans of the war are perhaps watching with mixed feelings of hope and suspense the response to Earl Haig's recent appeal at Ottawa for the union of ex-service men's associations in one body; a consolidated, upstanding, influential Canadian legion.

And here in Peterborough those who have been nothing but civilians sincerely wish that the British Field Marshal's inspiring and challenging message shall enlist every veteran in the proposed organization, and that a first, decisive step to that end will be taken at the general meeting tonight in the G.W.V.A. Hall.

If the war veterans—a Canadian Legion, for example—can preserve through the years the tremendous spiritual forces which actuated and ennobled them in their days of sacrifice, and if they keep that flame glowing in the market places and forums of this blatant, selfish, relapsing time of peace, they must thereby continue to be a rich social asset to this country. Their example will radiate far beyond their ken, even as it does now in their edifying annual remembrance of their dead comrades. Veterans may not realize that children who were ten years old when the war broke out are now young men and women past twenty. A new generation has come to maturity. Civic and social responsibilities are thrust upon them, and in their performance they should have from time to time the reminder of those pledges and vows of duty and sacrifice, of devotion to that liberty for which our best went out to die, when the whole nation was caught up by a wondrous vision which we swore should never fade.

And, veterans, remember, too, that boys and girls new born when the war broke are now wide-eyed children with life and the world before them, impressionable to every idea new to them though old and maybe stale to us who have preceded them. By such demonstrations of fidelity and affection as the memorial parades of the Veterans, these young minds will be excited to thoughts of respect for those who fought in the war, thoughts of understanding of the meaning and effects of the war, and finally of their own duties to the state and to their fellowmen.

Hence, the more ex-service men joining together and appearing together, the more impressive their silent example upon our Canadian youth of today, who tomorrow will be its citizens. Such organizations as the G.W.V.A. are the most exclusive in the whole country. Other societies are constantly supplied with new recruits, but the lists of veterans are closed forever. That fact alone should powerfully appeal to those who have been indifferent toward the associations of their war comrades. Many civilians would gladly take their places and assume the honor our soldiers earned, but that is one distinction no man can attain or has been able to attain since November, 1918. That exclusiveness of a Canadian Legion is an intangible, unpurchasable reward of service to the nation, even as are the medals which a grateful and admiring people offered as a token of their gratitude and esteem. And every civilian must be pleased on occasions when our former soldiers wear them, for these decorations are not merely of today, are not the gift of this Government or that, but are linked up with all the glories of our nation, its splendid heroic past, its forgotten pioneers and their pain and labor, and finally with all the glowing promise of its greater years to come.

And so, as we realize that the membership list of the projected Canadian Legion is closed forever, we know that time will ripen and enrich public sentiment for the veterans until that day when the last survivor of the Canadian Expeditionary Forces shall totter alone to the burial places of all his comrades. In the present, they should not abandon the ideals that fired their loyalty and valor, they should not break ranks and disperse as if association in arms meant nothing, and as if all the enemies of that personal liberty Britons boast had been laid low. There is work for impartial, unprejudiced guardians of liberty still to do; there are lessons of the recent past and its achievements to be handed on, and there are old associations to be hallowed by remembrance, and old comradeships to be continued down the years in a union that should ever seek to promote the welfare and happiness of that Canada for which these men risked their lives.

It is to such men Haig appeals; and to a civilian it is incomprehensible that they should fail him, and the opportunity for service to the nation that requires the old animating spirit of the C.E.F.

NEW HIGHWAY SYSTEM.

County Council Awaits Visit of Advisory Board For Discussion.

The County Council is awaiting a notice from the Department of Highways regarding a visitation of the advisory board with a view to the assumption of a new highway system in the County.

They are also awaiting notice from the Provincial Architect as to the date whereon to meet the committee re proposed improvements in the County Registrar's office as well as that of the Clerk of the Surrogate Court.

MISHAP ON ROAD.

Trace Breaks and Man's Thigh is Badly Bruised.

Yesterday while working for the Suburban Area Commission on the Lakefield Road, John Achison suffered a badly bruised leg and was taken to the hospital.

He was driving a team when a trace chain broke, letting the whiffletree fly back and strike him on the thigh muscle. He is resting comfortably to-day.

200,000,000 In Cemeteries Throughout United States

BOSTON, July 22. More than 89,000 plots of ground of varying size are set aside in the United States as graveyards and cemeteries, according to Harry G. Samson, an official of the National Selected Morticians.

"Every county in the United States is estimated to have about thirty places of burial," said Samson. "There are 2,968 counties. A village graveyard contains about 630 graves, after three generations. Taking this as a basis for the population of the country as a whole. Uncle Sam's acres must now hold about 200,000,000 bodies crumbled irnto dust."

DEADLOCK STILL EXISTS BECAUSE OF NEW VESSELS

British Cabinet Adjourned Without Reaching Any Definite Decision.

NO STATEMENT.

Premier Was Unable to Tell Commons Anything on Question.

LONDON, July 22.— (Canadian Press).—Premier Stanley Baldwin apaprently failed at to-day's cabinet meeting to settle the deadlock caused by the conflicting opinions of the cabinet ministers regarding the building of several new British cruisers. The cabinet ssesion this morning adjourned without, it is understood, reaching any definite decision. Later it was reported in the lobbies of the House of Commons that Mr. Baldwin would not be in a postion to make any statement regarding this question to the House to-day, as he had been expected to do.

The Premier told the House that he hoped to be able to make a statement to-morrow regarding the naval construction situation. After a two hour cabinet meeting, persons close to the government said the cabinet situation remained critical.

The Earl of Balfour has undertaken to assist Mr. Baldwin in the difficult task of finding a middle course between the two extremes of cabinet opinion, for and against the construction of new cruisers.

JAPAN AGREES WITH U. S. POLICY

Replied Favoring Commission to Study Chinese Extra Territoriality.

SOME DON'T REPLY.

WASHINGTON, July 22. (United Press.) — Japan notified the United States to-day of its agreement with the American policy favoring a commission to study extra territoriality in China without delay. It was learned at the State Department.

Although formal replies to the State Department communications have not yet been received here from Great Britain and France, it is believed that those powers have definitely decided to accept the American proposals.

SUSPICIONS OF FENELON FALLS HOTEL MAN SUPPLIED FIRST CLUE TO ROBBER OF THORNDALE BANK

Former Bank Clerk in Village Returned With Car and Roll of Bills.

TRAPPED BY STORY.

Explanation of Sudden Wealth Proved False—Hathaway Was Royally Entertained.

LINDSAY, July 22.—(Special).—The citizens of Fenelon Falls claim "Hank" Brooks, hotelkeeper in that village, is entitled to the reward offered for the apprehension of Leslie Hathaway, of London, the alleged Thorndale bank robber, and will not be satisfied until he gets it.

It was at Brooks' hotel that Hathaway registered a day or two after the Bank of Montreal at Thorndale had been robbed. He was a former clerk in the Sterling Bank at Fenelon Falls, and when he arrived in the village in his new McLaughlin, and attired in a white outing suit, he was the cynosure of all eyes, and was warmly welcomed by his old friends. He was entertained by the best families in the village, and they received quite a jolt when the news of his arrest reached there.

Constable Suspicious.

It appears that on July 9th Provincial Officer Storey, of Lindsay, visited Fenelon Falls, on business, and incidentally dropped into the Brook Hotels. In looking over the register he came across the name "Leslie Hathaway, London, Ont." He inquired of Mr. Brooks regarding Hathaway, and was informed that he was at one time employed in a bank there, and was one of the many tourists in the village. He was driving a new McLaughlin car, and Officer Storey casually made some inquiries of Mr. Brooks concerning the machine. It appears that Hathaway had told Mr. Brooks that he had made a deal of a sedan for the new McLaughlin in the village. Officer Storey immediately investigated and found that no such deal had been put through. His suspicions were aroused, and he immediately obtained the license, serial and engine numbers of the auto and then phone P. C. Mennie, of London, concerning his suspicions.

It appears that the authorities at London up to this time knew nothing of Hathaway, and they were asked by Provincial Officer Storey to make enquiries. Word was later received from London to the effect that Hathaway had left that city the same day as the Thorndale robbery, but was not known to be the owner of the car.

Sudden Wealth.

Officer Storey interrogated Hathaway as to his movements. He said he left London on July 8th. He purchased the McLaughlin car from Silverwoods Wholesale Products for $750 cash. This, of course, was contrary to the story told Mr. Brooks. Provincial Officer Storey got in touch with London and told the authorities to investigate the car purchase statement. Word came back that Hathaway had paid $400 on a new McLaughlin car in ten dollar bills of Bank of Montreal denomination. He was never known to have any money in London.

A second visit was made by Provincial Officer Storey to Fenelon Falls, and on arrival there learned that Hathaway had left the village on July 18. He forwarded a full description of the man to the London authorities, and also expressed himself as being satisfied that he was the man wanted.

Flashed Roll of Bills.

Mr. Brooks' curiosity was aroused by the manner in which Hathaway spent his money while in the village. He appeared to have an unlimited supply, and on one occasion displayed a roll of bills containing three or four thousand dollars. He paid his hotel bill with Bank of Montreal money.

Provincial Officer Storey unhesitatingly declares that Mr. Brooks should get all the credit for the apprehension of Hathaway. The information given Officer Storey at Fenelon Falls was the first clue the authorities had to work on, and it proved to be a correct one.

The arrest of Hathaway created great excitement in Fenelon Falls, more especially among those who had entertained him and had been in his company during his stay in the village.

Hathaway is also well-known in Lindsay. He enlisted in the 109th Battalion, which was recruited here during the war.

Chinee Man Gets Jugged Allee Same No Laundly

HONOLULU, July 22.—(Associated Press).—The laundry business in Wailuku, Island of Maiu, Hawaii Territory, has been paralyzed, and irate citizens, deprived of clean shirts, collars, etc., have been on the verge of calling a protest meeting, all on account of the Harrison narcotic law. Such was the story told by J. A. Manning, Federal narcotic chief for Hawaii, on his return from Maiu, where he arrested among others, the town's only laundryman, Chow Wing.

"One hotel had no linen, and every one in the village seemed to have a dress or a shirt in the hands of Wing Chow," Manning said. "To hear the grief and protests, you would have thought the patron saint of the town had just expired."

ALLIES DISCUSS GERMANY'S NOTE

Principal Difficulty Seems to be the Question of Arbitration.

REPLY SOON.

PARIS, July 22. — (Canadian Press).—An exchange of views regarding the German security note began to-day between the French Government and other Governments of the Allies. When these Governments reach an agreement France's reply will be sent to Berlin. This will probably be within two or three weeks. The principal difficulty seems to be the question of arbitration treaties, contemplated under the proposed security pact. Germany appears unwilling to accept the principal of obligatory arbitration with Poland and other Eastern neighbours, while France believes any arbitration treaty would be useless, it was obligatory and covered all possible disputes.

BRIDGES UNDER WAY.

Smaller Culverts Have Been Built—Remainder of Summer for Big Tasks.

The County has under way the construction of four bridges which because of their proportions will keep the gangs busy for the remainder of the summer. The new structures are, Newell's Bridge, Asphodel; Douglas Bridge, Dummer; Depot Bridge, Burleigh; South Square River Bridge, Harvey. There have been completed one concrete culvert on the county roads and six concrete culverts on the suburban area roads, together with several corrugated steel culvertsr. The county is also working on road number 100 through the township of Belmont.

Ambassadors Warned To Miss Service "For Brave"

LONDON, July 22.— (Special by United Press).— The Home Office has issued a warning to foreign ambassadors to pay no heed to invitations to a memorial service for the brave of all nations, issued for Southwark Cathedral, July 26.

The warning will save American Ambassador Hughton from putting in an appearance as former Ambassador Kellogg did last year at similar "services" at St. Paul's. It was found then that the invitations had been issued by an elderly woman. When the Ambassadors arrived they discovered that no such services was being held at the Cathedral.

EVOLUTION TAKEN TO SUPREME COURT

Injunction Against Treasurer of United States Stops Paying Teachers.

WASHINGTON, July 22 (Canadian Press)—Treasury officials were ordered by a local court today to show cause why the salaries of school officers here should not be withheld because of the teaching of scientific doctrines alleged to reflect on the Bible. The question of evolution was thrown into the supreme court of the District of Columbia in an injunction suit delivered against school officials and Frank White, treasurer of the United States.

Loren H. Wittner, once candidate for Congress in Illinois, precipitated the issue, charging that teachings in school violated the provision of the District of Columbia appropriation bill which stipulated that no funds should be expended for salaries of those teaching "disrespect for the Holy Bible."

SICK RUM RUNNER CAUSE OF TRUCE

Dry Navy Cutter Brought Dying Man in From Rum Row.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., July 22 (Canadian Press)—A Canadian seaman, slowly dying in his bunk on the rum schooner, 45 miles out of sea, was the cause of a short truce between coast guards and rum runners today. The desperate plight of the seaman, w ho was described as Robert Harris, 28, of Lunenburg, N.S., reached friends ashore here who relayed the information to Captain Randolph Ridgley of the "dry navy." The latter dispatched a cutter which returned to port here shortly after 6 o"clock last night bearing the stricken sailor. He was turned over to friends who have promised to look after him.

PRINTER HONORED.

Saving Lives is Bertie Wallace Tibble's Hobby—Seventy Recorded.

Bertie Wallace Tibble was recently honored by King George with the order of the British Empire. He has also been made a life governor of the London Hospital. All in all, he is now on a level with Britain's peers and other famous personages, yet Bertie Wallace Tibble is only a working printer.

"For public services in saving life," was the official reason for selecting him for the royal award. He has saved seventy lives by giving his own blood for transfusions to any patient on whom the doctors thought such an operation necessary.

He is at the call of the London Hospital day and night, and unlike other volunteers has steadfastly refused to accept as much as a penny for his services.

"I do not feel that I am justified in using my physical advantages for money making," he declares.

R.S.V.P.—If Possible.

Sam McBride, one of Toronto's thundering municipal politicians and all-round orators, was watching a ball game at a nearby summer resort when there suddenly hove over the horizon an exceedingly diminutive youngster accompanied by a pup on a leash. The pup would make a pint bottle look tremendous if the two were placed side by side.

"Where is the muzzle for that dog?" Mr. McBride demanded with mock severity.

The child looked up in innocent surprise. 'Where's yours?" he said.

"BRINGING UP FATHER" — Geo. McManus

COL. MILLER BOASTS HE WAS SUBJECT OF JOKE BY LINCOLN AND WOUNDED AT GETTYSBURG

Unique Record Held by Still Stalwart Peterboro Citizen.

KNEW GREAT LEADERS

Tells of Sufferings When Captured by Southerners —Nearly Starved.

There are comparatively few men alive today who can claim to have come personally in contact with Abraham Lincoln. One of this small band is here in Peterboro, in the person of Col. J. W. Miller, a former commander of the 57th Regiment.

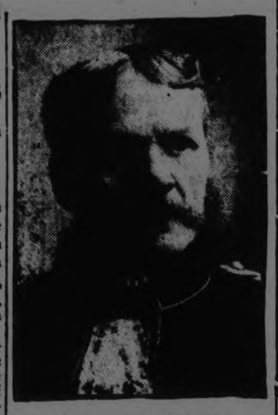
Col. Miller was born at Bowmanville on October 4, 1845. At the age of 15, while on a visit to the States, he conceived the idea of enlisting in the Federal Army under the impression that the affair was to be merely one of marching into the South and putting under arrest the leaders of the Southern states which had announced their intention of seceding from the Union. But he soon discovered that all men enlisted were to be held fo r3 years or the duration of the war—a pharse quite familiar to the present generation.

Soon after joining he found himself at the seat of war. He served through all the principal engagements until a few months before the end. He was twice wounded, at Melven Hill, and at Gettysburg; in the latter battle he was also taken prisoner. From there he, along with other Northern captives was led 85 miles over the mountains and across the Virginia Valley to Harper's Ferry and from there to Richmond. The prisoners were incarcerated at the Libby prison, the building which was afterwards removed to the World's Fair and stands in Chicago to this day. The prison was an old tobacco warehouse on the banks of a canal which had been closed on account of the war. The water of this canal, green, slimy and evil smelling was the only drinking water available. From Libby the captives were transferred to Belle Isle where they suffered great privations and were insufficiently nourished. When a party including Col. Miller was released, in exchange for an equal number of Southern prisoners, the majority of them were so weak from starvation that they were unable to stand. When confronted by the sight of food, says Col. Miller, the released men behaved like animals and had to be restrained from gorging themselves. Most of them were sent to St. John's College, Annapolis, Maryland, which was turned into a military hospital, Col. Miller along with the others being kept there until fit to rejoin the army where he remained until the assasination of Abraham Lincoln. By this time he had reached the rank of quartermaster sergeant and his period of service having expired he was free to return to Canada. He was accosted by a young business man who had been called up for service in the army and was on the point of striking a bargain to take the recruit's place in the draft when Col. Miller was halted by his own brother who had come to the States with the object of inducing him to rejoin his parents in Canada. After some persuasion he finally agreed and severed his connection with the U.S. services.

Praises Southern Forces.

Col. Miller has very vivid recollections of the military qualities of the men in the South and gives them great praise for admirable horsemanship. He says the number of times the Northern forces were ambushed is almost incredible When captured, the Southerns, he says fraternised freely with the Government troops and laid all enmity aside.

The food doled out to the soldiers consisted in a very large measure of Ohio hogs fattened on beech nuts and rattlesnakes. The fat, he says, was generally preferred to the lean as in the fat one did not taste so much of the salt. Most of the troops became adepts at eating raw pork.



COL. J. W. MILLER

of Peterborough, saw service with Federal Army in United States, paarded before Lincoln, was wounded at Malvern Hill and captured at Gettysburg. Leaving the U.S. army he took up arms in the Fenian raids. He is nearly 80 years of age.

Col. Miller saw all the great figures of the Northern forces—Grant, McClellan, Hooker, Burnside and Lincoln himself.

He first saw the president, when the troops paraded in front of the White House. A group of brilliantly accoutred officers was gathered together and all eyes in the parade were on the alert for a glimpse of the president, but soldiers who had formerly seen the nations' chief whispered he was not among the assembled party. As the troops were marching away Col. Miller heard the command "eyes right" and looking around the men saw the Great Emancipator slouching against a fence, alone and unattended. Col. Miller describes Lincoln as a very tall, ungainly figure, with high cheek bones, and a little whisker, with his knees invariably slightly bent forward.

He says Lincoln was particularly fond of mingling among all ranks in the army, partaking of their food and continually repeating "the most infernal stories." He frequently exposed himself to considerable risk and had on one occasion to be ordered off the ramparts by an officer who realized the President was unjustified in exposing himself unnecessarily.

Lincoln Joked Miller.

On one occasion when the young Canadian was on guard at the treasury Lincoln came out and noticed the diminutive figure (Col. Miller was only a little over 5 feet high). "My man", said the president, "you must be very careful. You are such a great height you will be an easy target.

Shortly after his arrival in Peterborough Col. Miller joined the militia where he was soon given commissioned rank as First Lieutenant and passed through all the higher ranks until he became Colonel. He was for many on exceedingly friendly terms with the late Sir Sam Hughes.

Col. Miller took up arms again in 1866 during the Fenian Raids and volunteeered for service inthe Riel Rebellion, but was rejected as only one officer was allowed to go from his regiment and a senior officer had a prior claim. He has lived in retirement for a number of years at his home on 212 McDonnell street.

LONG WIRELESS TALK REPORTED

London Enthusiast Talked With American Warship Near Australia.

ON 45 METRES.

LONDON, July 22 (Canadian Press).—A wireless telephone conversation between England and the United States warship, Seattle, 600 miles east of Australia, was successfully carried on early yesterday morning. Gerald Marcuse, a wireless enthusiast living at Catherham, near London, made the successful connection. "I was transmitting on a forty-five meter wave length to New Zealand," he said, "when Lieutenant Schnell, wireless operator on the Seattle, picked up my call and replied.

"We spoke together about two hours. This morning we resumed conversation at about the same time."

WOMAN'S BURNS MAY BE FATAL

Mrs. Percy Morgan's Clothing Caught Fire From Oil Stove in Store.

LIVES AT GRAFTON.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 22.—John and William Oliver of Front street have received word that their neice, Mrs. Percy Morgan of Grafton, met with a serious accident which, it is feared, will result fatally. Mrs. Morgan was working around an oil stove when in some way her clothing caught fire. There were a number of celluloid buttons on her dress and these burned quickly. Before the flames could be put out Mrs. Morgan was so seriously injured that doctors and nurses hold out no hope for her recovery and her relatives here are expecting daily to be notified of her death.

Underwent Operation.

Robert Totten of Wellman's Corners was brought to a local hospital yesterday for a slight operation. This was successful and his complete recovery is assured.

RAISE DUES ON WOOD PRODUCTS

Order in Council Provides Substantial Increase For Timber and Pulp.

$2.50 PER THOUSAND.

TORONTO, July 22. — (Canadian Press). —Ontario Government yesterday approved the order in counicl raising substantially the crown dues on timber and pulp wood. The order in Council succeeds one passed by the Drury Government in 1920 which lapsed on April 30 of this year. By the terms of the schedule now adopted an annual increase of at least $500,000 in crown dues is anticipated by the Government.

The new scale brings the dues more in line with those levied in Quebec. In the new dues the government has equalized levies upon hard wood such as basswood, ash, birch, maple, elm, beech and oak at $2.50 per thousand board feet. Previously the dues upon some of these woods were only $1.50 per thousand feet while upon other they were $2.50. A similar equalization was made in case of all boom timber upon which $2.50 per thousand feet is now exacted in place of former varying rates of $2.20 and $2.50. Dues upon spruce pulp are advanced from 80 cents per cord to $1.40 per cord and upon balsom pulp from 40 cents per cord to 70 cents per cord. Dues upon other pulp wood remain unchanged at forty centsr.

SHEPHERD DOG SAVED WOMAN

Attacked Negro Who Assaulted Woman at Farm Door.

BLACK IS HELD.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., July 22.—(Canadian Press). — Attacked by a negro at the door-way of her home on a Lincoln Highway farm, Miss Barbara Long 35, was saved yesterday by her black shepherd dog. She screamed when the negro grabed at her throat and the dog leaped on the assailant, putting him to flight. Miss Long broke away and took a shot gun from the wall and fired both barrels after the fugitive.

The negro, Jess Williams, who was rounded up in a hay field by Miss Long's brother and employees and was taken to the Middlesex general Hospital to have the shot extracted from him. He was held without bail on a charge of atrocious assault.

RE-ELECTED.

Loftus Reid is Again Grand Master of Royal Black Knights.

VANCOUVER, July 22.—(Canadian Press.) — Loftus Reid, of Toronto, was re-elected Grand Master of the Grand Black Chapter of British America, Royal Black Knights of Ireland, Loyal Orange Order, at the closing session of the fifty-first annual convention here yesterday.

COUNCIL HEARS PROPOSAL, ETC.

allowed to run down for lack of money. The deficits have been borne by the other municipalities of the system, coming out of the profits on the power sold to them. It is essentially a local proposition. said Mr. Gaby, and these other places should not be asked to help support it. The engineers have often reported to the commission that the new equipment was needed but nothing could be done.

The Commission's engineers have studied the question for years and have decided that by turning the system over to the city at a cost of $150,000 and the spending of from $60,000 to $75,000 on new equipment, the system could, at a most pessimistic estimate, be made to meet operating expenses, and would in all probability break even. A scheme employing all busses would incur a deficit in operation of $7,000 to $27,000. The combination of busses and cars would be best for a start.

The advantage of operating through the Commission were named. Money could be borrowed on longer terms and at cheaper rates, and the experts on the staff of the Commission would be available to supervise and inspect at all times.

The railway, said Mr. Gaby cannot continue to operate under the present condition of the apparatus and the losses incurred. The losses have been increased by the higher wages and the great increase in the cost of material. A great deal of the wage cost could be eliminated by the use of one-man cars.

Report to Commission.

Mr. Gaby then read a report which he had prepared for the Commission. The tracks and cars, according to the report, are old, and a great deal of capital must be expended on the system. It was acquired in 1916 at a cost of some $288,000 and further expenditure had brought the total up to $340,000 on the books of the Commission. During the years the Commission had operated the system, a total loss of $181,000 had been incurred, although in the first few years there had been a small surplus. The city is very compact, with no natural obstructions and there were no very long distances. The traffic had decreased through the use of automobiles but the low level had passed and traffic was on the upgrade again. The track mileage is 8.6, and the car mileage last year was 475,000, with over 1,260,000 passengers.

A comparison between busses and street cars was made by Mr. Gaby, showing that, while the first cost was about the same, the bus would cost more to operate and repair, and would last only 5 years against 25 for a car. When one of the aldermen asked why the Commission was recommending busses for Peterborough, Mr. Robertson said that new tracks would cost $50,000 a mile, which he wouldn't recommend. Asked if the figures were for busses running on paved streets, Mr. Robertson said that they were, but that he had gone over the streets mentioned for bus routes and had found them to be entirely good enough for the traffic. There was, he said, no guesswork in the report, the number of people crossing the Hunter Street Bridge having been counted, among other things, to aid in getting complete and accurate figures.

A Prize Package.

Alderman Denne said that this was a prize package which had been obtained in the purchase of the power system. Mr. Gaby agreed with him, but said that it had paid once, but the equipment has grown old and now costs too much for maintenance.

The Mayor asked who had paid for the rehabilitation of the Guelph and Windsor systems, and Mr. Gaby explained that the cities had guaranteed the Hydro bonds. His Worship then suggested that the city might guarantee the bonds for the changes, without buying the system and that the agreement could contain a clause providing for purchase by the city at some later date. The Commission could operate the system, and the city could hope for the best. Mr. Gaby said that the Commission might consider this proposition, and would listen to anything the city might suggest.

Mr. Gaby figured on a revenue of $90,000, with operating expenses of about $77,000, leaving a balance of some $12,000 to meet interest charges. It might be possible to reduce the fares and get more revenue. Deficits would be met out of the taxes.

Alderman Greene said that high fares and motor cars were responsible for losses. Mr. Robertson said that the cars didn't bother the street railways as much as they did the inter-urban lines. He added that the cost of operating cars had greatly reduced their use for purposes where the street car would serve, and all those present agreed that a motor car was a liability.

Alderman Greene's question as to whether the ratepapers would not resent the proposal to take over the system at a price of $150,000, when it is valueless, brought forth a statement that the rails, overhead, car-barns and other materials, were worth more than that sum, and that the commission had spent $160,000 on the system.

Mr. Gaby said that Peterboro was fortunate in having a contract with the Hydro calling for the sale of power at cost, and that the time had come to put the other municipalities on the same basis. The Commission could not have them paying for the Peterboro street car service.

Submit to People.

Alderman Greene said the people should have an opportunity to express an opinion on the matter.

Mayor Turner agreed that if the people want the service they should pay for it, and should be given a chance to pass on it.

Ald. McIntyre suggested it would be good business for commission to make changes and operate line for a year to show the people, but Mr. Gaby said that while operating deficits could be taken from the Central Ontario Sytem pot, capital expenditures could not be made from that source. The system is being unscrambled and the municipalities are to be asked to take over their distribution systems, which expense Peterboro will escape, by already owning the local system. The province will get out of everything except producing the power.

Alderman Green said that they were up to the deadline and something would have to be done right away. He suggested waiting till the system was dead before buying it, and Mr. Gaby said: "That's what you are doing."

The question of paving streets so as to avoid the cost of $65,000 a mile for the heavy foundations for the tracks is met in some cities, said Mr. Gaby, by paving two strips, and making an oil macadam surface in the centre.

Alderman Meyers' suggestion of trackless trolleys was answered by Mr. Gaby who said that the cost of overhead, would cost more than the difference between gas and electrics.

The Commission is not pressing the council but is anxious to reach the most economical solution, and something must be done soon, said Mr. Gaby, as the cars are so old.

Alderman Crowe suggested closing down the line so that the people could see what the lack of the cars would mean, but Mr. Gaby and Alderman Green both said that depreciation would commence right away, while the jitney service that some people advocated would be unreliable.

The Gas Plant.

Mr. Gaby said, when questioned by the Mayor, that the gas plant is showing a surplus now, and that by operating under the Utilities Commission economies in meter reading and other office expenses could be made which would enable Commission to establish lower prices.

When Alderman Denne referred to the new No. 4 dam, Mr. Gaby said that the power would be developed as soon as it was economical to do so. He said that the H.E.P.C. had tried to have one dam built to replace dams 4 and 5, but that the Federal Government thought two would be better for navigation.

The Mayor thanked Mr. Gaby and Mr. Robertson for their courtesy in explaining the subject so clearly to the aldermen.

There were present: Aldermen Crowe, Meyers, Greene, McIntyre, Deene, Hancock, Fife and Phelan.

CORN STALKS AS PAPER MATERIAL

By a Process Six-tenths of a Ton of Paper Results From Ton of Stalks.

AMES, Iowa, July 22.—(Associated Press).—A ton of corn stalks in this region has been considered so much agricultural waste, but the chemical engineering department at Iowa State College has found it to be worth, at present prices, about $1.50 a ton when converted into paper.

Prof. O. R. Sweeney, head of the department, has manufactured paper of a fine quality from corn stalks and he believes it can be made to match in quality any stock of woodpulp paper. Prof. Sweeney already has visions of paper mills in these prairie States, bringing back an industry which the country is losing with the passing of its forests.

The question of utilizing cornstalks for the making of paper involves a number of industrial problems into which the chemists have been delving. Prof. Sweeney's experiments show that by means of a chemical process worked out in his laboratory, six-tenths of a ton of paper can be made from a ton of stalks. Iowa produces between 20,000,000 and 25,000,000 tons of stalks yearly and the United States about 100,000,000 tons.

Oat and wheat straws have been used in the manufacture of strawboard, but they are too short-fibered for making higher grades of paper. Cornstalks do not offer this difficulty, said Prof. Sweeney, they being longer in fact than those of wood. Paper manufacturers who have seen the paper made in the laboratory declared it to be of high quality.

The department also discovered a by-product in the paper making process. The liquid extracted from the stalks was found to have high adhesive properties, which might be applied to a new adhesive product.

A JOKE ON ST. PETER.

A little girl was sadly burying her pet canary. She was just covering up the cigar box which contained it when her father came along.

"Papa, will my birdie go to heaven?" she asked.

"I think so, dear," he replied; "in fact, I know so."

The little one, forgetting her grief for the moment, laughed and said: "My, how cross St. Peter will be when he opens it and finds it isn't cigars after all!"

JUMPED FROM BOAT FEARING COLLISION

John Hines, of Montreal, Was Drowned in Welland Canal.

WELLAND, July 22.— (Canadian Press). — John Hines, 17, of Montreal was drowned in the Welland ship canal, near Humberstone, on Monday night, when he jumped overboard from a flat bottom boat when a collision with a tug seemed imminent. The body was recovered.

FACE CHEWED BY DOG.

DIBGY, N. S., July 22. — Attacked by a dog from which she had attempted to take a bone, Eleanor Huestis, aged 8, of Malden, Mass., had her face chewed almost beyond recognition at Smith's Cove near here, last Saturday. Word from the hospital stated that the child would recover.

"How can you prevent the leather from cracking, Madam?
Use a good wax polish."
"What do I recommend?
"Nugget" Shoe Polish. It softens and preserves the leather, giving it the same nutriment as the animal's body does when the skin is on its back."

Made in Black, Tan, Toney Red and Dark Brown. Also White Dressing (cake) and White Cleaner (liquid).

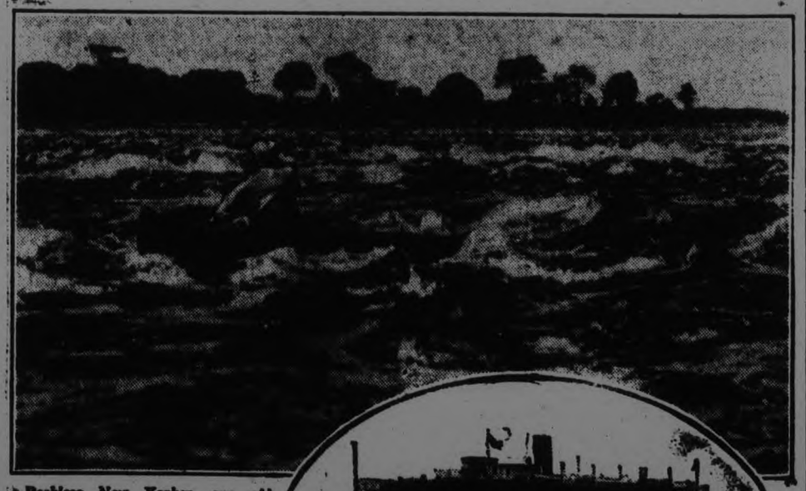
Modern Heroes Emulate Old-Time Indian Braves



The Reckless New Yorker, one of the few white men to shoot the Rapids in a birch canoe.

C.S.L. "Rapids Prince" shooting Lachine Rapids.

It is the Lachine Rapids, most spectacular and deadly of all the shallows in the long course of the St. Lawrence River. The river is beaten into a maze of cross currents and undercurrents, whirlpools and foam-laced rocks, peering with jagged teeth just flush with the sweep of the stream which here attains a speed of as high as twenty miles an hour. Looked at from the decks of the Canada Steamship Lines vessels that run these rapids daily, it seems as though no ship could live for a minute in those tormented waters. Yet subtle Indian pilots have long known them to be as safe as any placid stretch of the Lake St. Louis into which the St. Lawrence broadens and through which the ship has just passed. Indian and French-Canadian pilots know the passage of the Rapids is safe but woe to the man who should attempt to run them without full knowledge of their treacherous depths and shallows. But the old-time spirit of the voyageurs and discoverers is not dead today for in the past two months, though the river was swollen by spring freshets, two canoeists have actually dared the dangerous passage and have succeeded. One of them was a man from New York State; the other was a native Montrealer. Both were, of course, experts and neither would probably try it again for any amount of money. Yet the "piercing eyes of Danger" are perhaps half the attraction for passengers on C.S.L. boats. They look over the side of the ship and shudder at the veritable Inferno that not even the mind of a Dante could invent. As the steamer plunges among the breakers, the headlong current carries her on towards the insidious rocks, sometimes hidden, sometimes exposed to view with the dark suggestion of others unseen below the waters. Deftly the ship passes them by, within a few feet of their treacherous edges, through clouds of spray ascending from the churning abyss. A moment more and the descent is completed, and soon the steamer glides into the placid waters beneath Victoria Bridge into Montreal. Of the million tourists who will visit Montreal this summer, it is safe to say that ninety per cent. will look forward to the passage of the Lachine Rapids as one of the major events of their stay in this city.

THROUGH STREETS.

Among the standard traffic regulations recently approved by the Ontario Highways Department and issued to municipal authorities as open for adoption either in whole or in part is one providing for through streets, as suggested by Ald. Crowe.

It is set forth that where a number of thoroughfares have been designated as "through streets" the operator or driver of every vehicle shall immediately before entering or crossing any of these streets bring the vehicle to a full stop.

Before putting such a regulation into effect, however, signs must be erected in accordance with the regulations of the Department of Public Highways.

Ald. Crowe is on sound ground when he argues that a rule of this kind with George street and Charlotte street designated as through streets will reduce the number of accidents and make motoring safer and more pleasant.

ISOLATION HOSPITALS.

An effort is to be made by the local Board of Health to have other communities co-operate in a movement to secure assistance from the Ontario Government for the maintenance of municipal isolation hospitals.

The carrying on of such institutions puts a heavy strain upon the municipalities, and the load would be increased if the Mayor's suggestion of making the isolation hospital free to the public were to be adopted.

Other Ontario cities will undoubtedly be glad to join with Peterboro in pressing this request, because anything that offers a relief from expenditure should be hailed with delight by civic governments everywhere.

Checking the spread of contagious diseases by prompt and effective isolation is a matter in which the Provincial Government should be interested, and it should not be difficult to make out a strong brief on behalf of the suggestion that the municipalities should be assisted in this work.

The Provincial authorities, however, have financial responsibilities of their own to worry about, and it may not prove a very easy matter to convince them that they should take upon themselves something that hitherto has been assumed by the municipalities.

The attempt will at least do no harm—and if it succeeds will prove of very material assistance.

WHY NOT THE KAWARTHAS?

Automobile traffic between the United States and Canada has grown to such an extent that the National Resources Intelligence Service of the Dominion Government is preparing a sketch map for the purpose of supplying key information to tourists contemplating travel in Canada by auto.

A preliminary edition received by the Examiner shows that routes have been marked connecting a few of the more largely populated urban centres in each State with the more important Canadian points of entry.

There has also been indicated the accessibility of the various Canadian districts by auto.

In complying with the Service's request for suggestions which would tend to increase the value of the map for the purpose for which it was intended, the Examiner would like to recommend to those responsible for preparing this new map that the position of the Kawartha Lakes district be indicated.

For some reason or other, while the Muskoka Lakes, Lake Simcoe and other resorts have been shown, the sketch is a blank so far as the lake district above Peterboro is concerned, and without unduly congesting the map, it should be possible to mark the location of the Kawarthas, each year becoming more popular with thousands of citizens of the United States.

AN OLD PAPER GONE.

The passing of the Quebec Chronicle, Canada's oldest newspaper, which has been merged with the Telegraph, the other English daily in Quebec, will be regretted for sentimental reasons.

The Chronicle descends from the Quebec Gazette, established in 1764, and took its present name in 1847.

For over one hundred and fifty years it has been identified with the British section of the population of Quebec, and has had an interesting and illustrious history under its various editors, among whom was Sir David Watson, whose services in the World War are remembered with gratitude by his fellow-countrymen.

That the Chronicle has at last disappeared should not be a matter of wonderment; the only surprise is that it should have survived so long under the conditions when newspapers all over the country were dropping out of the field.

The situation in Quebec is rather unique.

The population is almost overwhelmingly French, there being 85,000 citizens of French origin, as against fewer than 9,000 British.

The two English papers in Quebec have, therefore, had to compete with each other in a very circumscribed field, and the fact that the Chronicle has been in existence so long reflects credit upon its management.

Regretting the disappearance of an ancient and honourable newspaper as it does, the Examiner wishes the merger every success.

BRITISH COLUMBIA'S CHARRED FORESTS.

The sequel to our national "Save the Forests" week is now being written in despatches from British Columbia telling of forest fires that are destroying millions of feet of the finest timber in Canada. West Kootenay, in the Crow's Nest Pass country, at the southern end of the Province, is suffering, despatches referring to some of the outbreaks there as "an inferno," and others as being at least seventy-five square miles in extent.

Unlike the coast, the Crow's Nest Pass gets little rain in summer time; just now the woods are as dry as tinder; wind is much more frequent and pronounced than in winter, and when fire gets a start it travels quickly and there is practically nothing that can be done to stop it. The fires just now seem to be centred in the district of which Nelson is the logical trading centre, and are bad near Nakusp on the Upper Arrow Lakes, one of the most picturesque spots in central and southern British Columbia.

Those who have never been near or through a forest fire in British Columbia can have little idea of what such a season means. Today settlers will be making their way with what possessions they can carry to the edge of the lakes or to the rivers. Some who feel that in the clearings around their places they have a chance to fight it out may stay and do so. Towns in the path of the fire are no better off. The last large place to find this out was Fernie, some distance east of the Crow's Nest Pass from the present conflagration. That town, or city as is called there, went out on August 1, 1908, and, with the exception of the head office of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal and Coke Company, the railway stations and a few houses in one corner of the place, there was nothing left but a bare waste of hot ashes and a few foundations. It was wiped out in about three hours, a place where some 5,000 people had previously been housed, and the remarkable thing was that the casualty list had only five names on it.

Going outside of the towns or villages over which these fires have passed, walking up over the foothills and through what was once a great virgin forest of fir and pine, one gets some idea of what it means to be blotting out mile after mile of this fast-vanishing natural asset. The younger growth may have burned through; it has snapped off half-way up; the older trees have withstood the blast, but their life has been burned out, and there they stand, black, charred monuments to the fact that what has taken fifty years or a century to create can be spoiled in half an hour.

Even those districts that are some miles removed from the scenes of forest fires will be living in a state of nameless dread. Heavy smoke will be hanging over the mountains; the smell of it is there day and night, a constant reminder of what has happened and of what may happen. There will be the usual rumor that spreads even faster than the fire, of some timber cruiser or prospector who just came in this morning and reported having to work his way around a fire spreading rapidly in the direction of the town.

Back of all this fevered activity is the plain fact that these fires in British Columbia do not start themselves; spontaneous combustion does not operate out in the open under natural conditions. Spaces are great and it would need an army to patrol the bush and find those responsible for fires. If it were considered more serious than arson to start fire in a dry bush, and were tourists and campers absolutely forbidden to enter these great areas, there might be some change. If the law tackled the problem with the same spirit that pervaded the old Northwest Mounted Police there would be fewer fires. Certainly something more stern must be done than observing a "Save the Forests" week.—London Advertiser.

A NATION OF SPENDERS.

Since President Coolidge started on his own time it has been apparent that his chief message to the people was of thrift. He has urged precept and example. A leader may talk economy, be applauded, and not followed. Mr. Coolidge believes what he says. That's Vermont.

With Mrs. Coolidge he came to Chicago in the drawing room of a Pullman. A private car cost too much. He issued orders for the saving of soap, pins, towels and other office supplies. He decided not to get a new suit of clothes for Easter. He decided not to get a new straw hat, but to have the Panama cleaned. That was reasonable. It is why a man buys a Panama in the first place.

This thrift in the White House seems to have made an impression on the people. How much we do not know. We did not believe that any precept or example could keep the American people from spending money when they had it for things they wanted. It is their habit. It gets them what they want and it seems to us that there is a great deal to be said in favor of a life having what you want rather than a life of wanting what you won't have. Some business men say that Mr. Coolidge has slowed things down, that he has stopped considerable spending of money, and that the old suit is on a good many of his fellow-citizens who ordinarily would be sporting a new one.

Thrift is a virtue much admired even by people who do not practice it. To preach against thrift would seem an enormity, as preaching against honesty, virtue and square dealing. But nations live on different levels. The level of the American nation is one of spending. Our idea is to make money and convert it into things which make life enjoyable. People are busy making the things and selling the things which other people want. There is a quick turnover of the pay check and that turnover makes other pay checks.

The expenditure for automobiles, radio sets, clothes, furniture, rugs, amusements, food which is not needed to sustain life but is pleasant to the palate, all this keeps people busy. If buying stopped, the savings accounts might have a sudden boost, but presently a good many people would be needing their savings for their sustenance. When buying stopped production would stop, and with it employment would stop. The whole nation is geared up to this speed of spending. It gives the individual a rich life. He gets his money because he is contributing something to what other people want. He is buying from their contributions. The people are working for each other and each has something out of the great production thus stimulated.

The saving of money has a protective purpose. Money itself is only intended to be exchanged. It converts a particular kind of work into a great variety of articles. It has ceased to serve its purpose when it is under a mattress or in a sock. If a man could be guaranteed a daily wage for labor to the hour of his death he would not need to save a cent. The more he spent the better everybody would be off. Thrift merely protects him against the time when he cannot work.

We live by spending, not by saving. Great accumulations of wealth give men power and its gratification, but the average man gets his normal life out of what he spends. It may be on his home, in his amusements, to gratify his tastes, to broaden the intellectual scope of his existence, or to increase his grossness. It depends on the person; but he lives by spending and the rest of the country lives with him.

This makes wealth in the real sense of things which are used. That is all wealth is. A mountain of gold as such has no value.—Chicago Tribune.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Evolution is providing as much publicity for Dayton, Tenn., as the cash register has done for the Ohio city of the same name.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, July 21.—Trade was extremely quiet today in the cattle market, following the usual active Monday market. A few choice butcher cattle were taken at steady prices. The plain, common butcher stuff was not wanted, and very little of it was moving. This means a heavy carry-over, already amounting to probably 2,000 cattle.

Export trade quiet. Rogers' and Maybee's total purchase yesterday was about 800 exporters, steers from $7.50 to $8.25 A few odd lots were taken today at $7.50 to $8.

Calves steady at $9.50 to $10 tops.

Sheep and lambs steady, with light run. Lambs $16 tot $16.50.

Hogs steady at $12.75 f.o.b. Packers were bidding 25c lower, but with the light run the bulk sold at steady prices.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Ills., July 21 (Canadian Press).—Wheat tumbled wildly down in price today to 8 5-8 to 13 cents a bushel under Saturday's top figures. With harvesting on both in Canada, in the Dakotas, Minnesota an' Montana as well, and with the scare about black rust almost forgotten, general selling of wheat took place on a gutted market. Closing quotations for wheat were heavy at nearly the botton level reached, 4 3-8 to 5 1-4c under yesterday's finish, last sales being at 1.49 3-8 to 1.49 3-4, September delivery; and 1.50 3-8 to 1.50 5-8 December; with corn 1 1-8 to 2 1-4c down; oats 5-8 to 1 1-4c off, and provisions unchanged to 15c higher.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, July 21 (Canadian Press).—Local exporters were in the market today for No. 1 feed oats and sales were made at 2 1-4 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg July option, and No. 2 feed at 1-4 cent per bushel under, c.i.f. Montreal.

The domestic and country trade in coarse grains was reported quiet owing to the further weakness in the market. Spot prices for oats were reduced another 1-2 cent per bushel.

Further weakness was displayed in the Canadian cash wheat situation and prices scored another decline of 3 3-4c per bushel which makes a net reduction in two days of 7 3-4c to 8c per bushel, but notwithstanding this factor in the local flour trade there was no action taken by millers in regard to prices for spring wheat grades.

Egg Prices Advance.

The feature of the domestic market for eggs today was the stronger feeling that developed and prices were advanced 1 to 2 cents per dozen. This was attributed to the comparatively small supplies coming forward, and the reduced quantities of high grade eggs owing to the very warm weather prevailing throughout the country. There was no improvement in the demand for local consumption and the volume of business was small. The receipts were 2,592 cases, as against 2,110 for the same day last week, and 2,440 for the corresponding day a year ago.

The receipts of butter in Montreal today were 3,940 packages, as against 3,378 for the same day last week, and 1,809 for the corresponding day a year ago. There was no further change in the condition of the market yesterday, prices being steady, but owing to the lull in the demand from foreign buyers for supplies, business was quiet and the movement for domestic account was also reported small.

The receipts of cheese in Montreal today were 13,047 boxes, as compared with 12,809 for the same day last week, and 15,534 for the corresponding day a year ago. Cables received from London stated that there were re-sellers of Canadian cheese in that market at 108s. to 109s. per cwt. landed terms. The market here was reported very quiet with an easier undertone, but prices on spot were nominally unchanged.

CURB CHEESE PRICES

MONTREAL, July 21 (Canadian Press).—On the local curb market today there were 2,000 packages creamery butter, and 2,500 boxes of cheese offered. The pasteurized creamery butter sold at 37 3-4c per lb., and the No. 1 creamery at 36 3-4 cents per lb, while the cheese were all disposed of at 22 1-8c per lb. delivered here.

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, July 21 (Canadian Press) — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here today as follows:
Sterling demand $4.85 3-8.
Sterling cables $4.85 7-8.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

LAUDS G.W.V.A.

The Editor of The Examiner,
Dear sir:

The meeting that the G.W.V.A. has called for Wednesday night shows the desire of that organization to do anything that will help the returned soldier. Many cases of need in Peterborough have been relieved through the ministrations of the association, and through its influence with political and other powerful persons. And now, when there is prospect of an amalgamation that would draw veterans closer together the G.W.V.A. is ready to sink its identity, and the local Association is the first to make a move in that direction.

Ex-service men should be ready to help.

TRUMPETER.

SMITH STREET BRIDGE.

The Editor of The Examiner,
Dear sir:

Smith street bridge is in bad state of repair, and something should be done to protect it froht further disintegration. The water has seeped fro mthe surface through the sides, the parapet on the south side has become weatherworn and roughened, and shows signs of cracking, and generally the structure needs immediate attention.

This matter has been brought up in Council several times without result, but if the 15-year-old bridge is to be preserved it is time to act.

SMITH STREET.

THINKS VETS SHOULD HELP.

The Editor of The Examiner,
Dear sir:

The meeting to be held on Wednesday night by war veterans should attract all ex-soldiers. It is a meeting they have been waiting for, not to make disparaging attacks on organizations now existing, but to help in building up a greater and better association of all ex-service men for the good of all.

No ex-service man likes to be told of what he did overseas or to hear stay-at-homes prate of the fellowship that existed there, but we who were over there know we never had better friends than we made at the front. It seems too bad that that friendship cannot be maintained, and surely a great organization of all war veterans would be the means to preventing its utter dissolution.

Wednesday's meeting should see evrey war veteran in Peterboro in his place.

FIRST DIVISION.

DR. GOFORTH MISUNDERSTOOD

To the Editor,
The Peterboro Examiner,
Peterboro, Ontario.

Dead Sir—It has just come to my notice that in reporting services held in Peterboro churches for one of the Sundays in June, you quote Rev. Dr. Goforth in these terms:

"Dr. Goforth here told of a minister in the recent Assembly who, referring to drug addicts being redeemed by "Fundamentals," sneered at the idea, and the answer was loud applause from the clergymen present. "Such a shameful occurrence filled me with disgust," said Dr. Goforth 'since the fundamentals of our faith are the only means of redemption."

It must be that Dr. Goforth was misunderstood by your reporter, because his statement is a complete reversal of what Rev. J. Richmond Craig said on the occasion to which Dr. Goforth refers. Mr. Craig is minister of First Church, Vancouver, and superintendent of the social service work carried on by the church in the east end of that city. At the meeting of the last Assembly, Mr. Craig was describing efforts that are being made in the Community House of Vancouver in behalf of the drug addicts. He was dealing with a particular case where he and his associates were endeavoring to save a husband and wife from the enslavement of drug addiction. Every known human device had been tried and had failed to break the chain that bound the unfortunates. As a result of prayer, Mr. Craig asserts that new power came to the narcotic victims which ultimately led to their complete recovery and restoration to society.

An unqualified denial can be made to the statement that in the Assembly loud applause greeted a sneer at the fundamentals of Christianity, but there was a marked demonstration following the assertion that God had answered the prayer of earnest workers in behalf of the helpless.

In his address, instead of sneering at the fundamentals of Christianity, Mr. Craig was pleading for sincere prayer in dealing with the submerged masses of men.

I trust you may find space in your valuable paper for this explanation in order that no injustice may be done to a man who, under God is doing great things for unfortunate men and women.

Yours sincerely,
D. N. McLACHLAN.

A THOUGHT.

MISTAKES.

When you make a mistake, do not make it ten times worse by offering an alibi. Every man has a certain fixed responsibility, and it is impossible for him to get rid of it by shifting the blame for his errors upon the shoulders of another. Millions of men have tried it and failed. There is nothing so weak and foolish as an alibi.

Admit your mistakes frankly and at once, and you will find that your progress will be greater than it ever was before. When you once learn how valuable your mistakes are you will never try to lay them at the other man's door again. There is nothing from which a man can profit so much, as by accepting the responsibility for his own mistakes.

FOREST FIRES AND LOCUSTS DEVASTATE FIELDS AND WOODS IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

Many Fire Fighters Trying to Check Flames in Forestry Districts—Hordes of Grashoppers Causing Damage.

VANCOUVER, July 22 — The forest fire situation both on the mainland north of Vancouver and on Vancouver Island, is still causing considerable anxiety to forestry officials.

In the Granite Bay district, North of Campbell River on Vancouver Island, a fire which started on July 1, was reported on Monday as burning over fifty-six miles, having crosed into the timber limits of the Fraser Lumber Company and reached the outskirts of the village of St. Hyacinthe. Large crews of fire-fighters, aided by the settlers, were running a fire break across a mile of forest front and it was believed Monday that th fire would be held in check.

Two large fires at Stillwater and Little River, near Comox, are being fought by 200 men who have been able to hold the blaze to Slashed land.

Forestry officials reported 17 fires in progress Monday night in various parts of the Vancouver forestry district.

OFFER PRIZE FOR MAP OF DOMINION

Pupils in North Cavan Fair District Are Eligible To Compete

CAVAN, July 22.—The July meeting of the Cavan Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. F. M. Staples on Thursday afternoon There was a good attendance.

The usual programme was followed, disposing of all unfinished business first.

Correspondence was read from those who had received flowers, fruit, etc.

It was decided to offer a special prize, at this rural fair in september for the best map of Canada. All pupils in the schools, which are in the North Cavan fair held at Ida, are eligible to compete.

Notice to this effect will be sent to Mr. Patterson, Port Hope, district representative, also to the teachers of the different schools.

The size of the map will be specified and the judges will be chosen by the Institute. The maps are to be entered without names on them; just handed to some person named to receive them, who will number the maps and enter the name and number in a book.

The members of the Institute have five quilts ready to be quilted to send to the Miners' Relief Committee in Nova Scotia. These quilts will be quilted about the time of the regular date of meeting in August; the place of quilting and date to be announced later.

By request, Mrs. C. Carr repeated her paper 'Checking Up," which she had given at a former meeting. She also read a short paper, "What the Institute means to You and Me." They were much enjoyed.

The lunch committee served lunch and a social time was enjoyed.

Mrs. R. Matchett invited the Institute to meet at her home in September.

Among those present were Mrs. D. J. Hunter, Mrs. Margaret Matchett, Mrs. D. White, Mrs. Rowen, Mrs. J. W. Perrin, Mrs. Ray Syer, Miss Francis Hunter, Mrs. R. Matchett Mrs. Jas. Keegan, Mrs. Jas. Paul, Mrs. E. Syer, Mrs. Purser, Mrs. M. Sutton, Mrs. R. S. Staples, Mrs. L. C. McNeil, Mrs. Lloyd Sutton, Mrs. J. Armstrong; the Misses Helen Staples, Jessie Shaufer, Helen Syer, Gwendoline Hunter, Ruth Salter, Barbara Staples, Josie Sutton, Bertha McNeil, Nettie Sutton, and Mrs. Creighton Carr.

The Staples' reunion, which was to have been held in Cobourg, July 25, is postponed until August 8.

WRECK HOUSE TO AVENGE SLAYING

Winnipeg Police Round Up Residents of Feud District.

WINNIPEG, July 22.—(Canadian Press).—Carrying out what police believe to be a campaign of revenge, vandals working the darkness of the night, partially wrecked the home of John Saluchum, a farmer of the Inwood district. It was in returning from a party held in this house that John Rodway, 55, was bludgeoned to death by three masked bandits, while driving along a deserted road on Sunday night.

The act of vandalism has strengthened the opinion of the authorities that the murder was committed from a motive of revenge. Acting on this theory, the police have started a round-up of residents in the district It has now been definitely established that a feud had existed between some of the families for the past three years.

Life will taste sweeter . . .

When that Corn is gone

A corn isn't just a pain—it's a drain. A tax on the whole nervous system. A blight, not alone on the toe, but on the spirits and the disposition. Doctors know that a corn can darken a man's whole viewpoint on life. Headache, fatigue, irritability and indigestion are reflexes of a throbbing corn... "Pain-messages" shoot to every nerve center, when a corn starts broadcasting. . . . If you would know blissful relief, apply Blue-jay to that burning corn. In ten seconds, the world will seem a better place to live in. . . . A tiny cushion—cool as velvet—fits over the corn and stops the pain at once. You wear it two days in solid comfort. When you take it off, the corn comes with it—gently removed by the little brown disc of magic medication.

WILD RASPBERRY CROP A FAILURE

Omemee Reports Harvest Outlook Improved By Rains.

OMEMEE, July 22. — Crop prospects have been greatly improved by the recent showers. Although the weather has been catchy for haying yet many fields of heavy yields have been saved, without being bleached.

Fall wheat is coloring fast and will soon be ready to harvest, and in fact on some farms will be cut before the haying is finished.

From all appearances, the many large fields of alsike in this district look promising for a splendid yield.

So far, new potatoes are a luxury.

Last year's crop has not all been demolished and the average housewife shrinks from the prevailing high prices on the small market that has been offered.

Many complaints are being heard about the potato bug, which is infesting in large quantities most of the patches and is a continual annoyance to the grower.

Many table vegetables are fast making their appearance. String beans, peas, carrots, and beets, are among the most plentiful.

Currants and red raspberries appear in the store windows, the latter receiving a ready sale at 15c per box.

Reports are coming in that the wild raspberry crop is a failure but if the showers continue the tame variety of both red and purple look very promising for a big yield.

Dairy butter is a scarcity. The demand is greater than the supply, and many housewives have to resort to creamery. Eggs have taken a slight rise; they now retail at thirty cents per dozen.

UNANIMITY SOUGHT IN FLAG QUESTION

Minister of Interior for South Africa Deems it Unwise to Hasten Decision.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, July 23.—(Canadian Press).— In a union assembly yesterday Dr. Daniel F. Malan, Minister of the Interior, moved for a discharge of the South African nationality and flag bill, intimating that though the government was as deeply convinced as ever over need for legislation for a South African national flag, it was deemed of utmost importance that before the country was committedto any particular flag design, every possible step should be taken to secure the greatest possible unanimity in regard to the procedure to be followed and the choice of design. Premier James Hertzog therefore approached General Jan Christian Smuts, leader of the Nationalists who accepted the principle of a South African national flag and expressd his willingness to co-operate with the government in obtaining a unanimous and non-partisan decision on the matter. Minister Malan then said he hoped to be able to re-introduce the bill next session at a united choice of all sections of the union.

'SNOW PARTIES' WILD AFFAIRS

Orgies By Theatrical People Under the Influence of Narcotics.

AGENTS ARRESTED.

NEW YORK, July 22. — Lists costaining the names of 25 actors and actresses, ostensibly patrons of a narcotic ring, were found by agents who seized two suspects alleged to have supplied theatrical folks with heroin and other drugs for the past seven months.

More than 100 ounces of alleged heroin were found following the arrest of Lester Rose, a reporter on a theatrical weekly, and Charlie Phillips, according to the narcotic agents under Divisional Chief Ralph Oyler. The arrests were made on a tip given by an actor.

The actor, said to be a leading male star, who gave Oyler's men the tip, told him that heroin was being freely used by prominent theatrical folks. He described "snow parties," in which actresses and actors gathered to take the drug and indulge in extravagant orgies under its influence.

The agents went to Rose, introduced themselves as theatrical men.

"We want to throw a snow party for some sleigh riding friends," one said to the reporter. "How about a hundred?"

Rose told them, they allege, that 100 ounces would cost them $2500. They agreed to the price, met him at a downtown east side rendezvous, and handed over the money in marked bills, receiving they said 100 ounces of the narcotic.

Oyler said the persons listed as Rose's customers would be summoned to tell what they know of the traffic in drugs.

PILGRIMS IN ROME

RUPTURE RELIEF

Appliance Expert Coming

Rupture(as defined) is not a tear but a dilation of the muscles and the distention of the membrane into the form of a sack (caused in the first place by weakness, and pushing force of internal weight and finally developing an external swelling in the groin through strain or violence) therefore subject to retention! Don't wear a truss pad where the lump is ,but be fitted where the rupture is. It's different, so says Thos. F. Egan, Appliance Specialist. 1057 College Street. Toronto, who will visit Peterboro, White's Hotel (173 Charlotte street) Friday (hours 8 a.m. till 9 p.m.) 1 day only, July 24.

Egan's new "Curative"; "Curatrus" and "Easyfit" appliances with retentive shield acts, feels and retains more like the hand than anything yet invented. It gives a mild exercising massage, permits free circulation and allows nature to strengthen the parts in the shortest time possible. Light, cool, neat, does not slip and costs little. Made to measure in a variety of forms for men, women, Children, infants. These new appliances being designed in conformity with the retentive principles as set forth by the world's latest textbooks, are now receiving the highest approval. They embody all the principles as now approved of and used in New York, London, Paris, and are effecting better results than ready-made old-fashioned trusses. If interested, now is the time to make yourself safe for your work, so do not miss this opportunity to call and have a personal free demonstration and examination of samples. You will thus save time, money and worry in the end. It costs you nothing to investigate. "The best in the world". Note dates; ask at hotel office for Mr. Egan's sample room. Tear this out as a memo.

GERMANS BUILD RUSSIAN SHIPS

Vessels to be Used for Commercial Purposes Under Construction.

TEN PER CENT. CASH

MOSCOW, July 22.— German shipbuilding firms, including "Krupp Wharf" and "Deutsche Wharf", have approached the Soviet Commercial Navy Department with an offer to build a number of commercial and passenger ships on credit for ten to 15 years upon payment of 10 per cent cash with order. The Commercial Navy Department considered the terms acceptable and decided to order several tank steamers as well as passenger ships.

In a memorandum addressed to the central authorities at Moscow recommending the offer, the Commercial Navy Department stated that the interest of the Soviet shipbuilding works will not suffer by placing orders for ships abroad, as for the whole sum assigned by the government for Russian shipbuilding, orders have already been placed with Russia works, and that the cost of the ships which will be built abroad will be defrayed from the profits derived from the exploitation of those ships.

HAIG PLEASED WITH PROSPECT OF UNION

Believes Foundation Laid For Amalgamation of Veterans.

WINNIPEG, July 22. — Canadian Press. — Returning from his officail tour through western Canada, Earl Haig and his party arrived in Winnipeg yesterday. The distinguished soldier was greeted by representatives of the local Veterans' organization, and military officials.

Earl Haig expressed himself as being greatly pleased with his trip.

He declared that he was satisfied that as a result of his visit, a good foundation had been laid for the bringisg together digerent Veterans' bodies, where they were at least willing to consider affiliation with the other Dominions in the British Empire Service League. The party left for the East last night.

CANADA MUST WORK OUT OWN DESTINY

Individual Efforts of Every Citizen Needed, Says Senator.

SHERBROOKE, Que., July 22—Canadians must look northward of the United States boundary line and not southward in order to build a bigger and better Canada, declared Senator Rufus Henry Pope, of Cookshire, Que., before the Sherbrooke Rotary Club here Tuesday.

Every member of the Rotary Club should work out in his own mind how to make the country greater, for the individual efforts of every citizen must be secured to forge ahead. His 40 years in politics had taught him that the country's welfare always fell back on the citizen.

It was to the Northern part of the country that we must look for future development, said the speaker. The Senator spoke of the wonderful people who had settled the country in days gone by, such as his own grand-parents, and said that it was to the young men of to-day that the heritage was handed on. Agriculturalists and Industrialists must join hand in hand and go forward to future greatness, for the only policy for Canada was one of the whole country.

Canada has coyote, rabbit, skunk, fox, beaver, hare and karakul sheep farms.

Canada has 600,000 motor vehicles —one to every 15 of the population.

NAVAL PROGRAM CAUSING A SPLIT

Admiralty Regards With Scorn Churchill's Plan For Economy.

WORRIES BALDWIN.

LONDON, July 22.— Mr. Baldwin's difficulties, which seemed to be clearing up a little, are steadily getting worse. Even if he secures a settlement either way in the dispute between Winston Churchill and W. C. Bridgeman, first lord of the admiralty, over the cruiser construction program, there is bound to be a rift in the government with pro-Churchill forces on the one side and anti-Churchill cohorts on the other. There is bound also to be a division between the two schools of Conservative thought in parliament, one sworn to absolutely rigid economy in all branches of public affairs, and the other urging that economy is carried too far when it imperils national safety.

Resignations Likely.

Mr. Baldwin is still striving with might and main to find a compromise on the cruiser question. He is very anxious to avoid any sensational resignations, but Bridgeman's friends say that the first lord has "dug himself in," and unless he gets substantially what he has demanded for the navy will resign and carry with him most of the sea lords, including Earl Beatty.

Scorn Proposal.

Mr. Churchill has offered to allow the admiralty to lay down two new ships this year and possibly three next year, under an increased accelerated programe, if the admiralty can effect other economies. The civil and sea lords have laughed at this proposal, and just when Mr. Baldwin thought he had worked out a settlement he found yesterday that he had to start all over again owing to Mr. Bridgeman's stubbornness.

FASCISTI AID VATICAN

Vie in Friendly Competition to Commemorate Great Events.

ROME, July 22.—The growing friendliness of the Fascist government with the Vatican is causing an amicable competition between church and state in commemorations of important events of their rich historical origins.

The Fascisti, always quick to take opportunities to call attention to the grandeurs of ancient and medieval Italy, now are doing as much for the chruch in pursuance of their idea that the power of the church is closely linked with the strength of the nation and hence should be celebrated as much as possible.

The most important church commemoration this year is the 16th centennial of the Council of Nicea, at which the Aryan Schism broke the church in two, losing for Rome jurisdiction over the spiritual affairs of the eastern world. This important centennial will also be celebrated in Athens by the hierarchy of the Orthodox Greek Catholic Church.

Another important religious centennial will be that of St. Francis Assisi next year, preparations for which are being made this summer.

Of secular celebrations, the most interesting this year will be that of Virgil on September 20. In connection with this event, the government has appropriated a considerable sum of money for restoration of the supposed tomb of the famous Latin poet.

TAXI DRIVER ACQUITTED.

MONTREAL, July 22. — Roy Bennett, taxi driver, is acquitted of the charge of manslaughter on which he has been held since the death on July 2nd of Alma Vadieux, who succumbed to injuries she suffered when Bennett's automobile overturned in the early hours of the morning.

POLICE POSTS IN THE ARCTIC

On this map are marked the main posts of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, to which Capt. J. E. Bernier in the "Arctic" is now carrying a year's supplies. These far-flung outposts of Canada maintain the Dominion's claim to sovereignty of Arctic areas of about 500,000 square miles. Inspector Wilcox of the Police Department is on the "Arctic" and may establish some new posts this year.

HAVELOCK WILL MAKE CHANGES SCHOOL PLANS

Board of Education Arranges To Relieve Principal of Overwork.

MEET CITIZENS

Public Gathering Will Be Held on Thursday Night For Discussion.

(By a Staff Reporter).

HAVELOCK, July 22.—Members of the Havelock School Board, sitting in regular session Tuesday night, adopted certain measures which, it is believed will go a long way towards improving conditions in the Public School, conditions which have been freely and adversely discussed by some of the ratepayers, who object to the showing made by the school at the recent entrance examinations. All the members of the Board were present at last night's meeting as follows: H. W. Roche, chairman; E. Fennell, secretary; Trustees, Dr. Thampson, Moore, Forde and Barlow; Percy Yuill, principal of the Public School was also in attendance and was frequently drawn into the discussions.

Public Meeting Thursday.

There were no private citizens at the meeting but a public gathering of School Board and Ratepayers will be held in the Town Hall Thursday night to discuss the situtation, the legal steps having been taken to call such a gathering. If for any reason, Chairman Roche is unable to preside, the chair will be occupied by Dr. Thompson. All rate payers will be given a chance to express their views.

Changes Agreed Upon.

The most important action taken last night was the decision to rearrange the pupils in the various rooms so that Principal Yuill will have a fighting chance to handle the entrance class. Last term, he had 55 pupils in his room, and was required to teach the Junior fourth class as well as the entrance candidates. As the pupils are rearranged, he will next term have about 38 pupils, these all being in the entrance class. The junior fourth pupils will be divided between two rooms and there will be changes in the personnel of the pupils in every department.

There are sufficient pupils in the school to warrant the engaging of another teacher but instead of going to this extra expense, the above policy was decided upon. The suggestion being made by Principal Yuill.

Kindergarten Abolished.

Another change urged upon was the abolition of the Kindergarten class which has been conducted, not as a separate unit, but in connection with the Primary department.

In future no children under the age of six years will be admitted to the school and all pupils of that age must enter at the beginning of the September term.

Pupils who Failed.

One of the girls who failed at the recent Entrance examinations—and she was one of the most promising and diligent members of the class, made over 60 per cent—the required maximum—of the total number of marks, but was 11 marks short of 40 per cent. on the arithmetic paper. P. S. Inspector Lees will be asked if this girl cannot be permitted to attend the Continuation school, as Principal Yuill stands ready to recommend her. It is believed that her failure was due more to nervousness than to any other cause. Other pupils who failed will also be recommended for similar action, if an examination of their marks shows that they lost out by a narrow margin.

Recommendations by Principals.

This question brought up a discussion on the wider subject of having pupils admitted to the High School on the recommendation of their principals instead of being compelled to submit to what is for so many of them the torture of the Entrance examination. Attention was called to the fact that this system of recommendation had been in effect in the city of Peterboro, and in other schools in the district, and the members of the board could see no reason why it should not be tried out in Havelock.

On motion of Dr. Thompson, Secretary Fennell was instructed to write the Department of Education, asking what steps are necessary in order to put the plan in operation in the local school.

Preparing for Winter.

Chairman Roche was authorized to purchase what coal is needed for the use of the school.

A Heavy Tax Rate.

There are few villages in Ontario the size of Havelock, which can boast of such a handsome school building, with six teachers in the public school and two in the continuation department. Fewer still can show as large a number of pupils, 300 or one-fourth of the entire population of the municipality Maintaining such a school has been a heavy burden on the taxpayers. Last year the school rate was 25 mills, but this year the members of the Board hope to keep it down to 24.

A tentative estimate of the total amount required for school purposes this year, was made last night, but no definite sum could be fixed in the absence of information as to the amount that will be received in grants.

It is a gentle and affectionate thought, that in immeasurable height above us, at our first birth, the wreath of love was woven with sparkling stars for flowers.—Coleridge.

BACHELORS WON SOFTBALL GAME

Final Score Wrapped in Mystery, But Thought to be 13-7.

LADIES UMPIRED.

MILLBROOK, July 22—A game of softball between the Bachelors and Benedicts took place at the Agricultural Park on Tuesday evening, the number of cars on the grounds giving evidence of the interest taken.

The teams lined up as follows:

Bachelors—H. Lancashire, p; L. Ingram, c; F. Gray, 1b; A. McCorry, 2b; A. Armstrong, 3b; O. Gray, rf; W. Sayles, lf; S. Gilmour, ss; G. Reynolds, ss.

Benedicts—B. Richards, p; L. C. Russell, c; R. Edmunds, 1b; E. C. Richards, 2b; J. A. Vance, 3b; P. Stinson, rf; J. Griffiths, lf; P. Handley, ss; G. W. Sayles, ss.

Mrs. B. R. Richards was plate umpire, and Miss Inella Shaw on bases. T. H. Bradley kept score.

Nominally, the score was given out as 13-7; what it actually stood is buried in mystery, but the Benedicts will probably practice diligently in the hope of being "in the game" when next they meet their bachelor opponents.

FIRE DESTROYS GROCERY STORE

Partially Covered By Insurance—Some Stock Saved.

ORIGIN UNKNOWN.

HAVELOCK, July 22 — Last night a small grocery business operated by Ross Hart burned to the ground while the proprietor and his wife were absent. The loss was partially covered by insurance and neighbors were successful in saving a small part of the stock and some of the furniture downstairs. The origin of the fire is unknown.

EATON CO. OPENING GROCERIES IN WEST

Have Opened Stores in Six Prairie Cities—None in East Yet.

TORONTO, July 22.— (Canadian Press)—The report that the T. Eaton Company, Ltd., had opened grocery stores in six western Canadian cities, Saskatoon, Regina, Moosejaw, Calgary, Edmonton and Brandon was confirmed last night by Harry McGee, vice-president of the company. Mr. McGee said he wished to make it clear that nothing had been done about starting grocery stores in Eastern Canada at the present time.

CAMPBELLFORD NEWS

Seymour West Women's Institute.

CAMPBELLFORD July 22—The regular meeting of the Seymour West Women's Institute was held on Thursday, July 16, at the home of Mrs. Gordon Shearer. The meeting was opened in the usual manner, singing of Maple Leaf and repeating Lord's Prayer in unison. A letter was read by the secretary from the Sick Children's Hospital asking for a donation of fruit. It was moved by Mrs. Thos. Dunham and seconded by Mrs. David Stillman, that fruit be sent. A discussion took place re the manner in which prizes would be given to the four school at the rural school fair. It was moved by Mrs. Roy Fleming and seconded by Mrs. David Stillman, that the prizes be $5, $4, $3, $2.50.

A letter was also read re holding a garment making club in the Institute, but was not definitely decided upon.

The Institute is working for a community hall. It was moved by Mrs. Robert McCullough and seconded by Mrs. Thos. Dunham, that the Institute draw from their bank account $50 from last year and $50 from this year's, and that this $100 be invested in bonds, to be used toward building a community hall. A debate in the Institute was suggested by Mrs. Dunham, but it was left over till next meeting.

An excellent programme was then rendered, as follows: Reading, "Breath of the New Mown May," by Miss Margurite Garneau; a splendid paper, "Does Active Middle Age Surpass Youth in the Joy of Life," by Mrs. Charles Davidson. In answer to roll call, each member responded with "Don'ts for Sick Room." Very dainty refreshments were then served by the hostess. There were about forty-one members present.

Messrs. Charles and Claude Duncalfe left on Monday for Bracebridge where they have secured positions with the Hydro.

Miss Hazel Labrash of the Bell Telephone Staff has returned after spending her holidays at Cobourg, and also with Miss Gertrude Callaghan of the Bell Telephone staff, visited friends in Kingston, taking in the trip to the Thousand Islands.

GERMANY WON'T BE BATTLEFIELD

She Must Have Her Territory Declared Neutral By League.

NO FRENCH ALLIES.

BERLIN, July 22 (Canadian Press).—Germany will under no circumstances join the League of Nations unless her territory is declared neutral in all emergencies.

Such is the essence of the German answer to the security pact proposals, as distilled last night by a high german official. As he postulated flatly, the Reich, eager as it is to have the pact, must, nevertheless, reject any proposal which would make its territory the battlefield for a European war. Secondly, the Reich will not accept as a trustee of the pact any ally of France.

BANDIT SHOOTS CLUB MEMBERS

Lone Robber Held Up Night Club and Robbed Occupants.

INJURED TWO.

MONTREAL, July 22 (Canadian Press).—Two men were injured seriously when a lone bandit shot up a night club here in the early hours of this morning. The names of the victims are not yet available.

The lone bandit entered the club and ordered its occupants to line up against a wall. They did so, but two of the half dozen there made a dash at him, while the bandit was going through their pockets. The invader promptly started shooting. One man was shot in the neck, the other in the abdomen. A woman who was in the club escaped to the street and called the police. The bandit escaped.

EXTRADITED FOR CHILD DESERTION

New International Pact Invoked For First Time.

MONTREAL, July 22.— The recently added clause in the International Treaty making child desertion an extraditable offence was employed for the first time by the United States authorities yesterday when Frank St. Elmo, arrested on a complaint from Boston Police charging St. Elmo with neglecting to provide for his child from May 5th last, appeared in court. He pleaded not guilty, waived extradition and is now awaiting Boston officers who will take him to the United States for trial.

JAPAN UNIQUE

Cost of Living Has Decreased 7.6 Per Cent Since January.

TOKIO, July 22.—(Associated Press).—The cost of living in Japan has decreased 7.6 per cent. since last January, according to figures recently made public. The drop in prices of food stuffs is said to have been aided considerably by the present financial condition and the improvement in exchange.

BRITAIN STILL FINANCIAL HUB

England Has Taken Admirable Course in Settling War Debt.

STATES MAJOR ASTOR.

BANFF, Alta., July 22 (Canadian Press).—Although the United States now has more gold than any other country on the globe, Britain is still the financial centre of the world, states Major John Jacob Astor, proprietor of The London Times and member of the British House of Commons, who is spending several days at the Banff Springs Hotel with Lady Violet Astor. Major Astor declares that England holds not the slightest ill will toward the United States for its unrelenting stand on the collection of its war debts. "England," he said, "has taken a most admirable course in settling up its own debts with the United States and it is not worrying itself with the difficulties which that country may have with other nations owing it money. We in England, feel very proud of the way in which Britain has been able to handle her end of this embarrassing situation after the war, and prouder still that Britain survives as the financial hub of the world."

Major Astor, who is the son of Viscount Waldorf Astor, was born in New York City, but removed to England with his family at the age of four. His wife, Lady Violet Astor, is the youngest daughter of the fourth Earl of Minto.

THOUSAND HORSES ILL.

Equine Influenza Widespsead in Montreal.

MONTREAL, July 22. — One thousand horses are estimated to be ill or convalescing from influenza in this city, according to figures laid before Dr. Boucher, head of the Civic Department of Hygient, by a deputation from the Montreal Amateur Horsemen's Association, which visited the city hall Tuesday to ask that all public drinking fountains for animals be closed until 'flu epidemic was over.

SHAW'S "ST. JOAN" LEADS

German Theatres Have Good Season With High Run of 147 Nights.

BERLIN, July 22.—Max Reinhardt's theatres have concluded an unusually prolific season. The total number of premieres was 25. Shaw's "Saint Joan", with 147 nights had the greatest number of performances. Pirandello's "Six Persons in Search of an Author" was produced 79 times and "The Dead Aunt" of Curt Goetz attained a round of 100 nights.

Newly staged and revised plays produced were: "Othello", "Coriolan," "The Imaginary Patient," "Cabal and Love", "A Servant of Two Masters," "The Revisor," "Caesar and Cleopatra," "Michael Kramer", "Lust of Decency", "Pillars of Society" and "The Krampus".

The plays of older authors retained in the repertory comprised: Wedekind's "Spring Awakening," "Pandora's Casket" and Strindberg's "Miss Julia." The old farce "Robert and Bertram" and the pantomine "Sumurum" were also revived.

STOCK WAS SOLD WITHOUT CHARTER

Defunct Company in Winnipeg Exceeded Stipulated Issue.

WINNIPEG, Man., July 22. — Permission to sell stock of the Hearst Publishing Company in Manitoba would never have been granted if information given to the Manitoba Utilities Commission had been placed before the final appeal board, T. Harry Webb, a member of the latter body stated to-day before the provincial legislative committee investigating into the operation of the sale of shares act.

Mr. Webb expressed surprise that the evidence possessed by the Public Utilities Commissioner had not ben placed before the board. Investors throughout the Dominion would have been saved thousands of dollars if we could have known the facts, he said.

Evidence was adduced to show that agents of the company had sold considerable block of stock before its application for a charter had been heard. The company further unloaded an issue far in advance of that stipulated by the board while it was shown that no effort had been made to ascertain whether the firm was living up to the terms of the charter.

PARSON HIT WOMAN.

LONDON, July 21.—London has a parson who doesn't believe that the peacemakers are blessed. At least the Rev. Cecil Walker Brett was fined 50 shillings for punching a woman on the nose. He and the woman had a dispute over rent for a cottage the parson owned.

MAY PAY TROOPS

Ascari Troops of German East Africa Paid for Last Year of War.

BERLIN, July 22.—(Associated Press).—After waiting several years, Germany has been granted permission to pay the former Ascari troops of German East Africa for the last year of the World War. Until now, England, as the mandatory power of the former German colony, has refused to permit Germany to pay the former colonial troops.

The amount involved is 12,000,000 marks, approximately $3,000,000, and will be paid to the Ascaris by British officials with two German civilians present.

NEW RUSSIAN OPERA

First Production Used to Celebrate Fifth Anniversary of Tartar Republic.

KASAN, Russia, July 22.—(Associated Press).—An opera based upon the folk songs of the country, has been composed to be a feature of the celebration of the fifth anniversary of the autonomous Tartar republic. The work, entitled "Sania," consists of an overture and three acts.

It is the first national production of its kind and required the efforts of three collaborators two years to complete it. The Western Musical Conservatory of Kazan has undertaken to prepare the opera for presentation during the anniversary festival.

MEAT EXPORT GROWING FAST

Large Increase in Past Year in Both Beef and Pork.

UP 10 PER CENT.

OTTAWA, July 22.—(Canadian Press.)—The fresh export trade increased in volume during the past twelve months as compared with the preceding twelve months. During the twelve months ended June, 1925, over 259,000 hundred weight of fresh beef was shipped abroad and in the twelve months ended June, 1924, slightly more than 223,000 hundred weight was exported. Similarly the volume of trade in bacon and hams has grown from slightly more than one million hundred weight in the twelve months ended June 1924, to 1,230,000 hundred weight during the past twelve months.

A Mistake

that some beauty seekers are making

They are misled on "olive and palm" soaps

Do you realize, Madam, that "olive and palm" soaps are ages and ages old? But never has one, before Palmolive, brought comparable results to the skin.

Palmolive Soap is a masterpiece, based on 60 years of soap study. It is a scientific creation, made to bring new beauty to the skin. Made to keep schoolgirl complexions.

Its unique results have led millions to adopt it. Now it is made in five countries, to supply the world-wide demand. It is made in France, because French women find in this their ideal of a soap.

Soft, velvety complexions are many times as common as they were before Palmolive came. Then don't accept ordinary "olive and palm" soaps, with artificial color, and often super-fatted.

Palmolive costs 10 cents—no more than the price of most ordinary soaps. But that is due to enormous production. Palmolive has become the leading toilet soap of the world. The only two soaps we know that fairly compare with it cost 25 cents per cake.

This warning is in your interest. There is a way to keep youthful complexions, and multitudes have found it. But that way is not a mere "olive and palm" soap. It is found in Palmolive alone.

Note the unnatural "too green" color of Palmolive imitators. What does that suggest? Men don't paint nature to improve it.

Olive and palm oils——nothing else——give Palmolive its delicate, natural color. Olive and palm oils——no other fats whatsoever——are used in Palmolive.

No "super-fatting," no "super-anything"—the only secret to Palmolive is its blending. And that is judged one of the world's priceless beauty secrets.

Let no one convince you—for your own sake—that any ordinary type of "olive and palm" soap can bring you Palmolive results.

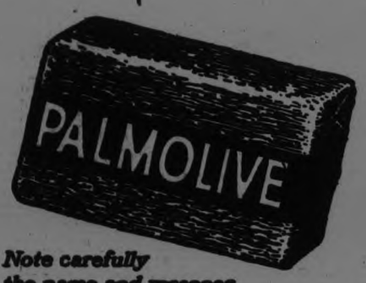
Wash, launder, cleanse with any soap you wish. But when beauty is at stake—take care. Use Palmolive, nature's formula to "Keep That Schoolgirl Complexion."

IN PARIS

French women are discarding French soaps for Palmolive

Palmolive is today one of the two greatest selling toilet soaps in France. Parisian beauties are happy to pay almost twice as much for a cake of Palmolive as Canadian women pay. And, in many cases, three times as much as for their own French soaps. Remember this when tempted by costly French soaps, or by "French" claims for soaps.

(MADE IN CANADA)



Note carefully the name and wrapper. Palmolive is never sold unwrapped.

Store Closes 12 Noon Thursday

The GRESSMAN Company Limited
"The Store of Smiling Service"

"How is it, Mr. Bird-man, that you promise to tell us a nice bird story and then wind up by telling us about some wild animal or something?"

That question was put to me the other day, by a man who is so anxious to study birds that he feels put off whe I switch the subject. But listen now, to be reasonable, when a fellow sits down in the woods, or on the lake shore, almost anything is likely to happen.

I start out to see birds and wind up by seeing a bat asleep in the woodpile, or something else just as different from my first purpose.

One day I went out fishing for trout. We had caught a few by dinnertime and I decided to clean them, put them on the ice and go out in the afternoon and catch 8ore, as we had hardly enough.

I cleaned the fish, put themon the ice, had dinner and was getting into the boat again to do some more fishing, when I saw my newly found but as yet unfriendly mink, hiding under a rock.

He had been taking away the parts of the fish left on the shore. I saw his feet marks and all the fish tremains were gone.

A mink loves fish.

I called to my wife to bring out a They had no fins or heads, but I hoped the mink would know what they were.

I displayed a nice trout to the mink, who observed it from under the rock, much as a prospective buyer would examine some goods I wanted to sell. I called for my camera, got it ready and marked the place where I was to stand and take the picture when Mr. Mink came out for the fish. I talked to him and was careful to explain that I would wait with the camera and leave the fish for him. I placed the fish, but when I turned to wait for him to come ut, I saw that he had taken my word for it and already had taken the fish while my back was turned. So I gave him all the fish, one at a time, and we ate eat for supper.

So, when I go fishing, maybe I don't go at all. If I look for birds and find bears, I just have to watch them.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

HEALTH HINTS TO GAIN A REFRESHED BODY.

This is the vacation season. Mountains and seaside, country and Summer resorts are crowded with the multitudes who are away for a rest.

After all, it isn't the rest, is it? It is the change which does us good. Change of work is play and rest.

Whether your job is pleasant or otherwise, it is a good thing to get away from it at least once a year. A complete change is good for everybody.

It is a pity, though, that so many depend on this one vacation a year, which is taken as religiously as going to church. It is much better to have a half day or a day every week than a month every year. It is better, in short, to keep in physical trim than to get into physical trim.

I know a famous dentist who works from 6:30 a.m. to 7 p.m. every day for eight months and then goes on a wonderful vacation for four months. He prefers to do that way, but I don't believe in it. A more temperate use of his time over a longer period of the year and then an "intensive" vacation of short duration would be better, in my judgment.

Don't overeat while you are away. Be careful to get good food, particularly fresh food and pure milk. Contaminated fruit and milk will do you serious harm. Make certain the food is clean and served by healthy food handlers.

Be certain of what you drink. Be sure the water comes from a source known to be free from contamination.

Get enough sleep, dodge the mosquitoes and flies, have your bedroom well ventilated even in bad weather. Make sure the fire escape is in working order.

Walk more than you ride, run some, climb the hills, keep on the ground, dodge the sidewalks, don't be afraid of the sun if you have a good heart, bathe a lot, change your clothes often, laugh more than is your habit, don't worry about politics or the market, have faith in yourself and trust a kind Providence.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

MRS. R. I. Q.—How can I clear up liver spots?

2.—What would cause one's skin to become red and irritated and later to scale off?

A.—Clear up the intestinal tract. For further particulars kindly send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

2.—This may be a form of eczema, but without an examination it would be impossible to advise the treatment.

• • •

MRS. W. R. L. Q.—Lately I have noticed that my baby's eyes wre crossed. What would you advise?

A.—I would suggest that you have the baby's eyes examined, as this trouble may indicate the necessity of an operation.

• • •

HELEN. Q.—What is a cure for dandruff?

2.—What will remove freckles?

A.—Shampoo the hair frequenty use a good tonic. For further particulars kindly send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

2—Try using equal parts of peroxide and lemon juice and then apply a good cold cream immediately afterwards.

• • •

C. S. Q.—What is polypus?

A.—Poypus i usualy the result of chronic inflammation of the nasal sinuses. It is not enough to simply remove the growth. The underlying catarrhal trouble must be treated and corrected.

• • •

K. K. Q.—What causes excessive perspiration?

A.—This is due to nerve stimulation. You should have treatment for the nervousness.

• • •

DISCOURAGED. Q.—What can be done for an oily skin and enlarged pores?

A.—Hot and cold compresses applied alternately for five or ten minutes night and morning should relieve this condition. Excessive use of either powder or cold cream would have a tendency to coarsen the skin and enlarge the pores.

• • •

H. R. Q.—What causes a tongue-tied condition?

A.—Tongue-tie is due to the pressure on the membrane under the tongue, preventing its free action. To relieve this condition a simple operation is performed to clip the membrane.

My European Excursions

By Edwin Robert Petre

AT SKAGEN OF THE DANES.

Skagen is Denmark's largest fishing town and its four thousand inhabitants have a fleet of about two hundred vessels. Nature has however been generous to Skagen and tourists flock here in large numbers every summer. I have not found anywhere else in Denmark such large and fantastically shaped dunes as those that here run row on row over the narrow tongue of land where the sea is seen on both sides. At the extreme point the Skagerak and Kattergat meet in a maelstrom of foam and spray as at the bow of a ship. Out on these wild dunes is the burial mound of Holger Drachmann, one of Denmark's popular poets, who sang of the sea and was a friend to the fishers. Skagen owes much of its reputation to the colony of artists he helped establish here.

THE FESTIVAL BOARD OF AN EMPEROR.

While in Vienna two weeks ago, I took occasion to visit again the Castle of Schonbrunn, which I had not seen since before the war, when it could only be seen in the absence of the Imperial family. The old Chateau of the Beautiful Fountain has undergone restoration and its pristine magnificence is now open to the eyes of all visitors. Even the private apartments as used by the late Emperor can be seen. Most interesting of all, the table is laid for a gala dinner in the Great Gallery, chairs are placed and viewing it, I had the queerest sensation of semi-embarrassment as if I were the first guest to arrive at dinner, and yet again, there was a ghostly feeling of wondering why the royal hosts did not arrive.

Three-Minute Journeys

By Temple Manning

WHERE GIRLS ARE MARRIED AT SIXTEEN.

In old India it was the religious duty of every boy to be married by the time he was twelve years old. Usually the marriage took place when the boy was between nine and twelve years of That has been changed within recent years, and the marriage age of a boy is more likely to be about sixteen or seventeen years.

Still, there are two and a half million wives in India under ten years of age. The Government of India, urged on by reformers, has just enacted a law fixing the marriageable age of girls at fourteen. They are beginning to realize that the welfare of the country, as well as the welfare of the individual girls, is suffering from these child marriages.

An Elaborate Dress Is Worn.

An Indian wedding is a very pretty sight. The little groom is bedecked with flowers. Hardly aware of the seriousness of the occasion, he knows only that he is at the center of all the festivities and he feels gay and excited. His little wife, too, is decked in her finest clothes and wears a long veil that hides her face.

On the second evening after the wedding, the bride, completely veiled, is taken to her husband's home. She rides a horse, which has been gaily caparisoned for the event and bears a canopied throne on his back. Here the little bride sits, while a throng of singers, musicians, torch-bearers, friends and relatives follow her to her destination.

These elaborate weddings and the dowries which go with them have ruined innumerable families of India. The bride's father frequently mortgaged his home in the effort to provide a sufficiently elaborate ceremony. And it is no uncommon thing for him to give up all his possessions to pay the cost of the wedding.

Honeymoons, as we know them, are comparatively rare in India. There are occasional wedding trips, but a number of relatives usually accompany the bridal couple on their travels. The mother of the bride and several of her younger sisters and brothers are usually in the party.

Flower-decked bridegrooms, little veiled brides, prolonged festivities—these are the components of a wedding in India. And if they differ from ours, they are surely as picturesque and colorful as any we know.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

BETTY CHANGES HER MIND AFTER A TRIP WITH GO-COMEBACK.

When Gocomeback, the wee travel elfin, found Betty sitting on her front porch crying, he stopped still and then began to laugh merrily.

"Gracious me, what in the world is the cause of this storm on so lovely a day?" he asked Betty.

"Oh, Gocomeback!" Betty wiped her tears and hung her head. "It's always the same thing every Saturday, 'clean, clean, clean'," and Betty stamped her foot crossly. "I just wish we didn't have one stick of ——."

"Wait a second, wait a second!" cried Gocomeback. "Don't forget I'm here and a wish voiced in my presence might come true. Oh, dear!" he cried as both he and Betty were taken off their feet and sailed through the air. "Take my hand and hold it tightly. I guess you are going to get your wish."

Before Betty could answer they were dropped to the ground in a queer, queer place.

"Where in the world are we, Gocomeback?" Betty whispered as they noticed several funny people, their skins almost as black as Betty's mother's cook at home. "Who are these people?"

"Well, well, if it isn't Gocomeback and his friend," cried a little brown girlie in a pretty dress of deerskin. "Welcome to the Indian Camp of South America. You are just in time. Come in and meet Mother," and she took hold of Betty's and Gocomeback's hand and led them into the nearest tent. Here an Indian Squaw, with a wee little brown baby strapped to her back, sat on a pile of brush in the tent.

She bowed politely to Betty and Gocomeback and invited them to stay for dinner.

Betty glanced around the funny little home. The only piece of furniture in there was two bundles of sticks with blankets spread over them.

"We Don't Use Chairs."

"You see, we don't use chairs and tables," laughed the little brown girl when she saw the queer expression on Betty's face. "I knew you were looking for a chair." She brushed the sand with her moccasined feet. "There is a nice place to sit, or come out with me to fix the fire."

The place was stuffy and hot too Betty as she gladly followed Gocomeback and the little brown girl out of doors into the shade of a tree.

Here the little brown girl piled up some sticks in a place hollowed out in the sand, and by rubbing two stones to get her she soon had a fire.

"We don't have stoves, like you folks have," she laughed. "It's so much less trouble without furniture. We don't have so much work to do. That's why you came here to live. You don't like to dust and sweep? Well, you may live with me and——"

"Ca-chew, ca-chew, ca-chew," Betty sneezed, and like a puff of magic the little Indian camp vanished and Betty and Gocomeback stood in Betty's own front yard.

"Gracious me," Betty laughed, when she could get her breath. "I may have to work more than she does, but I'm sure glad I sneezed myself back to good old North America. I'll take a real house and real furniture every time, even if I do have to help clean on Saturdays." And, thanking Gocomeback, for his trip, Betty gathered up the broom and went into her work singing like a lark.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

THURSDAY, JULY 23.

A day of rather mixed influences is the augury based on the prevailing sidereal operations. Speculation and extravagances are enjoined against by an unfriendly Jupiter position, and the affliction of Mercury carries certain hazards through writings, publishings or contracts. Those in the employment of others are favored, and heart and home affairs are under excellent auspices for happiness and success.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a flourishing and pleasant year in personal relations, but business may be jeopardized by speculation extravagant expenditure and carelessness in the handling of papers or writings. A child born on this day should be accomplished, artistic, well-conducted and popular, but free and extravagant with money. It will have success in its undertakings and a pleasant life.

A LINE-O-TYPE.

Last night's rain revealed the fact that there are several ways of travelling the streets of the city in a rain storm with the minimum of discomfort. Nobody has written a book about it yet, but the need of such a work is attested by the number of people forced into store doorways last night about nine o'clock. And they weren't all girls, either. Many a young fellow sporting his summer finery resented the pattering drops that threatened damage.

Of course there is the umbrella. But gentle zephyrs have a way of making with an unbrella uncomfortable, and it is annoying to have other fencers poke about with their utensils, spoiling one's perfect form and implement, not to say temper.

Then there is the street car, but it is not always going where you want to go. And last night a shick was seen with a newspaper wrapped around his straw hat, which is one way of protecting a new purchase and getting full value for three cents. The Simon Legree method is that used by many who leap from awning to awning down the length of George street, coldly calculating. The rah-rah type of rain dodger is usually young, and exhibits his lack of sophistication by arraying himself in a brilliant yellow slicker, reminding one of molasses candy pulled out thin just before it is cut. It is necessary to wear an old slouch hat pulled down all around, and rubbers—ugly, big ones. This person clumps stolidly along, eyes to the ground, face wet with raindrops, delighting in the childish sensation of wading dry foot in muddy puddles.

But the grandest and most admired method of all is the Lord Chesterfiedlian. One saunters out of some building, glances reflectively upward, and is astonished to find it is raining. Then, neatly flicking a cigarette ash, one steps into the waiting car, sinks easily among the cushions, and looks with languid pity at the damp and hurrying throngs.

THIRTY.

If men would live as religion requires, the world would be a most lovely and desirable place in comparison of what now it is—Tillotson.

ONLY ONE WAY TO SAVE SCOTT

Surrender and Confession of Robert Scott Will Save Brother.

FRENZIED EFFORTS.

CHICAGO, July 22.—(Canadian Press).— Only the surrender and confession of Robert Scott can save his brother, Russell, one time wealthy Canadian promoter, from the noose dangling ready for his execution on Friday morning.

Unless, Robert returns Governor Small has indicated that there will be no further reprieve to snatch Russell from the gallows as he was saved last Friday. Russell bases his only hope on his brother.

The return of the brother also is the objective of frenzied efforts of Scott's relatives and friends who have left no stone unturned to save him.

Robert's whereabouts is unknown. He was indicted with Russell for the murder of Joseph Maurer, a drug clerk in a hold-up but never apprehended. The message, signed with his name, which reached Governor Small, last Thursday and caused a week's delay in the execution, was thought to be a hoax.

Radio appeals to Robert will be made by Scott's wife, Catherine, and by his aged father. They will augment the wire pleas sent by the family to President Coolidge, urging that the executive ask the Governor for leniency.

MOTOR FROM CHICAGO.

Visitor in the City Recalls Camping Days Spent at Gull Lake.

H. P. Henningsen, who is connected with the American Railway Express in Chicago, arrived in the city yesterday after a two day trip. Mr. Henningsen says that every year finds him returning to the place which gave him so many happy vacations.

He found that the roads were in excellent condition and that the detours maligned by many were in good condition. The main points of interest touched by the party en route were Ypsilanti, Detroit, Sarnia, London, Hamilton and Toronto stopping for supper last night at the head of Rice Lake.

Mr. Henningsen stoutly maintains that the trip through the country north of Peterborough is the best he knows and recalled a camping expedition of some twenty years ago north of Buckhorn and across Gull Lake. On the return from that place they made the 18 mile run down the river in twelve hours.

Mr. Henningsen will be in the city for the following week.

Thieves Return While Victims Report Theft

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 22. — (Special by United Press).— Burglars, last night, paid a second visit to the apartment of Harry Greenblatt, at Number 11, South Carolina ave. while he and his wife were at police head-quarters reporting the first visit of the thieves. Upon his return, he found that the thieves had carried away the valuables they missed in their first visit to the apartment.

YOUNG POLITICIAN WENT TO AUSTRALIA

Lord Apsley Wished to Investigate Tales of Emigrants.

LONDON, July 22.—United Press —He will become a cabinet minister," is what Conservative politicians are saying of Young Lord Apsley, heir of the Earl of Bathurst, who has just finished an "emigration" to Australia, travelling incognito as a steerage passenger and working as a farm hand at $5 a week. Lord Apsley is an M. P. and though only 30 years old he is marked already for promotion. The trip to Australia was really an official investigation with the Young Lord as a committee of one to learn whether all the hard- luck stories about Australian Immigrants were true. The idea grew out of some questions asked in the House of Commons by Commander Kenworthy. He alleged that some of his constituents had gone to Australia that they had not found work and that they had been in hospitals even brutally treated. Sir William Joynson-Hicks was at the Department of Overseas Trade with Lord Apsley as his preliminary private secretary, "You know," he remarked to his secretary, "either you or I ought to go out to Australia and see for ourselves how things are." That decided Lord Apsley. "I carefully camouflaged my departure," he now relates," because I wanted to take my chances with the other fellows and see how the ordinary, inexperienced tommy got on when he landed."

BODY IN RIVER.

Head and Lower Part of Legs Had Been Cut Off.

QUEBEC, July 22.— (Canadian Press).— The body of a man from which the head had been severed and the legs cut off at the knees was found floating in the St. Lawrence River at St. Jean Des Chaillons, yesterday.

HORSE KILLED IN COLLISION

Forced on Top of Car and Head Went Through Windshield.

ON PARK STREET.

R. Shepherd, Ford avenue, lost his horse last night through a collision with an automobile driven by Kenneth Hogg at 9 o'clock at the intersection of Park and Rubidge streets. Shepherd was driving a horse and buggy going south on Rubidge and was turning into Park a t the intersection of the two streets where his vision was somewhat obscured by the heavy rain. He is said to have gone too far over on his wrong side before making the turn and collided with the automobile. The horse was forced on top of the engine, its head going right through the windshield. It was killed instantly.

STILL CANADIAN.

Lady Peel Has Only One Story Told of Her— It's Good.

Writing in an English weekly, a dramatic critic discussed the amazing personality of Beatrice Lillie, star of Charlot's Revue and a Canadian. This portion of his article shows that Beatrice Lillie still is, and always will be, one of Canada's finest publicity agents. It is as follows:

Although she is Lady Peel in private life, she is still appearing as Beatrice Lillie to us, and her humor is more delicious than ever it was.

I have been trying to dig out stories about her, but can only find one. The incident occurred at a place called Cobalt, in Canada — where the blue comes from? — when the house at which she was staying caught fire.

"We all rushed about, saving what we could," she relates. "Clothes, furniture, jewels and money. And I came out having rescued—a toothbrush!"

But she also rescued herself, and that, after all, was the main thing.

HOSE FOR FIRE CHIEF.

BOSTON, July 21.—The fire chief of a small Massachusetts town wrote a company dealing in fire apparatus and asked for a price list on hose. The company rushed its star salesman down in hopes of getting a big order. He got an order for 20 feet of garden hose, which was all the chief wanted.

SUPREME PESSIMIST.

Dr. Arthur Shadwell Laments After War Conditions in England.

England is not coming through her present crisis as she did through the one that followed the Napoleonic wars, and the reason, bluntly put by Dr. Arthur Shadwell, is that today she lacks the energy, that she thinks too much about play and spends her money too freely on non-essentials.

'A century ago we were pioneers,' the doctor bitterly complains, 'and we have some pioneers with us still. But they are all old or elderly men and passing away in the course of nature. There is really something wrong with the present generation. It neither works well nor plays well. It seems altogether lacking in energy and serious purpose."

Dr. Shadwell is perhaps a little too eager to label Britain as the only country facing this problem. If he is true in his diagnosis, a matter on which there is a wide lack of unanimity, it seems quite logical to suppose that most other nations are in exactly the same boat.

SOCIAL IN BASEMENT.

Rain Drove Gleaners From Lawn to Jolly Indoors Affair.

The lawn social arranged for last evening by the Gleaners' Bible Class of Park street Baptist church was transferred, on account of the rain, to the basement of the church, and proved to be a very jolly affair, with a good attendance and an enjoyable impromptu programme, in which Miss Dorothy Metcalfe gave several readings and Walter Townsend played the piano. Mrs. B. Pearson, president of the class, had charge of the sale of ice cream and candy, Mrs. A. Grey of the "cabbage patch," where small articles constituted the "cabbages," and Miss Lily Booth of the sale of home-made cooking. Mrs. N. McLeod is teacher of the Gleaners' Class.

If you lose or find anything put a small ad. in the Examiner. They bring results.

SIXTY-THREE YEAR OLD RACER.

"Pa" Cowley, aged sixty-three, was the oldest competitor in the Tourist Trophy motorcycle race with side cars on the Isle of Man. Here is the spry old gentleman as he appeared when competing in this blue ribbon motorcycle sporting event of the world.

LONDON SPECULATES ON PRINCES PLANS CONCERNING FUTURE

Belief That After South American Tour He Will Settle at Home.

GREATEST SALESMAN

All Britons Feel That He Has Created Good-will Among Nations.

LONDON, July 22.—(Associated Press). — What the future travel programs of the Prince of Wales will be after his forthcoming visit to South America is a popular topic for speculation. When he bids farewell to the American continent south of the equator he will have completed his rounds of all the continents of the earth, his trips having taken him to all the great dominions and larger colonies of the British Empire as well as to several countries outside the kingdom which he will eventually rule.

Carrying out the extensive program of trips that was planned for him after the World War, the Prince has spent part of each year since that time away from London. With no more worlds to conquer he will, in the opinion of those who interest themselves in speculating on his future, settle down to seriously prepare himself for the business of being king.

The Prince of Wales has been characterized as the greatest salesman that ever represented the British Empire and his wares, international relations. As such he has been a success in all that the term applies. While South Americans may have an intimate knowledge of the future king, as have the peoples of most countries of the earth, his coming visit will give them an opportunity to get acquainted with the personality that has caused the people of other countries to receive him enthusiastically. Britishers, both royalty and commoners, feel that the Prince has accomplished a great work in creating good-will and cordial relations between the Empire and the countries he has visited and that his South American visit will be accompanied by the same results.

Aside from the official receptions and social events arranged in his honor there will be a number of things of special interest to the Prince while he is in South America. With somewhat of a reputation as a practical farmer, he is sure to give more than passing notice to the great ranches, the types of their pedigreed stock and the methods of raising them.

During his stay in Argentina the Prince will have an opportunity to indulge in one of his favorite pastimes, polo. Teams from that country have made notable records in the United States and Europe, including the last Olympic Games, and with an abundance of fine polo ponies the Prince undoubtedly will engage in the sport as often as his program will permit.

The homecoming of the Prince will excite Britishers to a greater extent than his return from any previous trip. After his return he will have more time to spend among his own people and consequently there are likely to be more rumors and speculation concerning him than during his former stays in the British capital between trips. These will not influence him, however, as he has shown a strong will and independence of action regarding himself since childhood.

MAKES 22,000 CONVERTS.

Africa's Black Elijah Directed Building of 150 Churches.

A "Black John the Baptist," as he is called, has arisen in Africa, and the Christian world is now increased by 22,000 converts as a result of his work. Independent of all organized missions he has been thundering in West Africa for ten years. Under his direction 150 churches have been erected, some of them pretentious structures that cost $10,000 each.

In every church is a Bible though none of the congregation is able to read it, and the simple blacks have been singing hymns in incomprehensible pidgin English while they waited for the coming of a white pastor.

The black prophet is William Wade-Harris, a former day laborer on this continent, and he was discovered by Rev. W. Platt, a Wesleyan missionary.

Mr. Platt found the converts steadfast though unaided and untaught. Speaking of Harris, he says: "His work was wonderfully disinterested and he made not a penny out of it. He influenced and baptized tens of thousands but asked only his food and a resting place for the night. Hardships, ridicule, imprisonment failed to turn him from his purpose, and he exhorted his way tirelessly through the length of that region. Single handed he made a better era in West Africa."

FUEL FROM PALMS.

Nipa Palm Supplies Good Substitute For Gasoline.

LONDON, July 22 — (United Press)—The palm tree which has yielded food, drink and soap for mankind may next supply fuel for motor cars.

Recent experiments to find a substitute for gasoline in the tropics have shown that the sap of the Nipa Palm, plentiful in the Phillipines and North Borneo, is the source of an abundant and cheap supply of power alcohol.

LLOYD GEORGE AT LUNATIC ASYLUM

Said He Was Chancellor of the Exchequer—"We Have Six Inside."

One evening in the spring of 1915, Lloyd George who was then chancellor of the exchequer, was returning to his home by taxi when night fell and he gave instructions to the drived to light up. As the process took some time, he got out of the car and went round to the back to see what was the matter with the rear lamp. Just a that moment the driver resumed his seat, and, concluding that his fare was still inside, started off at full speed with the intention of making up for lost time. In vain the chancellor followed breathlessly shouting at the top of his voice. It was a windy night, and, unforunately, the wind was in the wrong direction for his purpose The unheeding chauffeur and the car disappeared in the distance and home was five miles distant.

Plodding along Lloyd George was cheered by the sight of a building fairly well lit up in front. He recognized it as the county lunatic asylum. In resopnse to his summons at the front door, the hall porter made his appearance, but he shook his head when he heard that the visitor wanted assistance to complete his journey home and tried to close the door.

"But," said the wayfarer, "I'm the chancellor of the exchequer."

"Yes, yes," said the porter gruffly. "We've got six of 'em inside! You go out to the gate, turn to the left, and you'll get home before morning."

There being no visible appeal from his judgment, the chancellor resumed his journey, and had not gone far when he saw his taxi returning. The driver, reaching his destination and opening the door, found that he had lost his passenger, and in a state of amazed trepidaton went back in search of him.

CHIMNEY A FOX LAIR.

PETERSFIELD, Eng., June 21. —Chased by hounds, a fox ran into a greenhouse here and vanished up a chimney. Smoke failed to force it out, and, when the chimney was torn down, four live rabbits were found in it with the fox.

BUTTERFLIES

By Mary Lawson

Wherever you find flowers, there the butterflies flock. And is it any wonder that they should mistake the lovely gold of Milady's hair for the golden pollen that they find in the hearts of the flowers? The fragrance of her beauty draws them as a magnet, and, unafraid, they hover around her. Airy, fairy, beautiful things. True, they are not as deliciously scented as she, but her brilliant beauty attracts them, and who could wonder if the butterflies mistake her for a new species of their own kind? She loves the caressing touch of the beautiful things on her fingers and laugh as they flit 'round her. The rea butterfly and the human butterfly! Each a marvel of beauty, and a joy to all who behold them!

SECRETS OF CHARM

By Lucrezia Bori

KEEPING THE HAIR FRESH AND FRAGRANT.

Do you find that the season affects your hair? Do you notice that it is prettier and more manageable during one season than another?

This is the case with most of us. Our hair is either at its best in cold, crisp weather, or in warm, damp weather, and in the time when it is not at its best we have to work with it to make it appear as attractive as usual.

Curly hair, of course, stands dampness and heat and such things better than straight hair, for these things only make curly hair all the more. On the other hand, the woman who has straight hair must work with it unceasingly in very warm weather to keep any curl in it at all.

Now, I am going to give you here a formula which will help you to care for your hair and keep it presentable during the Summer months. I advise its use on hair of any type, for it serves to keep the hair fine and lustrous and preserves a state of moisture which aids the growth of hair and helps to destroy any odor of perspiration that the warm weather brings.

First, I will explain what Portugal extract is, for this is the preparation which is so beneficial to your hair. It is made by adding essential oil of oranges, in any proportion desired, to alcohol of thirty-six per cent., and keeping the mixture covered closely, in a warm place for a few weeks.

Now, when you are combing your hair, have at hand a saucer of water into which you have put a few drops of this Portugal extract. Later, just before you arrange your hair, brush it lightly with a brush moistened with the pure, unadulterated Portugal extract.

If you have bobbed hair, this treatment should help you to keep the hairs in place. If you comb your short bob in the way you wish it to hang, putting the part and the waves in their proper places, the dampness will help to keep your hair placed as you have arranged it. Of course, the same holds true of long hair.

Another very good beauty rule to observe in Summer is that of light weight hats. If you are out beneath the sun much, you should wear as lightweight hats as possible. Felt hatt may be modish for certain occasions, but to my way of thinking they should be saved for cooler weather. Bangkok is at the height of fashion just now, and nothing could be found that is more youthful and becoming and at the same time as light on the head as a zephyr.

Even if we wear light straw hats, we sometimes find that after a walk in the sun our foreheads are not and the roots of our hair feel bathed in perspiration. Application of Portugal ext will make us feel freer and cleaner.

IN THE KITCHEN

By Jeanette Norton

Berry season is a busy one for the housewife. Fruit jars, jelly glasses and jam pots should be carefully looked over, cleansed, fresh rubbers ready at hand, and no nicked or imperfect receptacles should be used.

Blueberries For Pie.

Pick over carefully and wash clean four quarts of large, perfect blueberries that are seedless. Place them in a preserve kettle with three pints of sugar, and set the kettle in the oven for five minutes or so to melt together and start the juice flowing. Then lift to a gas hole covered with an asbestos mat, and cook gently and slowly, skimming well until the mass is rich and the berries done. Then put into hot jars, fill to running over and seal. Turn the jars upside down to cool, then tighten the covers, wash the jars, add the labels and store in a cool, dry place.

Quick Raspberry Jelly.

Select ripe, juicy berries, pick over and wash carefully, then place them in a jelly bag that has been wrung out of warm water. Squeeze the berries cold. Measure the juice, and to each pint add a half pint of sugar. Melt slowly in the preserving kettle. As the jelly comes to boiling, skim well. Try on a cold plate, and when the jelly is of a thick consistency that is inclined to be jelly like, lift from the fire and turn into dry, hot glasses. Leave uncovered to watch it for a few hours and if it is fairly firm cover down and store in a dry, cool place.

Rich Cherry Preserves.

Wash, stem and stone as many large, ripe, black cherries as are to be done. Allow a pint of sugar to each quart of cherries. Let stand a few minutes in the preserving kettle to draw the juice by constant stirring, then set on the stove. Cook slowly and skim, then cook down until rich and thick. Can in pint or half pint jars and seal.

Gooseberry Jam.

Select ripe gooseberries, top and tail them after washing, and place them in a preserve kettle with three-quarters of a pint of sugar to each pint of the fruit. Add a half cupful of cold water and let melt slowly. Bring to boiling point, skim well. Cook until the mass is thick and a little of the juice tried on a cold plate shows a tendency to jell. Stir frequently as the mass gets thick. Fill dry, hot, jam pots with the mass and let stand to cool. When cold, cover down and label.

No action is commendable which is not voluntary. —Hughes.

OUTDOOR CLUB OUT.

Young Women's Christian Association Had Enjoyable Hike Last Night.

The Outdoor Club of the Young Women's Christian Association had a very enjoyable hike last night, terminating in an outdoor supper cooked and served on the river bank, half way between Nassau and Auburn. About ten of the members attended and had a jolly time, singing community songs on their return trip to the city.

TODAY'S FASHION

-By Vera Winston-

This Summer Ensemble Is of Green Crepe Roma and Green Figured Silk.

Crepe roma is all the rage just now for light weight Summer wraps, which are really designed as a covering for the frock and not for any amount of warmth. They are unlined, and many of them reveal the lines and color of the gown worn beneath.

The crepe roma ensemble shown above is typical of the smart crepe outfit. This is designed especially for warm weather and its green tint is the coolest imaginable.

The figured silk which makes the upper part of the frock and lines the coat is in two tones of green. The silk is thin crepe, and the green pattern is cool in effect.

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1925

The New Colors

NEW YORK, July 22 (United Press). —Sports skirts this season are usually attached to bodices. Skirts are plain in the near and at the sides with inverted pleats or clusters of smaller skitched pleats in front extending to a point above the knees whence they flare to give hem-fullness. White flannel or silk are favored materials. If jumper or sweater is of vivid color the skirt may be bordered with a narrow band of the color.

• • •

Among the new color combinations used on frocks of plain material are dull coral combined with yellow, pale green combined with yellow, purple with white, pastel rose with madonna-blue. A crepe de chene imported frock is made in dull orange shade with a narrow band of yellow georgette extending from front neckline to a point above the knees where a double inverted pleat forms a flare. The yellow georgette band is outlined in silver stitchery and it also forms a neck finish and extends about the armholes, where full chiffon sleeves of yellow terminate in narrow orange wristbands. Most of the contrasting-toned frocks, if of foreign conception, use either silver or gold braid or stitchery to join the contrasting shades.

• • •

The round collapsible hatbox is appropriate for the Summer tourist. It is very light in weight and made of patent leather, with a soft leather handle at one side which makes it easy to carry. The two rounded sides are of pliable leather so that almost any hat may be adjusted into the bag. Such a hatbox is far preferable to the heavier types and costs but about $3.00.

• • •

Instead of the printed scarf many women are wearing plain scarfs of chiffon or tulle in brilliant color for street wear with the Summer silk frock.

GOOD MANNERS

That very little children should have visiting cards is not so silly as might at first thought be supposed. To acquire perfect manners, training can hardly begin early enough.

HOME TOWN RECIPE.

Someone asked for a recipe for bean salad. We are indebted to Mrs. A. L. Kent, 493 King Street, for the following:

Peel and slice ten small onions very fine. Pour cold water over them and press hard to remove the strong taste. Drain well.

Have ready in a salad bowl a pint and a half of cold boiled or baked beans (preferably baked). Mix with them the minced onions, 1½ teaspoons of salt, 1 teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons salad oil, 1 teaspoon white sugar, 1 scant cup vinegar.

Toss and mix lightly and thoroughly with a fork. Garnish with slices of hard boiled eggs, olives and lettuce leaves.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my teens and the boy friend whom I like is being taken from me by my worst enemy, out of spite. Though he still continues to say he loves me he seems infatuated with my enemy. Shall I ignore both of them?

LONESOME AND BLUE.

LONESOME AND BLUE: A girl in her 'teens shouldn't be "lonesome and blue." What is the matter with all the rest of your friends? Are they dead? Another admirer would be a wholesome tonic, I think, for the three of you. Can't you scare one up somehow? It would take your mind off the triangular situation, give your boy friend something to think about, and put a crimp in your "worst enemy's style. By the way, how do you know she is your "worst enemy"? Perhaps she is helping to rid you of someone you would be much better without. At any rate, don't let the man in the case feel too superior over the fact that two young ladies are competing for him. There are many other nice young men in Peterboro.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my 'teens, not homely, yet the local sheiks stand afar off from me. Do you think because I have long hair, will not smoke or drink for the amusement of the young men of today that I am destined always to walk alone, or do you think that there are still some young men whose ideals are above the average of today? Please tell me.

FLOWERS.

FLOWERS: I think your trouble, Flowers, is an enlarged ego. If I am right, you will be very angry when you read this. Ingrowing egotism is worse than an ingrowing toenail and much harder to get rid of. In the first place, why do you still talk about long hair when bobbed hair is the fashion? I do not think you are keeping your hair because it is so beautiful, but simply because YOU refuse to be one of the common herd. Remember the story of John and his mother? When she saw the regiment march past, she said every man jack of them was out of step except her son John. But she and John were the only ones who thought so.

Yes, there are plenty of young men whose ideals are above the average. There may be one working at your elbow in the office, and you've been snubbing him because he has a freckled nose. The "parlor sheiks" (are there many of them in Peterboro?) who want you to smoke and drink with them aren't the marrying kind, anyway, so why worry about them? However, a man will never tell you about his ideals unless you get the right approach, which is just as important in the game of life as on the golfing green.

For goodness' sake, get you hair bobbed, forget the person you see most often in the mirror, and cultivate a smile. As the fellow said: "Life's a picnic. What if you do eat an ant and spill jam on your best clothes and sit on a bumble bee. Smile anyway." Think it over and come back in a month and tell me how you feel then.

"The Heel." HAL COCHRAN'S DAILY POEM

We sit us down at supper time and everything looks right.
We feel a real enjoyment 'cause we've got an appetite.
When bread's put on the table, as a portion of the meal, why is it many people dodge the taking of the "heel?"
We play a game of cards or two; then have a midnight lunch. We hie out to the kitchen for a bit of food to munch. There's bread that's cut in slices and it seems we always find that even though the full loaf's used, the "heel" is left behind.
The little folks come tearin' in the house, jes' tired from play. They yell for bread and butter in the middle of the day. Perhaps they're given just a bit, so's not to spoil a meal. They're tickled with a piece of bread, except when it's the "heel."
Why is it that we all avoid the taking of the crust? It seems the poor and lonely "heel" is treated far from just. Perhaps it's 'cause we're lazy, if the quizz were answered true. We'll all admit it may be good—but's too blamed hard to chew.

YOUR GARDEN

MAKING SOFT-WOODED CUTTINGS.

During the summer the gardener who is interested in increasing his planting material can do so by means of soft-wood cuttings. Shrubs, and even roses (the latter are the most difficult and may require special or greenhouse conditions) may be propagated by slips.

A soft-wooded cutting should be short, three inches is long enough. It should have a few leaves at the top and the others should be removed, as cuttings have no roots and no method of taking up plant food, so that the food stored-up in the stem and leaves must produce the roots and consequently must be protected from excessive evaporation. If too much foliage is left on, this is sure to happen and it is a good practice to even trim off the leaves smaller if they be large.

The cuttings when made should be placed in a box or flat of sand or directly in the soil if one is fortunate enough to have sandy soil. Insert the cuttings rather deeply and be sure to firm them very solidly. If you have a large glass jar or bell-jar handy, use it to cover any plants which you will find a little more difficult to root than others, such as the roses.

All cuttings, whether covered with glass or not, should have a shading. A good place for cuttings would be under the grape or other arbor where there is always ample shade. Otherwise slatted or cotton shades must be made. They should be kept in a convenient spot where they will not be forgotten, as they must be watered thoroughly and carefully.

It is unwise to attempt to grow cuttings of any kind in permanent quarters.

Let's Talk It Over

POVERTY IS NOT THE BIGGEST BOGY.

"They say we profit by the mistakse of others," says "Perplexed." But Not In Marriage.

Perplexed gives us several instances of fool-hardy young folks, marrying on love and $20 to $30 a week. He expects the same end for all of them. Then he defines the "perfect marriage" as that of the man with the "comfortable salary, a home and a loving wife." In other words he thinks one's chances of happiness hinge on one's pocketbook.

Mary and John on $18.50 a week may live a cat-and-dog life until divorce separates them. But Ruth and Jim under similar circumstances, may prosper and become the town's Leading Citizens. You can make a success of marriage under any circumstances if you are big enough and brave enough to carry on through sickness and sorrow, poverty and misfortune. Troubles draw one couple closer and sends another couple at each other's throats. You can't judge by the experience of others unless you know the gauge of their souls and the gauge of your own.

"A comfortable salary, a home and a loving wife" are not enough to insure a "perfect marriage." Some of our most perfect divorces have been staged in the most luxurious home settings. Some of our perfect "domestic murders" have occurred in these "ideal" conditions.

There are bigger bogies than poverty in marriage, my friend; fates worse than a piano-box apartment and a "couple of fried chops" for dinner. The chap who "plays safe" in marriage is no different from the chap who "plays safe" elsewhere in life. He's just one of the Also Rans.

Here's "Perplexed's" letter. Read it and tell him what You think:

My idea of marriage is a man with a comfortable salary, a home and a home-loving wife. That is the perfect marriage, but there are few of them. Marriage has been terribly abused by the unsophisticated youth, and that is the reason he is ridiculed by the public, but still they will do it as long as the world goes on.

For instance, think of the young man earning $18.50 a week marrying. Do you call that Marriage—for better or for worse—maybe for worse—surely not for better?

This Summer four of my friends got married. One receives a salary of $150, two of them about $110, and the other is the above mentioned lad. All the girls are working, come home at night and fry a couple of chops and call it dinner, wash and iron on Sunday and back to the same old grind on Monday.

And if a baby should come, especially to the first-mentioned couple, what would happen? They would have to borrow money and then pay it back on what they could spare out of $16 a week.

They say we profit by the mistakes of others, but not in matrimony. If you saw one man put his hand on a hot stove and get burned, you wouldn't do the same thing, would you? But many a person sees another put his hand on a hot stove (meaning matrimony) and get burned, so to speak, and yet runs around and do the same thing.

I do not mean that these marriages are not successful, but they certainly are not very encouraging.

PERPLEXED.

Here is another letter from a Wife Judge of it for yourself:

Can a family of four live on $100 per month? I have figured and figured trying to do it, and still my bills grow higher each month. My husband makes $200. He thinks I should bank for saving $100 of this. Our rent is $20. My husband's business requires a machine and the upkeep of this amounts;to $15 a month. Our medical bills averaged this year about $15 a month. I have kept careful account since I was married.

As you will see by the above, the regular expenses amount to $70. This leaves me $30 for groceries, milk, light, water, fuel, clothes and general upkeep. I simply cannot make it do.

I do all my own housework—washing, ironing, sewing, etc.—as well as keep my husband's books, so we have very little rest except in the evenings. My husband objects to my taking in roomers or boarders, as he considers that undignified work, but I would rather take in washing or do any of the hardest manual labor than to have to worry about meeting the bills. ANXIOUS.

LEAFS REDUCE BALTIMORE LEAD TO ONE GAME BY TAKING DOUBLE HEADER IN STORMY ENCOUNTERS

Four Banished From the Island Grounds, Including Jack Dunn Himself.

POLICE CALLED.

Buffalo Beat Reading in the Only Other Game Played.

TORONTO, July 21 — Toronto reduced Baltimore's lead to one game by winning today's double header by scores of 14 to 11 and 6 to 3.

Both games were hotly contested, and out of the arguments that arose during the progress of the games Manager Dunn, of the Orioles, Pitcher Myles Thomas, Catcher Cobb and Sherwood Magee were banished from the park.

Umpire Agur was the storm centre and a near-riot occurred when he called the second game with the Leafs ahead by 3 to 1 claiming that rain was falling too heavily. Police protection was accorded him.

The scores:

First game—

Baltimore.. .. ..104031020—11 12 2
Toronto .. .. ..01003244x—14 19 2

Earnshaw, Jackson, Hyman, Thomas and McKee; Gibson, Satterfield and Manion.

Second game—

Baltimore.. .. .. ..1000002—3 5 0
Toronto.. .. .. ..0104101x—6 11 2

Jackson and McKee, Cobb; Thomas, Glaser and Styles.

Buffalo 10; Reading 6

BUFFALO, N.Y., July 21—Buffalo got after Smallwood early in today's game to pile up scores enough to come out a winner by 10 to 6 over Reading. Proffitt pitched well until the late innings where he was touched up briskly, finally giving way to Auer in the ninth after issuing two passes. Score:

Reading .. .. ..001000311— 6 11 2
Buffalo .. .. ..01501201x—10 13 1

Smallwood, Matteson and McCarty, Smith; Proffitt, Auer and Hill.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

The golfer who either uses or now adopts the open stance should not place his feet too far apart. Exert a tendency to stand up straighter, more natural-like. Bend only as much as you have to, not greatly because of a feeling the pronounced stoop is going to add power to your swing. When the feet are too far apart a straining takes place in the back swing because the upper body pulls too hard against the legs as the club nears the top. This straining is sure to cause too much tightening and the resultant rigidity besides restricting the back swing's freedom. At the same time do not have the feet too close together or the sense of balance will be lost.

Mitchell, of Phillies Allowed Only Four Hits—Giants Regain Lead.

CUBS ON RAMPAGE.

PHILADELPHIA, July 21—Clarence Mitchell again proved he is the one southpaw in the National League that can beat the Pittsburgh Pirates by holding them to four hits today and beating them, 4 to 2, thereby knocking them out of the league leadership. Eddie Moore's home run in the seventh was the only earned score the visntors obtained. Score:

CHESBRO A COACH.

Has Smart Semi-Pro Club in New England.

NEW YORK, July 22.— Jack Chesbro, famous as one of the firsrt spit-ballers in the days when the Yankees were known as the Highlanders and played up on Washington Heights at Broadway and One Hundred and Sixty-eight street, has bobed up again in the role of fame winner.

But this time the old American League flinger is not doing any flinging. He's a coach. And in the little town of Shelburne Falls, Mass., on the Mohawk Trail, he hars gathered a semi-pro club that looks to be about as good as any in New England.

Jack still dons a uniform and gets about nimbly, but he confines all his efforts to showing the other fellow.

Puzzle Plays in Baseball

The Play.

It is the first half of the ninth inning, the score is tied, the bases filled and two men are out.

The manager of the team in the field sends in a relief pitcher. After throwing three balls to the batsman, the pitcher, by a snap throw to first, catches the runner napping, retiring the side.

In the last half of the ninth inning the home team fills the bases with two out and it is the pitcher's turn to bat. The manager of the home team decides to send in a pinch-hitter.

The manager of the team in the field protests against the removal of the pitcher, insisting that he must remain in the game until he has pitched to one batter who is either retired or reaches first base. This he has not done.

The Answer.

The rules state that when a pitcher is sent into the game he must pitch until one batter has either been retired or reaches first.

In this particular case the pitcher did not do this. After pitching three balls to the batter, he accomplished his purpose, the retiring of the side, by catching the runner napping at first base.

Major league umpires are agreed that if such a play should come up in the big leagues, they will permit the substitution of a pinch batter if the team manager desire to make such a change.

While the contention might be raised that rules is rules, the intent was not for a situation like this, but simply to keep a manager from juggling pitchers at random in order to get the one he really intended to use properly warmed up.

Common sense says let the substitution be made, since the pitcher retired the side, the motive of the change.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

Pitchers Protest.

Major league twirlers are a unit in the belief that the lively ball must be curtailed or pitching will go to the bow-wows.

A majority of them are of the opinion that the ball in use this year is 20 per cent livelier than last season. They offer various reasons for so thinking.

Last year it seemed as if the home-run epidemic had reached its highest degree. Yet so far this season nearly twice as many home runs have been made covering the same period last year.

Incidentally, some of the fast ball pitchers, who have been very successful in late years, despite the lively ball, have been experiencing more than their share of trouble this season.

Take Dazzy Vance for instance. The pitcher voted the most valuable player in the National League in 1924 has been having his ups and downs.

The same goes for many other star pitchers in both major leagues. All of them attribute their misfortune to the super-lively ball.

Seek Legislation.

Big league twirlers insist the magnates have gone crazy on the subject of batting, slugging in particular.

For perhaps five years, all kinds of legislation has been made against the pitcher. The batsman has always been favored in the matter of rules.

First, there was the elimination of freak pitching of all kinds, the spitball included. Then followed strict rules relative to rubbing the ball on the turf or in the glove.

Perhaps the worst feature from the pitcher's standpoint was the use of so many new balls, due to the fact that contact with the concrete stands quickly defaced the cover of the ball. Then came the lively ball.

All these reforms have handicapepd pitching and increased batting. The pitchers have come to the conclusion they are worthy of some favorable consideration. They are going after it.

Unusual Alibi.

The old alibi is a wonderful thing. It gets a great play in all branches of sport.

Just when the public was all worked up over a meeting between Leonard and Walker, Leonard broke a bone in his arm. It caused a postponement that has never been rescheduled.

Rumor had it at the time that the gate receipts, that is the advance sale, didn't meet with Leonard's approval.

Mickey Walker was much peeved at the turn of affairs. Now Mickey gets himself in the same class as Leonard for unusual alibis.

The bout between Harry Greb and Walker has been temporarily called off because Walker has an infected big toe.

It seems Walker says it is on the left foot, while his physician says it is the right. However, a little slip like that means nothing with an alibi.

Refusal of Walker to meet Dave Shade is said to be the real reason for the mixup.

If Walker is a real champion, as generally supposed, there doesn't seem to be any logical reason why he should ignore the challenge of Shade, who is certainly a logical contender.

ARGONAUT OARSMEN TRAIN FOR REGATTA

Johnny Durnan, son of Eddie Durnan, famous professional single sculler, and "Eddie" English, of the Argonaut Rowing Club, Toronto, have their eyes on victory at the Canadian Henley this year. Durnan and English won the senior and junior single scull events at Detroit, July 11. They have been rowing double all season and are pulling together in beautiful form. They are both young and light, but they are wonderful oarsmen and their smooth style may overcome the grawn and strength of heavier opponents.

SPORT GOSSIP AND COMMENT.

Belleville will make their last appearance of the season here on Saturday, and although the moguls are out of the running, they are playing the string out as if they were leading the parade. They expect to make trouble for somebody before the schedule is completed, and they don't much care who that somebody is. An outfit like that is full of possibilities, and the Petes are wise in regarding Saturday's game as a real argument. The Petes cannot afford to lose, in view of the close race between the three leaders, and that fact will add spice to the proceedings.

SOCCER NOTES

The final for the W. H. Taylor Cup will be played on King Edward Park on Thursday evening, July 23. The competing teams will be the C.P.C., the holders and the De Laval. A great game is expected, as both teams will be at full strength. Mr. George Blowers will handle the whistle and will have C. Jones and S. Calladine as linesmen. The game is called for 6:15 p.m. sharp. Ex-mayor Taylor will present the cup to the winning team from the band stand at the conclusion of the game.

The following players are requested to report at their club rooms at 6 p.m. sharp:

C.P.C.— T. Montgomery, A. Bishop, D. Grant, A. Downer, I. Montgomery, A. Halliday, J. Cross, S. Laidlaw, I. Mitchell, I. Buchan, W. James, J. Downer. T. Foster, J. Sullivan.

SIRE OF DOMINION RACERS

"Great Britain" is probably the most famous of the dozen odd horses with which the Cardinal Racing Associations have been trying to improve the light horse breed of the Dominion. It is one of his offspring which has won the $20,000 Chicago Derby. He himself in younger days won numerous races in Montreal, Toronto and elsewhere. Though named "Breat Britain" his pedigree has to be traced back two generations before British blood is encountered.

BASEBALL SIMPLIFIED

Why it is that batted balls, which apparently strike in fair territory in front of the batter and then strike him on the rebound as he is about to start to first, are invariably called foul balls?

The batter's box is almost entirely within foul territory.

When a batsman assumes the proper stance he is always in foul territory.

Ninety-nine times out of a hundred, a batted ball that strikes in front of the plate in foul territory and then rebounds sharply, striking the batsman as he is about to leave the batter's box, comes into contact with his person in foul territory.

When a batted ball strikes the batsman in foul territory it immediately becomes dead, is simply a foul ball.

Confusion is caused by the fact that the batsman is hit with the ball as he starts to take his first step in the direction of first base.

It is practically a physical impossibility for the one step to carry the batsman into fair territory. Often the ball strikes the batter before he has even a chance to make a break for first base.

Major league umpires are of the opinion that when the line of discrimination is very slight, it is always fairest and safest to rule such a batted ball that comes into contact with the hiter a foul ball.

WIN FOR ROTARY FROM ALL STARS

East City Boys Beaten in a Good Game in Dufferin Park.

SCORE WAS 10-8.

The Rotary Bantams crossed to Dufferin Park last night and brought home the long end of a 10-8 score in their contest with the Dufferin All Stars. Crary occupied the mound for the winners and held the East City boys to five hits, but a few errors by his team mates aided the homesters to score 8 runs, 4 of them coming in the first inning without a hit. Dormer and MacDonald were the best of his fellows. MacMahon and Adams gave Armitage some good support, but the Duffs' hurlers was touched for 13 hits, two in every innings except the second, which was the only goose egg in the Rotary column. The teams:

Rotary— Dormer 3b., Crary p., MacDonald 1b., Cuff c., LeBarr 2b, Perdue s.s., Hickey c.f., Mowry c.f., Howden r.f., Levine l.f.

NEW OFFICIALS AT HOUSE OF REFUGE

Following Resignation of Superintendent and Matron Appointments Made.

Following the resignation of the Superintendent, F. J. Bullied, and the Matron, Mrs. Kylie, from their positions at the House of Refuge, Mr. and Mrs. Maize of South Monaghan have been appointed and are now in charge. They are apparently interested in the work and meet the approval of the Home inmates.

The House of Refuge Board met last Monday and decided to install a new cooking range, proper screens to combat the fly nuisance, and window shades which had become essential.

Thirty acres of hay grown at the farm are being disposed of in the field as the stock was sold last year as a result of the barn burning last year; the only animals retained were a span of horses and a few pigs and hens.

The new superintendent is cutting the hay, cocking and selling it at $6 per load. The yield from 30 acres is averaging two loads per acre.

It is expected that a good second crop will be harvested as the bulk of the land is seeded in clover. Sufficient will be retained to feed the stock on the farm.

The other crops look well, especially the six acres of garden with potatoes and other vegetables which are receiving the required attention as regards cultivation and bug destruction.

FAST GAME IN E.P.B. LEAGUE

Keene and Cogs Play in Important Fixture To-night.

CALLED FOR 6.00.

The strong Keene Baseball team will meet the Cognawagas, (first half champs,) at the Exhibition Park, this evening at six o'clock, in what will assuredly be a real battle.

The Cogs are a hard working outfit, and, judging from their sensational win when Keene last played here, a few weeks ago, pulling out winners, in spite of the visitors three run lead at the end of the fifth, they deserve good support.

As this is an important game in the race for second half honours, a good crowd should turn out and help the homsters win.

WORLD LAUGHS AT TENNESSEE

Bishop Barnes Speaks of Attempt to Hide Well Ascertained Results.

LOYALTY TO TRUTH.

LONDON, July 22 (Canadian Press).—Next to Dean Inge of St. Paul's Cathedral there is, perhaps, no more arresting thinker in the Anglican communion today than Bishop Ernest William Barnes of Birmingham, whose modernism recently brought him into extreme disfavor with the high church element. Bishop Barnes delivered a notable sermon last night to the British Medical Association that is meeting at Bath. His subject was Superstition, which he described as an excess of belief and said it constituted the bane of medical science as well as of religion. "All the world is laughing at the attempt in Tennessee to hide well-ascertained results of scientific research," Bishop Barnes declared. "But even this is no more absurb than the claim that a priest can endow inanimate substances such as bread, wine or oil, with spiritual qualities. If it were not for my belief that through reason we can fully interpret the revelation of Christ, I should not be speaking here. Civilization is maintained not by many, but by the chosen few, and the great duty of the medical profession, as of the church, is loyalty to truth." Bishop Barnes is well known as a scientist, and he is the only Fellow of the Royal Society on the Episcopal bench.

JAPANESE INVENTION

Method Perfected for Taking Pictures Through Periscope of Submarines.

SASEBO, Japan, July 22.—(Associated Press).—Optical instruments and photographic devices used in the Japanese navy are being improved upon rapidly, says a naval official here. It is announced that a method has been perfected for the taking of pictures through the periscope of submarines, the details of which are being kept secret.

It is declared that, by the use of the periscopic-telescopic camera, movements of enemy ships can be easily recorded without the submarine itself being detected. The device is being tested and, if it proves to be successful, all the submarines in the Japanese navy will be equipped with it.

GERMANY'S REPLY ADJUDGED FRIENDLY

London Papers Say That the Note Shows Sincerity.

LONDON, July 22.— (Canadian Press).— Germany's reply to the French Security note is given a very favorable reception by the London morning newspapers, which say that the tone is friendly and gives an impression of the sincerity of the German government, and justifies the hope that negotiations for a security pact will now proceed toward settlement although this is not necessarily in immediate view.

ATTACKS THE KILT.

Mayor Power Must Therefore Be Canada's Bravest Man.

Major "Chubby" Power, Irish-Canadian M. P. for Quebec South, who boasts that he never reads the parliamentary debates, has another claim to distinction.

He has dared to criticze the wearing of the kilt by certain Canadian militia regiments.

"If," he says, 'a number of well-to-do people in this country wish to play at soldiers, wish in order to help recruiting to take their men on trips to the United States points or different parts of this country, wish to clothe them in kilts when many of them never had the remotest right to be called Scotchmen—if that right is anything to boast about—wish to have them dressed in fine raiment and fancy feathers, let them pay for that."

As a matter of fact, the officers of the kilted regiments do pay for the fine raiment.

It is quite evident, however, that Major Power does not possess many Scots amongst his electors, or would be dare to thus impugn the right to wear the garb of auld Scotia.

Perhaps if they were Irish kilts he would not object so much!

BRANES TRIBE DESERTS TO RIFFS FIGHTS HARD AGAINST FRENCH

Their Chief Only Recently Decorated With Legion of Honor For Assistance.

TROOPS NEEDED.

TAZA, July 22—There is no desire to disguise the gravity of the situation. Indeed one of the things which is asked above all is that its gravity should not be disguised outside Morocco, especially in France. The reasons are simple. The French trace all their difficulties since the war began to constant lack of sufficient effectives. They have never had sufficient effectives. They have never had sufficient troops because France has never realized how badly they were needed—perhaps no one realized it at first.

Any one with first-hand knowledge of this war is bound to admire the energy, resourcefulness and quick adaptability with which France is disposing of her effectives, both insufficient numerically and tired physically from constant and heavy fighting, who have suceeded in staving off all the serious disasters which have been threatening since the recent crisis began. This is particularly true of the Taza sector, which bore the brunt of the first heavy Riffian onslaught and is still kept on the jump.

Here is the inside story of what happened at Taza and it gives the key to the whole situation. The big tribe of Branes, just north of the city, was armed by the French and fought bravely for them during the early part of the war. They got tired and discontented at continually fighting and not advancing and asked for reinforcemets. The staff here tried to get these reinforcements from headquarters to strengthen their morale but there were none to be spared. Abd-el-Krim, seizing the opportunity, brought more pressure to bear on the Branes. Little by little they started going over to the enemy. Then their Caid, or chief—whom the French considered one of their loyalest friends and decorated last month with the Legion of honor—suddenly disappeared from the French camp and the rest of the tribe followed him to the enemy, taking with them the adjoining tribe of Tsouls.

The worst feature of this desertion which has so far been overlooked is this. The Branes having fought hard against Abd-el-Krim were all the more bound as a pledge of good faith when they secretly agreed to join him to fight even harder against the French — which they did when they turned abruptly and attacked them without warning. Moreover, they had fought long enough with the French to know their methods and tactics thoroughly. They had been trained as well as armed by the French, who lacking other troops could not do otherwise.

The French have countered by changing their tactics and constantly rechanging them, but the Branes obviously remain nevertheless a formidable enemy, and all along the line are plenty of other tribes which have similarly dangerous potentialities.

A Saint Among Craggy Peaks

The most vivid example may be found south of Taza itself. Twenty miles from the city in the craggy peaks of the middle Atlas Mountains there lies the famous "Blot of Taza," an area filled with irreconcilable tribesmen who have never submitted to the French.

These bitter-enders are mystics, extreme religious fanatics, and reverence their leader Si Mohand Belkacem Azerual, as a saint. French officers tell me he is a man of remarkable sanctity and absolutely incorruptible. He is not passively awaiting French occupation. For eleven years he has consistently fought them with all means at hand military or religious propaganda, and gave them the worst trouble they previously had in Morocco.

The tribesmen of the Blot of Taza number only 3,000 rifles, but they are well armed, and French officers say one of their warriors is worth ten rebel tribesmen they are now fighting.

The Blot of Taza is now in unusual ferment. The old saint is preaching furiously and several times has tried to assemble his harkis-armed bands of warriors. The French encircled the area with a line of small posts and always learned of and foiled these attempts by sending an airplane and bombing and dispersing the harka before it got into action. But their chief French protection covering south of Taza lies in the subdued tribes in a twenty-mile strip between the city and the Blot whom the French armed as their rear guard. These tribes are now subject to propaganda from both the old saint and Abd-el-Krim, who are in touch with each other. Can they be depended on?

The obvious answer seems to be to disarm them. But if the French do this it would tend to destroy all confidence in France among all the loyal tribes and the French cannot afford to appear panicky. Moreover they would lose their protective covering and the bitter-enders might break out, or at least rearm the disarmed tribes. On the other hand, if allowed to keep their arms they may eventually behave as the Branes have. This danger would become extremely grave if the Riffians should succeed in breaking through at Bab Morouj or Kifane and, reaching Taza, thus establishing direct contact. It is this which the French are fighting to prevent, even more than for the protection of Taza and its railroad.

Taza of Little Military Value.

As far as Taza is concerned it would not really matter if the French dropped clear back to it. It would really greatly simplify the military problem. Taza is prepared to stand a siege for months and such a siege would require a big effort on the enemy's part, forcing him out in the open in numbers where the French could see and get at him and use their modern equipment to the greatest advantage.

The danger is not of Taza being besieged; it lies in the tribes south of Taza rising up immediately such a siege began and of the rebellion whirlwinding through the country.

The French have been holding back the flood by keeping constantly on the move and getting incredible results from comparatively few men, but they are keenly aware that there is a limit to the physical powers of men, so they want fresh troops. They know Abd-el-Krim has not yet used his best men, reserves of Riffian regulars, so they want more troops. Finally, they realize that the present tactics are only costly temporary expedients, so they want still more troops, enough to abandon this patchwork policy in which they are being manoeuvred skilfully by Abd-el-Krim rather than he by them and take the offensive, striking a decisive blow without delay.

If the French public could have listened in—as I have the rare privilege of doing— for a single hour at the nerve centres, the needed effectives would have been forthcoming long ere this.

They would have heard the Commander at one of the chief posts protecting Taza declaring it was humanly impossible to get more out of his two battalions and begging insistently for just one fresh battalion which had been promised him long ago.

They would have heard him told that there was no battalion to send him just now and he had to remember that he was only one small corner of the front and that others were in the same fix in the central sector. That his only salvation was to keep driving against the enemy to give the appearance of an offensive at least— that he must encourage his men and get another effort out of them.

They would have heard the Commander of a neighboring post making the same plea and getting the same answer . They would have heard the whole sector appealing to headquarters for armored cars — "after the past two weeks of service our materials is in a pitiable state"—and being told there were no more on hand.

COLLEEN MOORE IN NEW HIT, "SALLY."

Film Star Here in Screen Version of Ziegfeld Stage Success.

Ziegfeld's "Sally" has left his tender care and now is in the movies.

Colleen Moore is the new "Sa y" as revealed on the screen at the Capitol theatre. She is altogether a charming and personable heroine, delighting her audience with moments of hoydenish humor, much human interest and no little genuine drama. As a starring vehicle for Colleen Moore, "Sally" truly exceeds e en such successes as "Flaming Youth" and the recent "So big." It provides this dainty First National star with the means of proving there is, apparently, no limit to her versatility.

First, we discover "Sally" as the forlorn little inmate of a foundling home. Then we see her as the drudge in the kitchen of the Elm Tree Inn. Quickly the action shifts, and by a series of circumstances "Sally is plunged into the vortex of a gay life as revealed at the lawn fete of a multi-millionaire.

Here is where we glimpse a new and different "Sally," gorgeous in her lovely raiment, impersonating a noted Russian dancer. There is a pretty love thread running through this screen version which is an adaptation made by June Mathis.

Lloyd Hughes, recently placed under contract by First National, is Miss Moore's leading man; Leon Errol, who was in the original stage version, is seen in the same role in the film. He is exceedingly funny, and does nobly in enhancing the scenes with Miss Moore.

Others in the cast are Myrtle Stedman, Dan Mason, John T. Murray, Ray Hallor, Louise Beaudet, Eva Novak and Carlo Schipa.

Alfred E. Green is responsible for the very able direction of "Sally."

LOVES CLOTHES BUT ENJOYS HER OVERALLS.

Marjorie Daw Talks on Style and Describes Pleasure in Wearing Ginghams.

"I love fine clothes as much as any girl, but oh, what a relief it is to be in a picture where for a few minutes I can wear overalls!"

The speaker was pretty little Marjorie Daw, central woman figure in "Fear-Bound," the Vitagraph picture which comes to the ROYAL Theatre To-morrow for a run of three days.

Miss Daw's observations on this subject of feminine finery were the more enexpected because she is just back from Paris, where, for a good many years at least, all fashions were supposed to originate. She declares, however, that what for a long time was isn't now.

"I adore Paris, of course," said the petite Marjorie, "and I don't deny that to wander through the shops of its great modistes and couteriers is heavenly. But the days of French supremacy in women's styles have passed. We have just as attractive establishments, just as capable fashion creators and just as good taste here in America. And American cities are fast forging to the front.

"That, though, is not what I started out to say. Being a girl, I love to be "in style," but when I found there were a few scenes in 'Fear-Bound' in which I was to be shown as a care free, out-of-door young thing who cavorted about in overalls I was tickled to death. And I certainly did enjoy making this picture for that reason.

And so, though in other scenes Marjorie Daw is "dressed up," as the public has come to know and admire Marjorie, there are others in which she appeals by her very naturalness—and her overalls.

"Fear-Bound" is a Western, but it is a good deal more than that. Miss Daw has the role of Ralf Tumble, a little girl who is used to life in the open, alluring as ever, but not too much hampered by the conventions. She has a brother who is a coward, but whom, by her sheer faith in him she imbues with confidence until he goes out and whips a whole gang of stage robbers. It's a great story, splendidly handled.

A Link With The Dead Past

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas O'Leary, who recently celebrated their Golden Wedding, have been for practically their whole married life custodians of the treasures in the historic Chateau de Ramesay in downtown Montreal.

"In this storied building", said Mr. O'Leary recently, "erected in 1705 by Claude de Ramesay, Governor of Montreal, there have been entertained many men and women whose names shall live forever. General Amherst, Benedict Arnold, Marquis de la Fayette, Benjamin Franklin, Jenny Lind and Charles Dickens have been among its visitors, and for half a century it was the official home of successive Governors".

As Mr. O'Leary turned to answer the telephone, one's mind instinctively recalled the Indian messenger or the military courier of other days bowing low before the Governor in this very room and departing upon errands which often took months to perform. The sturdy walls of the old Chateau keep intact many precious mementoes of the old regime.

WIRELESS DEVELOPED

Sweden Transmits Only Five Percent. of Telegrams by Cable.

GOTHENBURG, Sweden, July 22.—(Associated Press).—Wireless transmission of messages has so developed in Sweden that the Government's station at Grimeton now sends about 95 per cent. of all telegrams from Sweden to the United States. The receiving station, on the other hand, gets only about 40 per cent. of the telegrams coming from the United States. In order to meet the new competition the cable companies have reduced their pre-war rates.

The Grimeton wireless station was built for direct communication with the United States.

Kept Out Of Politics By a Laurier Speech

Doctor D. Lyman Hume, one of the twelve surviving graduates of the class of 1875 at McGill University, might have been a politician had it not been for a speech made by young Wilfrid Laurier in his early political life.

Dr. Hume was nominated to contest his native county of Megantic for the Quebec legislature, but he was defeated by 15 votes. The doctor ascribes his defeat to Laurier's persuasion of the farmers of Megantic that he was the best doctor they could ever have and that if they lost him by allowing him to go into politics they would never get his equal. So the farmers voted for the Liberal lawyer and the doctor was left to his practice, which was one of the old school. He succeeded a doctor who had never used a stethoscope or clinical thermometer and never administered an anaesthetic. Dr. Hume's first work covered an area of a thousand square miles on which a large mining town now stands with a medical service of 12 doctors. He visited his patients on foot, on snowshoes, on horseback and in every kind of vehicle, except an aeroplane, and often went 70 miles to visit a patient. When his services were called upon to usher new lives into the world he went with a relay of horses, sometimes changing six times. For administreing chloroform in such cases he encountered serious trouble in the first year of his practice. A number of old women met, condemned him as an infidel and unbeliever, declaring that he was acting in defiance of Genesis III., 16. But the young matrons were his staunch champions and many lived to see their grandchildren brought into the world by Dr. Hume.

CAVAN PERSONALS

CAVAN, July 22.—Mr. and Mrs. Salter and daughter, Ruth, Toronto, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Paul.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul motored to Stirling last week on business in connection with the Government loans to farmers. Mr. Paul has to investigate where appdication has been made to the Government for a loan, to see if the applicant is in a position to allow the Government to extend rural credit to him.

Mr. Gerald Staples has accepted the position of teacher in Lifford School, Manvers, for the ensuing year.

Miss Helen Staples will teach at Cedar Valley, Cavan.

Miss Helen Syer has been engaged as teacher in a school in Otonabee.

Miss Florence Falls will teach in the Marsh School, and Miss Anna Hawthorne at Carmel.

Mrs. Gardiner is re-engaged at the Fallis Line School. Mr. Reginald Sutton at the Cavanville School, and Miss Preston at S.S. No. 7.

The many friends of Mr. A. Fisher will be pleased to know that he is progressing nicely after a serious operation, at Dr. Turner's Private Hospital, Millbrook.

Mr. S. F. M. Touchbourn, Peterboro, was a business visitor in Cavan Centre on Friday.

Miss Touchbourn, Ida, is still with her sister, Mrs. Woodhall, Hamilton.

Dr. Woodhall, accompanied by Mrs. Woodhall, motored to Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, to attend a medical convention. They were in a motor accident, and both were badly injured, having to be brought home to Hamilton in an ambulance. Their beautiful sedan car was destroyed; it was not worth bringing home. They still have nurses in attendance, but are improving.

PAVEMENTS IN GENERAL.

(From a Correspondent)

They took a little gravel
And they took a little tar,
With many other ingredients
Imported from afar.
They hammered it and rolled it,
And when they went away
They said they had a pavement
To last for many a day.
But they came with picks and smote it,
Just to lay a water main,
And then they called the workmen
To put it down again,
To run a tramway cable
They took it up once more,
And then they put it back again
Just where it was before.
They took it up for conduits
To run the telephone,
And then they put it back again
As hard as any stone.
And then they took it up for wires
To feed the electric light,
And then they put it back again—
Which was no more than right
Now our pavement's full of furrows;
There are patches everywhere.
You'd like to ride upon it,
But it's seldom that you dare.
It's a very handsome pavement—
A credit to the town,
They are always digging something up
Or putting something down.

FINANCIAL NEWS.

Wheat Rallies From Slump Strengthening Corn and Oats

CHICAGO, Ills. July 22.—(Canadian Press.) — Owing to recent severe set backs in price, less disposition was shown to-day to press the selling side of the wheat market and rallies from early declines took place. With weather in the North-west very favorable for maturing the Spring crop, however, prices at first showed a downward trend. The cutting of grain in Southern sections of the North-west was reported as becoming more general and indications were that although black rust was wide spread, actual damage has been comparatively small. The opening, unchanged to 1 3-4c lower. Sept. 148 1-2 to 149 3-4 and December 149 to 150 was folowed by rallies that lifted Sept. to 150 1-4 and December to 151.

Buying of the part of recent sellers who had profit in sight gave strength to corn. After opening at 5-8c of to 3-8c up. Sept 103 1-2 to 103 5-8, the corn market quickly scored moderate gains all around, oats derived firmness from corn, starting at 1-8 to 3-8c decline. Sept 44 1-4 to 44 3-8c. Oats prices later showed a slight general advance. Provisions were firmer, sympathizing with an upturn in hog values.

Slight Recession After Upward Trend at Toronto

TORONTO, July 22 (Canadian Press).—A reversal of tone was shown on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, when the upward trend prevailing for the past week gave way to a wholesale recession, though as yet mostly fractional. Consolidated Smelters was the leading stock, repeating its high of 100 but receding to 98 3-4, a net loss of 1-8 from yesterday's close. Brazilian next most active, eased a full point at 58 3-8, and British Columbia Fishing suffered a substantial drop, selling to 45, 2 1-4 points lower. Winnipeg and Twin City eased respectively a half and a quarter. Canada Bread Common 3-4 and the B. Preferred a half. Atlantic Sugar Common 7-8, and Dominion Canners a half point.

Many Street Stocks Sag Implements Remaining Firm

NEW YORK, July 22. —Canadian Press. — Reactionary tendencies gained prominence as forenoon trading progressed in Wall street.

With call money renewal rate marked up to four per cent., traders ignored such favorable developments as increased car loadings, expansion of steel mill operations, higher prices for steel products and estimates of another decline in the crude oil output, and sold stocks freely throughout the morning.

U. S. Steel, Republic Steel, Baldwin and American Can were depressed a point or so before noon, while losses of from 1 to 3 points were registered by Macks Trucks, U. S. Rubber, Woolworth, Sears-Roebuck, General Electric, American Sugar and North American. Rail shares also sagged off, with marked heaviness shown by Frisco, Reading, Northern Pacific and Missouri Pacific issues. In the face of the general downward trend, farm implements showed outstanding strength, International Harvester running up 3 points to 117. The highest price since the post war agricultural depression. Tobacco products led an advance in tobacco issues.

Mines Show Mixed Trend With Lorrain Shares Active

TORONTO, July 22 (Canadian Press).—Lorraine was the most active stock in point of transactions on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning, advancing 3-4 at 14 1-2. The market showed a mixed trend but advances were perhaps in the majority, with trading fairly heavy. Keora gained 1 1-2, while Teck Hughes, Vipond and Crown Reserve each gained a point and Kirkland Lake a half point.

LOVES LEGAL ADVICE.

"Lo, the poor Indian," is a native born litigant, according to Hon. Charles Stewart, superintendent-general of Indian Affairs, who is authority for the statement that: "The Indian loves to get legal advice. On that theory there ought to be very, very rich lawyers in Brantford and other cities near Indian reserves, but there are not.

H.E.P.C. SELLS A RIGHT-OF-WAY

Land From Toronto to Port Credit Has Been Sold.

OUT A MILLION.

TORONTO, July 22 (Canadian Press).—A report recently issued by the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission indicates that the commission has disposed of the right of way between Port Credit and Toronto, which was purchased some years ago for the projected Toronto-Niagara Falls Radial Railway, and afterwards abandoned as a result of adverse public opinion. F. A. Gaby, chief engineer of the Commission, admitted today that the land had been sold, but declined to state the amount received. The report, however, indicates that about $250,000 has been received as the obligation incurred for radials has been reduced to that extent. About fifteen thousands dollars worth of equipment purchased for the St. Catherines' section of the proposed radial has also been sold. According to the report, the Commission is still out nearly a million dollars on the radial project, with some right of way and material still to be disposed of.

STRUCK DUMB.

And John Young, Courteous By Nature, Stayed Dumb For Politeness.

They are telling a story about John Young, the popular and unmarried president of the Toronto branch of the Canadian labour party, which is vouched for as true.

Mr. Young, it appears, was invited to visit the institute for the deaf and dumb at Belleville, where a dance was in progress. As many of the guests could not talk the sign language, the dances were posted up in a conspicuous place, so that a man wishing to ask a lady for a dance could lead her to the placard, point out the dance he wished, and receive her nodded assent.

M. Young saw a young lady whose charming appearance intrigued his fancy and he accordingly went through the usual routine. In all he claimed three silent dances including the final waltz.

But some time before that dance was due, he overheard the young lady being asked for it by another guest. To his surprise she answered with a voice evidently quite used to speaking the English language. As she spoke, she glanced towards Mr. Young, and what she told her companion was this: "Sorry, but I've given the dance to that dummy over there."

And it is said that Mr. Young rather than disillusionize and embarrass the lady, acted the part of dummy to the end.

President Lowell of Harvard likens a university to a great forest. "Individual trees may fall, giants in their day, and yet the forest stands there in its majesty." And large numbers of our young hopefuls get lost in the woods, says L. H.R. in the New York Times.

Most Urgent Wants

There's a world of interest in the Want Ads. They reflect the urgent desires of various businesses, households and individuals.

The Wants tell what is most needed. If the cook has left, if a worker is needed in the office or factory, if an article of value is lost or found, if there is urgent necessity to sell a piece of property, secure tenants, roomers or boarders—all such conditions are expressed and met in the Want Columns.

The Wants are close to the heart interests of the people. It is interesting to watch them carefully.

Around The City.

At 10.15 last night, a collision ocurred of two cars, one driven by James Dutton and the other by William Warboy at the corner of Hunter and George Streets. The fenders of both automobiles were damaged. No one was hurt.

Miss Mildred Archambault is making a brave fight for life. She is reported to have spent a favovrable night and hopes are entertained for her recovery.

Owners of business blocks appear to be vieing in refurnishing the top decks of their buildings and citizens are noticed craning their necks as they watch the carpenters and painters at work, suspended from the roof tops.

The Rona M., a model steam boat, which was designed and built by Mr. McLamon and tried out in the spring near Rye's boat house has been considerably altered and improved and will again be subjected to trials at the Lake street bathing beach on Thursday evening at 7.30.

Several carloads of motor tourists who looked forward to a wet camp last night received a welcome surprise last night at the tourist camping grounds at the Exhibition Grounds, when Caretaker Gillespie provided them with space in the manufacturers' building, where they could camp in comfort and listen to the raging of the disappointed elements. This morning they moved on, dry and comfortable, after expressing their appreciation for the accommodation provided.

Fire broke out this morning in the rear of Dean's Candy Store. No damage was done.

A boy named Gadd was thrown from his bicycle at the corner of Charlotte and Aylmer streets shortly after one o'clock, when a heavy truck owned by Beatty's Cartage struck the rear wheel. A passing taxi took the lad to a doctor and it was found that he was suffering only from being shaken up. The driver reported the matter to the police, saying that he had not seen the boy until right on top of him.

An alarm was turned in this morning at 8.31 for the firemen to quench a fire resulting from a short circuit in a Ford Sedan.

No damage resulted.

VOL. LVI., No. 19 — PETERBOROUGH, THURSDAY, JULY 23, 1925 — PRICE THREE CENTS

PETERBOROUGH WAR VETERANS LEAD ALL CANADA IN VOTING TO JOIN THE EMPIRE LEAGUE

Unanimous Decision at Open Meeting in G.W.V.A. Hall Last Night Attended by 250 Men — Standing Vote Followed by Enthusiastic Applause.

IDEA OF GREAT UNION PREVAILS

Committee Named to Follow Up Decision and Prepare Plans—Census of All Veterans in District Will be Sought — Forward Step Marked by Co-operation.

Peterborough Great War Veterans in open session last night decided unanimously in favor of joining themselves with Earl Haig's British Empire Service League, and appointed a committee of ten men to further enquire into the plan and report on the necessary steps to be taken.

There were two hundred and fifty men present, about half of whom were members of the Great War Veterans' Association, and the standing vote that declared in favor of joining the Canadian branch of the world-wide movement to join all ex-service men was greeted with applause that lasted several minutes. Col. T. J. Johnston, organizer of and officer commanding the 93rd Battalion, presided, on suggestion of Commander R. E. Layfield that a non-officer in the G.W.V.A. be named. Col. Johnston was also elected chairman of the committee, which consists of five members of the G.W.V.A. and five non-members, elected by the respective factions. The committee will report at another open meeting when the constitution of the proposed league has been thoroughly examined.

Thorough Concord.

The greatest unanimity prevailed throughout the meeting, which was called for the purpose of learning the feeling of the returned soldiers of the city and district on the proposal of Earl Haig. So far as is known, the Peterborough G. W. V. A. is the first organization of its kind to move definitely in the matter, and the result of the invitation shows that there are large numbers of men who for one reason or another did not join the existing association who are willing to affiliate themselves with the broader movement now proposed.

There was no jarring note in the gathering albeit some thought progress should be made slowly so that misjudgement might be avoided, and one man expressed the idea that with a strong local the remainder of the country might go where it liked. The general feeling was that the success of the local organization, to whatever camp it belong, depends upon its becoming part of the great empire-wide movement now on foot.

The personnel of the committee is: Comrades T. J. Johnston, (chairman); J. Mills, H. Burrows, G. Coutts, F. L. Bradburn, V. Stuart, H. Wilford, D. J. Lawrie; J. Playfair and Rev. Paul Costello.

Ask Opinions.

Another decision taken was to ask The Examined to publish a form of ballot on which returned soldiers might express their opinion on the advisability of entering the British Empire Service League. The names and addresses of returned soldiers being largely unavailable to the committee, it was felt that the columns of The Examiner might carry the request to the ex-service men in the most effective way, and the ballots will tell the general opinion among those unable to attend the meeting.

T. J. Johnston.

Col. Johnston, expressing his hearty approval of the scheme to unite all returned soldiers, explained the object of the meeting. United action is needed, he said, in order that the ex-service man may have the assistance needed and earned. The reason this work has not been more effectively done is merely because of the lack of sufficient numbers to make the demand pressing.

There has been, for some reason, a prejudice against the G. W. V. A. the chairman said, but the G. W. V. A. will not stand in the way of any organization that promises to unite all returned soldiers. The grant given by the city, he believed, was not solely for the members of the Association, but for all of the returned soldiers of the city, and now would be an apportune time to place the building it had provided at the disposal of all soldiers in the city. He would start organization of the new body from the ground up. Per-

SEEKING LOOT, TWO MEN FAIL

Mysterious Couple Dropped Stolen Rugs and Ran From Garage.

SURPRISED AGAIN.

The night man of a Water Street barn returning at 1 o'clock this morning to the place after being out at a late party found two men carrying a pair of rugs. Thinking they were putting in a car for the night he greeted them "Good morning," and was astonished to see them drop the rugs and bolt out to the street. Two policemen hurried along to the barn in response to a call, but no trace could be found of the visitors. The man was unable to see clearly in the gloom and has no idea of the identity of the would-be sneak thieves. While the police were at the barn, a call came from Central telling of the presence of two men in the yard of a London Street house, which the constables thought may well have been a second attempt of the same two men. The men also fled from London Street immediately on being detected. Later two men were seen at Stewart Street, where the footbridge crosses the creek, and again they fled on approach of a late returning resident.

GIRL DROWNED IN ABANDONED MINE

Stumbled and Struck Her Head on a Rock.

TORONTO, Ont., July 23. — Simone, the 11 year old daughter of Albert Landriault, Coniston, was drowned on Tuesday afternoon in an abandoned mine shaft, filled with water, one mile and a half east of Coniston.

The body was recovered from seven feet of water.

The deceased girl, with her two sisters, Alice, 15, and Winnie, 9, were out blueberry picking and came upon a hole filled with water and made preparation to go in bathing. The dead girl was first to investigate and in approaching, stumbled and fell striking her head on a rock. The attempt of her sisters to rescue her proved futile.

KINGSTON, Ont., July 23.—Canadian Press. — While fishing yesterday in the East end of Loughboro Lake, Bernard Josephs, the six year old son of Fred Barton, a guard in the Portsmouth Penitentiary, fell into the water and was drowned. The body was recovered.

RIFFIAN LEADER SAYS HE SOUGHT UNDERSTANDING

Tried Two Years Ago to Get Boundary Conference With French.

A DISGRACE.

Two Great Powers Should Not Attack One Small Nation.

CAIRO, July 23. — (Canadian Press.)—In an open letter addressed to the French parliament and published in the Egyptian newspaper, Al Sissah, here, 'Abd-El-Krim, the Riffian rebel leader in Morocco, declares he has made every effort within his power to reach an understanding with Marshal Lyautey, French Governor-General of Morocco.

Abd-El-Krim states he sought a boundary conference with Marshal Lyautey two years ago but the mission failed and simultaneously French troops advanced toward Beni Zeroual. "For two years Marshal Lyautey has encouraged the Moroccan tribes to oppose my people. Yet we never opened fire until the French artillery had bombarded and their airplanes had bombed our tribes. It is a disgrace that two great powers like France and Spain should combine against one small nation which is only defending its own rights."

FIREMEN AVERT A CATASTROPHE

Millions of Gallons of Gasoline Only Five Feet From Blaze.

SOME INJURED.

REGINA, Sask., July 23 (Canadian Press) — In one of the city's most spectacular and dangerous fires, the plant of the Canadian Oil Companies Lt., was completely destroyed this morning. The damage is estimated at $150,000. Greater damage was averted through the strenuous work of the firemen who kept the flames from 12 large tanks of gasoline and about 20,000 gallons of motor oil. These tanks were about five feet from the blazing warehouse. Five firemen were slightly injured.

TAXI DRIVER CLUBBED AND ROBBED ON THE HIGHWAY TWO MILES WEST OF CITY

Patrick Allen in Hospital Suffering From Injuries Inflicted by Passenger—Handed Over Seven Dollars, But Saved Roll of Bills.

Patrick Allen, a taxi-driver, is in St. Joseph's Hospital, suffering from severe injuries to his head, received when he was assaulted and robbed yesterday evening, on the Provincial Highway, about two miles from the city. His assailant got away with a small sum of money, and, crossing an oatfield, hid in a nearby swamp.

Allen was struck four times with a piece of two inch iron pipe wrapped in a newspaper. When his plight was noticed by passers-by, the police were summoned and the injured man rushed to the Clinic, and then to the Hospital. He was attended by Dr. Neal.

Allen stated to the police that he had been called by telephone to the corner of Perry and Aylmer streets to pick up a "Mr. Carney." His fare had asked him to take him out to Stinson's fruit farm on the Highway, where he said he was working. The man kept looking around as though he feared being followed, and when about two miles out he struck Allen on the head with his weapon. Allen gave him some money, about seven dollars, and he left without searching his victim, who had more money on him.

When Allen had recovered somewhat from the blow, he started to walk along the road, and was seen by a man passing, who notified the police.

Sergeant Deannard and P. C. Pufer went out to the scene of the hold-up, and traced the culprit through the grain and down into the swamp, where they lost the trail in the gathering darkness.

The bandit is described as being about 20 years old, short and thickset dressed in an old and dirty grey suit, without a collar or tie, and with several days' beard.

Bandit Caught.

Word was received by Police Chief Newhall at noon today to the effect that Chief Kidd of Belleville had apprehended a suspect, who was thought to have been guilty of the assault occurring last night. Later the police elicited a full confession and as a result, Chief Newhall and Provincial Constable Maker have departed for Belleville to get the man.

It appears that after ducking through the marsh and woods country the bandit boarded a train at Birdsall and was greeted by the police on his arrival at Belleville. On his return here, he will appear before the police court tomorrow at 10 a.m.

During this morning several gray-suited individuals were taken into custody and exonerated by a process of elimination. The name of the prisoner will be withheld until after his appearance before the magistrate.

MINISTERS RETURN FOR MEETING TO DISCUSS ELECTION CHANCES

Have Been on Holiday All Through Country Sizing Things Up.

DIVERGENT VIEWS.

Some Members Doubt Wisdom of an Appeal Just Now.

OTTAWA, July 23. — Canadian Press. — With contradictory rumors in regard to an autumn general election in the air, the Cabinet will meet on Monday next for serious consideration of the situation.

Monday's meeting, which will be largely attended, is not unlikely to prove the first of a number of meetings at which the political situation will be thoroughly canvassed and views for and against early dissolution presented.

Ministers, who have been scattered to the four corners of the country, presumably for rest and recreation after the strenuous session of Parliament, but also for the purpose of sizing up the conditions from a political point of view, will rally for the Monday gathering, and there report.

Ostensibly the Cabinet meeting will deal with business which has accumulated since the few ministers then in town gathered two weeks ago.

It is said that there are divergent views among the members of the Government as to the wisdom of an apepal at the present time. In this event the decision must rest with Premier King, who will probably be influenced by more experienced members of the government, such as Hon George P. Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals, and Hon. James Robb, acting Minister of Finance.

ANOTHER CONFERENCE ON ARMS LIMITATION

Japanese Nobleman Sees Another World War If Nations Keep Arming.

CHAUTAUQUA, N.Y., July 23.—(Canadian Press.)— Count Michimasa Soyeshima, of the Japanese House of Peers, proposed a second international conference on the limitation of armaments in an address to-day before the Chautauqua conference on International relations from a Christian point of view. The conference is under the auspices of the Federal Council of Churches. "If the Powers go on arming as they are to-day, there will be another world war, which will be followed by a world revolution and the end of civilization," he said.

SUEZ TONNAGE IS INCREASING

Tonnage Last Year Was Three Times as Much as in 1895.

BRITISH LEAD.

The Suez Canal, in which the British government has a heavy investment in shares, has just reported th figures for 1924 which show that 35,109,822 tons passed through the canal in that year, a tonnage three times as large as for 1895, 25 per cent above that for 1913 and over 10 per cent above the tonnage for 1923. According to advices received by Bankers Trust Company of New York from its British Information Service, this record is looked upon as distinctly encouraging, especially as canal traffic is conducted with many regions of diverse character.

The largest trade was that with British India. Next came trade with China and Japan, and then with the Strait Settlements and Australia, and New Zealand. The predominance of British regions, especially India, is striking. It is also noted that three fifths of the trade through the canal last year was carried by British vessels, which carried 15 million tons, as compared with under 2 1-2 million tons on Dutch ships, and a little over 1 1-2 millions in French and Italian. Japan and the United States were responsible for under a milion tons each.

Miners are stated to head the list of large families, while at the other end of the scale come profesional workers, whose families are 29 per cent below the average.

NAVAL PROGRAM CALLS FOR FOUR VESSELS IN YEAR

Admiralty Will Lay Down Two in October and Two in February.

THREE NEXT YEAR.

Destroyers and Subs Will Also Be Started in 1926-27.

LONDON, July 23 (Canadian Press).—Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin announced in the House of Commons today that the British Government's naval construction programme included two cruisers, to be laid down in October, two next February and three yearly thereafter, making four cruisers to be constructed this financial year and three next.

The British Government also has decided upon the annual construction of nine destroyers and six submarines, together with certain auxiliary vessels, beginning with the finacial year 1926-27; this programme to be continued during the normal life of the present parliament, Mr. Baldwin announced.

Some of the new cruisers will conform to the existing 10,000 ton type, and the remainder will be a smaller and less expensive of type approximating 8,000 tons, to be designed by the Admiralty.

Additional expenses this year, which Prime Minister Baldwin estimated at 527,170 pounds sterling (about $2,600,000) above the present navy estimates would be met by the Admiralty by savings under other departments and by funds which are likely to accrue by not spending money appropriated.

Concerning the cost of the programme in future years, the Prime Minister explained that the Admiralty would make every effort by effecting substantial reductions in maintenance and other charges on the navy estimates to diminish the cost of new construction.

A new committee of three persons not connected with the Government would be appointed as soon as possible to examine the costs of maintenance in all branches of the British fighting services, he said.

RIFFS RETREAT FROM OUERGHA

Other Indications Also Show Intent to Attack on Wings.

LEAVING CENTRE.

FEZ, French Morocco, July 23. — Canadian Press. — The Riffian tribes men are now in full retreat from the Ouergha River northward, closely pressed by a French detachment with artillery along the right bank of the stream.

This together with other indications gathered by the French intelligence service, shows that the leader of the rebellious tribesmen, Abd-El-Krim, has given up the idea of attacking on the centre, and is reverting to the plan of attacking on the wings, for which he is massing his regular troops in the region of Ouezzan and Taza.

Ouezzan is located about 60 miles northwest of Fez, the headquarters of the French in Morocco, and the objective of Abd-El-Krim. Taza is about the same distance to the East. Reinforcements for the French army are reaching the zone in increasing numbers.

He likewise predicte that a new earthquake would strike Japan on the 30th.

SIXTY-DAY REPRIEVE FOR SCOTT OR COMMUTATION OF SENTENCE; REPORT BY DETROIT FREE PRESS

Information From Friend of Gov. Small Offers Hope for Condemned Canadian.

BROTHER SILENT

Shadow of Gallows Creeping Upon Russell Scott for Second Time in Week.

DETROIT, Mich., July 23.—(Candian Press).— The Detroit Free Press last night said that a close personal friend of Governor Len Small of Illinois has been informed by Small that on Thursday he will grant Russell Scott, under sentence to be hanged Friday for the murder of Joseph Maurer, Chicago drug store clerk, either a sixty-day reprieve or a commutation of sentence.

This information came to the Free Press yesterday afternoon from Governor Small's friend, who said he had received a message from Mr. Small containing the news of a possible commutation of sentence for Scott. It was not known from wheer the message was sent.

HOPE IN ALMIGHTY.

CHICAGO, July 23.—(Canadian Press).—For the second time within a week Russell Scott last night stood within the shadow of the gallows and announced that he was placing all hope "in the hands of the Almighty."

Scott, former Canadian financier sentenced to be hanged for the murder of a drug clerk during a hold-up in 1924, was given a week's reprieve by Governor Small last Thursday night, six hours before he was to have been executed.

The reprieve came after a telegram from Detroit was sent to Governor Small signed Robert Scott, Russel's brother, indicted with him but never found, and stating that Robert was the slayer and would surrender.

Russell, with less than 36 hours separating him from death, last night said he believed he would escape the gallows if Robert could be found.

Will Hang Both.

From the State's Attorney's office came the statement:

"Find Robert and we will hang them both."

Mrs. Catharine Scott, the condemned man's wife viisted him again yesterday shortly before the double watch was placed over him in the death cell, this likewise for the second time within a week.

Except for a last minute dramatic appearance of Robert Scott, or the introduction of new evidence which might cause Governor Small to issue a new reprieve Scott's attorneys indicated last night they had little hope of saving him.

Appeals to President Coolidge, Governor Small and other officials for clemency have been made while friends of Scott's and club women in Windsor, Ont., his former home, and in Detroit, are working to save him.

C. P. R. FIREMAN KILLED.

Fell From Running Board of Locomotive.

VANCOUVER, July 23. — (Canadian Press.)—John Gibson, fireman on the Canadian Pacific Imperial Limited train from Montreal, was killed yesterday when he fell off the running board of the locomotive near Barnet, 12 miles east of Vancouver, while performing some task.

PEA LOUSE IS COCK OF ROOST

Small Comfort in Reply of Entomologist to Peterborough S. O. S.

NO HOPE HELD.

The farmers in the district whose crops are menanced by the pea louse will find little comfort in the answer of the Dominion Entomologist to whom the question of eliminating the pests was referred two weeks ago. The expert says the insects may be killed off by dusting the plants with nicotine or cyanide dust or by spraying with nicotine, sulphate and soap. These methods, he adds, are not practicable under field conditions. Farmers have neither the necessary dusting nor spraying equipment and also, control by means of dry or liquid insecticides is too costly. The only recommendation he can make to the general farmer is to practice early sowing and grow only early maturing varieties, as experience has shown that early plants are seldom attacked by the pea aphis.

TWO FACTORS MENACE FUTURE

Separate Schools and Bilingualism Threaten Canada as British

SAYS GRAND MASTER.

VANCOUVER, B.C., July 23 (Canadian Press)—The annual address of Dr. J. W. Edwards, of Kingston, Grand Master, and the presentation of reports, featured Wednesday's session of the Grand Orange Lodge being held here.

Dr. Edwards quoted the census and other statistics in support of his declaration that a two faced wedge of separatism is being driven more and more deeply into the national life of our country."

Two great factors — separate schools and bilingualism—menaced the future of Canada as a British country, Dr. Edwards declared, and gave it as his opinion that "the principles and ideals of the Orange Association are of more importance to the future of Canada as a British country than the temporary success of any political party."

VACCINATION FOR CANCER IMMUNITY

Malignant Microbes Eluded Discovery, Dr. Gye Believes.

BATH, Eng., July 23 (Canadian Press).—Dr. William E. Gye and J. E. Barnard, microposist, retold the story of their cancer discoveries to the British Medical Association behind closed doors yesterday.

Nothing new, however, was added to the essential facts that have been published. After the meeting Dr. Gye declared that the great object of his search is immunity from cancer. "We are seeking a prophylatic of immunity to make man or animal self-protected against spontoneous tumor—cancer," said Dr. Gye. "I shall have to consider claims of vaccination in our search for immunity.

"If the work we have done is true then the essential agent which causes smallpox is the same as that which causes cancer, namely little organisms that have eluded discovery both on account of their smallness and because of the fact the microbe itself is innocuous. It depends upon some accessory action."

QUEBEC STREETS DRAPED IN BLACK

Body of Cardinal to be Transferred Friday to Basilica.

QUEBEC, July 23 (Canadian Press)—The transference of the remains of the late Cardinal Begin, deceased primate of the Roman Catholic Church in Canada, whose death took place at Quebec on Sunday morning from the Archbishop's palace to the Basilica will be carried out on Friday afternoon at four o'clock, and will be attended with solemn and imposing ceremonies. The whole length of the route will be ranged with lines of soldiers while a special cordon of police will maintain order among the great throngs that are expected here to-witness the last rites to the deceased. The public buildings throughout the city will continue to carry their mourning drapings, while the streets through which the cortege will pass will also be draped.

The ceremony of raising the body of the late Cardinal will be directed by Monsignor Lacrecque, who succeeds Cardinal Begin on the episcopal throne of Chicoutimi. This will take place at 3.30 p.m. and ten minutes later the cortege will be set in motion to the Basilica.

Taking part in the funeral procession from the palace and in the following order of succession will be the police, the band of the cadets of St. Damase, the Papal Zouaves, the students of the Seminary, the Normal School and the University.

CANADA AHEAD IN TELEPHONES

Second in World in Number of Telephones Per Hundred.

TORONTO NINTH.

In the development of telephones and telegraphs, according to the latest statistics on world conditions in these important industries compiled by the statistical department of the Bell system, Canada occupies a very creditable position. Only the United States, of all the nations of the earth, exceeds this Dominion in the number of telephones per hundred of population and next to us comes Denmark and the far-off New Zealand. The figures for the leaders in telephone development are:

United States 13.7 telephones per hundred in habitants; Canada 11.0; Denmark 8.7; New Zealand 8.3; Sweden 6.7; Norway 6.1; Australia 5.0; Switzerland 4.6; Germany 3.8; Netherlands 2.7; Great Britain 2.5.

In the matter of miles of telephone wire in use per hundred inhabitants, our position is even more favorable aided no doubt by the great distances our western telephone systems must traverse. The figures here are:

Canada 28.0 miles per hundred inhabitanst; New Zealand 22.2; Denmark 20.5; Sweden 14.7; United States 37.0

Among fifty of the world' largest cities, as of January 1st, 1924, Toronto stood ninth in point of telephone development, being credited with 21.0 telephones per hundred inhabitants. In this list San Francisco with 23.8 is given first place, Ottawa with 17.4 telephones would be well up, but is apparently too small in population to be included in this particular list. Montreal with 11.4 telephones per hundred of population is in the 14th place.

Of the eight important nations from which the returns for the fiscal year 1923 are quoted, Canada is the lowest in point of earnings per telephone. The national currencies of the various countries have here been converted into United States currency at average rates of exchange for that year. The figures are: — Australia $50.71; Canada $43.14; Great Britain and Northern Ireland $58.18; Japan $54.46; Netherlands $61.17; Sweden $48.71; Switzerland $48.09; United States $43.49.' It would seem a fair inference here that on the average throughout the Dominion, the amount paid by telephone users for the service furnished them is not unreasonable when compared with other lands.

The figures show that in communities of less than one hundred thousand population, which would embrace the rural sections, Canadas telephone development is 9.2 'phones per hundred inhabitants. The next lowest under this head is New Zealand with 8.3; Denmark 6.9; Norway 5.3. The United States heads this list with 11.5 'phones per hundred.

You will find many things you thought you couldn't afford in the Classified Ads. of the Examiner.

SKINNY MEN RUN DOWN MEN NERVOUS MEN

Don't Miss This.

You're behind the time if you don't know that Cod Liver Extract is one of the greatest flesh producers in the world.

Because it contains more vitalizing vitamines than any food you can get.

You'll be glad to know that McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets come in sugar coated form now, so if you really want to put 10 or 20 pounds of solid, healthy flesh on your bones and feel well and strong and have a complexion that people will admire ask Warne Drug Co., McDermid and Jury, Jas. Lynch, Bond's Drug Store, or any druggist for a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets.

Only 60 cents for 60 tablets and if you don't gain five pounds in 30 days your druggist will hand you back the money you paid for them.

It isn't anything unusual for a person to gain 10 pounds in 30 days, and for old people with feebleness overtaking them they work wonders.

Canada won, last year, the King's Cup for marksmanship at Bisley.

POLICE ENFORCE CAMPBELLFORD TRAFFIC RULES

Implementing By-law Passed By Council in 1915 to Prevent Clogging Streets.

SOME CONGESTION.

Crowds of Shoppers on Wednesday and Saturday Evenings.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 23. — The police here have been active in enforcing the traffic regulations and some owners of cars appear to be under the impression that the officers are enforcing laws of their own making whereas they are simply pulling into effect a by-law which was passed by the Town Council in 1915. This by-law provides that all autos parked on the streets shall be headed in one direction on either side and that the right hand wheels shall not be more than 12 inches from the curb. The object of this is to leave as much as possible of the central portion of the streets open for traffic. No cars shall be allowed to stand two deep on the streets. This by-law applies to horse drawn as well as to motor driven vehicles. The police in enforcing it are simply carrying out a law that is in effect in other towns and cities and are at the same time looking after the interests of the business men whose customers come from all parts of the district.

There is a congestion of autos in Campbellford, every Wednesday and Saturday nights, the two main business evenings of the week. Chief Brown says he believes that there is not another town even of twice the population of Campbellford that can show such a crowd of shoppers on the evenings referred to.

Once a car is parked in a solid line extending for nearly a quarter of a mile on Front Street, it is almost impossible for it to get out of the procession until the entire line begins to break up, as it can neither back up or advance. Sometimes people who have completed their business in the store are obliged to wait for an hour or more before they can leave for home and this congestion works a hardship to other customers as well as to the merchant.

To obviate this difficulty, it has been suggested that the by-law be amended so as to allow cars to stand at an angle near the curb with the forward end pointing towards the middle of the street. At any time, a car, under this arrangement would be able to depart and another could take its place. So long as the angle permitted was not too acute, their would be sufficient space in the middle of the street for ordinary traffic.

Personal.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Wilson and daughter, Miss Roxie, have left on a trip to Rochester, Lockport and Buffalo, crossing to the American side by the ferry at Cobourg. They will return with a party of friends by auto, by way of Niagara Falls and Hamilton.

LATE CARDINAL BEGIN LIES IN STATE

While Cardinal Begin, late primate of the Roman Catholic Church for all Canada, lies in state in the magnificent robes of a prince of the church, an unending stream of mourners passes by the catafalque to pay their last respect to the memory of the venerable prelate who made his way from a little farm near Levis, Quebec, to the dignity of being chosen as second cardinal in the history of Canada. The body of his eminence, who passed away Sunday in his 85th year, is seen (above) lying in state in the archbishop's palace. The pope sent condolences.

RHODES WITHHOLDS STRIKE STATEMENT

Nova Scotia's Premier Confers With His Ministers.

SYDNEY, N.S., July 23 (Canadian Press).—The conferences between the Provincial Government and the British Empire Steel Corporation and the miners of Nova Scotia, which have been in progress the past two days in an effort to settle the coal strike, were adjourned yesterday until this afternoon, to allow a conference between Premier Rhodes and Col. Gordon Harrington, Minister of Public Works and Mines, and T. J. Brown, Deputy Minister of that department.

The parties to the present meetings have agreed to leave the issuing of statements to the premier, and Mr. Rhodes said last night that he did not think any beneficial purpose could be obtained by issuing a report on the negotiations at the present stage.

W. C. Good, provincial member of the Federal House from Brant, Ont., was a visitor in the mining areas yesterday for the purpose of looking over the industrial situation.

OBITUARY.

HENRY ERNEST SOUTHERN.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 23. — Henry Ernest Southern died early Wednesday morning at his home here. He was taken ill last Thursday night while at work, and although he had been laid up at his home ever since, his condition was not regarded as serious.

The late Mr. Southern had been a resident of Campbellford for 12 years, coming to this town directly from England, where he was born 41 years ago. For the past five years he had been foreman in the bakery of W. S. Wiggins. He is survived by his wife and seven children, the eldest of whom is not more than 17 years old.

The funeral will be held Friday afternoon to Christ church cemetery under Masonic auspices.

Darrow and Bryan Adorn Dimpled Knees of Mary Bell

OMAHA, Neb., July 23. — (United News).— The painted knees fad has hit Omaha. Mary Bell, 17 year old flapper, appeared on the street here Wednesday with a portrait of Clarence Darrow painted on her right and one of Wm. J. Bryan painted on her left knee.

Mary took her knees swimming in the afternoon to see if the portraits were waterproof. They were and she announced her intention of attending a dance during the evening, taking the portraits along.

Observers report that there is a fascination in the change of expression in the faces of the famous pair as Mary moves about.

When she stands, Bryan beams, when she sits he bromes a long faced prophet of gloom.

Relaxed, Darrow glowers, fixed, he has a quizzical expression as though he were putting, "did Jonah swallows the whale or did the whale swallow Johan."

HUSBAND SHOT IN DOMESTIC QUARREL

Upbraided Wife For Misconduct—He Will Recover.

SUDBURY, Ont., July 23. — Canadian Press. — Mrs. Ruth Adair of Capreol, is in custody in Capreol jail, charged with shooting her husband, with intent to kill

She shot him through the head, the bullet entering his cheek and passing out through his ear

He will live, but he will carry a scar for the balance of his lifetime as a remembrance of the closest shave between life and death in his experience,

While details are lacking the shooting is said to be the outcome of a domestic quarrel, during which the husband is said to have admonished his wife for misbehaviour. During the fight she went upstairs and secured a rifle and upon returning promptly fired into her husband's face.

It is stated that the woman had been drinking and that family relations had been strained for some little time.

ANDREW M'MASTER EFFECTED RESCUE

Brome M.P. and Son Save Man From Drowning.

KNOWLTON, Que., July 23. — Canadian Press. — Andrew McMaster, M. P., for Brome, and his son, John, saved a Mr. Legare of Grandby from drowning in a boating accident that claimed the life of Mrs. Germain of Montreal, on Sunday, it became known yesterday.

Hearing cries for help shortly after noon, Mr. McMaster and his son, who are at their summer home at Brome Lake, rushed for their motor boat, and went to the rescue.

When they arrived, however, Mrs. Germain had disapeared, but Mr. Legare was still clinging to an unturned boat and was rescued.

Mr. Legare and Mrs. Germain had been fishing when their boat cap-

LAWN SOCIAL WAS WELL ATTENDED

Threatening Weather Failed to Keep People From Event.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 23—The annual lawn social of the United Church at Wellman's Corners was held Wednesday evening on the Public School grounds. The sum of $114.00 taken in at the gate was sufficient evidence that the people of that district are not kept away from a social even by such a trifling matter as threatening weather. The sale of ice cream and other articles will, it is expected, bring the total net receipts up to $175.00 or over.

A fine musical programme was furnished by the Spencer Orchestra of Rylstone, consisting of father, two sons and two daughters, the instruments used being two violins, an organ, a banjo and a drum.

M. BRIAND EXPLAINS THE GERMAN NOTE

Following Careful Study the French Reservations May Be Published.

PARIS, July 23 (Canadian Press) —M. Briand, foreign minister, despatched a long letter last night to the French ambassador in London, M. De Fleuriau, embodying the results of a careful study of the German note on the proposed security pact. Details of the letter were prepared by M. Berthelot of the Foreign Office, and his assistants, so that the ambassador may make known to Austen Chamberlain, British Foreign Secretary, the numerous reservations which the note calls for on the part of the French Government.

PEACE A PROBLEM FOR ALL EUROPE

German Foreign Minister Says Pact Would Mean Industrial Freedom.

BERLIN, July 23. — (Canadian Press).— Germany has begun a peace offensive of an elaborate scale," Foreign Minister Stresemann declared in the crowded Reichstag last evening. He was the stellar attraction of the debate on Germany's answer to security pact proposals. 'Peace,' said Stresemann "Does not mean a Franco-German understanding, it is a problem for all of Europe." The problem of security for France, he said, was primary, for Germany it meant the assuarance of eventual freedom on the Rhine and the freeedom of German industry and elimination of fear of further sanctions. Foreign Minister Stresemann emphasized the hope that the pact would be extended to include Italy.

VANDALS BROKE WINDOW GLASS

Director of Seymour Fair Would Offer Reward For Conviction.

CHANGE PRIZE LIST.

CAMPBELLFORD July 23. — At a special meeting of the directors of the Seymour Agricultural Society the prize list for the fall fair was revised but no important changes were made. The lady directors were well represented and some action was taken with regard to the work in their department.

A number of windows in the Fair Buildings have been broken by vandals during the winter, Director T. J. Horgins insisted that a reward be offered for information that would lead to the conviction of the guilty parties. Mr. Horkins maintained that the directors as custodians of this property, owed it to the public to see that the buildings were properly cared for.

TWO GOALS SCORED IN FIVE MINUTES

Rousing Finish By Nanaimo Eliminated Connaught Cup Holders.

WINNIPEG, July 23. — (Canadian Press)-. — Scoring two goals in the last five minutes of play, Nanaimo, Connaught Cup holders in 1923, eliminated United Weston, the present holders from the competition by defeating Manitoba's pride 2 to 1, in the second and final game of the series here, last evening. The first game ended in a scoreless draw. Nanaimo will now meet the Eastern Winners in a two game series, the first of which will be played here on Saturday, for the Dominion honours.

BIRD SANCTUARIES ARE ATTRACTIVE

WINNIPEG, Man., July 23.—(Canadian Press).—One of the most striking instances of local bird protection is provided by the sanctuary of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. McDougal in East Kildonan, Man., on the Red River. Here birds for many years have been encouraged through feeding devices, nestling boxes, provision of shrubs suitable for nesting, planting of berry-bearing trees and eradication of bird enemies, and the birds have increased surprisingly as a result. This season, however, a new record was made. Thirty-two pairs of birds nested in the garden and bush immediately surrounding the house, an area of about two acres, and the list shows 13 different species.

Another splendid bird sanctaury of a different type is that of Mr. and Mrs. W. Innes, Headingley, Man. Sturgeon Creeks runs through their farm and here the nesting of wild ducks has been encouraged. Mallards, pintails and black ducks nest on the banks of the creek within 50 yards of the bulidings and placidly sit on their eggs while visitors pass at close range gazing at the unusual spectacle of tame "wild" ducks.

BURNBRAE TEAM TO PLAY GRAYS

Brighton Challenged to Game By Undefeated Township Team.

ON NEUTRAL GROUND.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 23.—Undefeated so far this season by as much as a single game, the Burnbrae team in the Seymour baseball league, is trying to arrange a game with the Brighton Greys of the Northumberland league, the team that has finished the first half of the season at the top without having a single reverse registered against them. It is the intention to have htis game played on a neutral diamond, with carefully selected umpires to officiate.

A resident of Campbellford has offered the Burnbraes a cash donation of $5 if they defeat Brighton and to give the Seymour league pitcher a bonus every time he manages to strike out "Doc" McKee, the star batter and all-round player of the Greys.

SEAPLANE CARRIED MONEY TO INDIANS

Trip of Two Months Made in Three Weeks.

OTTAWA, July 23. — Canadian Press. — Over 4000 Indians of the James Bay District received their treaty money with unprecedented promptness this year.

The trip to distribute the treaty money usually takes over two months. This year the work was accomplished in three weeks by means of a seaplane of the Ontario Provincial air service.

A. N. Aurey of the Department of Indian Affairs and Dr. G. Bell, of Sioux Lookout, have just returned to Ottawa from an official tour of the Northern Ontario section, where payments were made to the Indians.

The entire flight was made without mishap.

Mr. Frank Coulter's barn at Moneymore was struck by lightning on Tuesday night and burned.

BUBONIC PLAGUE SPREADING FAST

Since Appearance of Epidemic in Russia 100 Have Succumbed.

MOSCOW, July 22 (Canadian Press).—The Bubonic plague is spreading dangerously in the Lower Volga region. Thirty-one deaths from the plague were reported last week, bringing the total to almost 100 since the epidemic appeared in June. Special hospital barracks are being built for the isolation of patients, and sanitary detachments have been sent out to attempt to prevent further spread of the plague.

Canada has 1,240 fur farms, with a value, in animals, land and buildings, of $8,500,000, and that the raw fur industry is worth $16,750,000 from nearly 5,000,000 pelts.

THURSDAY, JULY 23, 1925.

WHY SUCH HASTE?

Much has been said about the menace of level crossings, and undoubtedly such crossings are a source of danger at all times—yet it must be remembered that ordinary caution on the part of automobilists would prevent accidents even at these points.

Readers of the Examiner will be surprised to learn that one United States railway, the Long Island Railway, recently issued a statement which declared that practically every day in the year one of its crossing gates is smashed by a motor car.

That means that in a year, in the case of one railway alone, some 365 drivers were careless or reckless or incompetent enough to drive through a protective device placed to save them from accidents.

No wonder we find the statement adding the fact that last year on its grade crossings 26 people were killed and 65 injured.

If motorists will deliberately ignore crossing gates and smash through at their own peril it seems idle to expect that they will be careful at other crossings where no protection is afforded.

Why there should be such undue haste to get somewhere, although in the majority of cases there is no occasion for being in a hurry, is a problem that affords much scope for study.

It is exemplified not only by drivers, but by pedestrians—everybody has seen a man rush across a crowded street, dodging motor cars, and then stop on the other side to light a cigarette.

STICK TO THE FACTS.

The Examiner believes that some discrimination should be used in advertising the merits of this district from a tourist viewpoint.

To acclaim to the world that a real fishermen's paradise is to be found in all parts of the Kawartha Lake district is departing a bit from the true line that should distinguish our publicity.

There is a genus of fisherman who wants something that the Kawarthas cannot give him, and it is not fair to him nor is it good business to bring him here looking for something that is not to be found.

There are places in Ontario which can provide him with all the thrills he wants, and he should be sent there.

The Kawarthas offer beautiful scenery, pure air, the best of facilities for bathing, sailing and canoeing, delightful shore dinner spots, everything that appeals to the man who is looking for an ideal place in which he and his family may enjoy a holiday under the most pleasant conditions.

Added to these advantages are enough fishing possibilities to enthuse the average angler.

Our advertising should emphasize these facts, and let the "fisher fools" who want to be battling with a game fish every five minutes of the day go to those sections of the Province where they can be satisfied.

Otherwise they go home from their holiday more or less dissatisfied, and their broadcasting is not the best publicity in the world.

HUMANITARIAN WORK.

The fact that such organizations as the Rotary Club and the Shriners are interesting themselves in helping crippled children is referred to by the Border Cities Star as significant of the humanitarian trend the world is taking today.

Peterboro people, in the light of what they know about the efforts of the local Rotary Club, will readily admit the truth of that statement, and will recognize a considerable advance from the time when crippled childrhen were regarded as a necessary and unpleasant burden.

Today the world realizes that every child is entitled to a fair chance in life, and the Rotarians and other service clubs are endeavouring to see that so far as is possible for them to bring it about that the crippled youngsters in their section of the world have an opportunity to succeed.

It is a splendid work—call it good business if you want to—and because the citizens generally appreciate its value the Rotary Club was given a demonstration last week of how nobly the community is prepared to co-operate when a good cause is to be helped.

In spite of the pessimists who persist in lamenting the passing of what they are pleased to describe as "the good old days," the Examiner believes the world is steadily getting to be a better place in which to live.

A PRETTY PROBLEM.

Peterboro has been practically served with an ultimatum that unless the city takes over the Peterboro Radial Railway from the Hydro Commission the community will soon find itself without any street railway service.

It is a lovely mess.

Representatives of the Hydro admit that the system has lost $181,000 since 1916, and that it has been allowed to deteriorate so completely that it would take at least $75,000 to rehabilitate it.

So they propose that Peterboro take over the system at $150,000, spend the $75,000 in improvements, and then allow the Hydro Commission to operate the system—although, on their own statement, they have been unable in the past to do anything more than produce a deficit of $181,000 in nine years.

Apparently the alternative is the abandonment of the service.

The city fathers are thus face to face with a very pretty problem, which has been foreseen for some time, but was always shoved into the background when it presented itself.

The situation is, of course, complicated by the fact that the deficits of the Peterboro Radial Railway, which was taken over when the Hydro Commission secured the whole Central Ontario power system, have been met by charging the people of other communities in the district more for their power and light.

Naturally they do not see why they should be charged more merely to provide the people of Peterboro with a luxury in the shape of street car service.

JUST A LOCAL INCIDENT.

John T. Scopes, Dayton school teacher, has been found guilty of teaching evolution, and fined $100. The oratory of William Jennings Bryan and the bombast of Clarence Darrow have been spilled and paid for, and the world goes on much the same as before.

The case has been exaggerated out of all proportion to the significance some have tried to attach to it, says the London Advertiser. Tennessee had a law forbidding the teaching of evolution in its schools; John Scopes broke that law, was found guilty and fined $100, and that's all there was to it.

William Jennings Bryan was a mile wide of the mark when he rushed in with the plea that on that monkey trial in Dayton the whole future of the Bible hinged, and that if he lost the case Christianity might as well be prepared to nail planks across the doors and close up shop.

If Mr. Bryan would only go out some fine night and sit in his backyard, away from every person, and take a long and thoughtful look at the stars; if he could see that the same Almighty God is revealed there as He is in the Old Book, Mr. Bryan would come to the conclusion that there was a mightier hand than his directing the affairs of this universe. He might also realize that it bordered on presumption for him to dash in and proclaim that on his puny aid the defence of truth alone rested.

Trial by jury can never settle what a man believes or what he does not believe. It doesn't work that way at all. Men believe or disbelieve as individuals and not as groups, and a man's relationship to his God will continue to be what it always has been, a matter for that man to decide himself.

PATRIOTISM.

A temporary resident in Toronto made the remark that Canadians are "inarticulate" and lacking in a sense of national destiny. The obvious rejoinder would be that, as we have here most of the essentials of nationality, it does not matter if we do not talk much about them, nor make such a display as is seen in the United States on the Fourth of July or in Toronto on the Twelfth. In area, resources, production and commerce, as well as in provision for education and other factors in civilization, the country ranks higher than all but a very few other nations, and its progress is all the more remarkable because of its small population. Having these essentials, it may be said we can do without celebrations and symbols.

There is a measure of truth in this, yet it may be that even substantial progress would receive an impulse if our patriotism were a little more self-conscious and self-assertive. A good deal is said about the need of making good Canadians out of newcomers, and this process would be aided if in our schools and elsewhere more were said about the history of Canada and the possibilities of the future. It is a wonderful history, beginning with the picturesque story of New France, its soldiers, explorers and priests, as told by Parkman, and passing on to the development of free democratic institutions upon the British plan. Self-government for British communities outside the United Kingdom had its birth in Canada, and was a distinctively Canadian idea, in adopting which Lord Durham and Lord Elgin showed statesmanlike wisdom. Confederation, as a solution of certain difficulties and a means of combining territorial expansion with local freedom, was the work of Canadian statesmen of both parties.

Canadians who have reason to congratulate themselves on the statesmanlike skill and common sense with which difficulties arising out of racial and religious differences have been handled. There has been friction, but ink has been shed here while blood might have been shed by people possessing less solidity and coolness of temperament, and today there is very little even of controversy as between French and English, Protestant and Catholic.

The story of material progress also is remarkable. The vast Western production of grain has become a commonplace, yet Ontario continues to be the leading agricultural Province of Canada, and Quebec is well to the front. And agriculture is now outstripped by manufacturing industry as regards the money value of the product, while the mines and forests are important sources of national wealth. In railway building Canada has been enterprising and daring almost to a fault, so that the problem now is to find population and business for the equipment that has been provided.

It is well to realize these things, not only as a matter of pride, but as a stimulus to effort. What has been done is an indication of what may be done. Such a heritage as that of Canada points to grave responsibilities as well as opportunities. Nine millions of people have to prepare the way for perhaps ten times that number, and to lay the foundations of a great national structure.—The Globe.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The paper that is wasted in arguing about the proposed pulpwood embargo represents a heavy drain upon our pulpwood resources in itself.

Our neighbors are going from bad to worse. Now a representative declares that he will introduce an anti-evolution bill in Congress.

It is not quite clear whether the city is expected to take over the street railway as a going concern or a "gone" one.

It is recalled that in 1885 an excursion of 400 people visited Ottawa. And the strange part about it is that they didn't go to the capital to press for the completion of the Trent Canal.

There seems to be a certain liveliness about the Sarnia old boys' reunion. Evidently the old boys are not so old after all.

As a contemporary puts it, the Dayton trial may be considered as proving that, while some men ascended from monkeys, others descended.

The Peterboro Exhibition is less than two months away. No wonder next winter's fuel supply is beginning to become a live issue.

It would be just as well to be truthful with tourists and tell them that we don't catch 35-lb. maskinonge here every day.

Toronto man was found driving his motor car while asleep, and the Peterboro Examiner says such a thing would never have been noticed in Belleville. No doubt a Belleville scribe will say something very mean about Peterboro and the war will be on. Haven't those boys down east ever noticed what took place in the Balkans!—London Advertiser.

The Bowmanville Rotarians who attended the Carnival Thursday wore "gob" hats, doubtless intending to suggest that they hailed from the shore of the great inland sea, Ontario.

A THOUGHT.

HEART FAILURE IN BUSINESS

The urn of understanding, the cranium of comprehension, the bonejug of judgment which is attached to the thing that costs us so much for clean linen collars—the spherical knob at the north end of the spinal column, where intelligence is supposed to reside, is a pretty well-developed resource in the average man. Most any man knows enough to know better, but he lets his heart direct his motives or actions. In fact, the head is a dupe of the heart.

You know men who possess unusual mental faculties, but their hearts have shrunk in them like dried peas in a pod. You can hear their hearts rattle when they talk—when they talk kindly, very kindly.

The most successful manager, as a rule, has a heart that is always green, not dried. You can tell the successful manager without even talking to him. You can tell him at a distance.

1. Heart failure in business is so common, even among managers; and by this I mean: Hearts will not work, will not co-operate with the cold, brainy manager..

My belief is that there are plenty of brains in this world, but true hearts are not so handy to find. And what is meant by "heart"? This is meant: Affections, that include sympathy, humor, temperament, moods.

You may hire the best brains, but if this service that you hire does not carry with it the pulsations of a willing and loyal heart, the chances are, you're cheated.

When the heart is on fire, when the spirit of service is shown in a man—when he is eager and earnest, the little mass of reasoning material we call the brain, will be compelled —will be compelled to work out the details.

My contention is that we often spend too much time in trying to train the intellect and not enough time in an effort to further develop the heart. The heart must glow before the brain will go.

PETERBOROUGH WAR VETERANS

sonally he had the greatest respect for the officers of the G. W. V. A. who had carried on ardous duties in the face of great difficulties. It was not their intention to form a ring, but the trouble was the Association had not enough members and not enough interest manifested to make changes, and a groove had been fallen into.

R. E. Layfield.

Cammander Layfield said he had no apologies to make for the officers of the G. W. V. A. The work entrusted to them had been done to the best of their ability, and to his mind, had been well done. The Peterborough branch has done wonderfully well in the way of helping returned soldiers who needed assistance. There has been $11,000 distributed in relief work, and with running expenses, including secretarial services, office expenses, insurance, taxes, and other expenses, the administration of relief work amounts in all to $25,198. This was paid out, not for frills or amusement, but for services to returned men and their families. In addition to this the Ladies' Auxiliary to the G. W. V. A. had distributed $5,649, making a total expended on relief and administration of $31,000.

In addition to this the Association has by its own direct efforts succeeded in securing for ex-soldiers in Peterborough up to February this year settlement of pensions totalling $500,000. Since February settlements had been made to the amount of about $30,000.

Explaining the equipment held by the G. W. V. A., the speaker said a grant of $10,000 was made by the city to the soldiers' organization. This will only revert to the city in case of the soldiers failing to maintain an organization. Equipment and plant amount to $55,000 or $60,000, and this is free of all encumbrance.

"This," the speaker said, "is the work to be done, and this is the equipment available to do it. The plant is not in the hands of the G. W. V. A. Dominion Command. It is held in trust for the returned soldiers of Peterborough, as they are organized, by five trustees. My office is up on September 1, and I shall retire to help from the ranks. I consider this a grand opportunity for branching out in the cause of unity. The friendships we made overseas should be continued through life. We have a privilege many will never have, and we will value this privilige more as we think of it, and as the years pass."

The Commander explained that the local organization is called the G. W. V. A., but is not really a member of the Dominion organization owing to failure to comply with a number of requests it considered unreasonable. "We have never participated in one dollar of a grant from the government," he declared. "The biggest cities have got it. We kept out of the inner ring of the G. W. V. A. Dominion Command."

Referring to the alleged profits made by the G. W. V. A. out of the sale of poppies. Comrade Layfield said the local Associatioin did not keep any of the proceeds, but forwarded all to Vetcraft. It was said the Dominion Command made 50 per cent., but the Peterborough branch had no share in it.

J. Winterbottom.

Comrade Winterbottom reported on his attendance at the recent conference, where he said the consensus of opinion was that all branches should go into the British Empire Service League. The feeling of the delegates at the conference was that the men would stick together.

The British Empire Service League, the speaker said, is something rather vague yet, the constitution not having been made known in Canada. The object, similar to that of the G. W. V. A., seems to be to help the dependents of men who were killed, and to effect the general welfare of returned soldiers in general. There is no room for communists or reds.

Other organizations than the G. W. V. A. did not appear to have any tanglible assests to bring into the new organization, and it appeared as though the G. W. V. A. would have to take the lead.

The speaker lauded the efforts of the secretary treasurer (S. Whatley) as a hard worker and an efficient executive. The secretary of such an organization as the G. W. V. A. requires a great deal of diplomacy, and a good knowledge of law in order to meet the arguments of the Department in refusing pensions.

As time goes on, Comrade Winterbottom said, the calls on the treasuity will be larger, as the men grow older. This is the greatest need for belonging to an organization that is going to be solid.

The British Empire Service League is growing steadily in other parts of the Empire, and members are flocking to it.

Need Greater Numbers.

The chairman expressed appreciation of the work already done by the G. W. V. A., but stid its numbers are not sufficient to enable it to perform efficiently the duties laid upon it.

In the open discussion that followed, the men present expressed generally their approval of any scheme that meant unity among exserivece men, and agreed that Earl Haig's plan seemed to fulfil that condition.

In answer to a question, Commander Layfield said there would be no difficulty in transferring the property now held by the G. W. V. A. to the new organization.

Comrade H. Burrows was of opinion that overhead expense should be cut down and more money devoted to relief work.

Comrade Wilford advised caution in abandoning the local Association for a ventire into an organization of which so little is yet known, although favoring the new League if it is as represented.

Comrade H. Dawson said the cooperation of civilians is of primary importance in any work of the returned soldiers.

Message From Haig.

A special despatch to The Examiner giving an interview with Earl Haig was read, and the vote on entering the British Empire Service League taken. Comrade Dawson and Coutts moved the appointment of the committee, and the personnel was arranged, members and non members of the G.W.V.A. naming individuals alternately .

Comrade Winterbottom introduced a motion of thanks to The Examiner for its efforts in behalf of the returned soldiers, and for the sympathetic reports of the local activities of the organization. This was heartly passed, the chairman adding his tribute to the assistance given ever since 1914. "The Examines," he said, "is one of the best friends the soldiers have."

Greetings To Haig.

On motion of Comrade Layfield, a message of greeting from the meeting was drafted to Earl Haig on behalf of the G. W. V. A. and the veterans of Peterborough in general, conveying good wishes and assuring him of their support in his plan for an empire league.

A meeting of the committee followed, at which the form of ballot on page one was drawn up.

CONFESSED THEFTS.

CALGARY, July 23. — Canadian Press. — Norman Fowler, aged 35, who says that he is a graduate in applied science in McGill, Class 1909, pleaded guilty in the police court yesterday to a charge of stealing various small sums of money from an office, and various homes in which he was a guest in the city.

Fowler produced two bank boiks to show that he had $1000 in Los Angeles banks. He was remanded until Saturday for sentence.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, July 22.—Trade at the cattle market today was a little more active than yesterday. There is however, still a heavy supply of rough and unfinished cattle to clear out before the week-end. To help in the clearing process, and as it would be unwise to hold cattle over, sellers have faced the issue, and are accepting the lower prices offered. A few odd lots of choice butcher and export cattle were sold at steady prices. Export steers, $7.50 to $8.15, and export bulls, $4.75 to $5.25.

Choice butcher steers and heifers, $6.50 to $7.25, with nothing extra choice in this class offering. Fair to good butcher, $6 to $6.50, and common $5 to $6. Fat cows easier at $4.25 to $5.

Choice butchers bulls, $4.50 to $5.

Calves firm at $9.50 to $10.50.

Lambs, firm at $16 to $16.50.

Hog steady to firm at $12.75 f.o.b.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, July 22 (Canadian Press)—Sudden fresh overturning of wheat values took place today. Ideal weather for the new Spring crop, together with unusual dearth of export business, left the market almost at the mercy of sellers. After falling to 11 1-2 to 15c under Saturday's top figures, wheat rallied somewhat and closed unsettled, 1 5-8 to 2 3-4c below yesterday's finish, with today's last sales 147 1-2 to 147 3-4 for September delivery, and 148 1-2 to 148 3-4 for December. Corn finished half cent to 2 1-8c up; oats at 1-8 cent decline to 1-4c advance, and provisions varying from 7c off to 5c gain.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, July 22 (Canadian Press).—The local market for car loats of oats was easier again today and prices were reduced 1-2 to 1 cent per bushel, which was attributed to the further decline at Winnipeg. The volume of business was small, the demand being only for odd cars to meet immediate wants.

There was no actual change in the local spring wheat flour situation, prices being maintained in spite of the further decline in cash wheat values at Winnipeg. Owing to the continued weakness in the wheat market of late, foreign buyers of flour have withdrawn from the market for the time being and the volume of new business was small. There was some demand from local and country buyers for broken lots in mixed car orders to meet actual wants.

A steady feeling prevailed in the market for millfeed under a continued good demand for supplies from local and country buyers, and a fair amount of business was done; the offerings were ample to meet all requirements. The demand for standard grades of rolled oats was moderate and prices were unchanged at $3.65 to $3.75 per bag of 90 lbs., delivered to the trade.

There were no further developments in the local egg market, but the undertone was firm at the recent advance in prices noted. The export business has been rather quiet of late, but sales of considerable quantities have been made for a fall shipment. The demestic trade continues rather quiet on account of the very warm weather prevailing and the falling off in consumption. The demand was chiefly for small lots. The receipts were 1,221 cases, as compared with 1,420 for the same day last week, and 1,725 for the corresponding day a year ago.

Butter Market Firm.

The receipts of butter today were 1,661 packages, as compared with 2,367 for the same day last week, and 1,041 for the corresponding day a year ago. A feature of the trade was the increased demand for creamery butter for export account. The supply of Western creamery on spot is very limited, and buyers state that the bulk of their purchases have to be made for shipment from the West. The tone of the market was firm and business on the whole was rather more active.

The receipts of cheese yesterday were 5,965 boxes, as against 11,056 for the same day last week, and 5,824 for the corresponding day a year ago. There was no improvement in the foreign demand for supplies, and business generally was reported quiet, but the undertone to the market was steady and spot prices were unchanged.

STORM RUMBLED OVER MARMORA

Town in Darkness During Violent Thundering Tuesday Night.

MARMORA, July 22 — Another storm of violence was experienced in this district on Tuesday evening. The power went off about 9 p.m., plunging the town in darkness. At 10.30 p.m. a clap of thunder was heard, bearing more resemblance to a cannonade than anything heard previously in this locality and causing considerable alarm. Again no destruction was wrought in town.

Sawmill Operating

The Pearce Co. sawmill is again the scene of activity. Operations were commenced on Tuesday by the Toronto Hardwood Company who have the mill leased for a number of years.

Mr. J. Gibbs spent the week-end at his home in Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Wright arrived home on Tuesday from their trip to Japan.

Several Marmora folk were attracted to the Oak Hill Tabernacle on Sunday. Services there on the next four Sundays are being conducted there by Evangelist Torrie of Toronto.

Mrs. Gano is on a visit to her son, Mr. Fred Wells.

JAZZ ORCHESTRAS ENTERTAIN MINERS

Tin Whistle Has Been Ousted by the Obliging Radio.

STEWART, B.C., July 23 (Canadian Press).—The radio has invaded the Northern mining camps.

It is only a few years since the lone musical instrument officially known to the Northern mining camps was the tin whistle manipulated by Pat Daly, picturesque prospector and promotor who, during the past few years, has won his way to the top rung among mining leaders of Northern British Columbia.

Today there is music in every camp, and it is not of the tin whistle variety either. When the Sourdoughs gather around the stove at night, they listen to grand opera and jazz played by the best companies and orchestras of the continent. The music floats to them through the ether from the theatres and hotels of the big cities to the south.

"Radio has changed the whole outlook of the Northern camps," said Oren F. Hill, one of the owners of the Chest group of claims on the Portland Canal as he debarked there, lugging what seemed on first sight to be the latest type of suitcase, but which turned out to be a radio set. "There isn't the same feeling of solitude and loneliness when the miner can tune in and listen to the roar of the crowd and the snappy melodies of musical comedy."

MISS POPE SEEKING SHARE IN MILLIONS

McClintock's Fiancee Claims Widow's Rights.

CHICAGO, July 23—Miss Isabelle Pope, who was to have married Billy McClintock, will file suit to obtain a widow's share of the McClintock millions within a few days, it was reported here yesterday.

The bride-to-have-been will base her action on the claim that she had a contract to marry Billy, and that Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Darling Shepherd prevented him from keeping the contract.

Shepherd, McClintock's foster-father, was recently acquitted on charges of murdering the youth. The will made by McClintock left most of the estate to Shepherd, with an annuity for Miss Pope, but Probate Judge Henry Horner refused to admit it to probate because of charges that Shepherd had used "undue influence" in getting the young millionaire to sign the will.

A damage suit may be filed against the Shepherds by Miss Pope it was intimated, charging them with conspiracy to prevent McClintock's marriage to her. This suit would present substantially the same claims and may be filed to protect her interests in case the circuit court upholds the will.

FIRST RYE CUT NEAR BRANDON

Crop Ripening Fast and Harvesting Will Be General Next Week.

RUST APPEARS.

BRANDON, Man., July 23 (Canadian Press).—The first fall rye has been hmarvested in this district. Rye cutting will be general in a week's time. The crop is likely to be a fairly good one and is ripening rapidly. Excellent haying weather prevails and farmers are finishing up this work in record time. Some are expecting to harvest a second crop later in the season as the growth is unusual this year.

Wheat, oats and barley are coming along splendidly, but would be the better for some rain. This particularly applies to early grains on light lands. Barley is turning a fine color and some should be ready to cut in three weeks' time.

Rust Near Saskatoon.

SASKATOON, July 23 (Canadian Press).—Traces of rust starting on wheat have been observed in this district, according to the statement yesterday of Prof. Manley Champlin, head of the Department of Field Husbandry at the University of Saskatchewan. What rust that has been seen is on the leaves. None has been seen on the stems of the wheat as yet, he said.

With favorable weather, it is not lively to develop enough to hurt any of the early crops, the professor stated.

RIOTS IN PITTSBURGH

Police Called to Clashing Whites and Negroes.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 23 (Canadian Press).—Five riot calls were received by the police early last night to quell what was said to be a riot between whites and negroes in an outlying section of the city. Fifteen police sent out on the first call were reinforced by a score of others and detectives.

FARMERS PADLOCK CONVENTION DOOR

Refuse to Make Public Any of Proceedings at Saskatoon.

SASKATOON, July 23 (Canadian Press).—The Farmers' Union of Canada has commenced its second annual convention at the Armory here behind closed doors. Up to the present officials of the union have refused to make any statement with regard to the proceedings. By vote of the convention, it was decided to exclude from the convention field service men of the Co-operative Elevator Company, Limited, even though members of the union. Following the vote, two of these members left the convention.

By vote of the convention it was decided that A. E. Bolton, former director of the Farmers' Union, should be permitted to address the convention before its close. Mr. Bolton was formerly one of the most successful organizers the union had. He resigned from the directorate to go to Russia on invitation of the Union of Soviet Republics, to attend at its expense the world conference on agriculture convened at Moscow this spring.

Different Colored Bird.

I saw Lady Oxford and Asquith the other day, says a British journalist. This does not mean that she spoke to me, but one always reports such things. An interviewer once boasted that he had jumped over Winston Churchill's shadow, and that, if he had not jumped smartly, the shadow would have hit him. Therefore, kindly take note; I saw Lady Oxford the other day.

She didn't see me. The crowd was too great. She was easily the most energetic person in the crowd, however, and her conversation was sparkling, as usual. Few people can sparkle conversationally better than Lady Oxford.

Here is one of her best sparkles. Conversation turned upon politics, and she remarked:

"There are three types of men whom you always find are Conservatives."

"Namely?" queried someone.

"Soldiers, sailors, and golfers."

"Mr. Lloyd George," observed the someone, "is supposed to fond of golf."

"Yes," answered Lady Oxford. "but I've never heard anyone call him a golfer."

EVOLUTION BILLS IN SEVEN STATES

National Drive Started By Bryanites—Scopes Case to Supreme Court.

DAYTON, Tenn., July 23—While Dayton relapsed into its wonted tranquility and its host of visitors melted away, the Scopes case yesterday started for the United States supreme court along two broad avenues.

Sooner or later, probably within 18 months, that tribunal will hand down a decision on the validity of the Tennessee anti-evolution law, which alone was at stake in the historic proceedings just ended.

Meanwhile, drives for anti-evolution laws will be started in at least seven states, as soon as their legislatures convene, according to a statement by William Jennings Bryan.

Upon the ultimate decision of the United States supreme court will depend the success or failure of these laws and of the fundamentalist campaign to root the evolutionary theory out of American schools.

The Scopes case itself will go to the Tennessee supreme court, at Knoxville, Tenn., for hearing at its September session. If this court upholds it, it will travel thence to Washington. If it overturns it, the issue will go to Washington through a parallel proceeding in the federal courts, which was started before the trial here, but which has lain dormant during these sensational proceedings.

The attack through the federal courts will travel via the United States circuit court of appeals at Cincinnati. It is based upon two bills, one by Scopes, alleging that the Tennessee law deprives him of his property right as a teacher "without due process of law;" the other is by Robert M. Wilson, a taxpayer of Tennessee, alleging unconstitutional interference with the education of his children.

WESTWOOD PERSONALS

WESTWOOD, July 22.—The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed in the United Church on Sunday, the pastor, Rev. J. Archibald officiating. Preceding the administration ofthe Sacrament a special service was held when three new elders were ordained, namely: Messrs. G. A. S. Humphries, John Sargent and Fred Warner.

Rev. M. L. Hinton, of Hastings will exchange pulpits with Rev. J. Archibald, on Sunday next.

Miss Ethel Douglas, of Stamford, is visiting at her home here.

Miss Bessie Sargent was in Hamilton last week.

Mrs. John Drummond, of Peterborough, is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Drummond.

Miss Gladys Humphries is spending the summer vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. S. Humphries.

The Presbyterian service was very ably conducted on Sunday last by Mr. Richard Lees, Peterborough.

Mrs. John Weir and Miss Pauline, also the Misses Burgess, of Norwood, attended service here on Sunday afternoon.

Miss Ethel Steele is spending the vacation with her parents, Mr. and Miss Joseph Steele.

Mrs. G. A. S. Humphries is visiting friends in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Henderson, and Miss Margaret Bryce of Keene, were in the village on Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Hogg, also Mrs. George Hogg of Norwood, spent Sunday afternoon in the village.

TEACHING OF EVOLUTION THEORY IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS IS ATTACKED BY U. S. SUIT AGAINST SALARIES

Action for Injunction to Prohibit Payments in District of Columbia Begun.

DISPUTE BROADENS

Teaching of Disrespect for Bible is Phrase Directed at Evolutionists.

WASHINGTON, July 23—(Canadian Press).—An action which may throw the whole evolution question into the Federal courts for judicial determination as to whether the teaching of this scientific theory inculcates disrespect for the Holy Bible was begun here yesterday by Lorne H. Whittner, a government employee.

The vehicle employed iis a rider to the 1925 District of Columbia appropriation bill which provides that "no part of this sum (for the public schools) shall be available for the salary of any superintendent who permits the teaching of, or any teacher who teaches, disrespect for the Holy Bible."

The action is in the nature of an injunction proceeding directed at the auditor and disbursing officer of the District of Columbia, and Frank White, Treasurer of the United States, to prohibit them from making further payments of salaries to Frank W. Ballou, Superintendent of Schools, and W. P. Hay, head of the Department of Biology and Chemistry in the Washington High Schools.

Immediately upon the filing of the proceedings, Justice Siddons of the District of Columbia Supreme Court issued a rule on the two district officials, Daniel J. Donovan and James R. Lusby, and Mr. White, driecting them to appear July 28 to show cause why an injunction should not issue against them.

Twenty-five Persons Injured in Cheyenne, Wyo.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., July 23 (Canadian Press).—About twenty-five persons were injured, none seriously, when a sixty-foot section of the wooden bleachers collapsed at Frontier Park, during the frontier days' wild west celebration. Approximately three hundred persons were seated on the bleachers which gave way.

WOMEN DISPUTE MEN'S MONOPOLY

25 Lady Lawyers in Washington—150 Study Law in University.

MONTREAL, July 23.—(Canadian Press).—"Women, who are as capable as men, will be paid salaries equal to those of men who are doing similar work, before very long," said Miss Dorothy A. Moncure, attorney in the War Department at Washington and President of the Phi-Delta-Delta Women's Legal Fraternity of the United States, interviewed while in the city.

"In George Washington University alone there are 150 girls studying law. To enter the law course an arts degree will be required in the next year or so, although at the present time one may study law after having taken only two years of the arts course. Policewomen take up law to improve their general activities, and many girls who aspire to leading positions in the Government, study law as it leads them to better things and makes their work more interesting. Most of the women lawyers in Washington favor civil cases, although women are adapted also to the criminal cases. Twenty-five women at the United States capital are practising law very successfully on their own account and have proved an inspiration to the hundreds of girls in the United States who enter law schools every year."

WAX MASK LATEST FASHIONABLE FAD

Smart Women Are Flocking to the Sculptor's Studio.

LONDON, Eng., July 23 (Canadian Press).—The latest fad is to have a wax mask made of your face, and society women are flocking to the studio of Charles Herman, the French sculptor, says The Graphic. It is curious how fads run in cycles, dying away and recurring again. Mr. Herman, who is in his sixties, made his first mask in his 'teens, and he has made 16,000 of them. "It was Maria Camilla, a Paris trapeze artist, who started the craze," he says. "She was famous in the eighties, and every night she used to take from her red garter a flexible image of her face and throw it to her admirers. Then it became the craze to have the mask of your face made after a Turkish bath."

ATTRACT INDIAN YOUTHS TO ARMY

Committee in India Plans to Give Them Military Education.

CONSIDER R.M.C.

SIMLA, India, July 23 (Canadian Press Cable via Reuters)—Motalel Nehru, the new leader of the Swarajist or home rule party, successor to the late C. R. Eas, has accepted membership in the Indian Sandhurst (military college) committee, of which the chairman is Sir Andrew Skeen, general officer commanding-in-chief, Southern command, India. The committee will enquire into the means of attracting qualified Indian youths to the army and giving them a military education.

This news is of considerable political interest as it is the first time a Swarajist has accepted a seat on a government committee.

A sub-committee of the Indian Sandhurst committee will visit England in the autumn to study the conditions of training at the military colleges at Sandhurst and Woolwich.

The sub-committee will also probably proceed to Canada to look into the training at the military college at Kingston, Ont.

EARL HAIG HAS CONFIDENCE IN ABILITY OF HIS LEAGUE TO LINK CANADA'S VETERANS

Believes His Journey Has Been Successful in Stirring Interest of Soldiers.

A GREAT IDEAL

Loyalty, Comradeship and Ties of Empire Are Paramount, He Says.

PORT ARTHUR, July 23 (Special to The Examiner.—Interviewed here yesterday prior to embarking on the steamship Noronic with his party, en route for Sarnia, London, Toronto and Montreal, Field Marshal Earl Haig expressed his conviction that the time and trouble expended in visiting the returned men of Western Canada and the Pacific Coast has not been wasted.

"Canada," said the Field Marshal, "is the last of the Dominions to weld its returned men into one united body in which loyalty, comradeship, and the strengthening of the ties of Empire stand paramount to all other issues. It was my hope and the hope of those who accompanied me to the recent convention of the British Empire Service League in Ottawa and subsequently on the trip across Canada, that we might aid in bringing about the unification of the various organizations which under different names and different officers are attempting to serve and to represent the returned men of this Dominion. The objections to be overcome, the difficulties to be adjusted did not, and do not now, appear to us to be insurmountable. The solution lies entirely, as I see it, in a re-establishment of that confidence in one another and that faith and comradeship and the determination to work together to achieve a common objective which characterize the Canadian and indeed all corps of the British Army during the late war and which contributed to such a large degree towards the success which we won and the honor they brought to Canada and the whole Empire.

"The condition existing among the returned men of Canada today is not dissimilar to that which existed in Great Britain and the other Dominions shortly after the close of the war. Except in Canada, that condition no longer obtains as a result of the foundation in 1921 of the British Empire Service League. That league is entirely non-sectarian in character. It is completely detached from and has no association with any political party. Its programme is to weld all the returned men's organizations of the Empire into one comprehensive organization in which the various entities while preserving their autonomy in all respects may find a common meeting ground for the discussion and solution of those difficulties which are common to all, which includes in its objects the welfare of the returned men and those widowed and orphaned by the late war, closer co-operation between the Dominions and the Old Country and a closer and greater reciprocity between each and every Dominion and colony. Such a league can only function when it has as its members those who can speak in a voice of full authority for all the returned men in the Dominions they represent. Unhappily, that condition does not exist in Canada at present, and it was to bring about that unity or rather to sow the seed which we trust will bring it about that my colleagues and I have made this trip across Canada and back.

Mission Successful.

The spontaniety and warmth of the welcome we have received in each place, large and small, that the limited time at our disposal has permitted us to visit, has assured us that our mission has, at least, not been unacceptable. But that which has given me the greatest hope that some of the seeds of our appeal to the returned men of Canada will take root and flourish, has been the many expressions of a desire for unity and the formation of one ex-service organization in Canada. It has been a keen pleasure to me to realize that a very large number of returned men who now belong to no veterans' organization in Canada, have given me their promise to join and to support to their full power any body which can speak with one voice and under one name for all the returned men of Canada.

I have been given to understand that something like 75 per cent. of the returned men in Canada belong to no organization today, but I am convinced that all or nearly all such men will gladly ally themseves with any body which can speak with authority for the service men of the Dominion. It is equaly encouraging to be told directly and indirectly that men now members of different organizations stand ready to respond to the call to join one unified body representing them all, whenever the call is issued by those who constitute their leaders.

"That is the thought I have brought back with me from Western Canada. I am now on my way to visit Toronto and Montreal and I hope that before I sail from your great country, a definite step forward may be noticeable in that movement for the unification of all organizations of returned men, which is so close to my heart, and which seems to me as important for Canada and the whole Empire as for Canadian ex-service men themselves.

FAMOUS "FIRSTS"

THE ANTIQUITY OF DOLLS

If you are a member of the gentler sex you can doubtless recall the most thrilling incident of your childhood—your first, and best-beloved doll. It was Christmas Eve and mystery was in the air. Whispered consultations behind closed doors, sly references to good things and the smell of the evergreen tree, all combined to give you a sleepless night. How you sprang out of bed the next morning at the heretofore unheard of hour of seven, and ran eagerly downstairs to take a furtive peep at your gifts! After much hasty fumbling you found it—the first real baby-doll you could call your own, with just the suggestion of hair on its shiny pate, real fingers, n'everything.

For the next few months you haughtily passed the row of home-made dolls you had, in a moment of loneliness, managed to devise. There they sat, the Gingham Baby, Black Eustace and fair Eva, a forlorn group of rag children, while you devoted all your time to the insolent newcomer. But being a child, your heart soon went out to the old favorites, and soon you introduced Mary Ann or Emmy Lou to her kinsfolk.

If you were a young lady with leanings toward the maternal, these dolls became for you, not playmates but children to be fondled and spanked, admonished and taught. Each morning they had to undergo the routine of being washed and clothed, each evening undressed and placed side by side in a corner of your own little cot.

If, however, you scorned the call of tiny arms and had visions of following a career when you were a full-fledged member of society, your dolls were transformed from irresponsible infants to scholarly disciples. Each morning they came to school at the appointed hour, fully dressed (thereby relieving you of the necessity to wash and clothe them) and ready for serious work. You went over their lessons assiduously, and although the response was not especially enthusiastic you shrugged your shoulders and said: "Every teacher has her ups and downs."

Since dolls are the universal playtoys of children the world over, it is not strange that we should learn they were just as popular thousands of years ago as they are today. Archaeologists have discovered, in tiny sarcophagi in Egypt, tiny figures made of clay which have a resemblance to the mummies themselves. They were doubtless placed there by loving mothers within reach of the cold little baby fingers. In Pompeii a child's skeleton was found clasping a doll to her breast.

The oldest doll in America, and indeed the oldest piece of sculpture that has ever been upturned from the earth, was a pumice-stone figure found in 1889 in a bed of gravel at Nampa, Idaho. A certain Mr. Kurtz was engaged, at that time, in boring an artesian well on his property in Nampa. Drilling through sixty feet of soil, he reached several feet of lava, quicksand, clay, and then coarse sand. From the latter, the doll was brought up by the sand-pump. At first this doll was thought to be a petrified twig, but after Mr. Kurtz had washed it in a barrel, he found it was a well-proportioned doll. This doll was later turned over to professors who considered it a valuable find and preserved it as an antique.

Within the last fifty years toy making in America has had a phenomenal rise. All manner of remarkable contrivances calculated to set the heart of a youngstter aglow, are turned out methodically, and at a remarkable speed each year. Dolls with real hair, in all glorious shades, dolls with collapsible backs, dolls which squeak and talk and sing—are no longer a novelty. And it is a far cry from the clumsy wooden baby dolls of long ago to the sophisticated, elegantly coifed young misses we turn out today. But whether these cosmopolitan playmates are more highly prized by children today, than the ugly dolls of their ancestors were centuries ago is a question.

Dolls Are Universal Toys the World Over.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

ARMY PLAN OF FITTING SHOES IS THE BEST.

In the summertime the feet hurt if they ever do. The heat of the shoes and of the sidewalks produce a combination which makes for discomfort if not for actual pain.

Civilized man has not treated his feet very well. It has not occurred to him to imprison his hands, but he certainly placed his feet in solitary confinement.

The foot is very complicated in its muscular arrangement. Twelve leg muscles reach down to the foot and attach themselves to its many bones. Thus each foot has twenty muscles of its own.

So far as muscles, bones and all the mechanical arrangements are concerned, the foot and toes are capable of doing everything the head and fingers can do. Perhaps you have seen, as I have, persons who have lost their hands and have educated their feet to perform all the usual manual arts. Using a knife and fork and even playing a piano, or operating a typewriter, are within the power of these handless individuals.

But we have chosen to encase the foot in a hard and unyielding shoe, preventing all, except the most limited movements. What is worse, we are prone to divert the foot from its normal position by elevating the heel and compressing the toes. High heels and pointed toes make of the shoe a torturing instrument and disturb the posture of the body by changing its foundation, the feet.

We hear much these days about fallen arches. This is a defect due in most instances to walking too early in life, or to wrongly fitting shoes.

It is a mistake to hurry the child about learning to walk. He should not walk until the little bones have grown firm and the foot muscles have gained sufficient strength. Even though your neighbor's child, younger than yours, can walk and run, don't worry about the slowness of yours. Give the baby time to develop his bones and muscles.

If shoes are big enough for the feet and properly made, it will make a lot of difference with his foot comfort in the future.

Walking is one of the best forms of exercise. It should be practiced by everybody, but it cannot be enjoyed unless the shoes fit the feet. It is impossible to make the feet fit the shoes and, unfortunately, that effort is a common one. Trouble attributed to "fallen arches" is usually nothing more than trouble due to wrongly fitting shoes.

In the Army the shoes are selected as to length and width by measuring the foot when the soldier is standing and carrying the maximum marching weight of materials. Naturally, the foot is crowded forward and broadened by this procedure. In consequence, the shoe selected will be big enough to make the foot comfortable when walking.

Take good care of your feet in summer—and all the time.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

FRIDAY, JULY 24.

Substantial progress and a bright financial prospect are forecast from the dominant planetary operations. Jupiter and Saturn both favoring steady growth in business, and stable returns for industry, perserverance and ambition. The mind may be serious and personal affairs, especially as relating to the affections, may assume some peculiar aspect, though not an unpleasant one. It may, however, be sensational.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of steady growth in business and finance. The mind may be serious but the judgment reliable. There may be some singular or sensational developments in romantic attachments. A child born on this day should be studious, ambitious and persevering. It may make steady progress in life, rising to a good position, and have some singular experience in its personal relations.

DICY MEETS A REAL-FOR-SURE ONAGRA

"Well," Dicky exclaimed as he read the sign above the fence, "they may spell your name—O-N-A-G-R-A, if they want to, but you sure do look like a mule to me!"

"Of course I do," replied the animal behind the fence. "I'm called by both names, Onagra or Wild Ass. Now as for myself, I like the sound of Onagra much better than Wild Ass. But no matter what they call me, I'm there when it comes to food. Haven't you ever seen an Onagra, before?"

"No, I can't say that I have," replied Dicky. "And I want to say right here, you certainly are a pretty creature. I like your sleek, shiny yellowish coat, and your long slender legs. Daddy has several mules on his place, but none of them can compare in looks with you."

"Of course not," neighed the proud beast. "But I guess if I were made to work like they are, I wouldn't be so good looking myself. Now in Asia where I came from, we are thought more of than my relatives are in America. Even taming us doesn't take away our sleek coats, and as far as being of use, they know how to work us. There we draw the carriages of the very wealthy people. I guess that's because we are swift and sure of feet, over the rocky roads."

"I'll bet you can run," said Dicky glancing at the long slender legs, "I'll bet you cover the ground in no time."

"You win that bet all right," laughed Mr. Onagra, "for we can out-run the Arab horse any day. What do you think of that? Can your mules do that?"

Dicky thought of the two mules his Daddy had for plowing out in the country and then he laughed.

"Our mules could not run that fast," he said. "I don't think your ears are as long as our mules," he added.

"No, I guess our ears are shorter," replied Mr. Onagra. "But they are plenty long enough for me to hear the dinner call. Back in Asia, I never worried when I didn't get a meal on time, for we are noted for our endurance powers. We're like a camel in that respect; but here in the Zoo, they have spoiled me. I dash like mad when I see the keeper coming with my food. My wife is over in the other part of the field. Come back again some day and chat with her. She loves to talk about herself better than I do. There comes the keeper now. That means dinner for me, so if you'll excuse me I'll go and meet him. He likes me." And away he ran, leaving Dicky watching him.

The keeper tossed him a nice red apple, which Mr. Onagra munched, thanking the keeper by nodding his head.

Dicky watched the keeper feed all the animals in that section, then he ran on home.

"Next time, I'll stuff my pockets with apples," he told his Mama after he had related his tale to her, "then he'll tell me everything he knows."

"Post Cards."

HAL COCHRAN'S DAILY POEM

And now comes the season when mailmen have reason to stoop kinda low neath their pack. For folks, on vacations, remember relations and send picture postal cards back.

The reason may be, just between you and me, that vacationers dislike to write. It isn't so hard just to write out a card, but to mailmen it's really a fright.

We go on a trip and we don't give a rip about anything else but our play. Yet, somehow it's fun, when vacation's begun, just to write and send postals away.

Your friends never need 'em—yet, maybe they read 'em. They know that they'll come every year. The message that's sent very likely is meant. It's simply, "I wish you were here."

But mailmen, no doubt, wish the fad would wear out, for they suffer whenever we roam. And, while we're out fishin', I'll bet they are wishin' we'd all hurry up and come home.

NO 'LOW BRIDGE' FOR VANCOUVER

Plan Highest Bridge on Continent to Cross Harbor.

CLEAR 185 FEET

VANCOUVER, B.C., July 23.—(Canadian Press).—Vancouver may soon win the distinction of possessing the highest bridge on the American continent. Plans are now being prepared for the erection of a narrow bridge longer than the faomus Brooklyn bridge to span the First Narrows at the entrance to this port. The structure, as proposed, will have a clearance of 185 feet above water and will be of the suspension type with a span of approximately 1,700 feet.. In length it will be exceeded only by the Quebec bridge.

The bridge will join Vancouver and with West Vancouver and North Vancouver and will accomodate motor and pedestrian traffic. British capital will enter largely into the financing of the scheme which will cost approximately $4,000,000 and it is expected that through the establishment of a toll system sufficient revenue will be derived to make it a paying proposition. It is estimated that construction would occupy two years.

CORNER STONE LAID.

Masonic Ceremony at Anglican Church, at Bath, Ont.

KINGSTON, Ont., July 23. — A very large number of visitors from all over Ontario were in the historic village of Bath yesterday, for the ceremonies incidental upon the laying of the corner stone of the new St. John's Anglican Church which is to be erected on the site of the old edifice which was destroyed by fire some months ago after having stood for one hundred and thorty two years.

The service was conducted by Rev. Canon F. D. Woodcock of Brockville and Rev. W. G. Swayne, rector of the parish of Bath, while the actual laying of the corner stone was carried out by Col. W. M. Ponton, of Belleville, past Grand Master of the Masonic Order, with the impressive Masonic ritual reserved for such occasions.

Addresses were delivered by Col. W. F. Ponto, Col. S. S. Lezaire, H. F. Ketchesaon, E. J. Sexsmith and C. H. Hambly, M. P.P.

OIL NEAR CALGARY.

Strike of Considerable Quantity at Foremost.

CALGARY, July 23. — Canadian Press. — Oil in considerable quantities has been struck in No. 5 well in the Foremost field of the Canadian Western Natural Gas and Power Company, it became known in Foremost yesterday, says a special despatch to the Herald.

The oil was struck at a depth of the hole, covering the 60 foot string the hole, covering the 60 foot string of tools and about 40 feet additional of the cable.

HEAVY FLOW OF GAS.

EDMONTON, July 23. — Canadian Press. — C. J. Yorath, President of the Canadian Western Natural Gas, Light, Heat and Power Company, said "Yes; we struck oil shales at 2000 feet in No. 5, Foremost well, but it is nothing to get excited over. It was no 25-barrel a day strike. The shale has simply traces of oil. Our own geologist and others examined it and we decided that it was not worth exploiting. So we went on drilling and struck gas further down. Now No. 5 well is giving us 10,000,000 cubic feet of gas per day."

GIRL DROWNED IN MINE SHAFT

WAS ABANDONED.

SUDBURY, July 23 (Canadian Press).—Simone, 11-year-old daughter of Albert Landriault, Coniston, was drowned Tuesday afternoon in an abandoned mine shift, filled with water, one mile and a half east of Coniston. The body was recovered. The deceased girl, with her two sisters, was out blueberry picking and came upon the hole filled with water.

CANNIBAL ESKIMOS EAT INDIAN FAMILY

Hunger Driven Northern Dwellers Cook Human Flesh, Says Trapper.

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., July 23.—Canadian Press. — A tale of cannibalism, in the far reaches of Saskatchewan, north of Fond du Lac, last winter, brought about by one of the worst famines in years, was told by H. C. Twigge, manager of the Revillon Freres Trading Company Post at Clear Lake, 370 miles northwest of Prince Albert, who arrived here yesterday.

Mr. Twigge declared that an old Indian hunter and trapper, whose Christian name is Michael Archie, told him that Eskimos north of Fond Du Lac, driven to desperation by hunger, killed and ate a man, woman and child of the Chippewaian Indian tribe, last winter.

The aged trapper told of finding the bones of the victims, and places where they had been boiled over a fire and eaten, and, Mr. Twigge understood, he had also informed Constable Z. Chappuis, of the Provincial Police at Fond Du Lac, of the tragedy.

CHANGED.

A colored mammy came into the office of the estate for which she worked to receive her monthly wages. As she could not write, she always made her mark, on the receipt—the usual cross. But on this occasion she made a circle.

"Why," Linda explained earnestly. "Ah done got married yesterday an' changed mah name."

ADMIRALTY VICTOR OF CRUISER PLAN

Churchill Suffers First Serious Defeat in Allowing Four Ships.

LONDON, July 23. — A cabinet crisis over the cruiser programme is seemingly settled with a partial victory for the Admirality. The Admirality laid down, as an irreducible minimum four big cruisers to be commenced in the present fiscal year.

Winston Churchill in the end had to give way but three of these cruisers will be laid this year.

This is first serious defeat Churchill has sustained in the cabinet.

SUGGESTIONS FOR SOLVING CROSS-WORD PUZZLES

Start out by filling in the words of which you feel reasonably sure. These will give you a clue to other words crossing them, and they in turn to still others. A letter belongs in each white space, words starting at the numbered squares and running either horizontally or vertically or both.

The solution will appear in to-morrow's paper.

Some things that birds do are very misleading. We may think that birds are friendly and showing great wisdom, when they are really very stupid.

One spring, very early, about the middle of May, my wife came with me to the woods, to look at the camp and arrange for the summer vacation.

It was a few years ago, about the time that those outboard motors first became popular. They would refuse to go at times. This was one of the times.

I was sitting on the dock (what was left it from the year before), and had the outboard motor fastened on the frame of the dock at the outer end, so that the engine was not much in the water. I wanted the propeller to have very little work to do, so that the engine would gain speed and keep running.

Every time I woud start it, the thing would start in the regular way and then race like made for a few revolutions, then slow down and stop.

This must have sounded very much like the drumming of a male partridge, for I thought the drumming of the bird was a balky motor boat engine the first time I ever heard it, in the woods. At any rate, I awoke to the fact that a partridge, a female, was almost at my elbow.

This partridge had come from the mainland, a few rods over the water, and had doubtless expected to find a possible sweetheart. At least this is how it appears to me, for she strutted around, seeming to be looking for somebody, and every time she disappear in the brush, I would give the engine another start, it would put-put-put very rapidly and peter out, and the partridge would return and look me over in a very astonished manner.

I have read, since that time, thta these birds will come out of the woods to an auto or to a farmer on a tractor, and seem very tame. It must be that the engine, echoing across the water or fields, sounds like the drumming of the male, by which he lets the woodland creatures know where to find him.

It must be an industrious youth that provides against age; and he that fools away the one must either beg or starve in the other.—L'Estrange.

A LINE-O-TYPE.

Last night's decision of the war veterans of Peterborough to enter the British Empire Service League proposed by Earl Haig, formerly commander-in-chief of the British forces in France, is far-reaching. The bane of local soldier organizations has been the lack of interest shown by veterans, only a very small number having become affiliated. It is believed that with its broader outlook, its all embracing scope, and its widened sphere of service the great union of all returned men that is visioned by Earl Haig will have a splendid reception and will be crowned wtih the greatest success.

That Peterborough War Veterans are the first to move in Canada reflects credit on their foresight, and shows that the need of such an organization has been felt. For some reason the G.W.V.A. has never at any time appealed to the whole force of returned soldiers, and well-wishers of the soldiers hope for good results from this new plan.

MY FESTAL WEEK IN ROME

Rome is festive every week this year. Last week began with a royal event, the celebration of the King's 25th jubilee. The morning military review continued all afternoon with processions under the balcony of the Palace, and ended with a reception to two thousand guests, from the mayors of little villages to the gayly robed chieftains of Italian Africa. The Vatican followed this with the Corpus Domini Day but the most gorgeous festival was the religious feast of Genzano, known as the Infiorata. A carpet of flowers with elaborate designs composed entirely of petals and the blue lees of wine was laid on the street from church to church, to be trampled on by the procession which went along singing. Only Rome can waste such flowers. Only Rome can show the visitors such festival days.

BOTHERED WITH LARGE PIMPLES

Burned and Made Face Sore. Cuticura Healed.

"For four years I was bothered with hard, large, red pimples in blotches on my face and neck. The pimples came to a head and festered and looked terribly, and at times burned and made my face very sore. My face looked so badly that I used to feel embarrassed when I went in public.

"I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they helped me, and after using three or four cakes of Cuticura Soap and a few boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed in three months." (Signed) Miss Vera Sweny, 1 Gibson Ave., Toronto, Ont.

TELL SCHOLARS OF ARMENIANS

Miss Fridler Will Soon Be Leaving for Damascus.

MORE SPINSTERS

MARMORA, July 23.—An interesting talk on the persecutions of Armenian Christian was given at the United Church Sunday School on Sunday morning by Miss Bertha Fidler who in early September will be departing for Damascus, Syria, to take up orphanage work there under the auspices of the United Missionary Board. Miss Fidler is the guest of her sister, Mrs. H. R. Haacke, for a few days, at Crowe Lake.

Three More Spinsters.

Four birth within one week is surely worthy of mention in a town of but eight hundred. Three girls and one boy were left by the stork in this town which already has its quota of spinsters.

Marmora and Deloro branch of the G.W.V.A. held a special meeting on Monday evening.

The Booster Club is arranging for a large picnic to be held at Crowe Lake during the stay of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in town.

Rev. W. P. Woodger, B.A., of Grace Church, Trenton, was the preacher at the United Church on Sunday evening.

REMODEL STORE

Hastings Business Property is Being Repaired by New Owner.

HASTINGS, July 23.—Mr. J. O'Sullivan has purchased the store on Front street recently owned by late Mrs. A. Chapman. The building is being reshingled and the front repaired. The east half of the building is occupied by Mr. J. Stevenson and the west half when fully repaired will be occupied by Mr. Dan O'Sullivan who will move his barber business.

MILLBROOK PERSONALS

MILLBROOK, July 23.—Mr. F. Pendrie, of the firm Fowler and Pendrie, is holidaying with his brother, Mr. J. Pendrie, Rochester, and will also visit in Toronto during his two weeks' absence.

Mr. Bruce B. Dawson is in Toronto taking the short course at the University this month.

Mrs. Harris, of Toronto, who has been visiting Miss Mary Kells, and Miss Annie Armstrong, the past two weeks, returned home on Tuesday.

Mr. Fred Armstrong of New York is the guet of his aunts, Mrs. T. B. Collins and Miss Annie Armstrong.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Burnham and family recently motored to South Beach, joining friends for a days' outing at that point.

SCHOOL LOCATION CREATES DISPUTE

"Not Likely" Was Logan of Minority in B. C. Community.

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 23.—(Canadian Press).—Up in the Likely-Poquet Pass district, north of Williams Lake, the settlers take their education seriously and can boast of a "little red school-house" furnishing traditions even before it is built.

When it came to building the school, the first to be erected in the district, the inhabitants divided into two hostile camps on the question of location, and there probably would have been bloodshed had the police not intervened.

A minority of the settlers affected demanded that the school be built at Poquet Pass, which is a mile and a half away from Likely. The majority of the parents favored the town of Likely itself as the location. Agreement appeared to be impossible and the School Board resigned.

The Provincial Government sent a special representative to make an independent choice. He decided on Likely and returned to Victoria, thinking the question was settled. His report was premature, however, for when the teams sent to Poquet Pass for the lumber with which to build the school-house got on the road they encountered obstacles repeatedly—fallen logs, artificial ditches and other impassable barriers. Finally on reaching Poquet Pass they found the lumber in possession of a guard posted by the angry minority. The police arrived to find representatives of the two factions preparing to do battle. Warrants were sworn out, resulting in the arrest of two women and two men.

LADIES' AID HELD BUSINESS MEETING

Financial Report Showed Large Profits on Orange Dinner.

MILLBROOK, July 23.—A special business meeting of the Ladies' Aid of the United Church was held at the home of Mrs. J. McKnight, 2nd vice-president, on Monday evening, the attendance, considering the holiday season, being most encouraging.

Miss M. Needham, president, occupied the chair, and the financial report of the dinner served on July 13th, showed over two hundred dollars clear as a result of the effort. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the workers who had turned out in good numbers, and given willing service during the entire day.

Arrangements for the annual bazaar, held in the fall, were the subject of discussion, and a quantity of material for embroidery, etc. was given out. Several articles have been disposed of by private sale during the winter months and when the church was renovated recently the fancy work committee, Mrs. G. Locke and Mrs. J. McKnight, conveners, had sufficient funds on hand from this source to pay for the new rug required for the vestry.

A social hour brought a pleasant gathering to a close.

MANY ATTENDING WEEK-DAY SERVICES

Good Attendance at Baptist Church on Thursdays—Board Meeting.

WARSAW, July 23. — Pastor Pinkerton holds week night service on Thursday evenings, which are quite well attended by the Baptist people. There is a movement on foot to have the Baptist Sunday service in the morning as there is no morning service in Warsaw, except the Sunday schools.

There was a large choir in the United Church, but only one man. The minister asked for more male voices. The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed on August 2, and the Quarterly Board will meet on the following Monday at Bethel. This will be an important meeting, because it is the first in the business year; because it is the first with the new minister, and because it is the first of the United Church, and though the Presbyterian Church voted out of the Union, Rev. Mr. Harrington would be very glad to have, and particularly asks those who are in sympathy with the Union, all attend that board meeting. Had the vote gone for Union, he explained, the members of the former Methodist board and of the former Presbyterian session and managers would automatically have all been on the board.

In future the hymns used in the United Church will be such as are found in both hymn books, and each hymn board will give a separate list.

CAVAN MAN HURT WHILE HARVESTING

J. W. Perrin Was Thrown to Floor When Hay Fork Jammed.

CAVAN, July 23.—Mr. J. W. Perrin met with a bad accident on Monday while drawing in hay. Mr. M. Tinney was assisting him while taking off a load with the hay-fork. It caught and lifted part of the back part of the load where Mr. Perrin was standing. He was thrown to the floor. One wrist was broken and the other badly sprained. His cheek was bruised and he was badly shaken up. It occurred at a most unfortunate time as on his farm, like all others, there is much work to be done just now, with the haying not completed and wheat almost ready to cut.

The Misses Norma and Ruth Staples are holidaying at Oakwood and Washbourne Island.

Mr. Charlie Newton, Toronto, visited Mr. Jas. Paul this week.

Berries are ripe and quite plentiful.

STATELY MANSIONS DRUG ON MARKET IN GREAT BRITAIN

Valuable Properties Selling for Little of Original Cost

HEAVY LOSSES

One That Cost £80,000 Was Sold for One Hundred Sovereigns

Mere Hall, Cheshire, the residence of the late Sir John Grayhill, which cost over £10,000 to build, was sold in Liverpool for £1,500.

Half the proceeds of the sale go to charity.

The mansion is unoccupied, and contains valuable tiles, oak fittings and panels. Three of the panels depict Biblical scenes, and some of the oak is hundreds of years old. The auctioneer announced that the lease expired in 1978.

Bidding started low and advanced, by £5 and £10 to £100, and then by £50 bids to £900. At this stage the auctioneer exclaimed, "Why, gentlemen, the tiles alone cost three times the sum."

As there was no reserve he was compelled to knock the hall down at £1,500.

MANSION FOR £100.

Estate agents in London were not surprised at the result of the sale. An auctioneer said:—

"There are a lot of large houses and mansions in the market, and the owners have to cut their losses.

"A house in Cumberland called Killhow, which cost £36,000, went for £2,000. The standard joke, however, is Killymoon, County Tyrone, an £80,000 mansion which went for £100. Someone bought the surrounding 100 acres for £2,500 without the mansion, and then he put up the lot and sold land and mansion for £2,150.

"Almost any house beyond the needs of an upper middle-class family, with more than five or six bedrooms, will lose money in the market.

"Last week I disposed of a detached residence with six bedrooms in a London suburb for £1,600. It had cost £4,500 to build.

"On the other hand, a house almost adjoining, with four bedrooms, a garage and a moderate-sized garden, which cost £1,350 to build two years ago, found a buyer at £1,500."

REVOKES BEQUEST TO ART GALLERY

Baronet's Will Rebukes Trustees of National Gallery

Sir David L. Goldsmid-Stern-Salomons, of Broomhill, Tunbridge Wells, inventor of many electrical and mechanical appliances, left £388,412.

He stated that he had in previous testamentary dispositions bequeathed certain pictures to the National Gallery, but that he did not do so now "in consequence of the trustees endeavoring to obtain power to sell or dispose of any pictures belonging to them."

Bequests include:—

His tube of radium and other capsules of radium to his wife.

His large Broomhill magnet — designed by him—to the Royal Institution, with the apparatus which enables the magnet to be used as a polariscope or a galvanometer.

Scientific instruments and apparatus to Cambridge University.

£1,000 to his gardener, James Roberts.

£800 to his coachman, Walter Nunn.

Annuity of £104 to his caretaker, Ellen Burt.

Annuity of £104 to his engine-driver Charles Wood.

ETON HAS SCORNED OXFORD "BAGS"

"Pop" Will Not Abolish Top Hat Despite Reform Efforts

Oxford "bags" have been banned at Eton, and a decree has gone forth from "Pop" that any boy whose trousers are wider than the Eton regulation width will suffer pains and penalties.

Eton is not ruled in fashion by Oxford: it is a law unto itself in the matter of dress, a direction in which it is distinctly conservative.

Custom and dress do not come within the domain of the governing body. It is controlled by the exclusive Eton Society (or "Pop," as it is called), whose membership is limited to thirty out of over 1,000 boys.

When the Oxford fashion spread beyond the University men and came in the direction of Eton, "Pop" was greatly concerned. A special meeting was summoned, and the subject of the limitation of the width of trousers was discussed quite gravely, with the result that the edict was issued that Oxford "bags" are forbidden at Eton. Boys from that date dare not show themselves in baggy trousers, and Eton boys would rather face the birch of the headmaster than incur the wrath of "Pop."

"To achieve fame," wrote the editor of the "Eton College Chronicle" in last week's issue, "one must appear either picturesque or startling. In the latter event one takes to Oxford trousers or to the Eton crop as the case may be, but you may expect to see me as a beefeater before I adopt Oxford trousers."

Many efforts have been made from time to time to alter the Eton regulation dress, but "Pop" has been adamant, and has met all attempts to abolish the top hat with scorn.

ANCIENT MEDAL

A George III. medal, bearing the words "Happy while United," realized £62 at the sale of the Phillips collection at Glendining's. A total of £8,600 was realised.

MARRIED 71 YEARS.

Mr. and Mrs. James Field, of Weston Zoyland, Somerset, have celebrated the seventy-first anniversary of their wedding day.

The husband is ninety-three years of age, and his wife a year younger. The old couple, who have lived in the same village practically all their lives, are both in good health, and take keen interest in local events.

MILL HAND'S WILL LEADS TO COURT AND SETTLEMENT

AN ACCIDENT

Sisters Claimed That Will Was Result of Unsound Mind

The fortune of a man who started life as a mill hand, became a mill owner, and retired with a fortune of £100,000, formed the subject of a dispute in the Probate Division.

Under a will dated January 12, 1923, Mr. Richard Thompson, of Glendine, Clayton-le-Dale, near Blackburn, left the bulk of his fortune to Mrs. Clara Kirk, his housekeeper, and her sister Miss Dora Alice Knowles.

This will is contested by Thompson's only daughter, Mrs. Margaret Briggs, of Briar Bank, Merlin-road, Blackburn, and by Henry Schofield, solicitor, of Richmond-road, Blackburn. They set up a will of June 27, 1918, alleging that Thompson was of unsound mind when the later one was made.

DAUGHTER'S WEDDING.

Mr. Cotes Preedy, for the sisters, said that Mrs. Briggs married an architect without her father's approval. Later Mr. Thompson became reconciled to the marriage.

In 1897 Mr. Thompson lost his speech and apparently all knowledge of letters through a driving accident.

About 1900 Mrs. Kirk, who was then Miss Clara Knowles, a school teacher, came to him as housekeeper. One day she saw him trying to learn the alphabet again and suggested that she should teach him.

He agreed, and she was so successful that he learned to speak and write again very slowly, was able to carry on a conversation in short sentences, and conducted his own correspondence.

About 1918 Miss Dora Knowles, then a girl of 12, went to help in the house.

FOR 20 YEARS.

Mr. Henry Backhouse, a Blackburn solicitor, said Mr. Thompson gave him full instructions as to the second will. He said Mrs. Clara Kirk had been with him for 20 years, that she had kept his house for him and looked after him well, and that her sister had also helped to keep house for ten or 12 years.

Under the will, £2,400 was given to charities, £20,000 to Mrs. Briggs, £1,000 to a Dr. Taylor, and the rest was given to the two sisters. They would receive £53,000 after paying estate duties.

After evidence, Mr. Cotes Preedy announced that the parties had come to an agreement.

He asked the Judge to pronounce for the will of January, 1923, and a codicil of February, 1923. The two charities would have their costs out of the estate. The Judge agreed to this, saying it is obviously a case for settlement.

GIRL FOUND DYING DOWN PIT SHAFT

Rachel Cobley, aged 25, single, of Maesycwmmer, Rhymney Valley, having been reported missing one Sunday night, search parties were formed. One of these reported that cries had been heard from a disused pit-shaft near Bryn.

Police laid a beam across the mouth of the shaft, and an ex-sailor, J. Robinson, descended by a rope 75 ft. to the bottom of the shaft.

He found Cobley there suffering from a fractured skull. She was hauled out by means of the rope, but died soon after admission to hospital.

How she got there is a mystery, as the shaft is fenced in.

BOY TUMBLES INTO AUDIENCE AT MOVIES

The audience at a Springburn, Glasgow, kinema got an unexpected thrill when a small boy hurtled through the glass roof into the auditorium.

He had been playing with a companion on the roof of the kinema, and from there climbed through a skylight on to the glass roof of the auditorium. The boy, Robert Mitchell, age 8, missed his footing and crashed among the audience 15 feet below.

Dismayed by the disaster to his chum, the other lad, Robert McIntyre, tried to scramble on to the outer roof and in doing so was badly cut.

Both were taken to the Royal Infirmary. Mitchell had his left wrist fractured and his right hand severely cut.

MAN'S ARM DRAWN INTO SAUSAGE MAKER

George Doe, nineteen, of Plantation Row, Camberley, was working an electric sausage-making machine in a factory at Frimley when he was drawn into the machinery through his hand becoming caught in a moving part.

He was taken to the Frimley Cottage Hospital with part of the machinery still fastened to his arm and his hand, and the lower part of his arm had to be amputated.

BRITISH DEAD TO BE MOVED FROM FRENCH CEMETERIES

Sanitary Grounds is Reason for Hygiene Department's Ruling

STRONG PROTEST

No Coffins Used and Removal of Remains Difficult

After remaining undisturbed for nearly ten years the remains of several hundred British soldiers are to be removed from six cemeteries along the Rue de Bacquerot, in the Commune of Laventie, owing to an objection on sanitary grounds by the French Department of Hygiene.

The largest of the cemeteries is No. 1 Military Cemetery, and a strong protest against its removal has been made by Mr. C. Gordon Harper, of Adelaide road, Swiss Cottage, N.W., who recently visited the cemetery to tend the grave of a family friend.

"It would have been reasonable to raise the objection six years ago," said Mr. Harper, "but not now. The bodies in this cemetery were not placed in coffins, so obviously nothing remains now but dust and bones. The turf and flower beds, which have now matured, will have to be pulled up."

An official of the Imperial War Graves Commission told a reporter that the Commission has striven for seven years to save the cemeteries, but the nine cemeteries in the neighborhood hav to be reduced to three.

LANDSMAN AIDED NAVAL GUNNERY

Solved Problem Which Increased Effective Range Nearly Fivefold

A landsman's invention by which, it was claimed, the problem of naval gunfire control had been solved, and the effective range raised from 4,000 yards to about 23,000, was referred to at a sitting of the Royal Commission on Awards to Inventors at the Law Courts.

Claimants were the Argo Company, Ltd., and A. H. Pollen, Rear-Admiral F. C. Dreyer and Major R. G. F. Dumaresq, this last named being with respect to the "Dumaresq" range instrument.

Mr. Pollen, said counsel, had put his finger on the key of the whole problem, and until 1901, when he came on the scene, naval gunnery was guesswork corrected by observation.

Though a landsman, knowing nothing of practical gunnery, he had conceived a brilliant solution of the problem, and had made a series of mechanical devices to carry that solution into practical effect. It was through his system that naval gunnery really stood where it did today, but the Admiralty said that he had no claim.

It was arranged that the Commission should pay a visit of inspection to Portsmouth on Saturday, July 25, and the hearing of the claim was adjourned.

MILLIONAIRE WHO WANTS TO DIE POOR

Gives Big Sum for New University in Jerusalem

The man who "has no use for money," Bernard Baron, the Brighton millionaire, wrote a little cheque recently for £10,000.

It was made out in favor of Dr. Weizmann, head of the World Zionist Movement in aid of the fund for the building of the new Jewish University at Jerusalem. The foundation-stone of the university was recently laid by Earl Balfour.

Mr. Baron handed over the cheque at a reception given in his honor at the Hotel Metropole, Brighton.

"The more money I give away," he said, "the happier I feel. I hope to go on giving my money away so that I may die a comparatively poor man."

Since last October Mr. Baron has paid away, on his Happiness Account, at least £350,000.

His total benefactions amount to nearly £1,000,000. More than 5,000 begging letters were recently received by Mr. Baron during one week.

LONDONERS DOUBLE READING CAPACITY

Londoners—adults and juveniles — are reading more.

Mr. G. H. Gater, Education Officer, London County Council, states in a pamphlet on "Schools and Libraries" that—

"In the last 20 years the number of borrowers using the public libraries of London has increased twofold, while the number of books read by London boys and girls has increased nearly fourfold."

All the London borough libraries provide juvenile literature. In 1924 the total number of juvenile books in stock was 186,008, as compared with 35,321 in 1904; the total number of juvenile books issued was 2,859,375, as compared with 733,900 in 1904.

WATERLOO BRIDGE NOW RE-OPENED

Waterloo Bridge has been reopened to vehicular traffic.

Vehicles of a weight not exceeding ten tons—including the load carried —may now pass over the bridge. Their speed over the length of temporary roadway will be limited to three miles an hour.

The bridge is and will be kept under constant observation.

KING GREETS CANADA'S REPRESENTATIVE

King George shaking hands with Honorable P. C. Larkin, Canadian High Commissioner in London, on occasion of the opening of Canada House by His Majesty.

HOUSES OF PARLIAMENT BEGINNING TO CRUMBLE; ATMOSPHERE IS BLAMED

Though the Houses of Parliament, with the exception of that ancient relic, Westminster Hall, and the crypt, have not been in existence for more than 65 years, the exterior has long shown signs of decay.

This is due to what Lord Randolph Churchill once described a the "mephitic atmosphere" of the neighborhood, a compound of smoke and river vapors.

When after the fire of 1834, which destroped the old House, proposals for rebuilding the home of the Mother of Parliaments were under consideration, there was much opposition to the selection of the old site on the river; but the Commissioners decided otherwise.

The exterior of the great pile, probably the largest Gothic building in the world, is built of magnesian limestone from Baston, in Yorkshire, and the interior of Caen stone. The Commission recommended the magnesian limestone of Bolsover Moor as the fittest and most durable material, but the quarry could not produce the quantity required.

Limestone has always shown itself incapable of withstanding the modern London atmosphere, and Sir Charles Barry's masterpiece is crumbling.

For some time past Sir Frank Baines, of the Office of Works, has been preparing a report with regard to urgent restoration, and it will shortly be presented.

It is possible, that an expenditure approaching £600,000 will be necessary.

COAL MINE FLOOD MADE MINERS RUN

Breakdown of Pumping Machinery Allowed Water to Gain

NO WAGES

Enforced Stoppage in Kentish Coal Field Means Heavy Loss

Miners working in the west section of the Tilmanstone Colliery, near Deal, had to run a mile and a half to safety when the mine was flooded.

The influx of water was due to a breakdown in the pumping gear.

So rapid was the inrush of water that the low-lying west section of the mine was quickly flooded to a depth of five feet. For the second time in a week the men had to make a dash for safety.

"We ran a mile and a half along the tunnel, or travelling road, to escape the water," one of the men said, "and we did not stop running until we got to the cages waiting for us at the bottom of the shaft."

A mine official explained that fortunately the east district of the colliery, which is more elevated than the west, remained practically free from water, and it was through this section that the men reached safety.

"As it was," he added, "so suddenly did the west district become flooded that over 100 tubs, each containing half a ton of coal, lay submerged in the pit botton.

MILLIONS OF GALLONS.

"We had been pumping 2,000 gallons a minute, and were just about holding the water when the breakdown occurred. Naturally, as soon as we ceased suction the water got the upper hand, and poured in such volume that the west level quickly became flooded and choked."

"There are millions of gallons of water now in the west section," declared a miner, "and it will take some time to clear it out."

The accident will mean a serious curtailment of the weekly output, financial loss to the company and the stoppage of wages for the men, as they are not paid during periods of such enforced idleness.

Tilmanstone Colliery is one of the largest and most important in the Kent coalfield.

"EYE WITNESS" IN WAR GETS PROFESSORSHIP

Major-General Sir Ernest Dunlop Swinton has been elected Chichele Professor of Military History at Oxford University for five years, in succession to Spenser Wilkinson.

Sir Ernest Swinton is a high authority on military history, and is the author of the second and third volumes of the official history of the Russo-Japanese War. He was well known to the general public during the war as "Eye-Witness," and is the author of "The Green Curve," "The Defence of Duffer's Drift," and "The Great Tab Dope."

Mr. Justice Rowlatt: "If you were a man I should, perhaps, speak sternly to you."

HALF A CENTURY SPENT IN TUNNEL

Lookout Man Attributes Health to Sulphur Fume Diet

ONE SMASH

Often Laid on Track While Trains Passed Over Him

"Dad" Symonds is a 68-year-old platelayer, on the Southern Railway, and has spent over 49 years in the Penge Tunnel, the line through which is in course of electrification.

Combining buoyancy of youth with philosophy of age, "Dad" Symonds enjoys universal popularity among his comrades.

"It's sulphur," he confided to a press representative, as explaining his good health. "I've been 51 years on the railway and worked 49 of them in the Penge Tunnel. They asked me some time ago if I would care to carry on a bit. I'm game enough to carry on for years and years."

His appearance conveys the idea that he has never had a worry in his life, and his conversation confirms it. Even when he was knocked down by a train in the tunnel and had a shoulder and three ribs smashed, he continued unworried, and resumed life under ground with a marvellously merry optimism seven months later.

NO LOOK-OUT MEN.

He confesses to be slightly annoyed by that affair because it broke his record of continuous work, but he gets his compensation in the fact that he has never had a day's illness in his life.

"In the old days," he said, "there were no look-out men. Every man had to look out for himself, and many's the time I've had to lay in the track in pitch darkness while trains rumbled over me.

"There hasn't been any change in the tunnel work during the last 50 years, except in the wages of the men and holidays. When I started I got 24s. a week. Then they increased it to 30s., then to 31s., 32s., 33s. 4d., and today, as look-out man, I'm getting 65s. 6d.

"I've been look-out man for 16 years; that is since the last look-out was killed. There used to be three of us with upwards of 40 years' continuous service in the tunnel, and two others with upwards of 30 years. But I am the last of the old gang."

Godfrey Charles Isaacs, late managing director of Marconi's Wireless Telegraph Co., Ltd., who died last April, at the age of fifty-nine, left unsettled property valued at £195,490 12s. 1d.

Mr. Isaacs, who was a convert from the Jewish faith to Roman Catholicism, left one-half of the residue of his property to his wife with the remainder to his two sons, and the other half on trust for his wife with the remainder equally on trust for his two sons, after the payment of £10,000 to his grandson.

COUPLE ON SANDS RUN OVER BY PLANE.

A curious accident occurred at New Creighton, near Birkenhead, when a young man and a young woman were run over by an aeroplane the other Saturday night.

The machine was engaged in taking visitors for flights from the sands, and in taking off it caught the couple, who were sitting on the sands. The woman, Miss Catherine Tobin, of Washington Street, Liverpool, was bruised about the leg, and the man, Mr. Albert Lewis, of Charles Street, St. Helens, received injuries to the back.

HEROINE OF "BONNIE PRINCE CHARLIE" TO HAVE MEMORY PERPETUATED

Flora MacDonald, the Highland heroine of "Bonnie Prince Charlie," is to have her memory perpetuated by the ruins of her home scheduled under the Ancient Monuments Act, Mr. Locker-Lampson has announced in Parliament.

LAYS CLAIM TO SCOTCH EARLDOM

Present Holder is Girl of Nineteen, Who May Be Dispossessed

QUEEN'S FRIEND

London Schoolmaster Claims Famous Countess as His Mother

A cause is down for hearing in the Court of Session, Edinburgh, which affects the title and estates of the Earldom of Seafield. It has been entered by Alexander Grant, a retired Scottish schoolmaster, more than 70 years of age, now living at a flat in Cromwell-road, Kensington, S.W. He claims to be the son of the seventh Earl of Seafield and his wife, Caroline, and, as such, entitled to succeed to the estates.

The present holder of the title is a girl of 19, one of the few countesses in her own right, who succeeded to the title ten years ago when her father, the 11th earl, a captain in the Cameron Highlanders, was killed in action.

Mr. Grant seeks to prove that his mother was the famous Caroline Countess of Seafield, a friend of Queen Victoria, who died in 1911.

Caroline Countess of Seafield was the daughter of the 11th Lord Blantyre, and for 25 years was in full control of the Seafield estates of more than 300,000 acres. She left them to trustees, who were instructed to keep up Cullen House and Castle Grant for the use of the Earls of Seafield, to whom a suitable allowance was to be made. On the properties being freed from debt they were to be entailed so that Cullen should descend to the Earls of Seafield and Castle Grant and Balmacaan to the Chiefs of Grant.

FALLS DEAD AFTER SEEING OLD HOME

After an absence of ten years in Liverpool, James O'Rourke, aged 69, of Millbay, near Kilkeel, Co. Down, was returning to his birthplace when, within sight of his old home, he had a sudden seizure and was dead before a doctor arrived.

At the inquest Dr. Hendren said death was due to sudden heart failure brought on by over-exertion.

BRIDE'S WEDDING GIFT SENT TO HOSPITAL

Three months ago a girl was admitted to a hospital in the East End of London, suffering from neglected appendicitis which had developed into peritonitis.

After the operation, when her condition was critical, there came a telephonic enquiry every hour from her sweetheart, and at night when he finished his work he would stay within the precincts of the hospital. He begged not to be taken to her bedside as he "couldn't bear to see her suffer."

The girl made a wonderful recovery and was married last week. The bridegroom's gift to the bride consisted of two hundred threepenny-pieces. She has sent these to the hospital as a thank-offering for her recovery.

Willesden woman: She used my listening-in wire for a clothes line and dragged me around the garden by the hair of my head.

BREWERY CHOSEN FOR PICNIC GROUND OF RAILWAY VETS

Aged Employes of London and North-Western Meet

REMINISCENCES

Several Drivers of Royal Trains Tell of Old-time Happenings

Three hundred jolly old railwaymen of Crewe—one 91 years of age, and several who rejoice in the high-spirited eighties—had a picnic recently, the business part of which was spent in a large brewery.

They went from the great railway centre to Burton-on-Trent in a special train, crossed the road to Allsopp's, and in the vast and cool cellars of the brewery were entertained to lunch.

Then, the afternoon well advanced, they made a move to the brewery playing fields, for speeches, tea, a concert, and such games as bowls. At the end of a perfect day the veterans rejoined their special train, and arrived at Crewe by 8 o'clock.

There was Tommy Dodd, 91 and still going strong, who for 45 years was a joiner with the London and North Western (now the London, Midland and Scottish Railway). There was a youngster of 76, who runs up a hundred at billiards in 20 minutes, and gets his 40-odd break now and again.

DROVE ROYAL TRAINS.

Also there were Alf Eachus, Bill Jeffries, Sam Galley, Bill Hughes, Jack Ford, Jack Hollins and Jack Jones, boys of 70, who have driven Royal trains and never had a mishap.

Bill Jeffries, who is 72, told the press that long, long ago he stoked in trains that carried Queen Victoria, and he has driven the present King and Queen a dozen times.

"Things have changed in my time," he said reminiscently. "When I was firing I got 4s. a day. Later on, as a driver, I would go from Crewe to London and back again—on duty for fifteen hours—for 8s.

"Then I was introduced to Sam Barden, for 45 years a porter at Crewe Station, and one of the best known figures in the land. He was known far and near as "Hallelujah Porter," because he was always singing cheerful hymns, on duty or off.

Sam, who is a local preacher, has a fine smile and great cheerfulness. He told me that among the famous people he had portered was Mr. Gladstone. His smiles and hymns caused him to be known also as "Crewe," and once on holiday at Beachy Head, far from the madding crowd, as he thought, a man came up and said: "Hullo, Crewe."

A gay, comradely lot, these railwaymen. They belong to the London and Northwestern Railway Veterans' Institute, the first of its kind. Before the Institute began the veterans' meeting was a churchyard. Now they have a club, supported by public subscriptions and donations from the Crewe workshops. It has been so successful that the officials want to see it copied by other railway centres.

The badge of membership admits to all cinemas in the town in the afternoons, and to all football and cricket matches.

The 350 members have 15,000 years of railway service to their credit.

MOTORIST INFLICTS FINE ON HIMSELF

Sends Court Big Cheque for Small Offence—Goes to Charity

For a technical breach of motoring regulations, Mr. John Courtis Webber, of Bessemer Grange, Denmark Hill, has fined himself £300.

In reply to a summons he wrote to the chief clerk of the Southwestern Police Court, enclosing a cheque for £300 to "pay any fine that may be imposed."

He asks that "the surplus, if any, should be paid into the funds of the London Hospital."

As the fine in such cases is merely nominal, practically the whole sum will go to the hospital.

£670,000 BEQUEATHED IN WILL OF 125 WORDS

Mr. Elias Meyer, of Calcutta, India, and of Grosvenor square, London, S.W., merchant, left £670,113.

Duties on the property at this valuation will amount to about £185,000.

He disposes of the whole of his estate in a will which, in about 125 words, gives his own name and address and description, and statement as to domicile, as well as leaving the whole of his property to his wife.

"When I came up, he wanted me to dance," said a constable at Thames Police Court, describing the behavior of a Chinese seaman.

Magistrate: "Then the real charge is super-abundance of good nature—a chapter of Brighter London."

TWO YEARS' TRIP ROUND WORLD IN SMALL KETCH

Dublin Owner Stricken with Sea-blindness on Voyage

SISTER'S AID

Greatest Difficulty Was in Getting Crew in Antipodes

Exactly two years since he sailed from Dublin in his 20-ton ketch, the Saoirse, Mr. Conor O'Brien arrived back in harbor.

In his tiny vessel he has encircled the world via Madeira, Pernambuco, Australia and the Falklands.

He was met by yachts representing the Royal St. George, the Royal Alfred, and the Edward Yacht Clubs, and 150 vessels escorted him into harbor in a triumphal procession. About 50,000 people lined the pier and streets.

A salute of guns was fired as Mr. O'Brien stepped on shore, and the Army band played "Come Back to Erin."

He had been joined at Pernambuco, on May 16, by his sister, Miss Kitty O'Brien, as he had developed sea blindness.

Miss O'Brien and a native named Kioa, whom he enlisted in the Azores, formed his crew home.

Mr. O'Brien explained that he had to wear glasses owing to the strain on his eyes, otherwise his health was good.

"The responsibility of being in charge of the boat," he said, "was very heavy, and in the latter stages of the voyage I became rather tired, and this was made worse by my eyes."

ONLY ONE STORM.

Except for the trouble in getting crews, the voyage had on the whole been pleasant enough.

He thought he should have been able to complete the voyage in 18 months, but delays being all due to the difficulty in securing men. Through this cause he was two months in Melbourne and one month in Durban.

The Saoirse herself had given him not the slightest trouble. She had made good time crossing the Pacific at an average of five and a quarter knots.

Only on one occasion did he encounter very rough weather. That was in January last year, when he ran into big seas off Cape Lavin, Southwest Australia.

STRAWBERRY CROP COMPLETE FAILURE

Not Five Per Cent of South of England Growers Made Expenses

Hampshire growers of strawberries are faced with a serious situation. Less that 5 per cent. of the 700 members of the Fruitgrowers' Association in South Hampshire have covered their expenses in growing strawberries this year.

The harvest has lasted only about eight days, in place of the normal three weeks. The drought just at the time when the berries were ripening has reduced the crop to such an extent that theamount of fruit harvested in the area is at least 3,000,000 pounds weight less than it was even last year —and 1924 was a tragic year for the growers.

The tragedy of this year for the growers has been enhanced by the low prices that have been obtainable for the fruit. The London market has been offering less than a shilling a 3 lb. basket—which gives a grower fourpence a pound, out of which to pay all his twelve months' expenses. Actually the cost of growing has exceeded 5d. a pound in the vast majority of the gardens."

GRANDFATHERS ON MELODIOUS OUTING

Aged Members of Exclusive Club Have Gay Time

Sixteen grandfathers whose united ages total no fewer than 1,100 years are having the gayest of holidays at Littlehampton.

They are members of the exclusive Grandfather's Club, which has its headquarters at the Browning Memorial Hall, Browning street, Walworth. Nobody may belong to the club who is not a grandfather and over sixty years of age.

Many of the members who are disporting themselves so merrily here are well past the sixty mark. Four of them are more than eighty years of age, and nine are more than seventy-six.

Despite the burthen of years, they have been busily occupied displaying their abilities at cricket, cycling, and donkey riding—and as vocalists.

When they recently made a boating expedition up the River Arun to Arundel Castle they whiled away the journey with a sing-song, to which every member of the party contributed. Very heartily they all sang, too, old songs the present generation has forgotten.

NEARLY HALF OF PICNIC PARTY ILL

Thirty-one persons out of a party of seventy-three members of the staff of the Lancashire Insurance Committee, taking part in the annual picnic at Preston, were seized with illness after a meal.

A number became unwell before reaching home, and during the night the majority suffered excruciating pains.

All made a quick recovery, with the exception of one employee, who is still unwell.

The medical officer of health for Cumberland is investigating the matter.

DECORATION PROBLEMS

By Annette Bradshaw

Time was when the hall of a house was a place for a hat-rack, an umbrella stand, an odd chair, and perhaps an ornate table with a marble top crowned by a silver card tray. It was considered just "the hall" and no thought was given it in the scheme of decoration. Usually a drab, dark place, with dim lights and nightmarish wall paper.

But now the hall of the house is given as much—if not more—thought than the house proper. Care is taken that the hall express as much individuality and inviting hospitality as the living room.

Where one is fortunate enough to have a hall as pictured above the possibilities are unlimited. This particular foyer is most adorable with its natural rubbed woodwork, its buff walls and the Windsor chairs and table finished to match the woodwork.

The casement window is framed in heavy printed linen, with a buff background over which climbs flowers in brilliant shades of blue, orange, red and green, the blue, however, predominating. The rugs are the heavy flax rugs so popular now in a shade of blue blending perfectly with the walls and woodwork. The floor of wide boards was left intact, but they were rubbed down and scrubbed to a perfection which would have delighted our Colonial grandmothers. The Della Robbia plaque and the old iron lantern gave the finishing touches to the walls, and the blue glaze vase with its brilliant flowers and matching fruit dish completed a picture that was nothing short of perfection.

This same scheme of decoration may be carried out in a number of combinations. Mahogany and ivory with blue and gold, black and gold, grey and rose, or the soft French blue that combines so well with grey. Or if one's ideas are sufficiently daring, a black and white with brilliant scarlet and orange drapes could be made most effective.

Let's Talk It Over

WHEN MOTHER FAIL TO TEACH FACTS OF LIFE.

Pauline's letter will interest mothers. It shows what goes on in the mind of even "the nicest little girl" whose mother has never "told her a single thing."

I wonder what Pauline's mother would think if she knew that Pauline listened for a word here and there until she had patched together a semblance of the life story, and finally "lived in fear" that her mother would "embarrass her to death by approaching her on the subject?"

I wonder, if that mother would feel very proud or very small? I wonder if she has "kept her daughter innocent" or only ignorant?

DEAR ELSIE:

Just want to tell you my case about knowing the "facts of life." Mother has never told me a single thing, and I am almost seventeen. But I know them, anyway. Do you suppose she has been relying on my getting the information from some one else? When I was a youngster she told me not to discuss babies, etc., with other children, because, she said, it would only give me wrong ideas. But she never gave me any ideas at all.

When I was seven or eight a little friend told me about the origin of babies. I was so shocked I was perfectly furious. I told her I wouldn't speak to her again because she told me untruths. I rather forgot that information but when I was a bit older some one mentioned it again and we began discussing the matter, and it didn't seem so bad. Of course we had some awful mixed up ideas but we got them straightened out, with absolutely no help from mother. I didn't want it, and felt it would embarrass me to death if she should approach me on the subject.

In fact, for a while I lived in fear that she would, but now I feel that if she should we would both be relieved. We have always been rather chummy and talked about everything but that.

I don't blame her in the least, somehow, for never saying anything to me. I suppose lots of mothers haven't said a thing about it to their daughters, but I have gone with a decent bunch and have had no smutty ideas at any time. PAULINE.

CINDERELLA SLIPPERS FOR MILADI.

In a forecast of shoe styles for fall and winter wear, the trend of patterns toward straps for general use is quite definite, closely followed by buckle pumps, both plain and gore-fitted, with every prospect of a liberal showing of eyelet ties.

Medium toes will prevail in the popular oxford, with a tendency toward height in heels, the range spreading from a one-inch heel to one nearly two inches high, and a trend also to slightly more dressy foreparts.

In materials, patent leather is recommended for first consideration, with satins, preferably blacks and browns, selling well in the dressier lines. Black and colored suedes will also be good.

Plain and novelty leathers in combinations and trimmings will be a feature of coming footwear styles.

For evening wear, gold and silver effects, with the latter predominating, will play quite a prominent part in the demand for the coming season. In these, gold and silver kid, also gold and silver brocade with leather trimmings and heel covers, will take first place.

White satin will also be shown extensively, also French blonde satin of a golden tint, trimmed and heeled with gold-colored kid, and silver grey satin trimmed with silver kid.

The range of heights for evening slippers will be from the conservative inch and a half to the extreme of two and one-quarter inches.

A FASHION MODEL'S DIARY

By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE TELLS OF AN UNUSUAL BLACK AND WHITE COSTUME

"I don't see any use choosing clothes of the type everyone else, has, when you can do a bit of thinking and planning and work out smart things all your own," Pam announced to the assembled room of manikins today.

"I agree with you," I assured her.

"But you must remember there are loads and loads of women who have no knack for designing, and simply cannot design effective costumes like we can," Gaby joined in.

"If they have the price," I reminded the girls.

"Of course, the price does enter in," Gaby conceded.

"I should like to run a designing school and teach women of moderate means to think out plans for effective clothes for themselves," Pam told us.

"Take this new costume that has come down from the work rooms this morning. No woman who bought it from Madame would be in danger of meeting her double when she wears it. There simply isn't another like it." This was Gaby's contribution to the argument, as she pointed out a new costume that hung near by.

"Do put it on," Pam urged me. "I'm crazy to see how it looks."

I was in an obliging mood. Gaby hopped up to get the dress, and I soon found myself climbing into the gay crepe de Chine skirt which was of black and white plaid, finely pleated, and which was easy to get into because it had an elastic band at the top.

Gaby helped me into the blouse, which was a pull-over affair, practically a tunic, of black satin.

"That semi-fitted effect is stunning," Pam remarked.

The blouse curved in slightly to the lines of the figure and then curved out again, so there was a suggestion of flare at the bottom.

"I do approve of the white wool stitching at the edges," Gaby said, smoothing the blouse into place.

Madame had designed this part of it very cleverly, for there was white wool stitching against the black satin, then the sheer white organdie collar and cuffs were stitched in black at their edges.

Black Satin Bodice and Plaid Crepe Skirt Form Pleated Charming Ensemble.

"The white bone buttons in front set it off exactly right," I commented, glancing down at the two groups of three buttons each.

"In other words, we all seem pleased with Madame's talent for designing unusual clothes," Pam said by way of finishing the argument.

The first steamship to cross the Atlantic was a Canadian-built vessel, the Royal William.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my 'teens. I have been going with a boy, five years my senior, for nearly two years. He says he loves me but that I am unfaithful to him because I accept invitations, etc., from other boys. He is now going with another girl. However, I know that he likes me much better than he does this other girl? Would you ask him to give up this other girl on the condition that I give up the other boys or would you just let things slide, so to speak, and see how they turn out? LIL.

LIL: It looks very much as if you were being compelled to take a dose of your own medicine, Lil. And it doesn't always go down well, does it? Possibly you have been relying too much on this young man's fidelity under circumstances which are usually trying to the average male, who likes to do a little philandering on his own account once in a while, but objects to anything of the sort in his "best girl." The whole crux of the matter, as I see it, is the question: Are you in love with him? I can't answer that for you. If you are, give up the other boys at once, and don't tease him any more. If you are not, let the poor chap alone. Let the other girl, who will probably appreciate a faithful suitor more than you have evidently done, have him. Perhaps she admires a jealous man. Most women do.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

About two months ago a young man came to our home and asked for me. I was attending a hurch entertainment and my mother told him where I had gone that evening. He has never called since then.

Would it be my place to call him or write a note to him and invite him to come? M. W.

M. W.: In the first place, my dear, you must not feel that you owe this young man an apology. He should have asked your permission to call before he visited you and under the circumstances you did not know he was coming. But if you are really interested in him, it would be quite proper for you to write him a note inviting him to call on you. Do not, however, allude to his other visit.

• • •

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

Can a girl of sixteen really know what love is and is flirting dangerous at that age? JUST WONDERIN'.

JUST WONDERIN': I am rather surprised that a girl of sixteen asks questions at all. Most of the sixteen-year-olds know everything there is to know and have adopted a blase attitude towards their elders. (I remember well how much I knew when I was sixteen.) No, certainly not. At sixteen years of age, you haven't the faintest conception of what real love is and won't for three or four years to come. The emotions you feel are simply the growing pains of puppy love and are just about as fleeting as the puppy's desir for the soap and ehe soap and the shoe blacking. As for flirting, it isn't dangerous—at sixteen—if done in moderation.

HOME TOWN RECIPE

Here is a recipe for pickled beans from Mrs. J. Grisdale, 493 Cross Street:

1 peck butter beans. Boil in salt water for one-half hour.

Sauce:

3 pints vinegar.
1 cup flour.
3 cups brown sugar.
1 cup mustard.
2 tablespoons tumeric powder.
2 tablespoons celery seed.

Bring to a boil, pour over the well-drained beans, and bottle.

Home-Making Helps

By Wanda Barton

HANNAH BY THE HOUR.

The eight hour day has at last invaded the home.

In most families, the maid who comes in at seven gets breakfast, washes up after it, straightens the kitchen, makes beds and dusts, is ready to go in a couple of hours, then she will return at five, get dinner, clean up after it and may go again by seven or a little later. Meantime a cleaning man or woman may come in at ten, when the other one leaves, do a couple of hours cleaning, then leave. If desired, a third maid may come at two and do a couple more hours work, cleaning silver and doing the odd jobs. The entire day with this efficient help, that you do not board, will cost no more, than the old help that was continuous.

Each servant starts out to do that which she likes to do and for that reason does it well and gives a better job than the woman who does things because she must as it comes along with her days duties, under the old plans. So we are gainers already. We don't have to put up with a poor cook, but demand a first class one as we are paying her for just that, and if she does not suit we can try until we get one that does. The bureaus who make a specialty of first class help by the hour do not send out any that they cannot vouch for as a rule or it would injure their own reputation.

Many women with small families are quite willing to get their own breakfasts then have the maid that comes at nine or ten clean up the dishes and the kitchen for them along with the other cleaning they are hired for. Then the cook who comes in for dinner can be afforded an hour longer if there are special foods to cook and company to be provided for. It is cheaper to hire a good looking competent waitress for a couple of hours when needed than to pay one for her entire time.

The only servant that is a necessity for her entire time is a nurse for a young baby or child. This lasts however not more than two to three years when the nursery governess comes onto the scene, the length of her stay varying with the social conditions of the family. In many neighborhoods, young gentlewomen take six to ten youngsters out in groups two hours in the morning for a consideration. This leaves the mother free for those hours and often takes the place of an extra maid for the mother who is willing to look after the child herself for the rest of the time.

TRANSFER REMAINS OF CARDINAL BEGIN

Body Will Be Taken From Palace to Basilica on Friday.

QUEBEC, July 23 (Canadian Press) — Transference of the remains of the late Cardinal Begin, deceased Primate of the Roman Catholic Church in Canada, whose death took place at Quebec on Sunday morning, from the Archbishop's Palace to the Basilica, will be carried out on Friday afternoon at four o'clock and will be attended with solemn and impressive ceremony. The remains of the deceased will lie in state in the Basilica until interment on Saturday.

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1925

Accessories

NEW YORK, July 23 (United Press). —Not the gown, but the smallest accessory proclaims the lady. For no gown can rise higher than it's smallest accessory permits it to arise. That is why one should be careful in selecting minor details of dress.

This season much attention is being paid to matching accessories and frocks. One becomes a color scheme from hat to pocket handkerchief. If the accessories are to be of contrasting color to the frock they should be of a nutral color which blends with the frock and should all be carried out in the same shade. Thus gloves, hat, shoes, hosiery, handkerchief, handbag and neckpiece may be of beige while the frock is of a soft Madonna blue or light bottle green.

Even the little handkerchief which is carried with the dance frock follows the line and colorscheme of the season since it is made of blond chiffon and edged in blond silk lace about the border. Again it may be a wisp of silver chiffon trimmed in silver lace, or it may match the color of the frock with a border of gold or silver lace.

For afternoon wear light colored kid shoes matched by hosiery are much smarter than black pumps with light hosiery. Beige shades of footgear are preferred for day wear and light blond tones for evening wear. With the formal evening gown, of course, silver kid or brocade slippers with pale silver hosiery are the popular thing. Occasionally one sees the brilliant brocade slipper with a vivid frock or the satin slipper matching the shade of the frock. Hosiery sometimes matches the vivid slipper but usually the effect is far from smart. Light blond, beige or silver hosiery are usually more flattering to the leg than color.

JUDGE WOULD LIKE TO SEE MAN LASHED

Man on Parole Was in Court For Striking His Mother.

NEW YORK, July 23 (Special by United Press).—"If the law permitted, I would string you up by the thumbs and order you given 100 lashes," Judge Tiernan said yesterday in the Bronx County Court to Louis Goodman, of 3746 Third Ave., the Bronx. Goodman, on parole after conviction of grand larceny, was charged with violating his parole by striking his mother.

Judge Tiernan told him that any man who struck his mother deserved prison for life. The mother learned that Goodman could be sent to prison for violating his parole, and refused to testify against him. So Judge Tiernan committed Goodman to prison without bail to await a report by probation officers.

PETES INCREASE THEIR MARGIN OVER OSHAWA BY EASY VICTORY; VISITORS' FIELDING VERY CRUDE

With Heckman on Mound Homesters Win From Motorists by 11 Runs to 4.

A LISTLESS GAME

Petes Score 5 Runs in First Inning and Are Never in Any Danger of Defeat.

(By F. D. C.)

The Petes materially increased their chances to get into the Central Ontario League play off by beating Oshawa in hollow fashion at Riverside Park last evening by 11 runs to 4, thus gaining a two-game lead over the Motorists.

Outside of the fact that the homesters won a very useful victory the game was a disappointment, being udoubtedly the most listless of the season.

Oshawa, under the management of Ted Saunders, and with all their players back in the fold, were expected to give the Petes a terrific argument for the decision particularly as a win would have put them on even terms with the Johnstonites.

The visitors failed to live up to these expectations. There defensive work was very crude and they showed little fight while it was evident that in starting Breckenridge the only right-handed member of Oshawa staff, Manager Saunders made a bad guess. In the three innings the former Leaside-Stroller pitcher was on the firing line the Petes garnered eight runs while Lennox who succeeded him held them to three for the balance of the game.

Not that Breckenridge pitched such bad ball but his own error on the first play of the game eventually made it possible for the winners to score five runs in that frame. The Petes all through the game had the happy faculty of combining their hits with Oshawa misplays.

Al. Heckman, turning in his fifth victory in seven stars was in trouble in only two frames, the fourth and fifth, when the visitors bunched seven of their ten hits to score all their runs, one in the fourth and three in the next, an error by Johnston helping in the second case. After that inning Oshawa got but one scratch hit. Heck struck out nine of the visitors and in the fifth, when a sharp batting rally had produced four hits in a row, he arose to the occasion and fanned the next three batters.

The weather was very threatening in the early stages and it was doubtful whether the rain would hold off long enough to get five innings in. The result was, that after getting five runs in the first, the Petes did not try very hard to keep from getting put out, especially in the third innings. In spite of that they scored three times in that frame.

Duke Dainty was in the game until the third inning when he put on a demonstration that resulted in Umpire Colling chasing him to the bench.

Heck walked Rowden to open the game, but Dainty struck out and Ash made a nice catch of Tyson's drive to left. Saunders signled over third and when the ball rolled through Ash reached second while Rowden went to third. Heckman fanned Morrison to retire the side.

Five In First.

The Petes had a field day. Breckenridge fielded Wolfe's roller and then hit the runners with his throw to first, Wolfe reaching second. Johnston fanned. Swanston drew a pass and stole second. Ross rolled to Rowden, Wolfe remaining at third. Harrison ripped a single to right, scoring Wolfe and Swanston. Rose doubled to left. Ash singled between Ward and Morrison, scoring Harrison. On a double steal Ash reached second and Rose scored. Ward played croquet with Helson's roller and Ash registered. Heckman forced Helson at second.

In the second Ward grounded to Helson, Roddick smashed hard to Harrison for an out and R. Fair lined to Wolfe.

Wolfe, first up in the Petes' half, cracked a vicious drive at Breckenridge who glued to the ball. Morrison tossed out Johnston. Swanston doubled down the left field foul line. Ross was thrown out by Rowden.

Breckenridge beat out a tap to Helson to start the third, and went to second on a passed ball. Rowden flied to Ash and Dainty to Ross, Breckenridge going to third after the second catch. Helson tossed out Tyson.

The Petes, although trying to hurry up the game to get five innings in before rain might stop the proceedings, got three in their half. Harrison was safe on Morrison's error and stole second. Rose grounded to Rowden. Harrison scored while Rowden was throwing out Ash. Helson's fly to centre was muffed by R. Fair, the batter reaching second. Fair and Dainty raised an argument over the decision at second and Dainty was finally chased out of the game after throwing his glove at Umpire Colling. Heckman singled to right. Wolfe singled to right, Helson scoring. Johnston cracked a single off Rowden's shins, filling the bases. Heckman scored on a wild pitch. Swanston flied to Roddick as Wolfe was stealing home, with the count 3 and 2 on the batter.

Oshawa got their first run in the fourth. Saunders rolled to Rose. Morrison doubled to centre. Ward dropped a single into left, Morrison going to third. When Ward started to steal second Swanston's throw headed him off, Morrison scoring and Ward eventually getting back to first. Roddick singled to centre, going to second on the throw to get Ward at third. Heckman then struck out R. Fair and Breckenridge.

With Lennox on the rubber the Petes got a run in their half. Legon batting for Ross, singled past third but was out trying to stretch it into a double. Harrison was hit and Rose singled between Rowden and Saunders. When Rowden lost Ash's roller Harrison scored. Helson forced Ash at second and was in turn forced by Heckman.

An Oshawa Rally.

Oshawa bunched four hits behind an error to score three runs in the fifth. Rowden got a life on Johnston's fumble and Alger, who had replaced Dainty, dropped a single into short left centre. Tyson crashed one over Helson's head for a single, to score Rowden. Saunders cracked another to right to send Alger in and Morrison singled to centre to provide transportation for Tyson. Heckman then proceeded to abruptly end the rally by breezing three strikes past Ward, Roddick and R. Fair.

Wolfe was thrown out by Morrison on a very close play. Johnston doubled to right. Swanston rolled to Morrison and Legon to Ward.

In the sixth Johnston threw out Lennox. Rowden was tossed out by Helson and Alger flied to Wolfe.

The Petes got another. Harrison grounded to Rowden. Rose was safe on Morrison's fumble. Ash struck out, Tyson dropping the third one. The batter was automatically out and when Rose ran to second a double play should have resulted but Rowden forgot to tag the runner. Helson walked. Heckman singled to left, scoring Rose. Wolfe flied to Roddick.

In the seventh Tyson was safe on Johnston's fumble but Saunders perished on a nice catch by Legon. Helson threw out Morrison and Ward struck out.

Holyman, batting for Johnston, singled past second and Swanston sacrificed, but Legon flied to Morrison and Harrison struck out.

Swanston made a fine catch of Roddick's foul in the eighth. R. Fair beat out a hit to Holyman but Lennox lined to Wolfe and Rowden's fly was easy for Holyman.

In the Petes half Rose flied to Lennox. Ash was safe when Morrison's throw pulled Saunders off first. Helson singled to centre. Heckman hit to W. Fair and Helson was nipped, Ash scoring. Wolfe struck out.

In the ninth Alger was hit but Tyson flied to Legon and Dineen, batting for Saunders, struck out, Swanston catching Alger off first on the third one, to wind up the game.

BALTIMORE WIN ONLY ONE GAME OF LEAF SERIES

Base on Ball and Two Scratch Hits Gave Them Deciding Run.

SPLIT DOUBLE BILL

Toronto Reversed Shutout Dose in Second Game—Margin Unchanged.

TORONTO, July 22 — Toronto and Baltimore split today's hard fought double bill, the Orioles winning the first contest by 1 to 0. It was a pitching duel between Ogden and Thomas. The Leafs won the closing game in seven innings by 3 to 0 and incidentally won the series from Baltimore by four games to one.

In the first game Thomas outpitched Ogden until the ninth when a base on balls to Roser with two out and a pair of scratchy hits scored the only run of the game.

The Leafs had several fair chances to count but were weak in a pinch. Manion doubled in the 7th, but was forced at third when Carlyle busted right into Ogden's hands. The same player was caught dead at the plate on a bluff throw and his outfielding was nothing to write to North Carolina about. It was a tough game for the Leafs and Thomas to lose.

Porter's leaping one-hand catch of Kelly's liner near the bleachers in the first inning and the right fielder's shoe-string of Gehringer's low drive in the third saved Ogden from defeat. None of Dunn's fence busters connected with any degree of force, and Roser, the home run king socalled, was more or less a dud both at the bat and in the field.

There were many sparkling plays. Miller, Heath and Joe Kelly starring for the Leafs.

Baltimore still lead the league by one game. The scores:

1st game:

Baltimore	00000001—1 8 0
Toronto	00000000—0 6 0

Ogden and McKee; Thomas and Manion.

2nd game—

Buffalo 13; Reading 5

BUFFALO, July 22—Ineffective pitching on the part of McNamara gave Buffalo a lead which Reading had no chance to overcome, the Keys being deefated 13 to 5. The Bisons registered enough tallies in their third to win an ordinary game. Score:

CRICKET NEWS

The regular practice will be held on Friday evening at 6.15 p.m. and a good turn out of members is requested.

On Saturday afternoon, members of the Royal Oak C.C. will combine with the club in a mixed game which will commence at 2.30. Players are asked to be on the ground at that time to enable sides to be picked and a prompt start made.

In view of the approaching games with Toronto clubs, members are reminded of the necessity of turning out for practice regularly.

Saturday's game will provide a good opportunity for practice under match conditions, and should not be missed.

JACK MAYNEORD'S RINK RETAINS STRATTON CUP FOR PETERBORO

Trophy Remains With Local Bowling Club for Third Year in Succession.

WEDNESDAY'S PLAY

The Stratton Trophy will remain with the Peterborough Lawn Bowlers for another year, the third in succession, through the victory in the small hours of this morning of J. W. Mayneord's rink, which won from Gardiner of Belleville, 14-8. The local rink, led by one of the most redoubtable skips in the club, lost no time in piling up a lead, and the result was known while several ends remained to be played. With two ends to go, the score stood at 13-6, but the visiting skip prolonged the game by scoring two on the thirteenth end and making a dead end of the fourteenth.

The finish of the semi-final game between Mayneord and the Toronto Granite rink, skipped by W. Morrison, was much more exciting. Coming home, the score was tied, eleven all, and when Mayneord took his first bowl, the Toronto rink was lying shot. Mayneord's bowl took the kitty out and left him lying one. Morrison rolled two good bowls, but was unable to get inside and the rink was relegated to the consolation series.

The semi-finals and finals of the Warne trophy competition, and the singles and doubles are being run off to-day.

LAST VISIT OF BELLEVILLE CLUB HERE SATURDAY

Railroaders Will Fight Hard to Win on Final Appearance of Season.

BATTLE EXPECTED

Gerow's Men Always Provide Plenty of Opposition for Petes.

Although Belleville are holding the cellar position they are likely to give the Petes a much tougher argument here on Saturday than Oshawa were able to put up in the last two games. The Railroaders also provide plenty of opposition at Riverside Park and they would like nothing better than to trim the Petes on their last appearance of the season in Peterboro. Goyer, who has not been very soft picking for Manager Johnston's crew will undoubtedly be Walter Gerow's selection Saturday while Whitehouse will likely ascend the hill top on behalf of the homesters.

The game will start at 3 o'clock and the last chance for 1925 of seeing Peeney Mills and Company in action at Riverside Park should attract a big crowd. There will only be two more home games after that fixture, Kingston and Oshawa coming here on the following two Saturdays.

NO GAME AT KINGSTON.

KINGSTON, July 22. — Owing to the heavy rains during last night and this morning, the baseball game between Belleville and Kingston scheduled here to-night, was called off.

SPORT GOSSIP AND COMMENT.

Yesterday's win over Oshawa puts the Petes two games in front of the Motorists, with six fixtures left to be played, leaving the Johnstonites in a very comfortable position as regards the play-off series, although, of course, they cannot afford to relax any just yet. They will have to keep going to stay up there, and they are expecting a much harder battle on Saturday when the Belleville crew will be here than Oshawa gave them yesterday. The Railroaders may be out of the running, but they fight in every ball game, and the Petes will have to be on their best behaviour in the week-end fixture. Frank Whitehouse will likely be on the hilltop for the homesters, while Goyer, who has two wins over Peterboro to his credit, will probably serve them up for Belleville.

* * * * * * * * *

The Petes are, temporarily at least, out in front with a clear lead in the race, the Kingston-Belleville fixture scheduled for last night having been postponed on account of wet grounds, leaving the standing as follows:

	Won.	Lost.	P.C.
Peterboro	11	7	.611
Kingston	10	7	.588
Oshawa	9	9	.500
Belleville	5	12	.294

Belleville will play the Petes here Saturday, while the Kingston-Oshawa game in Oshawa, scheduled for Saturday, has been shifted to Monday at the request of the Oshawa club.

* * * * * * * * *

As a result of getting two hits last night, Heckman has climbed into the .300 class, giving the Petes seven players in the charmed circle, the others being Ash, Wolfe, Swanston, Rose, Hall and Harrison.

* * * * * * * * *

Most of the fans probably missed the inside stuff on that play in the sixth inning when Ash struck out with Rose on first and only one out. Tyson missed the third strike, but under the conditions the batter was out automatically. Ash, however, ran down to first and Rose tore for second. Tyson, playing the proper card, threw down to Rowden and a double play should have resulted. But Rowden was asleep and forgot that it was not a forced play, failing to tag Rose, who was, of course, called safe.

Duke Dainty walked out of Saturday's game in Oshawa and was thrown out of last night's fixture. The Duke thumbed his nose and tossed his glove in derision of a decision at second, and when invited to take a seat on the bench and cool off, he threw his mitt at Umpire Colling. It was a strike, too.

The Petes, after winning only four of their first nine games, have hung up seven victories in the last nine fixtures.

* * * * * * * * *

With Jimmy Hall out of the line-up, Manager Johnston used Bob Ross in the outfield while Breckenridge was on the mound, and then substituted Red Legon when Lennox replaced the right-hander. Ross was the only one in the Petes' line-up to go hitless.

* * * * * * * * *

Alex. Kay officiated behind the bat last evening in place of Geo. Sullivan of Kingston, and his work was satisfactory to both teams.

* * * * * * * * *

Every one of Oshawa's seven errors was costly—in fact, the Petes did not score an earned run throughout. A contrast to Saturday's game when all the Peterboro counters were scored without the assistance of a fielding misplay by their opponents.

LACROSSE TEAM RESENTS CHARGE

Campbellford-Hastings Secretary Says He Wrote Asking Postponement.

A WEEK BEFORE.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 23. — Charles Holmes, secretary of the Campbellford - Hastings Lacrosse Team, takes decided exception to the statement made in the sporting columns of the Examiner, Monday, to the effect that the team which he represents defaulted 'at the eleventh if not the twelfth hour" for the game with Peterboro in the latter place Saturday. Secretary Holmes has been forced to the conclusion that there is something seriously amiss with the time keeping arrangements of the officals of the Peterboro team.

Mr. Holmes says that he sent a verbal message to the secretary of the Peterboro team one week ago, Friday, informing him that it would be impossible to get a team together here and that the game would have to be called off. He followed this up the next day with a letter which left here on the evening mail Saturday which should have reached the Peterboro secretary, Monday morning. He is of the opinion that a week's notice should be sufficient to afford the Petes opportunity to make other arrangements and relieve them of the necessity of talking about either eleventh or twelfth hour defaults.

Without knowing it, many golfers unconsciously permit all their weight to fall on to the right leg during the address. The weight should be squarely on both feet during the address, or if anything throw all of it on to the left foot. Never have all of it on the right foot, since having it so placed will result in body weaving, or swaying, in the back swing. If the weaving doesn't take place, the chances are the right hip will project outward too much and cause a dip. When the weight is on the left foot in the address the right leg catches the weight at the start of the back swing, then stiffens to arrest it. Thus it automatically does its work correctly. Often you see good golfers lift the right heel off the ground just before they start the back swing—a good practice. They throw the weight forward, then back.

BILL BROUGHT IN FOR PROTECTING PUBLIC MORALS

Prevent Publication of Details That Would Injure Morals.

REPORTS LIMITED.

In Divorce Cases, Names, Grounds and Finding May Be Used.

LONDON, July 23. — (Special.)—Lord Darling's judicial proceedings bill, when introduced in the House of Lords, was described as an act to "regulate the publication of reports of judicial proceedings in such a manner as to prevent injury to public morals,' has just been published, and contains some drastic provisions.

The measure forbids publication by the press of "any indecent matter or medical, surgical or physicogical details, being matter of details, the publication of which would be calculated to injure public morals or otherwise be to the public mischief.'

Newspaper reports of divorce actions may contain no more than the following: "The names, addresses and description of the parties and witnesses, the grounds on which the proceedings are brought and resisted and set forth in the petition and answers, and particulars thereof, and submission of any point of law arising in the course of the proceedings, and the decision of the court thereon; the summing up of the judge, and the finding of the jury, and judgment of the court, and observations made by the judge in giving judgment."

FAMOUS SHIP TO BE USED IN DRY NAVY

400-Ton Boat Was Fisheries Cruiser—Auxiliary in World War.

VICTORIA, B.C., July 23.—(Canadian Press).—The steamer Quadra will shortly enter upon another adventurous phase of its picturesque career. Few vessels in the North Pacific can boast of such a long, active and tangled history as this staunch little 400-ton boat, yet now she seems destined to attain another important period of service.

When the Quadra was launched in 1891 she served a short time in Atlantic waters and was then turned over to the Canadian government to be used in fisheries patrol work off the British Columbia coast. In the war against poachers she became more famous than the illustrious Spanish admiral after whom she was named because of his association with the early exploration of this coast.

When the war broke out the Quadra was an old vessel, but she was commissioned for special war service and aided Canadian cruisers in the capture of the schooners Oregon and Leonor said to be operated by Germans in a gun-running exploit off the Mexican coast. Later on, when the Canadian government decided to use faster and more modern vessels for fisheries patrol work, the Quadra was ordered sold and she eventually became the property of liquor exporters engaged in running cargoes out of British Columbia ports for points in Mexico. Much of this liquor, according to court evidence, was never delivered to Mexico but was shipped into California while the Quadra was at anchor outside the twelve-mile limit.

When the Quadra ventured too close to the Farallone Islands one day last summer United States rum chasers effected her capture. Ligitation resulted and it was finally decided that the vessel should remain a prize of the United States government.

Following a decision in Federal court that automobiles confiscated from rum-runners may be used by prohibition agents, officials in San Francisco began taking steps to use the Quadra and other rum ships seized in their dry navy. The Quadra is regarded as particularly well suited for that sort of work.

ROYAL

AMERICAN TRIBUTE TO BRITISH RUNNERS

No Alibis, Says Philadelphia Ledger, of Inter-Varsity Track Meet.

It was English speed and stamina that beat us in the international track and field meet at Atlantic City, and we might as well bury our alibis, says The Philadelphia Public Ledger.

* * *

Douglas G. A. Lowe performed the almost unbelievable feat of winning both the half and mile runs on successive Saturdays. He did it in a style that stamped him as a marvel.

Any athlete who runs 880 yards and then a couple of hours later runs a mile, both in competition, has done something. And to do it twice with a lapse of only seven days is a real job.

At Cambridge on July 11 Lowe had to beat John (Soapy) Waters in the half-mile. The Harvard man forced the British star to do 1.53 2-5 to win.

That was only one second slower than Ted Meredith's best mark. On the Airport track Lowe was not pushed to the limit, but he won and did 2 minutes, running into a strong wind on the homestretch.

Red Haggerty, of Harvard, intercollegiate champion, was Lowe's principal rival in the mile at Cambridge. Lowe won in 4.21, which was 4 7-10 seconds faster than the Crimson athlete's time on Franklin Field in May.

Jack Gallagher was the hope of the Princeton-Cornell teams against Lowe last Saturday. But the Briton ran Gallagher "out" before they had finished the half.

Lowe loafed home, actually inviting R. S. Starr, another Cambridge entrant, to cross the line first, which sportsmanlike invitation Starr refused to accept. The slow time of 4.41½ at Atlantic City doesn't mean a thinng.

It is entirely possible that on a fast track, with conditions right and a fast field to make him go, Captain Lowe might equal Ted Meredith's 1.52 1-5 in the half mile.

* * *

Then Starr, who finished second to Lowe in the mile at both Cambridge and Atlantic City, is a native son of England—his home is in Cambridge.

* * *

Lord Burghley had won the high hurdles in the Harvard Stadium on July 11, but finished third in the low hurdles that afternoon.

Unfortunately, the hope of the Americans in the low hurdlers at Atlantic City had a pulled tendon in his leg. George Scattergood was not at his best.

However, since the English nobleman leaped over the low sticks and ran the 220 yards in 21 2-5 seconds, which time equaled the performance at the intercollegiates, where Scattergood finished second, the Earl must be given full credit for a fine race and well-earned victory.

At Cambridge, where Davy was third, Robb of Harvard, won in 25 seconds. Lord Burghley was at his best last Saturday and we doubt whether he would have been defeated by any American star in that contest at the seashore.

The Oxford-Cambridge teams won according to the English system of point-scoring, only firsts counting. But their victory would have been just as complete with any other system.

Had the points been awarded 5 for first, 3 for second and 1 for third, for example, the English teams would have had 66½ to 41½ for the Americans.

Ralph (Bruno) Hills, Princeton captain, came through as expected in the shotput. He heaved the iron ball 8 feet 1 inch, which is 1 foot 8 5-8 inches shy of the intercollegiate mark established by him.

Russell, intercollegiate champ at the 220 dash, defeated Porritt at the Airport, and ran it in 21 2-5, only one-fifth slower than the college record.

* * *

Our two winners almost equalled the best college performances to win, which shows what it took to beat those Britishers.

TENNIS NO LONGER PARLOUR PASTIME

Now the Modern Girl Plays With Vim and Vigour.

LONDON, Eng., July 23 (Canadian Press)—The "Daily Graphic" says editorially: If there is one sport which epitomizes the modern girl, it tennis. None of the Pankhursts—either the learned Christabel or the pugnacious Silvia—so stands for woman's freedom as does Suzanne Lenglen or Kitty MacKane. A quarter of a century ago tennis was the quintessence of ladylikeness. It was for most girls just a polite form of shuttlecock and battledore after afternoon tea. It was a pastime rather than a sport. The tennis girl's skirts were long; her play was languid. She was much too proper (and, conceivably, m uch too underdeveloped also) to indulge in the high jumps of the tennis girl of today. Carrying her racket to the courts she might have been the bearer of a bishop's crozier, so staid and self-conscious was she. As it is played today, tennis symbolizes the revolt of woman's soul against all the restrictions and constrictions to which it was slave even so recently as 1900. The racket has sundered more chains than all the hammers of all the suffragettes. The danger is that our girls may overdo Wimbledonism and the free, strenuous manners which it commands.

LINDSAY PROTESTS CARRYING 'LAME DUCK' OF HYDRO SYSTEM

Refers to 'Candid Admission' of F. A. Gaby That Peterboro Is It.

CALLS FOR HALT.

'Post' Says Lindsay Has Received a Raw Deal From Hydro.

The following appears in two column large type on the front page of The Lindsay Post:

For some time there has been a lingering suspicion in the minds of Lindsay citizens that this town has been helping to keep up certain "lame ducks" carried and controlled by Hydro Electric Commission in the Central Ontario area, namely certain utilities in different centres which were losing concerns. No direct evidence was available, however, to fully warrant these suspicions, but today we are in a position to publish the declaration of a Hydro official, in the person of F. A. Gaby.

Mr. Gaby appeared before the Peterboro City Council last night and, on behalf of the Hydro Electric Commission, urged upon the city the advisability of taking over the street railway burden which has been a losing proposition for the Commission. In referring to the Peterboro utility, Mr. Gaby unhesitatingly declared that:—

"Operating deficits have been met out of the profits of other systems in the Central Ontario area, but capital expenditure cannot be paid from that source."

Mr. Gaby followed up this candid admission by pointing out that other towns and cities in the Central Ontario system have for years expressed indignation that they should be compelled to meet the deficit in operating the Peterboro Street Railway.

Mr. Gaby's statement is remarkable for its candor. It proves conclusively that Lindsay, as well as other centres in the Central Ontario area, have been receiving a raw deal from the Hydro. Year after year appeals have been made for more satisfactory power and light rates and for improved service, but these appeals have been answered with the statement that financial conditions did not permit of any change in rates in the Central system at the present time. It appears, however, that the Hydro deliberately diverted the surplus from the operation of the Lindsay plant to meet the deficits of the Peterboro radial system as well as other utilities in this area.

This is a matter of vital importance to every citizen. It is about time a halt was called, and it is up to the representatives from this county in the Legislature—Messrs. R. J. Patterson and Jas. Mark—to place our grievance—and a real grievance it is—before the Government.

It might be of interest to our citizens to learn that the income received by the old Light, Heat and Power Co., of Lindsay in their last years of operation was, say $40,000 yearly on power then developed at Fenelon Falls. The income received today by the Hydro from the same amount of power is probably $60,000.

According to the evidence taken by the Gregory Commission, the price paid by the Hearst Government for the Central Ontario Power System was dollars and dollars more than Sir Adam Beck's valuation of the same.

BETTING INCREASED

TORONTO, July 23.—(Canadian Press.)— An increase is shown in the returns of the betting tax and revenue of the Devonshire race track, Windsor, spring meeting, filed at the provincial treasurer's office to-day, with returns from the Hamilton nad Fort Erie tracks. The betting tax at Windsor was $81,144, compared with $79,139 for the spring meet last year. Hamilton revenue from the betting tax decreased from $100,773 at the spring meet last year to $87,293 this year, the attendance decreasing in proportion. Fort Erie betting tax this year amounted to $92,253, compared with $84,575, with a corresponding increase in attendance.

B. C. FARMERS PLAN GREAT HORSE HUNT

Descendants of Strays Become Intolerable Nuisance to Settlers.

INVERMERE, B.C., July 23.—(Canadian Press).—Wild horses as fleet of foot as the mountain deer and almost as agile in negotiating the heights and passes of the Rocky Mountains are to be the prey of hunting parties this summer.

The wild horses have been a menace to the farmers of this region for years and so serious has the problem of their disposal become that farmers are organizing a systematic hunt which may be extended for several weeks at a time in order that the pests may be eliminated for all time.

For twenty-five years British Columbia has had its wild horse problem. The horses were evidently in the valleys of the interior long before the white man came, indicating that perhaps they are survivors of the roaming herds which originated in the gold camps of California. Many of the horses are regarded as of little or no commercial value. Many of them are under-sized or deformed and would be useless as riding stock. The best of them are usually captured by the Indians.

Years ago a proposal was made by H. B. Jayne, formerly of Seattle, Wash., to organize a hunt and place the proposition before English sportsmen. The provincial government was asked to contribute some of the money necessary for the project, but finances would not permit and the scheme was dropped. Since then the horses have multiplied and each succeeding year they have given settlers considerable trouble.

"FEAR BOUND" IS PERFECT BLENDING OF FILM ELEMENTS

Romance, Thrills, Suspense and Comedy Offer Strong Appeal.

A treat is in store for picture lovers when "Fear-Bound," Will Nigh's production for Vitagraph, opens a three days' run at the Royal Theatre to-night. A great cast interprets a story which, from all accounts, is destined to please fans of every taste.

Ma Tumble, living on an Idaho claim, tried to raise her children to be law-abiding citizens. One by one the three sons disappeared, the last deserting soon after Falfi, the daughter, was born. Falfi believed herself fatherless, and she grew to girlhood knowing no companion but her disappointed mother.

In a sandstorm Falfi found her brother Jim cowering in the shelter of a barn. Ma Tumble knew Jim to be a shiftless ne'er-do-well, but Falfi's pleas won her consent for him to stay. The three trekked across the plains to a Nevada settlement, where the girl took charge of the family and opened a lunch room.

Three strangers take possession of the restaurant, and two of them announce themselves as Falfi's father and missing brothers. They try to intimidate Jim into joining them in a hold-up, but he refuses. Jim, who is a coward, flees, but is traped by his brothers, who are in hiding after the robbery.

All this time Falfi was convinced that Jim would yet prove himself a real man. Her confidence has its effect, for suddenly the boy turns on his disreputable father and brothers and in a startlingly realistic series of fights proves himself their master. Tod Vane, coming out from the East, fell in love with Falfi and eventually won her heart.

It's a story combining romance, thrills, suspense and comedy — that "has everything." In the cast are such popular favorites as Marjorie Daw, Will Nigh, Louise Mackintosh, Niles Welch, Ed. R. Roseman, James Bradbury, Jr., Warner Richmond, Dexter MacReynolds, Jean Jarvis, Frank Conlan and Bill Gudgeon.

AT THE CAPITOL

TRIPLE CLIMAX FEATURES ZANE GREY PHOTOPLAY

"The Light of Western Stars" Hailed as Film Drama of Perfect Suspense.

William K. Howard, whose epic production "The Thundering Herd," is still fresh in the minds of moviegoers, recently completed another Paramount western based on Zane Grey's powerful frontier story, "The Light of Western Stars," which makes its local debut at the Capitol Theatre today.

Advance reports hail it as the film drama of perfect suspense, and those who have been privileged to preview the picture agree that the plot builds to what amounts to a triple climax in a way that is totally unexpected and extremely exciting.

The principal characters in this mighty production, which depicts in graphic and stirring fashion the last desperate stand of banded outlawry on the remaining vestige of frontier America, include a notorious bandit chief, a daring, romantic cowboy and a beautiful Eastern girl, portrayed respectively by Noah Beery, Jack Holt and Billie Dove.

The action develops some smashing dramatic situations and hair-raising thrills, but takes a startling turn when Beery abducts Miss Dove and follows that up by capturing Holt and William Scott, her brother. The girl is suddenly faced with a dilemma that is overwhelming, for Beery, with fiendish cunning, tells her that she may have her choice of naming either her brother or the man she loves to go free; the other must die.

This is where the suspense begins in earnest. Each urges her to save the other. Finally she asks that Holt's life be spared, but Beery's subtle cruelty is now revealed. He turns Scott loose instead and sends Holt on the "walk to death." Each moment one expects to see the lion-hearted cowboy fall as the bandits open fire on him as he walks away.

Meanwhile, Holt's friends, having learned of his danger, start out on a wild ride of rescue, arriving just in the nick of time. In the battle between the rescurers and the outlaws, the former are outnumbered, and the suspense increases until re-inforcements arrive and engage the bandits in a furious gunfight.

"The Light of Western Stars" is the kind of red-blooded entertainment that is universal in its appeal!

AT THE REGENT

FORBIDDEN CARGO.

Hi-jackers in a swift motor-boat lying in wait for the modern corsairs with the jolly rover of rum flaunted from their mast-head; the battle on deck as the gunmen swarm over the schooner's rails; the escape of a captured revenue agent, taking with him the wounded little bootlegger's daughter who is captain of the boat; cast away on a deserted key off the Florida coast — these and other thrilling incidents make "Forbidding Cargo," which comes to the Regent Theatre for a three day run to-day, one of the finest tales of adventure and romance that it is possible to imagine. Evelyn Brent plays the role of "Captain Joe" flawlessly, and in this story by Fred Myton she has a wonderful vehicle. Boris Karloff, her first mate, is an excellent villain and Robert Ellis also gives the star fine support. The matchless color and excitement of the Bahama Islands, rendezvous of the bootlegging fraternity, and the surge of the open sea itself lend the picture a distinctive tone. Tom Buckingham directed the production.

* * * *

Cast away on a deserted Island off the Florida Keys, the pretty young girl pirate, captain of a modern rum-runner, and the Secret Service Agent who had baited and trailed her, finally bury their mutual hatred in a most amazing manner. This is but one of the big situations which occur in "Forbidden Cargo" now playing at the Regent Theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. This is Evelyn Brent's latest starring vehicle which provides this splendid actress with thrilling action against a colorful background of the new Spanish Main, the battle ground of revenue boats and the modern galleons laden with gin and whiskey. Romance, adventure, a free wind and an open sea give this pirate story a tang of realism that is like a breath of the ocean itself.

TORONTO, July 23 (Canadian Press).—A report states that bandsmen of Toronto regiments have refused to play at ceremonies of welcome to Field Marshal Earl Haig in this city tomorrow unless they are paid for their services. The cost for twelve military bands would be $1,500. The bandsmen say they have the greatest regard for the Earl and that their refusal is not to be regarded as slighting him. The city this year refused to pay for the usual series of band concerts in public parks, and it is believed that trouble arises from this source.

A NEW WAY TO EUROPE.

There's a new way to Europe, new, not because it's really so, but because the other way is the only way some folk know. The new way is from America to Sweden direct, leaving the British Isles and Mediterarnean lands to the side. It is probably the oldest way that Europe ever had to America. It is for most a novel and interesting experience and lands you in a Europe that has not yet peopled your imagination. The people are all our kin. Their Odin and Thor and the Valkyrie galloping over the clouds are part of our own mythological past. Four centuries before Columbus discovered us, the fair-haired vikings had prowed the Atlantite on this route, and I need hardly say that this gives new interest to retrace the route. The new way to Europe is the oldest way and Sweden is a land where Americans are not made to feel at home for the home-feeling comes without the making.

The regular cottage prayer meeting of Truth Mission will be held tomorrow evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Burfield, 31 New Chamberlain Street. All welcome.

STORE CLOSED

While repairs are being made and improvements being effected, Joseph Parrot, well known merchant in the laneway off Hunter Street, is taking a few days' well-earned holiday.

Around The City.

Mrs. R. H. Parsons, president of the Ashburnham Women's Patriotic League, is in receipt of a cheque for $100, sent "In memory of the late Mr. A. R Clarke of Toronto."

Observation of the actions of motorists in the streets of the city shows that recent warnings of the danger of working about the tanks of the cars with lighted pipes and cigarettes are being largely disregarded.

The Peterboro Male Voice choir will give a concert to-morrow night in Victoria Park. A splendid programme has been arranged, including choir selections, solos, and an octette.

There will be a meeting of the Manufacturers' Asscoiation in the Chamber of Commerce to consider the problem presented by the Street Railway question.

An automobile and a buggy collided last night on the Chemong road. Both were damaged but no one was hurt.

Two cars collided at the swamp, near Bridgenorth, last night, both being wrecked. A passenger had his face cut by glass.

GREAT POWER GIVEN LABOUR EXECUTIVE

Leaders of General Alliance May Call Strike Without Vote.

LONDON, July 23 (Canadian Press) — The Transport Workers' Union unanimously has approved the scheme recently announced for a great alliance of millions of workers in all branches of British industry. Approval is subject to confirmation by different branches of the Transport Workers' organization. As soon as the various branches have voted in favor of the scheme all power will pass into the hands of the executive body and the Unions' funds will be at the disposal of the Alliance. In any extreme situation the Alliance also will have power to declare a general strike or to declare a strike by any one union without the necessity of ballot by members.

FINANCIAL NEWS.

Toronto Session Quietest In Week Without Interest

TORONTO, July 23 (Canadian Press).Tractions and Consolidated Smelters were the only points of interest on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning. The session was the quietest of the week, and changes were not consequential, though some fair gains were recorded. Twin City eased off 1 3-4 at 63, and Winnipeg a quarter point at 50 1-4. Smelters advanced a full point to 99, after selling as low as 97 7-8. Brazilian was 5-8 stronger at 59 1-8, and Brantford Cordage Preferred a quarter at 26 1-4.

Liverpool Wheat Prices Boost Chicago Markets

CHICAGO, July 23 (Canadian Press).—Influenced by an unexpected upturn in Liverpool quotations, the wheat market here scored an early advance today. A contributing bullish factor was the news that Kansas wheat production this season is less than the amount of wheat that was ground by Kansas and Kansas City mills in the twelve months ending June 30. Estimates were also at hand that crop damage since July 1 has amounted to 45 per cent in Montana; 40 per cent. in the western third of North Dakota; 20 to 25 per cent. in South Dakota; and 20 per cent. in Minnesota. The opening 3-4c to 2 1-2c higher; September 151 1-2 to 152, and December 149 to 150, was followed by a reaction to about the same as yesterday's finish, but then by decided new upturns.

Dry weather in the corn belt, together with wheat strength gave firmness to corn prices and to oats. After opening at 1-2 to 1 5-8c gain, September 105, the corn market eased back somewhat.

Oats started at 3-8c to 7-8c up, September 44 7-8 to 45c, but later reacted a little.

In line with hog values and with grain the provision market was firmer.

Rallying On Wall Street In Spite of Higher Loan

NEW YORK, July 23 (Canadian Press).—Rallying tendencies were in evidence throughout the forenoon trading in Wall Street, despite a renewal of call loans at 4 1-4 per cent., the highest opening rate in several weeks. An upturn in railroad shares gave stability to the recovery with investment buying centering in standard dividend payers, such as Union Pacific and Atlantic Coast Line. Accumulation for Loree interest was believed to account for the strength of Wheeling and Lake Erie Wabash issue. 'Frisco and Katy led an advance in the southwestern carriers. Early gains by most of the active industrials were extended before noon, when advances of 2 to 5 points were shown by General Electric, Havana Electric, American Agricultural Chemical Preferre, American Can, Foundation Company, and U. S. Rubber. Air Reduction and International Business Machine were heavy.

Light Trading In Mines With Lorrain Forced Down

TORONTO, July 23. — (Canadian Press.)— Selling pressure on Lorrain caused that issue to be sold down to 13 ,a drop of a point and a half on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning. The rest of the list on the whole was firm, with trading not very heavy. Tough-Oakes went up 2 1-2 points to 39 and Tech Hughes and Vipond each advanced a point.

WEMBLEY HOLDS MIRROR OF THE EMPIRE TO THE WORKING CLASSES OF BRITAIN

J. H. Thomas, M.P., Reminds Cabinet Ministers of This Intangible Advantage.

SCHOLARS ATTEND

LONDON, July 23 (Canadian Press Cable) — "There is a great deal of talk about migration and how much better it would be if the toiling millions went overseas," declared J. H. Thomas, M.P., former colonial secretary, speaking at Wembley yesterday. "How many of you are aware that already there are registered over 50,000 men who of their own free will have asked for the opportunity of going overseas?

"It is all very well to get cabinet ministers here and give them a decent lunch at no cost to themselves whatever and let them give lip service at Wembley. I want them, when the Wembley balance sheet is presented, not to be too critical over a few thousand pounds.

"It is often said that the working classes have no breadth of vision regarding the empire. I ask you to remember that most of them have been denied any opportunity of undertanding what the British commonwealth of nations means. If we have done nothing else we have given them the opportunity of seeing here at the Wembley exhibition what the British empire stands for."

Mr. Thomas' speech was given in connection with the corporation of London's entertainment of 10,000 London school pupils at Wembley yesterday. The Duke and Duchess of York were present.

Mr. Thomas is a member of the Board of Management of the British Empire Exhibition at Wembley. Lord Stevenson is chairman of the board, and the Duke of Devonshire, formerly Governor-General of Canada, is a member.

START DOUBLES.

Many Good Games Played in Preliminary and First Round.

At the tournament of the Lawn Bowling Club, the last game of the fourth round in the Consolation trophy, the Warne Cup, was played off late last night, with the following result:

Sunderland, St. John, Skip	12
Belleville, Wray Skip	5

This left the way clear for the semi-finals, which resulted as follows,

Lindsay.	Sunderland.
Rogers,	St. John,
Sk.....16	Sk.....14

Peterboro.	Granites.
Curvin,	Morrison,
Sk.....16	Sk.....8

Leaving the Curvin and Rogers rinks to contest the final.

Doubles Started.

A start was made on the Doubles competition. The preliminaries were played off with the following results.

NEW ATTORNEYS MAKE ATTEMPT

Will Endeavour to Obtain Another Reprieve For Scott.

NEW EVIDENCE.

CHICAGO, July 23. —(Canadian Press). — New Attorneys, C. W. Bidwell and Arthur Kettles, engaged by friends of Russell Scott to make a last effort to save him from the gallows ready to receive him tomorrow morning, left to-day for Springfield, Ills., in an effort to obtain another reprieve from Governor Small. They said they had been retained by an old client who sympathized with the former Canadian promoter. They had new evidence they asserted, which they believed would convince the Governor that Robert Scott killed Maurer. Scott for the first time, to-day sent word from the cell that he was too busy to see reporters. He played cards with his guards until 3 a.m. this morning, slept until 8 a.m when he ordered breakfast and then proceeded to do some writing.

STRIKE OF BRITISH COAL MINERS JULY 31 ORDERED BY EXECUTIVE

Coal Fields Will Be Idle Unless a Settlement is Reached—Government Striving to Avert Strike—Not Yet Considered Inevitable.

DECISION MADE ON THURSDAY

LONDON, July 24.—(Canadian Press).—Great Britain is menaced with a general strike of all the British coal miners on July 31, the miners executive having decided last evening to instruct the workers to quit work on that date, and unless a settlement is reached between the mine owners and the men, the great coalfields will cease to operate.

In the meantime the government is bending every effort to bring about negotiations between the contending parties, and W. C. Bridgeman, First Lord of the Admiralty, having won his battle in behalf of the Admiralty's cruiser construction program is now in a position to continue his efforts as mediator to avert the strike.

This action on the part of the miners federation is considered a counter to the owners persistent refusal to withdraw their notices of the termination of the present agreement governing work in coal mines, which expires July 31, as a necessary preliminary to a conference to discuss a new agreement. A mining strike cannot, however, be regarded as inevitable, though the time for negotiation is running dangerously short.

The government itself is most anxious to avoid such a grave labor fight as would be certain to arise from the stoppage of mining and will exert itself to the utmost to prevent such an outcome.

RUSSELL SCOTT AGAIN SAVED WITHIN FEW HOURS OF DEATH

Stay of Execution Granted Pending Inquiry as to Sanity.

DRAMATIC MOVE.

Wife Rushing From Fruitless Effort to Bid Him Good-bye.

CHICAGO, July 24.—(Canadian Press).—Russel Scott early to-day escaped the gallows for the second time within a week.

The former Canadian financier, twice reprieved from paying the supreme penalty for the murder of a Chicago drug clerk in a hold-up, dodged the noose for the third time less than four hours before he was to have been executed when Circuit Judge Joseph B. David granted a stay of execution pending a hearing into his sanity.

A week ago, six hours before he was to have been hanged, Governor Small granted one week's reprieve, which expired this morning. Judge David, called out of bed a few hours before the time for execution, convened a special session of the court and granted a stay after Governor Small and the State Board of Pardons and Paroles last night at Springfield refused further clemency.

This morning the gallows trap, set for springing a week ago, stood without its victim, and jail officials who had left it standing during the wee of grace were considering dismantling it. The hearing will not come for several days.

Hope Abandoned.

Scott's escape from death to-day, like that a week ago, came after he and his relatives had virtually abandoned hope. Thomas Scott, his father, had called at the jail three hours previously to bid him a last farewell, the second such visit in a week.

Mrs. Catherine Scott, his faithful wife, who for weeks fought to obtain commutation, played what she believed to be her final card in Springfield, where she appeared before the Pardon Board and when the stay was granted, was rushing from Springfield to Chicago by automobile to bid her husband farewell almost at the minute of execution.

She arrived to find court action stopping the hanging.

Scott, who had been surly and defiant throughout the night, apparently was completely resigned to his fate, received the news that his life was spared, at least temporarily, with considerable surprise. He had known nothing about the last minute appeal to the courts.

"I'm tickled to death," were his first words.

Then upon learning that the stay had been granted to find out whether he were sane, Scott added: "I am no more crazy than the Judge who granted me the stay on that account. I am not asking for any sympathy from any one either. I am innocent."

Dramatic Move.

Scott's sudden and unexpected escape from the gallows was dramatic. After being informed of the failure of the plea to Governor Small, Mrs. Wm. McGraw and Mrs. Isobel Hurst, both of Detroit, representing the Detroit club women, hastily retained William Scott Stewart, noted criminal lawyer, who recently successfully defended William D. Shepherd, accused of the murder of Billy McClintock.

Stewart it was who conceived the idea of asking for a stay of execution.

At midnight, Scott's friends and Stewart started their hunt for a judge to issue the stay. Judge David, called from his bed, agreed to call a session of the court if his bailiff and clerk could be found. Then with the minutes ticking away the clerk and bailiff were rushed to the county building, where, in the dimly lighted court-room, the hearing was held.

A little group of newspaper men, the judge, attorneys, Scott's friends and his aged father made up the gathering. A petition, signed by Scott's father, recited that the condemned man has become insane since his incarceration, 15 months ago, in the county jail.

Within 20 minutes from the time the court had been convened, a stay of execution had been granted.

Robert E. Crowe, States attorney, was not present or represented at the court session, and apparently did not know of it. George E. Gorman, his assistant, who prosecuted Scott, when informed of the action, said: "I have not a thing to say except that they tried to fool the Governor a week ago, and now they are trying to make a fool out of Judge David. We will fight it to the end. This man deserves the rope, and he will get it before we are through."

Maintains Innocence.

Scott to-day in his cell told reporters that "I was about ten per cent. guilty and ninety per cent. innocent. The worst I did was to help my brother escape."

The prisoner earlier had declared that he was perfectly sane. In a later interview, he said: "I do know that no man can spend nineteen months such as I've spent in jail and still be normal."

He said he had given up all hope of living last night, but expressed the belief to-day that he would be saved. He said he did not believe his brother, Robert, had heard of his trial and sentence, else he would have appeared. Scott showed no interest in the rumors that his brother was on the way here.

Judge David set the sanity hearing for August 3rd.

PLAN REDUCTION IN LOGGING AND SAW MILL WORK

Curtailment of Production of Lumber is Decided On.

DEPRESSED MARKET.

Lumbermen Find Cost of Operation High and Sales Poor.

OTTAWA, July 24 (Canadian Press).—A substantial curtailment of production this year by many of the largest saw mills in Ontario and Quebec and a reduction by half in logging operations has been decided on unanimously by the lumber manufacturers of the two provinces. It was announced this morning that these decisions had been reached yesterday, when thirty-three of the large lumber manufacturers were represented at a meeting held in Montreal. The high cost of production and the continuance of depressed lumber markets are given as a reason for the decision to cut down on logging and sawmill operations.

MINERS AND OWNERS ARE TO CONFER

Will Meet on Wednesday in Move to Avert a Strike.

LONDON, July 24 (Canadian Press)—Late this afternoon it was announced that representatives of the British Coal Miners and the mine owners would meet in a joint conference, July 29th. This is the first successful move toward averting the threatened British coal strike.

ONLY 216 FRENCHMEN ADMIT $80,000 INCOMES

The recent income tax returns of France come as a surprise to the average American who struggles with tax blanks. There are in France 927,679 people liable under the law to pay income taxes. More than two-thirds, or 650,000, have declared under oath that their incomes were under 20,000 francs a year. That sum at the present rate of exchange is the equivalent of $1,000 a year.

According to these returns, only about 250,000 people in France have incomes above 20,000 francs and under 100,000 francs a year—that is, incomes ranging from $1,000 to $2,000 a year. In all France there are only 216 people who admit having incomes of 1,000,000 francs, or $50,000, or more a year.

Believe Curzon's Will Refers To Lloyd George

LONDON, July 24 (Canadian Press).—The Evening Standard today states it understands that former Premier David Lloyd George is the high personage to whom the late Lord Curzon's secret supplementary will refers. The paper say that Lord Curzon's most pungent comment on his former chief refers to Mr. Lloyd George "adopting the functions of the foreign secretary" during the fashioning of the Versailles Treaty.

INSTALLMENT OF $15,000,000 PAID BY WHEAT POOL

Will be Distributed Among Farmer Members Prior to August 1st.

TOTAL NOW $1.55

Final Payment From Pool Receipts Will be Made Next Month.

WINNIPEG, Man., July 24 Canadian Press).—Fifteen million dollars will be paid to members of the ister-provincial wheat pool before August 1, according to an official statement issued yesterday by the president of the Canadian Co-operative Wheat Producers, Limited. The second interim payment will amount to 20 cents a bushel and brings the total already distributed to $1.55 a bushel on the 1924 crop. The statement intimates that the final installment will be made some time next month.

Due to volume of wheat received by the pool during recent weeks, the 1924 pool was not closed until July 15.

Twenty cents a bushel will be paid on No. 1, 2, 3, and 4, Northern, also the toughs of these grades; fifteen cents on No. 5 tough 5, and rejected grades. No payment, the statement says, will be paid at this time on feed and such wheat graded rejected, heated and condemned. Spreads on grades will be adjusted when the final payment is made.

MODEL BOAT HAS SUCCESSFUL TRIAL

Craft 36 Inches By 7 Inches Circles About in Little Lake.

Last night at the Lake Street bathing beach, the Rona M., a miniature steam boat, designed and built by H. McLarnon of 596 Chamberlain Street, had a very successful trial run. Several improvements had been made which helped the performance and speed, so that Mr. McLarnon has now brought his work to a successful juncture.

When the boat was tried out earlier in the year it was found that the boiler would not contain an edequate supply of water, due to the rapid evaporation. On account of this fact the boiler went dry, and one of the tubes burned out. Now Mr. McLarnon has devised a scheme which obviates this trouble. The water which supplies the boiler is now induced from the lake and a special by-pass line runs the surplus water back again to the source.

The engine, which is a tiny but well constructed affair, worked splendidly last night, and is designed to run at 3,000 r.p.m.

The boiler is of water tube design, having twelve tubes fired by a gasoline blow torch. Last night the little boat attained an approximate speed of seven miles per hour and that was not the maximum, as the nipple of the gasoline feed from the torch became clogged, resulting in loss of power.

Mr. McLarnon is anxious to arouse an interest in this fascinating hobby and would like to enter his boat in a race with anyone else who would design and build a similar craft. He states that he is willing to help anyone who would give some of his spare time to the work.

Mr. McLarnon himself is about to construct another boat which, he avers, will maintain a 25 miles per hour clip.

A number of interested spectators assembled on the bank to watch the model circling about and evinced a considerable interest in the experiment. The Union Jack was flown gallantly from the stern as if to proclaim a relationship with the mighty mother of ships.

Boy's Death From Rabies First In Saskatchewan No Scars Of Infection

REGINA, July 24.—(Canadian Press).—Arthur C. Ryderman, 13, of Golfax, died in the hospital here yesterday of rabies, the first victim of this disease the province has ever known. He was brought here on Wednesday as the first stage of a journey to Winnipeg, where serum ordered by Dr. M. M. eymour, Deputy Minister of Health of the Province, from Minneapolis and Toronto, was to be had. His condition, however, prevented further travel and he lived only a few hours after his arrival.

His case presents a problem to medical officers for the boy did not rememberd playing with a dog recently, being scratched or bitten by one. He became ill on Monday last on his return home after a visit to Radville, but his symptoms were not pronounced enough to enable complete diagnosis until Wednesday.

Nansen Will Make Dirigible Trip Across Pole to Alaska.

PLANNED FOR 1927.

MOSCOW, July 24. — (Canadian Press).—Captain Walter Bruns, of the Norwegian air force, has arrived here from Berlin, and submitted to the experts a scheme for scientific air expedition to the Arctic in 1927, to be led by Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, noted Norwegian explorer. A dirigible of 150,000 cubic metres capacity, 345 metres long, with a lifting capacity of 55,000 kilograms and a crew of 50 men, would be used. The route would be from Kurmansk to Franz Josef Land, via the North Pole to Alaska or Anadyr and back.

LIBERAL EXCURSION TO GORE'S LANDING

Stoney Lake Carried Many on Women's Association Trip Yesterday.

The "Stoney Lake" carried a jolly crowd of members of the Liberal Association and their friends on Thursday afternoon to Gores Landing. Many families took advantage of the excursion run by the Liberal Women's Association, and brought their friends.

The committee in charge kept a booth on the boat which turned in a profitable share to the funds of the club.

The day was pleasant and bright and everyone had a most enjoyable outing in addition to getting acquainted, with new members of the club.

Each sub-division of the city was represented, and several motor loads of friends drove to Gore's Landing, and joined the picnic party at the spacious and well kept grounds of Captain Harris.

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded the officers and members of the entertainment committee for the very successful and pleasant outing.

The following ladies were in charge of the arrangements: Miss L. Jobbitt, president of the club; Mrs. B. F. McNeely, Mrs. W. Metheral, Mrs. T. Allston, Mrs. Wm. Stevens, Mrs K. G. MacDuffee, Mrs. Jackson and the Misses Brady and Fontaine.

G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., was kept busy meeting the workers of the party, many of whom he had not seen since the session

OFFICERS ELECTED.

Grand Orange Lodge Re-elected Dr. Edwards as Grand Master.

VANCOUVER, July 24.—(Canadian Press.)—The Orange Grand Lodge of British America in annual session here last night elected the following officers: Grand Master, Dr. J. W. Edwards, Kingston, Ont.; Deputy Grand Master, John Easton, Winnipeg; Grand Chaplain, Rev. F. C. Ward-Whate, Toronto; Grand Secretary, Wm. Lee, Toronto; Grand Treasurer, Hon. J. Thompson, Toronto; Grand Lecturer, Stewart Adrian, Craik, Sask.; Grand Marshal, Lt.-Col. T. A. Kidd, Kingston, Ont.

DON'T CHEAT YOUR EYES

There is no sense so precious as that of eyesight. No function of the human body gives us so much joy and pleasure as the sense of seeing—and yet less than half of the people who need glasses are wearing them. See W. H. Lacey Optometrist 410 George Street, Phone 1160.

QUEBEC CROWDS AUGMENTED FOR BEGIN FUNERAL

Tourists and Pilgrims in Provincial Capital Will Witness Public Ceremony.

EXPECT 50,000

Cardinal Hayes of New York and Other Dignitaries Arrive.

QUEBEC, July 24 (Canadian Press).—Ecclesiastics from all parts of the country were arriving here last night to take part in the ceremonies attendant upon the interment of the late Cardinal Begin, Roman Catholic Primate of Canada, whose death took place last Sunday morning. The body of the deceased cardinal will be transferred from the Archbishop's palace today, where it has lain in state since Sunday, to the Basilica. It will rest in the Basilica until Saturday morning, when interment will be made.

It is estimated that a least fifty thousand people will witness the impressive ceremonies that will accompany the funeral of the deceased prince of the Roman Catholic Church. Quebec is now at the height of its season for visitors and these have been further augmented by an influx of pilgrims who will attend the feast of St. Anne de Beaupre at the shrine on Sunday. Many of the principal dignitaries of the church are expected here, among them, Monsignor Hayes, the Cardinal-archbishop of New York and his secretary, Mgr. Donohue, at whose disposal a special private car had been placed for their journey from the United States city. Cardinal Hayes will be the guest of Hon. Narcisse Perodeau, Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec, at Spencerwood, for the period of his stay.

Mgr. Emard, archbishop of Ottawa; Mgr. McNeil, archibishop of Toronto, have also been invited to Spencerwood.

The body of the late cardinal has been visited daily by thousands of mourners, and from 10 o'clock in the morning to 10 o'clock at night an endless stream has filed past the remains. From ten to fifteen thousand people have visited the palace every day since Sunday.

The remains of the late Cardinal lie in a mahogany coffin encasing a casket of red copper. A plaque in silver has been placed on the coffin, bearing the inscription:

Son Eminence le Cardinal Louis Nazaire Begin,
Archeveque de Quebec.
Ne a Levis le 10 Janvier, 1840,
Decede a Quebec le 18 Juillet, 1925.
R.I.P."

"His Eminence, Cardinal Louis Nazaire Begin, Archbishop of Quebec; born at Levis, January 10, 1840; died at Quebec, July 18, 1925. Requiescat in Pace."

Messages of sympathy continue to pour in from all parts of the Dominion. Yesterday the Apostolic delegate to Porto Rica sent his condolences. Among the others were telegrams from Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, Minister of Marine and Fisheries; Mgr. Lannutti, the Cure of St. Vital in Rome, which was Cardinal Begin's official pastorate; Bishop Hickey of Providence, Rhode Island; Sir Henry Worth Thornton, K.B.E., chairman and president of the Canadian National Railways; E. W. Beatty, K.C., president of the Canadian Pacific Railway; Arthur Lebel, interim Consul of Spain; Mgr. Halle, Bishop of Haileybury, and many others.

PLANING MILL WAS DESTROYED BY FIRE

Damage Amounted to $25,000 in Fire at Baden.

KITCHENER, July 24.—(Canadian Press.)—Fire yesterday morning completely destroyed the saw and planing mill of John L. Forler, of Baden, a village ten miles from here. The residence of Mrs. S. Weiler and the wagon shop of John Hahn were also partially burned, the roofs being burned off, while all of the lumber in the mill yard was destroyed. The damage will amount to $25,000.

BOY KILLED.

Holidaying With Uncle Near Cobourg When Struck By Truck.

TORONTO, July 24. — (Canadian Press).—Word was received by Mr. and Mrs. William J. George, of Keewatin Ave., yesterday afternoon, that their thirteen-year-old son, Clifford George, had been instantly killed by a truck near Cobourg. The boy was holidaying with his uncle.

Mary Best Name For a Girl Says Bryan; Paul For a Boy

NEW YORK, July 24—The best name you can give a girl is Mary, according to William Jennings Bryan, who responded yesterday to a request for his opinion on the subject. He likes Mary because of the way it sounds and because of its religious significance. He favored the name of Ruth because of the story of Ruth and Naomi, for his third choice he went into an entirely different direction and from the pagan epic selected Helen.

It is harder to find good names for boys, Mr. Bryan wrote, but first he chose Paul. John he favored partly because of the great apostle and partly because in itself John is "a good substantial name." If the boy be destined for politics, there is no better first name than Jefferson, according to Mr. Bryan.

Mary Pickford said the best names for girls were Mavis, Joan, Mary, Jane, Anne and Mary Louise and for boys, Kenneth, John, Douglas and David.

RIFFS RETREAT BEFORE FRENCH

Situation Considerably Improved All Along the Line of Attack.

NO PEACE TERMS.

PARIS, July 24. — (Canadian Press). — Vigorously shelled by French artillery, Riffian tribesmen in Morocco are reported as hastening their retreat from the Ain Aicha and Ain Matouf regions on the centre of the line, taking with them the civilian populations of the villages and their flocks.

The situation is described as considerably improved all along the line, with the effect of French successes and the spectacle of energetic action by the French forces under the guidance of new military leaders becoming more manifest. Peace terms alleged to have been made by the Riffian leader, Abd-el-Krim have been published in London and Paris newspapers, but the French Foreign Office makes it clear that unless such proposals are made through authorized diplomatic channels no cognizance can be taken of them.

The Government is determined to take drastic measures against Communists who are said to be very active in connection with the campaign in Morocco, not only trying to incite the troops of France to disobey, but working on the natives of Algeria, Tunisia and Morocco in the hope of stirring up strife.

EARL HAIG PASSED THROUGH SARNIA

Field Marshal and Party Were Greeted By Officials.

SARNIA, July 24. — Canadian Press. — Field Marshal Earl Haig and Lady Haig arrived here on the Steamer Noronic at six-thirty o'clock this morning. After breakfast they disembarked, and at 8.30 boarded the special boat train which whisked them on towards London and Toronto. The train was halted at the former Cromwell street depot, while civic and military officials here tendered a greeting to the distinguished warrior and his party.

DOG BIT BOY.

Max Reid Attacked By Boston Bull—Not Seriously Injured.

Max Reid, 6, was bitten yesterday afternoon by a dog said to belong to Frank Keating. The boy was crossing Smith street on his way to Inverlea Park, when the dog, a Boston Bull, fastened on his leg leaving four teeth marks on the back and a bruise on the front of his left leg. The boy had been previously unwell and his parents immediately consulted a doctor who had the injured leg bandaged. No serious consequences are anticipated.

Instructions were given by the police to tie the dog up for ten days.

MANUFACTURERS OPPOSE BUYING RADIAL SYSTEM

Special Meeting Called Today to Thresh Out Hydro Proposition.

STATEMENT GIVEN.

"Unequivocally Opposed" is Verdict of City Men on the Plan.

In a special meeting called today to discuss the question, the Peterborough Branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association expressed opposition to the proposed purchase of the street railway system.

The following is the statement:

A proposal having been submitted by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario relative to the purchase of the Peterborough Radial Railway by the City of Peterborough, we, the Peterborough Branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, desire to be placed on record as being unequivocally opposed to such purchase.

KEARNEY FACES ROBBERY CHARGE

Alleged Assailant of Patrick Allen Appeared in Court To-day.

Harry Kearney, 18, arrested yesterday, was brought before Magistrate O. A. Langley this morning, charged with robbery and violence against Patrick Allen on Wednesday night. Mr. O'Brien, acting on behalf of accused, intimated a refusal to plead this morning. The case was remanded till July 31, bail being refused. His Worship commented on the fact that Kearney had made a former appearance in court, when some months ago he was convicted on two charges of assault at the carnival in East City.

Patrick Allen was pronounced out of danger to-day, and was about to be discharged from St. Joseph's Hospital.

BOARD OUTING.

Managers of Children's Aid Have Excursion to Burleight Falls.

The annual outing of the Board of Management of the Childrens' Aid Society, was held yesterday afternoon to Burleigh Falls, where a pleasant afternoon and evening was spent. The event was one of the most enjoyable in the annals of the society, and everyone appeared to have a good time. The party, numbering 20, including several guests of the members of the Board, enjoyed a very fine dinner, prepared and served in excellent style.

In the absence of the president of the society, Mr. B. F. Ackerman, His Worship Mayor Turner, presided and spoke a few pleasant words in appreciation of the occasion and the dinner. Mr. R. J. Devey and Mr. Farron Stevens, on behalf of the guests, also spoke briefly, the former mentioning the good work done by the Society's Agent, Mr G. W. Powell, who acknowledged the tribute in appropriate terms. A hearty vote of thanks, voiced by Mrs. J. Welsh, was accorded the convenors of arrangements: Mesdames H. W. Darcy and J. S. Fanning.

After dinner a short impromptu programme was given, with local numbers by Mr and Mrs. R. J. Devey and instrumental selections by Mrs. F. A. Hodgson.

PROMOTER ARRESTED.

Said to Have Sold Stock in Company For Eczema Remedy.

TORONTO, July 24.—(Canadian Press).—Alleged to have sold stock for the organization of a company to manufacture an eczema remedy, guaranteed to cure in four days, James B. Porter, a promoter living at a down-town hotel, was taken into custody yesterday. Charles E. Mitchell, Haynes Street, Kitchener, is the complainant.

Mitchell complained to the police that he invested $1,500, of which amount he had paid $1,250 to Porter, giving a note for the balance. Mitchell claims that Porter fraudulently obtained the money.

RAINBOW TINTS IN NEW MAKE-UP

Red Lips, White Face and Blue Eyelids.

CHICAGO, July 24—The patriotic make-up, red, white and blue, is the vogue for the coming season, according to the dictum of the National Cosmeticians' convention here.

Heretofore, red has been the principle color scheme.

Mrs. Ruth J. Maurer, president of the cosmeticians, said the new scheme calls for:

Face powdered to a chalky whiteness.

Lips are red as they can be gotten with a kiss-proof lipstick.

Eyelids penciled and shadowed blue.

"The effect makes a ravishing beauty out of most women," said Mrs. Maurer. "Women, whose features might otherwise be uninteresting, become striking beauties after they have acquired an ivory complexion and cherry lips. The penciled eyelids form a perfect frame for sparkling eyes.

"But, of course, this style will be for the slim, lithe woman. The fat woman is in the rouge pot and lipstick. Cosmetics stimulate youth. A face may be made youthful by skilfully applied toilet preparations, and carry the psychological illusion of slenderness.

"Fair, fat and 40 is an alliterative myth that has been exploded. No fat woman is beautiful at 40 or 20. There are some people who love a fat man, but nobody loves a fat woman. The greatest tragedy in the world is that of a man who marries a sylph-like girl and watches her grow into a hippopotamus."

The estimated national wealth is over 22 billions, or $2,525 per capita, making the Canadian one of the richest persons in the world.

ROBERT SCOTT HAS APPEARED

Brother of Condemned Man Said to be on Way to Chicago.

CALLED ON FRIENDS.

PORT HURON, Mich., July 24.—(Canadian Press.)— Robert Scott was at the home of Amos Manley here at midnight last night and left two hours later over Canadian National Railway for Chicago, police here were informed by Mrs. Manley. Port Huron police called on Mrs. Manley following notification from Chicago that Mrs. Manley had called the Chicago people on the telephone and stated that Robert Scott was at her house.

SLEEPER STABBED BY UNKNOWN THUG

Assailant Wielded Knife and Then Fled in the Darkness.

TORONTO, July 24 (Canadian Press).—Walter Douglas, aged 33, was stabbed in the shoulder while sleeping early this morning in the rear of the Lawrence's Hardware Store. Douglas was rushed to Grace Hospital, where it was found that one of his lungs had been pierced. His condition is serious. His assailant is still at large. There is a safe in one corner of the room and it is supposed that the motive was burglary. The ground floor was in darkness and the burglar passed through the kitchen into Douglas' room. He turned on a flash light and jabbed a knife in behind Douglas' shoulder, and then fled.

FREE-FOR-ALL MARKS STRIKE

Striking Girls Attacked All Those Who Stayed at Work.

135,000 AFFECTED

BRADFORD, Eng., July 24. — (Canadian Press).—A shut-down in the wool textile industry over wage disputes, affecting 135,000 workers, occurred here to-day. Free-for-all fighting occurred at Barker End Mills, where many girl workers, whose wages have not been reduced, stuck to their posts. A crowd of 200 girls from other concerns marched upon the mill and demanded that all workers leave. Doors were stormed and some of the employees inside the buildings were attacked, but the police stopped the hostilities before there were any casualties.

RATEPAYERS CRITICIZE WORK OF TEACHERS AND SCHOOL BOARD IN RUNNING HAVELOCK'S SCHOOLS

Efficiency of Staff, Salaries and Cost of Education Discussed.

RATE TOO HIGH

Trustee Says Cost Per Pupil is Lower Than in Other Schools.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

HAVELOCK, July 24. — Over 30 ratepayers of the village turned out to a special meeting of the school board, held last night in the Town Hall, when the local school situation was thoroughly discussed.

The members of the board present were: Trustees Dr. Thompson, Forde, Moore, Fennell and Barlow, the only absentee being Chairman H. W. Roche, Dr. Thompson presiding in his stead.

There were a number of ladies in the audience and several of them took part in the discussions. Principal Yuill of the Public School staff, was also present.

Board versus Ratepayers.

It was apparent from the start that there were two parties in the hall, the trustees, who were ready to defend their administration of the school affairs, and the ratepayers, everyone of whom was inclined to criticize the work done by the teaching staffs on both the Public and Combination schools.

The petition signed by 15 or 20 residents asking that the special meeting be held, stated that the object was to inquire into the reason why so many candidates failed at the recent entrance examinations.

Dr. Thompson insisted that the discussion be confined to this topic, although the ratepayers insisted that it include the efficiency of the staff, their salaries, and the cost of education, in short to anything pertaining to the school affairs.

Ratepayers Hung Back.

When the meeting was thrown own for discussion the ratepayers were slow in availing themselves of the opportunity, one apparently waiting for another to fire the first gun. That task was finally taken up by S. S. Joyce, a former member of the board, who said that his impression was that the meeting had been called for a friendly discussion with the trustees.

The main speakers of the evening were Trustee Moore, champion of the board, and Reeve Curtis, who led in the discussion of the results obtained by the school.

Dr. Thompson said that in order to attain the best results there would have to be co-operation among the staff, pupils and parents. Parents must see that their children study while at home.

There are, the doctor said, some pupils in the school who have been there so long that they have become stale and do not care whether they pass examinations or not. These pupils are a detriment to the others.

The doctor added that while the meetings of the board are open to the public at not one session in ten is there a ratepayer present, and this represents the amount of interest the people take in the school.

Trustee Moore Presents Case.

In reply to a question by Mr. Joyce Trustee Moore set out to explain why so many pupils failed at the recent examinations. These failures he said had been general over the County of Peterborough, as only 155 had passed out of a total of 329.

The principal, Trustee Moore said, had too much work to do last term, and other departments were overcrowded. The average age of the pupils passing the entrance for Ontario is 13 years, but in Havelock a number in the entrance class are 16 years old. When they get that old it is a difficult matter to get them to study. It will be impossible to get rid of these over-age pupils for two or three years. Six of the candidates who wrote at the recent examinations had been in the fourth book for one year only and of these two were successful.

Trustee Moore said that the real trouble was in the junior departments, where the teachers had too many pupils, and the children who should pass the entrance seven years after entering the school lost time in their early years.

What Board Has Done.

Trustee Moore told what steps the Board has taken to improve conditions. They have re-arranged the classes to give Principal Yuill a better chance to attend to the entrance class and to superintend the other departments. To relieve the congestion in the lower grades, the kindergarten department has been abolished and no pupils under 6 years of age will be admitted.

Reeve Curtis Heard.

Reeve Curtis maintained that the ratepayers are getting poor satisfaction for the money the school is costing them. Lakefield School shows better results, and the salaries paid there are less than in Havelock. Here the school rate is 25 mills, while in Norwood it is only 23.

Trustee Fennell said that the only fair comparison that could be made was by giving the cost per pupil. In Norwood this is $26 a year, while in Havelock it is $23.

Special Meeting Adjourned.

In order to broaden the scope of the discussion the meeting as a special session of the Board was adjourned on motion of Trustee Forde and the gathering resolved itself into a public assembly, Dr. Thompson being retained as chairman. Every phrase of the school problem was then threshed out in a conference that thought spirited at times, was entirely informal. No definite action was taken, no resolution passed before adjournment. The general opinion was that if as good teacher could be obtained for less money then the Board should get them. There are at present no resignations in sight.

Confidence in Principal.

Reeve Curtis said he is satisfied that Principal Yuill has given efficient and energetic service to the school and that there are other excellent teachers on the staff.

After the session broke up the result was informally discussed by a few trustees and ratepayers, the conclusion being that the airing of the question had brought about a better feeling and that the general public now understood the situation better than they have ever done.

ITALIANS EXCAVATE.

Encouraged By Recent Discoveries in North Africa, Larger Scale Planned.

ROME, July 24.— (Associated Press.) — Encouraged by the remarkable archeological discoveries made by Italians at Leptis Magna and Sabratha in Northern Africa, a party of Italian scientists led by Dr. Ettore Ghislanzoni of the Roman National Museum, intend to begin large scale excavations at Cyrenus in the Italian colony of Cyrenaica.

Cyrenus, which has already given to the world the marvelous Venus Andyomene now in the National Museum in Rome, was the oldest and largest Greek colony in Africa. It was built in the seventh century before Christ on the highest part of western Lybia fronting the coast of Marsa Susa where the ancient port of Appolonia was situated.

Excavations which were carried on in Cyrenus ten years ago showed that the ancient city contained in excellent state of preservation relics of all of the epochs of antiquity, especially the Hellenistic and the Roman. During the Roman era, the city was the capital of Crete and Cyrenus.

COUNTY ROADS ARE RETURNED

Highways Department Has 116 Miles Returned to Township.

SMALLER GRANT.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 24.—As a result of a special meeting of the Counties Council, held in Cobourg Wednesday, to confer with the members of the advisory committee of the Legislature and S. L. Squire, Deputy Minister of Highways, Seymour Township has had about eight miles of county road thrown back upon its hands. This road extends past the Fair Grounds as far as the Eight Concession and thence to the Rawdon Township boundary. In the various townships of the Counties of Northumberland and Durham a total of 116 miles of county roads have been returned to the various townships.

This matter was discussed at the June Session of the Counties Council, when the Highway Department submitted a map showing a revision of the county road system. This the Council refused to accept and another map was prepared, under this plans nearly all of this mileage being restored to the county system. The department refused to agree to this revision, and the special session to confer with the advisory committee was the result.

All that the highway officials would concede was nine miles in the various townships, so that the original map has been practically adopted, the Council voting almost unanimously for its acceptance.

The townships will receive a legislative grant of 30 per cent. of all work done on the township roads provided that in these townships statute labor has been abolished. This is less than the grant for county roads, but the township highways may be of cheaper standard, so that the municipalities will lose little or nothing by the change in the system, as adopted at Cobourg.

OBITUARY.

MARY JANE HENDERSON.

Mary Jane Henderson died yesterday afternoon in her seventy-fifth year. She is survived by one brother, James, and has spent the most of her life in the Township of Otonabee. Funeral services conducted by Rev. I. Archibald, will take place on Saturday at 2.30 p.m., and the body will be taken to Keene Cemetery for burial.

COMMUNISTS WILL STAGE BIG DISPLAY

Purpose to Instill Paris Population With Fear.

PARIS, July 24. — (Canadian Press).—A Communist putsch on an unprecedented scale is planned for Paris in the fall, it is rumored.

The purpose is to instill in the population the fear which motor trucks with mounted machine guns inspire, thereby arousing antagonisms which have not been sufficiently active under the Liberal Government to suit the third international.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain—How To Treat

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

AUTO 'PULLMAN' BUILT OF JUNK

Leaves Chicago Backyard on Tour—Cost Builder $82.50.

CHICAGO, July 24. — An automobile "Pullman," built and equipped at the cost of $82.50 and 1400 hours labor in a back yard, left Chicago on Wednesday afternoon on its maiden trip, carrying a family of four in comfort on a trip to Crystal Lake.

A dinner table, running water with complete bathroom equipment, electric lights and four berths, are some of the car's features. Its outward appearance is half way between that of a "hot dog" stand on wheels and a modern railway sleeper. But it is capable of 35 miles an hour, and gives it four occupants room for comfortable travel.

A. L. Campbell, a salvage engineer employed by the city, and his son, Clayton, 16 years old, built the vehicle from cast-off parts found in alleys and junk heaps. All the work was done in the back yard of their apartment house at 3150 Winthrop Avenue, and the car stood there in all weather through the three years of its construction.

The handiwork of the two salvagers weighs 3865 pounds. It is 15 feet 4½ inches long inside and 4 feet 11 inches wide. Its roof is 9 feet 8 inches above the ground.

The skeleton about which the wheeled house is built is a 1916 Ford truck. In front have been added a water tank on one side and an air pressure tank on the other. The air pressure makes it possible to get running water from a faucet.

The inside is equipped with two light circuits, one carrying six volts for storage batteries, and another 110 volts for lights.

Rugs and dainty curtains make the interior home like. Two long benches and small built in seats, all with easy springs, guarantee comfort. There is an icebox in the back.

MANY HURT IN BALCONY FALL

One Hundred Hurled to the Street During Welcome to Americans.

SOME FATALITIES.

MELBOURNE, July 24 (United Press).—Hundreds of spectators, mostly girls and women, were hurled to the street during a parade of 2,000 American sailors here today, when the verandah outside a motion picture theatre collapsed. One hundred were injured, several fatally.

The streets of Melbourne were georgeously decorated for a fete in honor of the Americans, who arrived with a portion of the Pacific Fleet this week, and are being royally entertained.

KING'S PURSE SQUEEZED.

King Undergoes Enormous Expenses as Host.

LONDON, England, July 24. — Few of the many Americans among the 12,000 guests at the garden party at Buckingham palace recently realized the expense King George undergoes in such entertaining. The cost of such gatherings is steadily increasing. It is estimated that the king's bill for entertaining now amounts to $500,000 a year.

The garden parties of which two are given each season, are not the most expensive because only tea and ices are served, but the cost of the official court receptions is staggering. For example, the thousands of quarts of champagne consumed are not served from bottles. The wine is poured into great glass jugs fitted with gold lids bearing the royal insignia.

VISCOUNT ALLENBY.

Canadians would doubtless rejoice, the Examiner is sure, to hear that the report that the successor to Lord Byng of Vimy as Governor-General of the Dominion is to be Field Marshal Viscount Allenby, the hero of Mesopotamia and Palestine had been substantiated.

Like Lord Byng, Viscount Allenby was one of the outstanding British figures in the World War.

Canadians had not the personal association with him that Lord Byng's position as commanding officer of the Canadian corps made possible in the case of the present representative of the King, but his career was followed with the greatest interest during the war, and his spectacular triumphs in the East won the admiration of the whole Empire, so that the people of the Dominion would be delighted to know that he is going to be the next occupant of Rideau Hall.

Viscount Allenby's war service was followed by other splendid work on behalf of the Empire, in his capacity as High Commissioner for Great Britain in Egypt, a position which he filled with marked success.

The hero of Palestine would be a fitting successor to the hero of Vimy Ridge as the King's representative in Canada.

WARNING THE CHILDREN.

Chief of Police Daniel Thompson of Windsor, former head of the Peterboro Police Department, will commence a series of safety talks to Windsor school children when the classes resume in September.

The Examiner has consistently argued that some part of the school time should be devoted to emphasizing to the children the perils of city streets, and it is interesting therefore to notice that Chief Thompson is to try the experiment.

It is admitted on all sides that modern traffic conditions have created a new problem.

The number of street accidents is large enough to call for an earnest effort to remedy the conditions, and the education of children along these lines is perhaps the most potent weapon that could be used in reducing the toll.

Much of this education could be supplied by the teachers, but assistance from experts such as the head of the police force would have a very material effect, and Chief Thompson is to be congratulated upon his decision to take up this very important task.

It may be argued that it is the responsibility of parents to warn their children of the necessity of being careful, and that, of course, is true—but the parental admonitions might profitably be strengthened if the advice was reiterated in the schools.

THE VETERANS' DECISION.

The decision of the mass meeting of Peterboro's veterans to join the British Empire Service League, which promises to provide Canada with a real union of Canada's ex-service men along the lines suggested by Earl Haig, will be gratifying to all friends of the veterans who realize the necessity of such a step.

It is to be hoped that the enthusiasm of those who attended Wednesday's meeting will communicate itself to other returned men in the city and district so that it will be possible to effect something closely approaching a 100 per cent. enrolment here.

The Service League is the one hope of a re-union of all Canada's ex-service men, and if the present opportunity, given impetus by the efforts of Earl Haig, is not embraced it would require a great deal of optimism to expect that later on the organization now proposed could be brought about.

The Examiner, since the first returned soldiers' club was organized here, even before the advent of the G.W.V.A., has taken a keen interest in such organizations, feeling that given proper leadership a Dominion-wide union of Canada's veterans would prove of the most material interest to the men who fought, and at the same time would be a splendid asset to the country generally.

The bright prospects now of a union bringing into line the existing organizations and thousands of ex-soldiers who have hitherto held aloof are therefore particularly pleasing.

AN UNUSUAL CRIME.

The assault upon a Peterboro taxi driver by a "fare" who hit him over the head with a piece of lead pipe and then robbed him, is the first local case of a kind that has been all too common in many other centres.

This city has been so singularly free of crimes of violence that considerable excitement has naturally been caused over the affair—which in many other cities in the Province would have gone almost unnoticed, except by the police.

Peterboro's immunity from serious crime has been remarkable—the city's record in this respect being perhaps not appreciated as much as it should be.

We often fail to realize how much it means to us to live in a law-abiding community where life and property are almost immune from attack, where it is safe to walk the streets at night unarmed and unharmed, where property rights are respected, and where hold-ups and robbery by violence have been almost unknown quantities.

There are several causes for this happy condition of affairs.

In the first place, our population is almost entirely of British or French ancestry, with only a very small sprinkling of well-behaved citizens of foreign origin.

In the second, Peterboro's Police Department has been active and vigilant.

Thirdly, the geographical position of the city making it difficult for a clean getaway to be effected.

The combination of these three factors has given us a record for good behaviour and absence of serious crime that makes Peterboro stand in a class by itself.

THOSE FREE PARAGRAPHS.

Newspapers are generally so generous in the matter of giving free publicity to this, that and the other organization, that there are many members of the public who have lost all sense of proportion in this matter, says the St. Thomas Times-Journal. A man walked into our news department the other day, announced in loud tones that he had left "some advertising" downstairs and as a quid pro quo handed over a typewritten manuscript with a request that it be published in the most conspicuous place possible. Investigation disclosed that the advertisement referred to consisted of eight words; the matter to be published free was about half a column.

It does not seem to dawn on some people that a newspaper lives upon the space it sells, just as a butcher, a grocer, a baker or a shoe retailer lives upon the commodities he sells. They look upon a newspaper as a vehicle for the free publication of paragraphs about forthcoming concerts, tea-meetings, lectures, meetings, games and what not, but they never dream of entering a retail store and asking to be presented with a shoulder of lamb, a sack of sugar, a quantity of bread or a pair of shoes. Yet it would be just as logical (or illogical) for them to do so as to demand an inch or a foot of free space from a newspaper. Broadly speaking, there is usually very little "news" value in an event before it happens. After it has happened it does become "news." The object of preliminary paragraphs is to "advertise" the event so as to scare up a crowd and to keep down their exploits.

COAL, THE TROUBLE CENTRE.

Right now eastern and western Canada have coal-mining strikes, says the London Advertiser; United States has some mines idle, with prospects of more, and Britain is facing a situation that is serious enough to be referred to even in Conservative circles as a menace. The Manchester Guardian says the British coal industry "is in danger of drifting into a position in which it will be incapable of either paying a living wage to the miners or of providing for its own technical equipment."

The miners and employers in Britain seem to be making every possible effort to avoid a strike, but it is hard to see where they are progressing. The miners are thinking in terms of decent wages, which means a decent standard of living, and the colliery owners reckon in terms of profits, and as things are organized at present there is nothing radically wrong with either of these positions—or, as the Guardian puts it, both are right, but neither is wholly right.

There is unemployment in the mines; a year ago it was but 3 per cent.; today it is around 17 per cent.

The owners have not yet asked for a return of the eight-hour day instead of seven as provided under the Sankey Commission, but it is anticipated that this request will be made on the plea of lowering production costs. What good purpose would be served by it now is hard to see, for if there is not enough work now at seven hours a day, adding an extra hour would simply add to unemployment.

The Manchester Guardian suggests that too much attention has been paid to making mining profitable by taking it out of the men and not enough to the possibility of reducing costs on the managerial and administrative side. It is sound logic, too, that if there has to be any reduction it should fall on all connected with the industry and not simply on the men who dig the coal.

OPTIMISM ABOUT SECURITY.

M. Briand's optimism about Germany's reply on the subject of the security treaty is doubly encouraging when considered in connection with the avowed hope of Mr. Austen Chamberlain to complete the negotiations before the opening of the Leaue of Nations session in September. Both Foreign Ministers are in a receptive mood and are earnestly seeking to reach a basis of common understanding with Germany as soon as possible. Apparently France is now willing to leave out for the present the question of the Polish frontiers and to confine the proposed agreement to the western border of Germany. Doubtless the French Government contemplates a subsequent agreement with respect to the eastern frontier, as the feeling in France is still strong that Poland must not be abandoned. The Germans, for their part, are insistent that France withdraw her demand for the right to move troops through Germany in defense of Poland. In exchange for this they are willing to agree not to make a forcible rectification of the Polish boundaries. Apparently they trust to Russia to settle Poland's hash.

It is the desire of the Allies to have Germany enter the League of Nations at the coming session. This Germany is still unwilling to do unconditionally. Nearly two months remain, however, in which either by exchange of notes or in personal conference the representatives of the interested nations can agree upon a satisfactory formula. In this connection it is not unlikely that the evacuation of the Ruhr region may encourage the forces of good-will in Germany. The old spirit of truculence seems to have given place to a genuine desire to co-operate. This means that at least half the battle is won. Few people have brought out more forcibly than did Ramsay MacDonald the importance of "atmosphere" in diplomatic negotiations. He inveighed against brickbats hidden in bouquets of roses and insisted that a feeling of goodfellowship and friendliness must underlie all conversations. Doubtless he had in mind the harshness of Poincare. But Briand is known for his complaisance and for his wish to reach a satisfactory agreement with Germany and England. Mr. Chamberlain's interest in security pacts in general makes him anxious to see this one in particular successfully adopted.

What pressure can or will be exerted by Poland if the final proposal omits special guarantees for that nation is not clear. If nothing is said about it in the treaty text the presumption will be that it will be covered by another agreement, and that the general protective provisions of the league will be held to cover any possible emergency. The very fact that Germany has so long refused to join the league is a tribute to the effectiveness of these protective clauses. She fears that by joining she will be bound to refrain from interference in Poland in some now unforeseen contingency. It may be said that her abandonment of all hopes of change of her western frontier has been compensated by a growing determination to bring about alterations on the eastern border. All Germans are agreed that the Dantzic corridor is unjust, unwise and impractical. Many others refuse to accept the results of the plebiscite in Silesia and demand the ultimate return to Germany of large parts of that territory.

There is much to be said for the idea of regional agreements. Better to come to an understanding about the Rhine frontier now, even if this means postponement of the Polish settlement. Poland will never be deserted by her allies. With Germany in the league, the Poles should have little to fear from that or any other nation in the way of violence.—New York Times.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, July 23.—Quiet but steady market today for choice quality butcher handyweight steers and heifers. Baby beeves, good quality, sold very firm up to $11.50. Nothing doing in the export trade, beyond a few pick-ups to carry over to next week. Total exports for the week about 1,700 cattle, including billed through, and carry over from last week. Rogers and Maybee took about 1,300 off the market.

There was a partial clearing up of stale cattle in yesterday's late afternoon market, but the packers were not buying much of this stuff today, and several hundred will have to be carried over to next week.

A few good cows sold at $4.25 to $4.50, but the fat cow trade is very dull.

Calves were firm at $10 to $10.50, choice tops.

Lambs dull and 50c lower.

Hogs steady on basis of $12.75 f.o.b.

EGG PRICES

OTTAWA, July 23 (Canadian Press).—The undertone of the Canadian egg market is firm at the recent advance in prices, owing to European fowl pest having been reported in the State of New York, a further Canadian ministerial order has been issued, dated July 22, barring live chickens, turkeys or geese from entering Canada from this State unless accompanied by a clean bill of health from the United States Bureau of Animal Industry.

Toronto—Jobbing, specials 42, extras 40, firsts 37, seconds 33.

Montreal—Jobbing, prices unchanged; tendency lower levels. Offerings from Ontario points increasing.

Winnipeg — Egg market unchanged. Live broilers 20 to 23, fowl 12 to 17.

GHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, July 23. — Reports that 20 to 45 per cent. damage to spring wheat on the four principal producing states has been done since July 1 were largely responsible for a general upturn in grain prices today. The wheat market climbed 2 1-4 to 2 5-8 cents, but closed unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to 1c higher, September 148 to 148 1-8, and December 149 1-4 to 149 1-2, with corn unchanged to 1 1-4c up; oats unchanged to half cent advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 10c.

According to a recognized trade authority, crop damage so far this month, chiefly by recent extreme hot weather, amounts to 45 per cent. in Montana, 40 per cent. in the western third of North Dakota, 20 per cent. to 25 per cent. in South Dakota, and 20 per cent. in Minnesota. There were also advices at hand that Kansas wheat production this season is less than the total that was ground by Kansas and Kansas City mills in the 12 months ending June 30. An unexpected upturn in wheat quotations at Liverpool today tended also to lift values here, and so likewise did independent strength in the corn market, based on widespread complaints of lack of rain in the corn belt.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, July 23 (Canadian Press).—A firm feeling prevails in the market for old crop winter wheat flour owing to the continued small offerings for which there was some demand, but buyers in some cases find it difficult to fill their requirements. The trade in white corn flour was limited, and prices continue to be quoted at $7.60 to $7.70 per barrel in jute bags, delivered to the trade.

The condition of the domestic egg market was unchanged, prices for all grades being firm owing to the continued small supplies coming forward for the season of the year and the lighter offerings of high grade stock. There was no improvement in business. The receipts were 897 cases, as against 1,161 for the same day last week, and 1,657 for the corresponding day a year ago.

The receipts of butter were 4,320 packages, as against 4,877 for the same day last week, and 4,632 for the corresponding day a year ago. There was no important change in the condition of the market, the undertone being firm with a fair amount of business passing for both local and export account, and the indications are that the shipments to the United Kingdom and other points will be fairly large again this week. Local prices were unchanged. A moderate trade was reported in a wholesale jobbing way and prices ruled firm with sales of finest creamery at 38c per lb. in solid packages, and at 39c per lb. in 1 lb. blocks.

The receipts of cheese were 6,982 boxes, as compared with 9,832 for the same day last week, and 7,978 for the corresponding day a year ago. The trade for export account was reported rather quiet owing to the fact that all firm offers from over the cable were not satisfactory to exporters. There was some demand from local operators and purchases of fair sized lots of Western No. 1 white and colored were made.

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, July 23 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here today as follows:

Sterling demand $4.85 1-8.

Sterling cables $4.85 5-8.

PROHIBITION IN INDIA.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear sir:

The despatch from India showing the improvement in the condition of those parts of India where liquor was permitted formerly, but is now done away with by reason of the introduction of Prohibition a few years ago, reminds me that missionaries whom I have met on their return from India have admitted that Prohibition had done more good, by far, than Christianity or any other idealistic agency, for the people of India. It is now beginning to dawn upon the world that Idealism is practically useless. Practical measures, such as Prohibition, are best, though not so high-falutin. Twenty years will see the police in the place of the ministry.

CHURCH DEBATE WON BY TYRONE

Millbrook Orators Lost Decision at Orono—Church Was Crowded.

MILLBROOK, July 24.—A line of cars parked on three streets in the vicinity of the United Church at Orono, with the ground floor of the auditorium well filled with eager listeners, and an overflow in the gallery, gave evidence of the interest taken in the inter-district debate, under the auspices of the Conference League, which was held in that village on Wednesday evening.

Tyrone and Millbrook were competing for the honors for Bowmanville and Peterboro districts, and the Young People's Leagues from both places, and from a number of other points in this part of the conference, were well represented in the gathering.

Rev. J. Rae, of Orono, made a capable chairman, Miss Estelle Hetherington, of Millbrook, presiding at the organ, and Mr. J. Thornton, ex-M.P., leading in the opening prayer.

"Ye hosts of Leaguers, young and strong," was sung heartily and made an appropriate introduction to the debate which was the main feature on the evening's programme. The judges were chosen from neutral territory, and included Messrs. H. Fulford, W. H. Trott and E. Brown, of Port Hope, each of whom was seated in a different part of the church while listening to the arguments presented.

The subject chosen was: "Resolved that men are more efficient after forty, than before forty years of age." Ten minutes were alloted to each speaker, and the leader of the affirmative given three minutes for reply. The judging was on the basis of sixty per cent. for material, and forty per cent. for manner, choice of language, clearness of enunciation, etc.

Millbrook was given the affirmative to defend, Jas. Larmer and Marjorie Sayles presenting the arguments for this side of the question, while Miss R. Shortt and Mr. W. McCarthy, of Tyrone, upheld the negative. The two latter had the honor of receiving the judges decision in their favor, and thus have a place in the finals for the Whattam Cup.

Mr. J. Thornton moved a vote of thanks for the interesting and profitable evening provided, and Mr. Elwin Brown of Port Hope, president of the Conference League, responded, thanking the people of Orono for their co-operation in making it possible to put on the debate under such pleasant auspices. "This series of debates has been a new thing in the Conference, and the enthusiasm with which it has been received and carried on, shows its popularity and helpfulness." Mr. Brown also congratulated the Millbrook Leaguers in "having the backbone to take up the work and make a showing for the Peterboro district."

At the conclusion of his remarks, Mr. Brown, on behalf of the Conference League, presented the certificates of merit to the participating district winners. Misses Gardiner and Hetherington, presidents of the Tyrone and Millbrook Leagues, respectively, receiving the gift on behalf of their societies. The certificates are hand illuminated, and, as the President said, "are handsome enough to merit a place on the walls of your League room."

The series has now narrowed down to four winning districts, and Tyrone will compete with Hartley, winners of the Cannington district, and West Huntingdon with Cameron, winners of the Belleville and Lindsay districts, the time, subject and dates to be announced later. Rev. J. W. Baird, of Port Hope, is chairman of the Debating Committee.

At the request of the chairman, Mr. H. Fulford spoke briefly, emphasizing the need of planning for the best interests, and efficient training of the young people in the United Church, that they may become thoroughly equipped leaders, and develop the best type of citizens for the betterment of both Church and State.

Mr. Trott also spoke on behalf of the judges, expressing his pleasure in being present, and having the privilege of acting in a judicial capacity, his personal interests and sympathies being with the young people in any effort at self-improvement that would re-act favorably upon the moral, community and national welfare.

Everyone responding in the Mizpah benediction brought the gathering to a fitting close.

The local restaurant was overtaxed, both as to capacity and service, at the conclusion of the meeting, the young people taking advantage of this opportunity for renewing old acquaintances, or forming new ones, as the social side of the event was developed for an hour or more, before final departure for the various homes.

It should be noted that the young people taking part in the inter-district series are required to come prepared to take either side of the question under argument, and are not notified whether they are to defend affirmative or negative until the place and time of meeting are reached.

A THOUGHT.

ERASE THE WORD

We are all bound to have at one time or another some person whom we envy, some person to whom we feel the world has been better than it has been to us. No matter how little we have or how much, there is always someone who is just ahead where we want to be—someone in the place which we covet To a large extent this is a good thing, for it makes us strive to do better. That is exactly what we should do—erase the envy and put in its place in our mind the word "copy."

Man is a creature of habit. If you have a habit of drifting go down to the seashore and see what is deposited along the reefs and desolate places—just dead wreckage.

You Can Have Goodyear Tires

MAYBE you have real reasons to buy the lower-priced rather than the higher-priced tires.

NORWOOD MAN IS BADLY HURT

William Clark Was Caught in a Pulley While Working in Box Factory.

SEVERAL FRACTURES.

NORWOOD, July 24.—William Clark sustained severe injuries while working in Buck's Box Factory about 9.30 this morning. In some manner he was caught in a pulley and thrown around and then hurled to the ground. Both Norwood doctors were out of town and a rush call was sent to Havelock for a doctor, while a Peterborough ambulance was rushed down to convey the injured man to the hospital. It is thought that he has sustained several fractures to his arms and legs.

TERM IN PRISON FOR WOMAN WHO KEPT BABY FARM

Had Pleaded Guilty to Substituting Infant—"Fiend Incarnate" Judge Says.

TOLD HER SHE LIED.

Indeterminate Sentence of From Three to Seven Years Imposed.

NEW YORK, July 24 — Mrs. Helene Auguste Geisen-Volk, German Red Cross nurse during the war and keeper of a baby farm at 235 East Eighty-sixth street, received the maximum sentence of from three and a half to seven years in Auburn Prison when she was arraigned Wednesday in General Sessions before Judge McIntyre on her plea of guilty to substituting the child of an unmarried young woman for that of a married couple. Previous to the sentence the woman was grilled by the Court and Chief Assistant District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora in an effort to learn what had become of the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. William Angerer of 536 East 147th Street, the Bronx, on whom she had tried to substitute another baby.

During the interrogation Judge McIntyre told her he did not believe her story that the Angerer child had died of marasmus in April, and that she had carried the body in a yellow satchel to the hallway of a tenement in the East Seventies and left it behind a stairway. She did this, she insisted, because she had no death certificate and knew the body eventually would be sent by the police to the morgue.

As she was ordered from the witness chair her nerves snapped and she began to scream. She was carried out of the courtroom and attended by Dr. Mary Heaton, one of twenty women who, her lawyer, Newman Levy, had told the court, had come to testify that she was kindhearted and scrupulous in the care of the infants that had been entrusted to her care.

Brought back to receive the sentence, Judge McIntyre ordered two court attendants to stand on either side of her, saying: "We want no more scenes such as the one we have just been treated to. Women have a habit of creating them when standing before this Court for judgment."

Mrs. Geisen-Volk gripped a Bible as the prison term was pronounced She regained her composure when she was returned to the Jefferson Market Women's Prison until her departure for Auburn.

REGINA DISTRICT DRENCHED BY RAIN

But Heavy Shower Was Not General Over Province.

REGINA, Sask., July 24.—Rain which drenched Regina district yesterday was not general over the province, according to reports received in the city.

Moosomin, close to the eastern border, only received a very light shower. The district north of Lumsden was without any rain up to noon.

Scattered showers fell Wednesday night and early Thursday at Swift Current. No rain fell at Outlook, though some fell there Monday. Prince Albert is also on the dry list. Verwood was fortunate in getting along, heavy rain and rain fell all through the morning at Weyburn. Young reported a rainless day.

Regina and district received more than a third of an inch of rain between seven o'clock in the morning and noon.

LARKIN PLANS TO CUT STAFF

Canadian Commissioner Believes Some Immigration Offices Could be Merged.

TORONTO, July 24.— It is understood from information received from London, that P. C. Larkin, Canadian High Commissioner, who recently made an extensive tour of England and Scotland and investigated sub-offices such as trade and commerce and immigration, etc., will probably express to Premier King during his coming trip to Canada his firm conviction that many of these offices, especially in the larger centres, could profitably be merged under a single superintendent. It also seems probable that there could be an extensive cut in the personnel of the London office as opportunity offers. It already appears since the gathering of all departments under one roof in the new Canada House that there is a certain amount of redundancy of staffs.

JAPANESE CROPS GOOD.

While Barley is Down, Rye and Wheat Increases.

TOKYO, July 24. — (Associated Press).—The Department of Agriculture has published its acreage estimates of crops in Japan for the current year. The barley acreage is estimated at 361,282 chobu (one chobu equals 2½ acres); rye, 521,692 chobu, and wheat 420,800 chobu. Compared to the preceding year the barley acreage showed a decrease of one-tenth of one per cent., but the rye acreage increased 1.1 per cent. and the wheat acreage, one-half of one per cent.

LIQUOR SHIP SEIZED.

Cargo Unloaded at Vancouver—Caught Off Coast.

VICTORIA, July 24.—(Canadian Press). — Brought in Wednesday night from Barkley Sound, on the west coast of Vancouver Island, having been captured at midnight by a party from H.M.C.S. Armentieres, the liquor freighter Chakawana is now lying in port here, having her cargo of whiskey unloaded.

The cargo of the vessel, which is of Canadian registry, hailing from Vancouver, is thought to have come from China.

No information was given out here as to why the vessel was seized but a full report has been submitted to the authorities in Ottawa.

IRISH RELIEVED.

Emergency Committees Bring Aid to Distressed People.

DUBLIN, July 24. — (Associated Press).—In the report of the Emergency Committee for Relief of Distress In the West of Ireland it is stated that during the past four and a half months, with the co-operation of the clergy, doctors and others, 45 committees have been formed in the distressed districts.

With regard to present conditions in the west, the report states that there are some districts which will require assistance until the potato crop is ripe. In the fishing villages the people have new nets and there will not be much want there "for the next nine months, at all events," the report says.

1,000 MILE FLIGHT CARRIER RECORD

Pigeon Liberated From Ship Carries Note Over Sea to Shore.

NEW YORK, July 24.—(Canadian Press).—A pigeon which had flown 1,000 miles over the sea arrived late on Tuesday night at the home of Albert Johnson. Johnson believes this is the longest flight on record. The pigeon was taken on board the liner Paris by friends of Johnson, who sailed last week. The note which the pigeon brought said it was liberated from the ship Sunday morning when the vessel was 1,000 miles from New York. It was in good condition after its flight.

FIND ANTIQUE STATUE.

Fishermen Discover Rare Bronze Off Marathon.

ATHENS, July 24. — (Associated Press).—A well-preserved statue of antiquity was found in the sea off the coast of Marathon by a number of fishermen. The statue is of bronze and represents the life-sized cast of a youth. Greek experts declare that the statue is extremely valuable and have compared it to the famous statue of "The Youth of Antioch."

BYNG IN FAR NORTH.

Vice-regal Party Delayed Three Days by Rapids.

WINNIPEG, Man., July 24.—(Canadian Press).—According to a wireless message to the Canadian Press, Governor-General Byng and his party reached Fort Smith in the northwest territories Wednesday night.

Failure on the part of the steamship Athabasca to negotiate the rapids, compelled the party to make the trip to Fitzgerald by motor launch, causing a delay in the schedule of three days. His Excellency expressed himself as genuinely pleased with the novel experience. The party embarked on the S.S. Distributor yesterday for Aklavik. A stop will be made at Fort Vermillion for an inspection of the Dominion Experimental Farm.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

What Happened to a Silly Little Water Spider.

True, he was a very tiny little water spider, but time after time Mama Water Spider had warned him, along with all his brothers and sisters, not to be too venturesome.

"There are some places Little Water Spider Boys must not go she told him. "Of course, those floating islands are lovely but they never come back."

"Foolish," grumbled the Silly Little Water Spider Boy. "Unless it's such a lovely place you don't want to come back. Maybe they stay there and make their homes," he suggested.

"I can't say, my dear," said Mother Water Spider. "But some that I have known of have never been seen after they once put their feet on those islands."

"To whom do they belong" asked the Silly Little Water Spider Boy. "If they don't want folks to come upon them to live, why don't they move on down the stream?"

"That's just it,' replied Mama Water Snider. "They do float on down stream."

"Oh, how jolly that would be, to be able to float around without using one's legs to do it,' cried Silly Little Water Spider. And just as soon as his Mama went down to her bubble home under the water, he darted over the water to one of the floating islands He started to crawl up over the sides of one of the bladder-like bags, when he spied a wee little doorway, all lined with soft, silk hairs, "May I come in?" Silly Little Water Spider called merrily. "How I would love to have such a nice little home! I should never have to build a water bubble house then, but just come and go in this pretty little floating home. May I come inside?"

He Swam Away.

No one answered, and Silly Water Spider, thinking maybe no one lived there, pushed aside the soft hairs that lined the doorway and went inside.

Now that would have been the last of Silly Little Water Spider if Tilly Turtle had not seen him go in. You see, the floating island belonged to a terrible plant called Miss Bladder Plant, who was too lazy to work for her food, but would leave her little doorway open for just such silly folks as Water Snider Boy to walk into. Tilly Turtle hurried to Mother Water Spider, and together they ran for Mr. Swordfish, and with his old sharp nose he cut apart every bladder island until he rescued poor Silly Little Water Snider Boy.

"Now, silly, lazy fellow," Mr. Swordfish grumbled, "let this be a lesson to you. Get busy and you won't find time to get into trouble. Old Bladder Plant would soon have eaten you up and that would have been the end of you." And flipping his tail in the water he swam away.

Mama Water Spider never said a word. She took Silly Water Spider Boy back to the water bubble home and gave him something to eat and tucked him in bed. And from that day to this Mama Water Spider carries her children on her back all the time so they won't get into trouble.

SUNDAY SENTENCE.

Four Boys Charged With Petty Theft May Improve Conduct.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., July 24. — (Associated Press). — Placing them where they shall be taught "Thou shalt not steal," Mayor Gilmore sentenced four boys whose ages range from 9 to 14 years to attend Sunday School regularly for an indefinite period. The boys were charged with taking a pocketbook belonging to their school principal and were taken into custody when the grandmother of one of them discovered the theft and notified the police.

After pleading guilty, the boys were shown the cells in the city jail, reprimanded and Mayor Gilmore imposed the Sunday School sentence. He warned them that their cases would be reopened if they fail to carry out faithfully the sentence imposed.

WEDDING BELLS.

MORRISON—SNELL.

COBOURG, July 24.—A quiet wedding took place in St. Andrew's church, here, on Wednesday, July 15 at 4 p.m., when Charles Morrison, son of Mr. Hugh Morrison, Lakefield, was married to Miss Sadie A. Snell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Snell, Port Hope. Rev. T. W. Goodwill conducted the ceremony.

SUGGESTIONS FOR SOLVING CROSS-WORD PUZZLES

Start out by filling in the words of which you feel reasonably sure. These will give you a clue to other words crossing them, and they in turn to still others. A letter belongs in each white space, words starting at the numbered squares and running either horizontally or vertically or both.

The solution will appear in to morrow's paper.

MY EUROPEAN EXCURSIONS
By Edwin Robert Petre

(By Edwin Robert Petre.)

IN THE BELGIUM ARDENNES.

For an inexpensive holiday amid old world homes, beautiful woods, rippling stream and hamlets nestling under forest clad hillsides that would please any artist or camera huntsman, the country about Namur and Dinant should satisfy any. It is as lovely as when Byron wrote: "And Ardennes waves above them her green leaves, Dewy with Nature's tear drops."

At Namur, the Meuse and Sambre rivers wash the walls of many ancient houses and the citadel towers suggest grandeurs older than wars. The best way to Dinant is by river past meadows and gardens till the Notre Dame emerges from behind the quaint little houses, and the old 16th century castle of Walzin looks down from its eagle nest on the limestone cliffs. From here Americans will choose most the excursion to Chateau Thierry.

Hidden beneath the water of Lake Antrona, Switzerland, for nearly 300 years, the houses of a submerged village are once again visible, owing to the water receding.

NATURE LORE
By WALLACE HAVELOCK ROBB

"Go and get the Bird-man, girls, quick," yelled one of the campfire girls, at a summer camp where I had been asked to do some nature work.

Naturally, there was some excitement. This girl claimed she had been up to the well to get a drink and that half a dozen wild turkeys were spreading their tails and were "just as tame as anything," whatever that may happen to mean.

What they could be was beyond me; I just ran with the others and prepared for the worst.

When we arrived at a point not far from the well (which was really a mountain stream with a barrel in it for collecting water), we saw the supposed wild turkeys. They were partridge, known also as Birch Partridge and Ruffed Grouse.

The partridge with feathers on, looks about the same size as a turkey dressed and on the table. I suppose the strutting and tail spreading resembled turkey manners. At any rate, what the girls took for wild turkeys, were partridge.

Since almost anyone may run into wild partridge, up in Muskoka, or Parry Sound, or North Hastings, or Kawartha Lakes, or any Canadian lake and woods district, a few remarks about the bird may be helpful.

To describe it in a way which will help more than the mere description, I must tell about a friend of mine.

This man was a city man and was ill with a nervous breakdown. He was staying at my camp, just resting. He knew nothing about birds.

One morning, this nerve-wrecked man disappeared, and after being away for two hours, I went in search of him, my gun under my arm. I had not gone far when I heard a low clucking, similar in some measure to that of a hen. I looked and there, under the low spruce boughs, strutted a partridge, his tail spread and his soft black neck ruff showing in great style, against the mottled brown of the rest of him.

I had no notion of shooting, and it is a good thing I did not, for my nervous friend was taking the nerve cure, within three feet of the bird. "That barred tail is curing me," said my friend.

Three-Minute Journeys
By Temple Manning

Each country has its own special carnival day when gaiety and foolishness hold sway and madness is the rule of the hour. But Venice is one of the most famous of all carnival cities and it is there that King Carnival originated.

Escorting the "King" to His Pyre.

Carnival week is usually the week before Lent. It provides a means of compensating, in advance, for the privations of the period of deprivation and penance. It ends, usually on Shrove Tuesday.

And it is on Shrove Tuesday that King Carnival makes his first appearance—and his last. He is a straw effigy dressed most elaborately and stuffed with fireworks. He is placed on a highly decorative palanquin and carried on the shoulders of a dozen or more masked revellers.

A huge procession escorts him from the gardens of Napolean to the Piazza of St. Mark. There the crazy procession of devils and animals and deformed strange creatures comes to a halt. There is dancing and much merriment before the royal throne.

Toward midnight, King Carnival undergoes a tranformation. He suddenly takes on an appearance of extreme old age. His hair becomes white with powder. A long white sheet in the nature of a pall, takes the place of his festive clothes. His hands are folded upon his breast. His last hour has come. The palanquin becomes a bier.

The crowd escorts the bier in solemn procession to the Molo where the king and his equipage are set ablaze together. As the blaze penetrates to the stuffing of his majesty, there is the sound of an explosion and the firecrackers begin to go off. Sky rocketsr and Roman candles vie with each other in splendor beauty. Finally the whole figure goes up in a blaze of glory.

There is a King Carnival in the festivities at Nice, too. He usually stops at the Casino and is presented with the keys to the city. But his reign is longer lived. He rules for ten days and at the end of the Carnival he is simply dethroned with the same festivities that marked his ascendance to his throne.

Rome has its Carnival too and the Cities of Greece. Our own carnivals at New Orleans are largely inspired by those of Italy and Greece.

"This and That"
HAL COCHRAN'S DAILY POEM

You hie to the kitchen 'cause, golly, you're itchin' for just a wee nibble of grub. The ice box is open, and soon you are gropin'. For what? Well, that's really the rub.

You can't just decide, as the food is all eyed, what it is that you're craving to eat. You're appetite's strong but you know you'll go wrong, if you mix up the sour with the sweet.

There's this and there's that. There are lean things and fat. There is lettuce and jelly and cheese. You get out the bread and you go right ahead, and you're soon eating just what you please.

What fun to be piecing, while hunger's increasing. Why even the great loaf is carved. 'Tis thus every night. You just wanted a bite—but you eat like you really are starved.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE
By Genevieve Kemble

SATURDAY, JULY 25.

Although an active and eventful day is presaged from the major sidereal mutations, yet it will not be without its hazards and perplexities. A disintegrating astral force may precipitate some sudden change, removal or journey, and while new projects are under a benefic sway, yet there may be some slight setbacks or postponement. Extraordinarily careful manipulation of affairs in hand may turn critical situations to advantage.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a fairly exciting year, with possibly some unexpected change or upheaval. With care and wise judgment conditions and hazardous situations. A child born on this day is likely to be restlessr and unsettled and may find its mind unchangeable and erratic. It should be given early training in concentration.

ORIENTALS CRIB WESTERN WINES

Temperance Organizations Being Formed to Combat the New Evil.

PROVE EDUCATION.

EDINBURGH, July 24.—(Associated Press).—The Young East is rapidly adopting the social ways of the West, delegates from the Orient told the recent world convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Speakers from temperance organizations of Egypt, Burma, India, China and Japan told the same story of younger generations of peoples with age-old traditions of abstinence and asceticism handed down through religion and philosophy, making free use of the cocktail, champagne cup and stronger drinks at social functions.

Flora Hanna, a youthful delegate from Cairo, described the Egyptian people as a race of "traditional prohibitionists," asserting that they have no national beverage. Young men of Egypt, however, are taking to western drinks along with western ways, she said. She detailed temperance work since its inauguration in Cairo in 1922. Last year 7,000 Egyptian women presented a petition to the British Government asking for prohibition.

The Burmese people, according to Miss Mae Butt, delegate from Burma, should be prohibitionists by the teachings of Buddhism. Foreign drinks are increasingly used at social functions in Burma, she said. She attributed the increase of crime in Burma to increased consumption of alcoholic beverages, other than toddy, the native drink.

Miss Asa Matsuoka of Tokio, a student at the University of Pennsylvania, testified to increasing use of western drinks among young Japanese. There is a counter temperance movement growing up in Japan, however, she told the convention.

"I am a student, an unfinished product," she said in broken English. "But I am the fact which proves that young Japan is taking an active interest and is moving up in the work."

The situation in China was explained by Christine Tinling, paid organizer for the World W.C.T.U., who recently returned from temperance work there. She asserted that there was a growing sentiment among educated young Chinese that they must be able to drink western beverages to prove their educations

RIGHT OF APPEAL ENDS NEXT MONTH

Appeals to Pensions Board Must Be In By August 17.

OTTAWA, July 24.—(Canadian Press).—The right to register appeals to the Federal Appeal Board, in respect of applications for pension or medical treatment by the Board of Pension Commissioners or Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, as the case may be, will expire in many cases on August 17th next, it was learned here yesterday.

Under the act, the right of appeal is open for two years after the appointment of the Federal Appeal Board, or for one year after the decision complained of, whichever may be the later. As the board came into operation on August 17, 1923, the time for filing appeals in a large number of instances will lapse on August 17th, next.

Up to the fifteenth of the present month, a total number of 5,986 appeals had been entered. All of these cases, however, will not actually come to an appeal hearing, in view of the fact that the jurisdiction of the board is limited to decisions on the question of attributability of a disability to war service. Judgment has been rendered, however, in 1,357 cases with results favorable to the appellant in about one-fourth of the cases dealt with.

Many cases yet remain to be dealt with and it is anticipated that a large number will be entered between now and August 17th next.

YOUR HEALTH
By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

WHY INSANITY IS MORE COMMON IN CITIES

It used to be taught and many of us believed that insanity is more common among farm women than any other class. I am inclined to think it really was the case some years ago, but it appears to be untrue now.

A few weeks ago the American Psychiatric Association met in Richmond, Virginia. Among other interesting addresses was one made by Dr. Horatio M. Pollock, director of one of the Statistical Bureau of the New York State Hospital Commission.

Dr Pollock has formed some interesting and valuable conclusions. It the report I read it said: "The man of the rushing, nerve-racking city is most likely to become insane, while the woman of the more placid country district has the best chance of not suffering from mental disease."

To be exact, this is what the Doctor said: "The latest census data, collected from 526 institutions for mental diseases, show that during a single year, one of 1,116 men in the cities was admitted for treatment. Compared with this, only only in 2,155 men living in the country became insane during the year. Women in the city have one chance in 1,475 of being the subject of mental disease, while the rural woman is afflicted only one out of 2,375 times."

What is to be done about it? Dr. Pollock thinks that mental diseases in the future will be largely a city problem. It appears that the complexities of our larger cities require more adjustments than many individuals are equipped to make. To better the situation it will be necessary to stregthen the individual and lessen the stress of city life. To accomplish this task will require the united efforts of parents, teacher, physician and research worker, on the one hand, and of employers, industrial leaders, city builders and economists on the other.

Besides the obvious things we would think of in connection with city living—the hurry, the noise, the bitter competition,—there is the lack of exercise in the sunlight and the wholesome food which the country gives. Resistance to physical and mental disease is founded on bodily health and without special efforts to get them, city conditions do not furnish the elements necessary for health.

By means of public health education the city children are better looked after than country children, but the grown-ups continue to be the victims of the crowded cities. Let us correct that by practicing the simple rules of hygiene which make for long life and sane minds.

Answers to Health Queries

THE ETERNAL FEMININE.

By JANNETTE.

It was a warm Sunday morning. We were reading our prayer book. (We aren't twins, and we went alone to church that morning, but it isn't professional etiquette to say "I." Kings and newspaper people always say "We.")

As we said before, it was a warm morning, but the church was fairly cool and there weren't many people at the late service. All around was peace and quiet. The choir was singing and everyone who wasn't deep in prayer was listening to them.

The girl two pews ahead fixed her hair. There wasn't much of it to fix. In fact, we couldn't see anything but a few stray wisps from what was evidently a very close cut covered by the edge of a small hat. At first we thought she was doing it to show her diamond, which was a large, flat stone set in platinum. That fat lady in front of us raised her eyes from her book and sighed sentimentally as she looked at it.

We went back to our prayer book. The choir was singing in Latin now. The little boy sitting next to us hummed the tune softly under his breath. His mother reached out a maternal hand and checked him. He subsided with the look of the small male constantly under feminine domination.

The girl two pews ahead fixed her hair. Evidently it wasn't the ring she wanted to exhibit, because she used a long, probing right finger this time. It was more effective and went up more easily under the rim of the small hat. She pushed and shoved the few straggling hairs until there was nothing to look at but an expanse of brown neck topped by a poudre blue cloche. The fat lady and her companion, a young woman in a cream suit, watched her intently. The small boy beside us riveted his eyes upon her.

The choir stopped singing. The sermon began. "All is vanity," intoned the preacher. "Have need to your immortal soul and forget the things of the flesh."

The girl two pews ahead fixed her hair. Everyone in the immediate vicinity stopped listening to the speaker and focused their eyes upon that long finger, darting under the rim of the small hat. Would she do it this time? Yes, sir, she did. She unloosened the few locks that had escaped the baber's shears sufficiently to effect an uneven line of ugly hair beneath the hat, and a net that had been invisible heretofore also came into view. Two small hair pins peered from underneath the brim of the little chapeau.

We tried to distract our thoughts from that damsel, but we couldn't. The preacher was talking about the folly of pinning one's faith to earthly pleasures. We knew he was sincere and we wanted to listen to him, but those hair pins were slipping. In fascinated expectation, we watched them. The fat lady and her daughter were watching them, too, also the little boy and his sister and the tall man at the end of the row.

Ah, there was the finger again. Perhaps it would repair the damage. It pushed and probed those little fugitive hairs and the fringe o fnet and the two hair pins, which still continued to slip.

The preacher finished his sermon. We hadn't heard much of it. The service went on.

One hair pin slipped and fell. The little boy beside us craned his neck to watch its descent to the floor. The fat lady and the girl and all the people in the row glued their eyes to its companion.

We stood up to join in the final hymn. The second hair pin, jarred from its moorings, slid carefully down the neck of the girl two pews ahead and disappeared down her back, under her dress. The little boy next us chuckled gleefully. His mother hushed him sharply.

The girl two pews ahead put up her hand to fix her hair. The rest of us filed out of church.

NEW METHOD OF ELECTING BODY TO GOVERN POOL

Sixteen Regions Each Divided Into 10 Districts, Which Elect Men.

SIXTEEN DIRECTORS

Ten Men From Each Region Chose One as Director.

REGINA, Sask., July 23. — (Canadian Press).— Something new in forms of democractic government was disclosed when A. J. MacPhail President of the Western Wheat Pool, in an interview recently outlined the system of administration prevailing in Saskatchewan for the members of the pool.

According to Mr. MacPhail, the Province is divided into 16 regions, varying in size in proportion to the number of members signed up in any given area. The regions are again subdivided into 10 districts. Each of these districts elects a delegate, who meets along with the elected delegates from other districts in the region and elect one of their number as the region director. Thus the governing body of the Wheat Producers' Co-operative, as the wheat pool is officially known in Saskatchewan, consists of 160 members, 16 of whom are directors.

The unique feature in this system is the manner in which the governing body is elected. Instead of calling a central convention to be elected each farmer member is notified that he has the right to nominate any member in his district to represent that district. After time has been given for the nominations to be received at the central office in Regina, ballots for each district are sent to the farmers in the district concerned. The ballots for any one district contain the names of all the members nominated in that district. They are sent out together with an addressed and stamped envelope for the return of the ballot.

Mr. McPhail stated that he believed the advantages of this system were to be found in the fact that every farmer member was thereby given the opportunity to quietly select the man in his district whom he thought most capable of looking after the business of the provincial organization. He does not believe that the same opportunity is offered at a central convention.

Another interesting feature of the organization of the wheat pool is the rule that prevents interlocking directorates. That is, no director of the Wheat Pool can be a member of Parliament or director of another organization. The reason advanced by Mr. MacPhail for this rule is that to efficiently handle the work of the pool requires all the time that each director can give to the task.

CARS DAMAGED BY COLLISION

But the Occupants Were Not Hurt in Accident in Douro.

SOFTBALL GAME.

DOURO, July 24.—A collision occurred on Friday evening at the corner, one mile north of the village, when a car driven by Mr. Percy Rutherford, going north, collided with that of Mr. Thos. Russel, coming from the east and turning south. No one was injured, fortunately, but both cars were damaged considerably.

The North Douro soft ball team played an aggregation from Peterboro on Saturday afternoon on the Sweeney diamond. The score was 16-15 in favor of the local team.

The local line up was: Chas. Towns, p; Gerald Condon, c; R. Walsh, 1b; Frank C. O'Brien 2b; W. Whibbs, 3b; W. Towns, cf; I. Walsh, rf; E. Allen, lf; M. McCue, ss.

MONTREAL WENT DRY.

Part of City Eight Hours Without Water.

MONTREAL, July 24.—(Canadian Press).—Owing to an accident affecting the transmission of electric power to one of the main pump stations of city water works department the entire upper plateau of Montreal Island, comprising the north end and Rosemount sections were without water for nearly eight hours yesterday. At the Royal Victoria Hospital all operations, with but one exception, had to be postponed, the pressure being insufficient to carry water higher than the first floor.

BEAR IN GRAIN FIELD.

Surprised Forest, Ont., Farmer Going For Cows.

FOREST, Ont., July 24.—A full grown bear considerably surprised William Hill, a farmer on the Lake road, Plympton, four miles from town, by appearing out of a field of grain, when Mr. Hill went for his cows one morning this week.

The bear was equally surprised and made a rapid getaway and has not been located since.

TERRIFIC STORM VISITED COBOURG

Spectacular Display of Lightning, But No Serious Damage.

RAIN IN TORRENTS.

COBOURG, July 24.—About two hundred and twenty-five people went to Rochester Wednesday on the special excursion held on Str. Ontario by the Knights of Columbus. Doubtless there would have been more had it not been for the heavy electric storm that raged for a considerable part of the night. The rain fell in torrents, filling sewers and gutters to overflowing and streams of water ran down the streets. The rainfall was accompanied by a spectacular display of lightning and some deafening peals of thunder. However, there were no fires in the town, although some buildings were struck. The chimney on a vacant store building on Division street, formerly occupied by Mr. Harry Black, was struck and knocked down. Another house was struck and the wiring damaged. On two streets, Peary and Boy, the telephones were put out of commission and some of the residents were without the service all day. But notwithstanding all this no person was injured and there was no serious loss of property. In Hamilton Township there was a heavy rain which put an end to harvesting and grain-cutting operations for the day.

UNLUCKY DAYS FOR THIS FARMER

Lost Horse on Sunday and Broke Ribs on Monday.

OTHER ACCIDENTS.

ORLAND, July 24. — S. A. Thompson had the misfortune to fall in his barn Monday and broke one of his ribs, and seems to be suffering from other bruises or internal injuries.

The day previous to his fall he lost a valuable horse and in the excitement over Mr. Thompson's fall, when the hired man went to unhitch the team from the wagon, he led one of the horses over a thin place in the floor and it fell into the basement on a cement floor but escaped uninjured.

Eleven months ago Mr. Thompson fell in the same place, breaking his hip, and was laid up for two months.

Gerald B. Latimer, a lad of about 14, had one bone in his right arm broken about an inch above the wrist, in cranking a car belonging to M. J. Moran.

Roy Nichols was badly hurt by the neckyoke breaking while coming down Thornes hill with a heavy load of milk.

There was only about 200 lbs. of milk saved out of a load of about 3,000 lbs.

At a meeting of representatives of the different bacon hog clubs at Castleton it was decided to hold a hog fair at Colborne on October 15.

The meeting was very enthusiastic and a large number attended to hear the Government representatives explain the management of such fairs.

Alsike cutting is in full blast but the very showery weather is bad for getting it threshed. Farmers report that it is well filled, and there is a very large acreage.

Canada saw the birth of the modern telephone at Brantford, in 1874. Now over a million in operation, or one to every 9 of the population.

BOBBED HAIR WAR.

VIENNA, July 24.—(Associated Press).—A fight over bobbed hair recently necessitated the closing of the university here for a short time. Nationalistic students in an encounter with the social democrat faction pulled the hair of the girl students of the latter group and berated them for wearin it bobbed. The girls were finally rescued by their brother students and 16 of the reactionaries were arrested.

CURZON'S WILL NOT PUBLISHED

Part of Document Made Pungent Comment on Former Premier.

LARGE ESTATE.

LONDON, July 24 .— (Canadian Press).—A statement conspicuously displayed in the Morning Post yesterday says that the will of Marquis Curzin of Kedleston takes the form of three testaments, one of which was suppressed because it contained pungent illuminating comments on the former colleagues of the dead statesman, including a former Premier under whom Curzon worked.

The newspaper refers to these comments on an unnamed former Premier as "startling revelations." It says Marquis Curzon desired that the document containing them should not be published at the present time, but that the executors were faced with difficulties that the document also contained certain directions in the nature of an ordinary will and was therefore required to be submitted for probate.

The document accordingly was submitted to the Probate Court, but in view of the fact that if probate was granted the document must legally be made available to public inspection, it was withdrawn and remains a private testament. The Morning Post says Marquis Curzon identified this document as his "literary testament" in a supplementary will which he wrote after he was seized with the illness that proved fatal.

The "literary testament" was shown by the executors of the estate, says the newspaper, "to a high personage in the political world," with a view to gaining assistance in reaching a satisfactory solution of the problem dealing with it and this personage emphatically advised that no consideration of any kind should be allowed to remove the veil of secrecy with which Curzon enshrouded the document.

"Those familiar with the contents of the literary testament," the newspaper adds, "appear to have agreed that this advice was sound. It has been suggested by one aware of them that the publication must have been followed by a rude shock to the public faith in a man who has rendered conspicuous service to the state."

In connection with the Morning Post's story, it is recalled that Marquis Curzon held Ministerial posts under Premiers Asquith, Lloyd George, Bonar-Law and Baldwin and that he was also Under-Secretary for India and Foreign Minister under the late Marquis of Salisbury.

The will of the late Marquis Curzon of Kedlestone places a gross value on his estate, apart from previous settlements, of £354,894 (about $1,775,000), with a net value of approximately 50,000 pounds less.

COMMEND ACTION IN SHOOTING ROBBER

Bank Manager's Wife is Exonerated by Coroner's Jury at Inquest.

ST. CATHARINES, July 24. — (Canadian Press.)— Complete exoneration for the shooting of the bank bandit, Mat Kolides, together with commendation of her brave action, and a recommendation that official notice be taken of it, was accorded Mrs. Rodger, wife of a St. David's bank manager, by Coroner Currey's jury, which formally investigated Kolidee's death here last night.

"I consider the finding in absolute keeping with the evidence," said Coroner Currey. And this action may deter others in committing hold-ups and robberies which have become all too frequent."

WHEAT MARKET IS RUN BY SCALPERS

United States' Secretary of Agriculture Demands "Clean-Up."

WASHINGTON, July 24. — Charges that the Chicago Board of Trade is controlled by "scalpers and small brokers" were made by Secretary of Agriculture Jardine in voicing a demand that the board "clean house," before January 1.

The Secretary gave the plain intimation that if this is not done, Congress will be appealed to in order to force acceptance of the agricultural chief's program for more responsible handling of the great western exchange.

The statement was made in connection with a discussion of Secretary Jardine's recent western visit in which he stepped hard on the proposed McNary-Haughen bill for economic farm relief and reiterated his belief that the best way for the farmer to get out of his difficult situation is to work his way out.

The Secretary is preparing a counter proposal which will call for establishment of co-operative marketing or organization which will both tend to avoid surpluses and to absorb those that are unavoidable.

The criticism of the management of the Chicago Board of Trade was made in connection with the recent raid on the market, when eastern speculators and others "cleaned up" and shoved the price of wheat down to the limit.

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1925

Curves Return

NEW YORK, July 24 (United Press).—Are feminine curves coming back into fashion? This is a question which the corset manufacturers would like to have answered.

There is a rumor in Paris that figures are to return to favor before winter and that curves are to be the elegant thing. According to this rumor, the sylph-like flapper will no longer lord it over the plump and pleasing ladies who now resort to heroic methods to reduce their plumpness.

Does the American woman want curves back again? Does she want to be figured or straight-lined? Surely the corsetierres would be willing to see the return of the corset. Gownmakers, likewise are tiring of straight-lined gowns which women can fashion at home.

Paris Leads.

The Parisian is undoubtedly getting back to curves—but gradually. Most of the Parision frocks and coats for Fall show some curving of line. Back-fullness on frocks and coats will be popular in France and America this winter. Curves, to be sure, are not extremely accentuated but they are suggested. One cannot wear frocks with curves unless one wears a corset which displays one's curves.

Are we to be led, little by little, back to the hour-glass figure? What appears to be merey a suiggestion of waistline now may eventually ripen into an 18 inch model. Fashion always run to extremes. We have been figureless for several years, so what is to prevent us from getting figures again? Sometimes the sheer comfort of a style prevents us from discarding it. Surely the slightly girdled figure is more comfortable than the steel corseted one. Let us hope that women will hew to straight lines, to unconfined bodies and to comfort.

ALBERTA COAL HERE.

Ten Carloads Allotted to Peterborough Have Arrived.

Ten carloads of Alberta coal, Peterboro's share of the 25,000 tons alloted to Ontario, have arrived at the Canadian National and are being unloaded by the local dealers.

At the present time there are also great stacks of hardwood at the railway yards, and on the premises of the various wood merchants of the city. Peterboro can evidently snap its fingers at the disputes of miners and operators for some time to come.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

(By Annie Laurie.)

Dear Annie Laurie: I had been working at a place for six months. I had a quarrel with the "boss" and resigned. Now the company I worked for is giving a Recital. Do you think it would be proper for me to go see it as my friend is in it? R. S.

R. S.: If the recital is open to the public, ther eis no reason why you should not attend it, R. S. At any rate, you quarreled with only one member of the firm and consequently this does not affect your relations with the rest of the company.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this office.

• • •

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am eighteen, I have been going with a fellow for eight months, and have grown to like him very much. We had a quarrel, but made up again. When he went he made a date on the evening of the date he broke it. We see each other quite often but he seems to be friends.

I am very unhappy. My life doesn't seem worth living.

Please tell me how to win him back again.

Hoping to see my letter in the paper soon. UNHAPPY.

UNHAPPY: For one thing, don't take this matter too intensely, even if you realize that eighteen is an intense age. And don't live up to your name of "Unhappy." Which do you like the best, the cheerflu person or the uncheerful one? Well then, how are you going to win him back if you persist in creating a blue atmosphere about yourself? Without exactly seeking him out, can't you manage to be where he is occasionally, or where he can see you? If you can, wear your prettiest frock and your nicest hair-do and, above all, smile, even if you do feel that life isn't worth living while you're doing it. And don't, don't, quarrel with him again or refer to the old quarrel. If you get angry with him, keep away from him. Angry words make two-edged swords. "Ah, power of life and death—in the tongue, as the Preacher saith."

Let's Talk It Over

THE DANGER LURKING AROUND INNOCENCE.

I've just received a letter on the beauty of innocence. "Let us try to realize the beauty of innocence, and preserve it," says my reader. "Let us older ones guard the dear innocence of young girls and not put wicked thoughts into their childish heads."

I agree with the excellent lady who wrote me that innocence was beautiful—that it was a pity to spoil it—to bring the sordid realities into the realm of childhood. But how else can we protect our children?

Picture a lovely little girl in a field in Summer. A golden-haired, blue eyed girl with the misty transparency of innocence in her eyes. Picture a summer field—tall grass, a spicy wind, warm sun. Picture yourself watching that child at her play—knowing that rattlesnakes lurk in the warm, dry grass—ugly death, ready to lift fanged head before that little girl's innocent eyes—ready to sink poison fangs in her sweet flesh. What would you do? Regret that you couldn't tell her about the rattlesnakes without spoiling her childish games? Would you tell her she isn't to go into the field again—on any account—because nice little girls don't? Or would you make sure she would stay out by telling her just what lurks in that tall, warm grass?

Suppose you were out in the country, camping by a gurgling little stream, after a hot dusty ride over a bad highway. Suppose you were revelling in the promise of a long, cool drink. And then your more experienced companion told you that the limpid stream carried sewage from the farm house above—that typhoid germs lurked in the innocent-looking ripples. What would you do? Paste him on the eye for spoiling your pleasure in nature—diverting your thoughts from purity to sewage—ruining your chances of a cool drink of mountain water? Or would you thank your lucky stars that you found out before you drank of it?

You can't tell your little girl about rattlesnakes and typhoid germs without spoiling her pleasure to a certain extent at least, in the scenery. But unless you give her a reason and a true reason, for avoiding certain fields and streams, she will go dancing into them as soon as your middle aged back is turned.

The author of the following begs me to consider a mother's heart and cease my loud-mouthed discussion of Life as it Ought to be. But when it comes to a show down between wounding a mother's heart and blasting a child's life, then lead me to the mother's heart. I'll do my best with it. It is time that mother's realized that in "preserving their daughter's innocence" they are not always seeking to save something precious for their daughters, but often something only interesting and enjoyable in themselves. The letter follows:

"There is only one thing in which I am not in sympathy with you and that is your tendency to speak so frankly of things which are not commonly discussed. For grown up men and women frankness is more commendable than otherwise, but I am sure that when you think it over you will agree with me that a column such as yours is certain to fall into the hands of the young and that it destroys innocence.

"Is there anything in the world more beautiful than an innocent girl? That beautiful picture of Greuze, or is it Reynolds? 'The Proken Pitcher,' hangs in a little girl's bedroom, and as I look at the lovely sleeping face at night I pray that she may always be shielded from sin, and from a knowledge of sin.

"Will you not consider a mother's heart, and give this little thought your consideration? I shall feel that my time has been well spent if I have interested such a woman as you in my case. Let us try to realize the beauty of innocence and preserve it. Let us older ones guard the dear innocence of young girls and not put wicked thoughts into their childish heads."—A Reader.

PETERBOROUGH FANCIES

By Jeannette.

MAINLY ABOUT SHOES.

"Dress well and succeed" —"Dress well and stay young" — are slogans encountered in a chatty little booklet devoted to a consideration of shoe styles for the coming season.

According to local shoe authorities, people nowadays are demanding orthopedic shoes. They don't want the extremes; neither the tooth pick toe and stilted heel of the old mode, nor the clumsy, almost heelless, and equally shapeless affair that has been advocated in recent years as the ideal for foot comfort They want, on th contrary, a happy medium, shoe with a moderate heel, for it is declared that the very low heel is the cause of just as much discomfort and trouble as the very high one, and a moderately-rounded toe. One man in Peterboro is just opening up a special orthopedic department for his customers, where their shoe wants may be ascertained in an intelligent manner.

"It is a known fact," says the little booklet," that shoe linings absorb perspiration, the acid from the body, and retain the poisonous elements more than hrose or underwear and therefore must be left of to be ventilated and exposed to fresh air.

"Pains, blisters, callouses and even infections are caused by wearing th esame pair too often and for proper foot comfort and sanitation one should have enough pairs of shoes to change frequently.

"Growing girls' shoes should be given careful thought—It is surprising to know the very short and narrow heels possessed by growing girls."

For boys, it is declared, rugged and collegiate looking shoes are the demand. "Giving them a big, broad balloon last with heavy crepe and leather soles with elk and grain leathers, pleases them."

Another item in the shoe situation is the declaration that shoes will be higher in price this fall. The responsiblity for this is laid at the door of the automobile, which, it is said, is absorbing so much of the leather supply that shoes are consequently more expensive. Evidently, as well as making him jump to retain his place on th thoroughfare, the motor car is going to make the pedestrian pay a little more for the shoes he does the jumping with.

GOOD MANNERS

People do not cross a room to speak to anyone unless — to show politeness to an acquaintance, to speak to an intimate friend or to talk to someone about something in particular.

Rolling Away To Beauty.

I want to encourage my readers who seek beauty through slimness by assuring them that slimness weight is within the power of everyone who has the will to do it.

A well-known doctor advices his clients, wisely that anyone can reduce, though putting on weight where it is needed is not always such an easy matter.

Start out with the will to reduce, then, and be assured that you can find the ways. And the ways to reduce are not methods surrounded by mystery, into which only those who have the price can be initiated They are simple measures within the reach of all.

Lie Flat, Stretch Your Arms Above You and Roll Rapidly.

Summer is an excellent season to pay attention to reducing your weight to the desired number of pounds, for several reasons In the first place, many are lucky enough to be outside in the open country during the large part of the summer. This means that they take in many cubic inches more of fresh air, and fresh air cleans out your body and helps burn down the superflous fat.

Then we require less food and lighter food in summer, and this means that the temptation to eat rich foods will not be so much at hand. All of us, however, should be able to resist such temptation when we have in mind a certain definite end that we want to accomplish like losing fifteen or thirty pounds, or whatever our superflous weight happens to be.

A third good reason which makes summer an ideal reducing season is that the summer climate, in most places, induce perspiration. When we perspire freely our fat simply flows away from us, and lo the end in view is accomplished.

Now, if you go in for vigorous Summer exercise, light foods and plenty of green vegetables. If you avoid potatoes, lima beans, pastries and pies, and if you drink plenty of water between meals and none at meal time, you can accomplish much in the way of commonsense dieting.

I am going to give you here one excellent exercise for the woman who wishes, in addition to watching her diet, to use special measures to take off fat about the regions of her hips and abdomen. The exercise is rolling and I advise that you go about it in this way.

Select your own bedroom, or any other room in the house where you can have per fect privacy and where you can move back any chairs or tables that would be in your way.

You should, by the way, be clad in some loose garment, either your nightie or underclothing, or a simple dress. Do not wear corsets when you roll.

Lie flat upon the floor at one side of the room, your arms stretched above you so that they, too, are upon the floor.

Now roll rapidly to the other side of the room. When you reach there roll back again. Try to enjoy your rolling as anything you enjoy does you more good.

Keep the rolling up briskly and gleefully for fifteen or twenty minutes the first morning. Gradually extend it to half an hour or so.

Watch your hip and waist measure and perseverance will bring about a notable decrease in both.

RECIPE WANTED.

We have been asked for a recipe for making essence of peppermint. Could anyone oblige us?

COOL TWO-PIECE FROCKS OF THE MODE

On the Left Is a Summer Dress for Country Wear and on the Right Is One for Street Use.

Several Shades of One Color May Be Combined.

(By Annette Bradshaw.)

The two-piece frock has had a tremendous vogue since the early Spring openings, and it still continues to lead in Summer styles. The only difference is that it comes in thinner materials, and in more different versions.

The model at the left, for instance, is ideal for wear in the country for any daytitme occasion. The color is a light buttercup yellow, and the material is thin georgette. The skirts is made on a thin silk bodice, and the over-blouse has a long full tie of the same georgette.

The other frock combines crepe and georgette most effectively. It is made in three shades of blue, and because the skirt is dark blue, it is more suitable for street wear than the lighter colored model. The navy georgette is matched by bands of trimming on the crepe overblouse. There is also a medium blue crepe band which flanks the dark blue one, and the body of the blouse is crepe in a slightly lighter blue.

This vogue of combining several shades of the same color is a prominent one of the season.

These two-piece frocks are equally smart in crepe de Chine or the striped wash silks that are so in vogue at the moment. Belbriggan still holds its own and is much used for sport wear.

IN THE KITCHEN

By Jeanette Norton

Having One Warm Dish for a Hot Day Meal

An entirely cold meal does not always meet with the approval of the tired business man, even on a hot day, so it is wise to have at least one warm dish. Sometimes a good consomme prepares the way for the popular cold cuts, salads or summer fish dish. Or a light warm fish dish prepares the way for a vegetable or egg salad. Sometimes just popovers or muffins help out the need.

Popovers

This recipe makes twelve popovers. Break a fresh egg into a cupful of sifted flour, add a half saltspoonful of salt and a cupful of rich sweet milk. Stir well with a wooden spoon. Heat the pans hot and butter them well. Fill the pans three-quarters full of the batter (only half full if the pans are small), put into a hot oven and bake for fifteen to eighteen minutes. If they brown too quickly cover with a brown paper until they finish cooking. Serve at once.

Honey Muffins

Sift two tablespoonsfuls of baking powder with three cupfuls of flour. Add a half saltspoonful of salt, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, three beaten eggs, a cupful of rich, milk, and bake about twenty minutes.

Fillet of Sole

Select a short, thick founder and have it skinned and cut into six fillets. Rinse in cold water and dry off with linen cloth. Dip the fillets into a beaten egg, then into fine seasoned crumbs, then place them on a buttered pan. Dot with lumps of butter, dust with pepper and salt, sprinkle with strained lemon juice and bake a delicate brown in the oven. Serve a good tartar sauce with the fish.

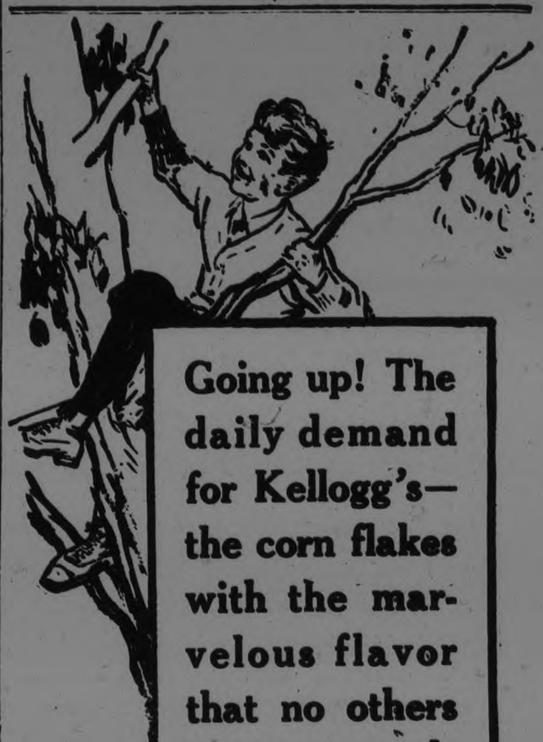
Modern Clam Chowder

Scrub and rinse two dozen hard clams, then put them into a pot with a cupful and a half of clear water. Cook until the shells are all open, then lift the clams, take them from the shells and chop them coarsely. Strain the broth through a bit of damp cheesecloth to remove all grit. Return the clams to the broth, add a very finely minced onion, a tablespoonful of finely minced celery leaves, two thin slices of bacon chopped fine, a large can of tomatoes. Run the tomatoes through a puree sieve. Reheat, adding pepper, salt to taste only, and stir in a little dissolved cornstarch to thicken slightly. Let cook very gently about a half hour. No crackers or milk are added to this style of chowder.

SOVIET JAILS PRINCESS.

KIEV, Russia, July 24.—Princess Olga Volkonsky, widow of General Volkonsky, who was shot during the revolutionaty disturbances in 1918, was yesterday sentenced to three years' imprisonment and her property was confiscated for practising clairvoyance, which is forbidden by Soviet statutes.

The Princess was accused by the public prosecutor for establishing a fortune-telling parlor near a Red Army barracks and advising Red soldiers how to evade military service.



Going up! The daily demand for Kellogg's—the corn flakes with the marvelous flavor that no others can equal.

Kellogg's are ready to serve. No sticky pots and pans afterwards. Just fill the bowl—add milk or cream. Especially fine with fresh or preserved fruit. For sale at grocers everywhere. Served in all restaurants and hotels.

Kellogg's CORN FLAKES

Oven-fresh ALWAYS

Kellogg's patented inner-sealed waxtite wrapper preserves the flavor and keeps the flakes toasty-crisp. This is an exclusive Kellogg feature!

Make this comparison!

Taste that wonderful flavor found only in Kellogg's Corn Flakes. Compare it with any ready-to-eat cereal. You'll know why millions demand Kellogg's.

PEOPLE MARRY THEIR DREAMS INSTEAD OF JUST EACH OTHER

Harvey O'Higgins Believes This One of Causes Of Marital Trouble.

DREAM IMAGES.

Canadian Author And Writer Of Short Stories Explains Cases.

"The man and woman who believed, before marriage, that they were all in all to each other will discover that they have been worshiping dreams," solemnly stated Harvey O'Higgins. "You have often heard people say, 'I don't see what he sees in that girl,' or 'I don't see why she's crazy about him, do you?' Well, as a matter of fact, they know just as much about it as the deluded couple themselves."

Mr. O'Higgins is expected to know about these things. It is his business, for he is the author of a bevy of widely-read books on the problems of wedded life. He is also a humorous and satirical writer, but this time he is serious.

Harvey O'Higgins was born in London, Ontario, 49 years ago. As is inevitable, he grew up and was educated. He graduated from the University of Toronto in 1897, went into newspaper work. Then he plunged into fiction and collaborated on musical comedies. And in 1901

Harvey O'Higgins, Canadian-born author and writer of short stories.

he published his first book. At some point in this period he moved to the United States, and there he still is, getting more and more famous each year.

But to return to the problem of dream images. Mr. O'Higgins can cite definite examples to back up statements.

"A lawyer I once knew," he relates, "fell in love with a marble hand. This man had rotten luck in the marriage lottery. Yet he was a thoroughly good fellow.

"I met him once and he looked wretched. He said he was on the verge of a breakdown from overwork. I knew that the man hadn't been doing any extraordinary amount of work. He had a large practice, but was perfectly able to take care of it.

"I suggested that he visit a doctor friend of mine who was a psychiatrist, and in treating him the doctor noticed that the lawyer, whom I shall call Mr. Dane, had an odd interest in hands.

"Developments showed that the patient had what is known as a fixation about hands. He had been married three times and in each case it was the woman's hands which first attracted him.

"The psychiatrist tried to get to the bottom of the matter. Finally Mr. Dane exclaimed, 'I know. It was the vase.'

The Explanation of It.

"The vase in question belonged to his mother. It was a very beautiful carved marble hand—a woman's been married three times and in each mother had died, she had written a letter to him, to be given to him as soon as he was able to read. Somehow or other, he got it into his mind that the marble hand was the hand that had written the letter. Even after he grew older and was told that the marble hand was not a reproduction of his mother's hand he always thought of it as the hand that had written his precious letter.

"He had naturally endowed his mother with all sorts of high ideals and subconsciously took it for granted that all women with beautiful hands must be devoted and self-sacrificing. His image has been formed around that one feature and the sight of a beautiful hand aroused in him all the emotion of instinctive affection.

"One great trouble about marriages on this continent is, I think, that the girl marries a father or brother rather than a lover, and the man marries a mother or sister rather than a sweetheart. Of course, they don't do this actually or consciously."

Mr. O'Higgins then proceeds to a discussion of the subject of egos. "A man's real battering ram is his ego," he comments. "This should never be lessened or interfered with. He has to go out and buck against reality and his ego is all he has to fight with.

"A friend of mine—in newspaper work—showed a great deal of promise before he married. His wife proved to be perfectly sweet and devoted. She hated to have him tire himself in any way, catered to his every need. The result was that that man's initiative has been ruined and all the promise he showed in his bachelor days has gone to seed.

"In married life, the husband and wife should let each other's ego alone. As things are at present, too, it is much wiser to let the man be the boss, or at least think that he is."

"A man and a woman—about to be married—should try to discover if they can whether they are marrying characters or images."

TRAVELLING EASTWARD AGAIN

Lord and Lady Haig, new portraits of whom are shown above, are now headed eastward, after a most satisfying tour of western Canada, during the course of which the former commander-in-chief of the British forces was made honorary chief of an Indian tribe, and enjoyed the experience of driving the engine of his own special train 20 miles along the Kamloops division, bringing it to a perfect stop at Hell Roarin' Falls.

HELP THE EMPLOYED

Says Lady Oxford in Support of Y.W.C.A. Club for Women.

LONDON, Eng., July 24 (Canadian Press).—Drawing-room meetings are not a form of dissipation in which Lady Oxford indulges. Her house in Bedford-square is not adapted for crushes and crowds and besides she prefers the party on time, with a few carefully-chosen guests. Her usual form of entertaining when in town is a luncheon party. But this meeting had a purpose. "We do much for the unemployed. Why not do something for the employed? They have these clubs in Canada and the United States. It is a disgrace that in London we have nothing of the kind," Lady Oxford (formerly Mrs. Asquith) said, in support of a movement for a Y.W.C.A. Central Club building for the women and girl workers of London.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Keene, July 17, 1925.

The Editor, The Examiner,
Peterboro.

Dear Sir.—I am obliged to ask space in your paper to refute some slanders which have been circulated locally concerning myself.

According to these stories which were originally set afloat a number of years ago, principally during my absence on military service overseas, I have ill-used my wife, assaulted my sister-in-law when she remonstrated with me for ill-treating my wife, have illegally kept liquor on my premises, and supplied information concerning the eligibility of Mr. William Drummond to the Conscriptio. Tribunal.

These stories have been recently revived, coupled with the argument that my neglect to refute them is prima facie evidence of their authenticity.

As my object is merely to vindicate my character, and not to revenge, retaliate or unnecessarily humiliate my detractors,—I do not think it devolves upon me to publish their names, suggest their motives nor discuss the details of this affair further than to make the statement that the various parties who were responsible for the circulation of these slanderous stories have, all of them, several years ago, admitted the utter falsity of all these stories.

Thanking you for this space,
Yours very truly,
ROBERT CAMPBELL.

NURSING NOW BECOMES A UNIVERSITY COURSE

A three-year professional nurses' training course has just been established at the new Wisconsin General Hospital in connection with the College of Letters and Science of the University of Wisconsin. The first class of ten nurses entered the university last Fall to take the pre-hospital work on one semester of physiology, anatomy, bacteriology, chemistry, English and theory of nursing. In February they entered the regular nurses' course at the new hospital, and will remain there for thirty-two months.

This, with one semester in the university, will complete the required three years of nurses' train- to lead to a certificate of nursing. If at the end of three years the nurse wishes to receive the bachelor of science degree she may receive credit for her university work and complete the requirements for the degree.

HAY BEING RUINED BY RAINY WEATHER

Ontario Crop Menaced By Present Prevailing Downpours—Oats Damaged.

OTTAWA, July 24. — (Canadian Press).—If the present spell of wet weather is continued for any lengthy period, the hay crop through practically the entire province of Ontario will be completely ruined, and already considerable damage has been done to the oat and barley crops, stated W. P. Popper of the Dominion Department of Field Husbandry at the experimental farm yesterday.

LUXURY TAX ACT MAKING TROUBLE

Merchants Can't Collect Quarter Cent Import on a Glass of Soft Drinks.

SMALL STAMPS USED

OTTAWA, Ont., July 23 (Canadian Press).—At the last session of the Ontario Legislature an Act was passed to supplement the revenue of the Crown in the Province of Ontario, and known as "The Luxury Tax Act of 1925." The object of the tax was to secure a revenue on the sale of beverages, which includes beer, ale, porter and any malt liquor, wines and other drinks prepared or manufactured from grapes or any other fruit, or from any plant or vegetable, also "soft" drinks of various descriptions, and other compounded or mixed drinks; mineral waters and aerated or carbonized waters, and drinks of every description.

The Act specifically states that the purchaser shall mean any person purchasing a beverage as set out above for his own use, and the purchaser shall pay the tax at the rate of five cents per gallon on all beverages known as soft drinks, which are specified above. Any purchaser of any beverage containing more than two and one-half per cent of alcohol shall pay a tax at the rate of ten cents per gallon. Every purchaser of wine of any kind containing more than two and one-half per cent of alcohol shall pay a tax at the rate of 50 cents per gallon.

This new Act has been giving the retail confectioners and grocers and the vendors of soft drinks all over Ontario a greatdeal of trouble and worry. A special committee of retail confectioners in the City of Ottawa recently consulted with E. M. Trowern, dominion executive director and secretary of The Retail Trade Bureau of Canada, a newly formed dominion-wide organization with headquarters at Ottawa. Mr. Trowern, after careful consideration of the act, advises that he finds the position to be as follows:—

"The purchaser of a beverage of any sort as set out above is required by the Act to pay the tax when he purchases the same from the retail merchant or vendor, and the retail merchant is required to collect the same as a trustee for the government. In the case of soft drinks of any sort, whether from a bottle or from a soda fountain, at the, rate of taxation as set out in the Act it would mean that the purchaser of the customer is required to pay a tax of three and one-eighth mills on every glass, and one-quarter of one cent on every bottle of soft drink purchased. In other words, the Ontario government has passed an Act specifying that the purchaser must pay the tax and the retail merchant must collect it, but they have made no provision whereby the purchaser can obtain the necessary three and one-eighth mills or one-quarter of a cent in currency in order to pay the retail merchant the same. If a merchant charges the customer one cent for the tax he is overcharging the customer six and seven-eighth mills on the glass, and three-quarters of a cent on the bottle; if the customer offers a cent in order to pay the tax, the merchant, as tax collector for the government, is overcharging the customer if he does not give him the proper change.

"The government has issued stamps of small denominations, to be purchased by the retail merchant in advance, to be placed on soft drinks in bottles and who, in turn, is supposed to collect the amount of the stamp from the customer We advise that retail merchants endeavor to collect the tax from their customers by the sale of stamps, and where this is found impossible we do not consider the retail merchant legally bound to pay the tax to the government."

FIFTY YEARS MARRIED

Brother of Archbishop Matheson of Prince Rupert's Land—Born in Ontario.

WINNIPEG, Man., July 24 (Canadian Press).—Suspended sentence was given in the Provincial police court to a war widow, charged with obtaining $2,138 in pension money from the Dominion government by false pretences. Restitution was made, and it was shown that the offence was committed in ignorance of the regulations. After the death of her first husband, killed overseas, the woman in the case continued to draw a pension after she had married again.

MOTORCYCLE OUSTS STORIED DOG TRAIN

Yukon Pioneer Blazes New Trails With Motor Equipage.

WHITEHORSE, Yukon Territory, July 24 (Canadian Press).—The age of the motorcycle has just reached Keno City, silver mining town in the heart of the Yukon, which until now has depended mainly on dog teams as a means of rapid transportation.

Don Stewart, who has been pioneering in the Yukon mining country since the early days of the Klondike rush, likes blazing new trails. Last spring he decided that the dog and pony show was all right for the miners who weren't in a hurry, but that quicker conveyance would save both time and money. He invested in a motorcycle and side car and set out to make the journey from White Horse to Keno. He equipped two wheels with runners and the third with chains and amid doubts of friends and the faint-hearted, started on the long snow trail. The route covered by sleigh occupied twelve days usually but Stewart reduced this to three days with his motor equipment, and he thinks he can beat even that record when he gets used to the unusual vehicle.

"A post is usually a day's travel by horse," he wrote a friend here, "but on one occasion we made four posts before lunch. We went over practically all the hills and through most of the snowdrifts in second gear."

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

BUILDS HOSTELS FOR GIRLS IN WEST

Mrs. Lloyd Resumes Work Dropped at Outbreak of War.

MONTREAL, July 24 (Canadian Press).—"I have no doubt that the number of British girls working in Chinese laundries out west is quite as great as it used to be, and therefore I want to do what I can in the interests of young women in the prairie provinces who are dissatisfied with their lots on the farms and are blindly lured to positions in the large centres," said Mrs. Humphrey Lloyd, of London, England, founder of All Saints' Hostel, of Edmonton, Alta., passing through the city. Mrs. Lloyd has been asked by the Anglican bishops of Calgary and Edmonton to continue the missionary work which she began before the war in the rural sections of the two dioceses.

"The Hostel which I established for girls in 1912, when the conditions which surrounded immigrants were not nearly so attractive as they are today, will probably be turned into a residence for the women students attending the University of Edmonton shortly. But the need for hostels for business and professional girls in any large city is great, even at the present time. British girls are coming to Canada now under very favorable circumstances; every steamer has its matron who looks after the welfare of its women passengers. The hostels are helping to care for the young strangers after they have reached their destination."

CONSTITUTION OF THE BRITISH LEGION

THE BRITISH LEGION,
PATRON.
His Royal Highness, The Prince of Wales, K.G.
PRESIDENT.
Field Marshal Earl Haig, K. T., G.C. B., O.M., G.C.V.O., K.C.I.E.
British Legion in Canada.
Appointed President and Organizer for Canada.
Lieut.-General Sir Richard E. W. T[illegible], V.C., K.C.B., K.C.M.G., D.S.O.

The following are taken from the British Legion Constitution, a copy of which was received to-day by Col. Miller:

Title: The title of the organization shall be "British Legion," and it is hereafter referred to as "The Legion."

Principles and Policy:

(a) The Legion shall be democratic, non-sectarian, and shall not be affiliated to or connected directly or indirectly with any political party or political organization.

(b) The Legion shall be created to inaugurate and maintain in a strong, stimulating, united and democratic comradeship all those who have served in His Majesty's Navy, Army, Air Forces or any Auxiliary Forces, so that neither their efforts nor their interests shall be forgotten; that their welfare and that of the dependents of the fallen may be safeguarded; and that just and equitable treatment shall be secured to them in respect of the difficulties caused in their lives as a result of their services.

(c) The Legion shall exist to perpetuate in the civil life of the Empire and of the world the principles for which we have fought; to inculcate a sense of loyalty to the Crown, community, state and nation; to promote unity amongst all classes; To make right the master of might; to secure peace and good will on earth; to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of justice, freedom and democracy, and to consecrate and sanctify our comradeship by our devotion to mutual service and helpfulness.

Aims and Objects

The aims and objects of the Legion shall be:

1. To bring about the unity of all who have served in His Majesty's navy, army, air froce or any auxiliary forces and to establish branches of the Legion in all areas.

2. To perpetuate the memory of those who died in the service of this country.

3. To educate public opinion to the view that the maintenance of the disabled and the welfare of ex-service men is a national duty.

4. To press that those who assisted to save the country in its hour of need be granted the right to work or be granted maintenance instead of apepaling to the Poor

5. To support suitable undertakinstead of apepaling to the Poor Law authorities.

5. To support suitable undertakings for the training and employment of ex-service men.

6. To assist ex-service men to secure not less than the recognized standard rates of wages in accordance with their ability.

7. To secure adequate pensions, allowances, grants and war gratuties for ex-service men, their dependants, and the widows, children and dependants of those who have served.

8. To promote the welfare of the women and children left by those who have fallen, and to see that all monies raised and contributed from any source for their welfare or that of ex-service men or their dependants are utilized to that purpose and not devoted to any other.

9. To raise and co-ordinate funds for the purpose of assisting ex-service men and their dependants.

10. To secure representation of the needs of ex-service men, widows children and dependants to or in parliament, to or on public bodies whose functions are defined by Act of Parliament.

11. To assist serving men in connection with their return to civil life and promote the interests of their dependants while they are serving.

12. To promote and support schemes for the education of ex-service men and their children.

13. There shall be nothing in its constitution to prevent the Legion from adopting a definite policy on any question directly or indirectly affecting ex-service men, and taking any constitutional action considered necessary in pursuance of it provided that the matter has been considered and endorsed by a majority of the Area Councils after due notice to the branches of the organization, and also providing that such a policy or action is strictly in accordance with the principles laid down in Rule 2 (a). Nothing in this rule shall prevent branches from exercising full local autonomy or from adopting and declaring definite policy or taking any action considered necessary in pursuance of it upon local matters, always providing that such action is constitutional and in accordance with the aims, objects and programme of the Legion.

Membership

(a) The Legion shall consist of four classes of members; namely, Ordinary, Life, Honorary and Women.

(b) Ordinary members shall be:

(1) Ex-service men and women who have served at least seven days with the colours in His Majesty's Navy, Army, Air Force or any auxiliary force except conscientious objectors.

(2) Men and women of the Mercantile Marine who have served afloat during hositilties outside examination areas.

(3) Men and women of the Red Cross organization of the Empire (i.e. St. John Ambulance Association, the British Red Cross Society, and the St. Andrew's Ambulance Association) provided they have served with the forces of the Crown.

(4) Any British or Nationalized British subject who has served seven days in an allied force during the war. The acceptance of an application as an Ordinary member shall be subject to the approval of the branch to which he is proposed.

(c) Life Members: It shall be within the power of the National Executive Council or of a branch to admit ordinary members to life membership of the Legion.

(d) Honorary Members: All who accept and support the policy, aims and objects of the Legion shall be eligible as honorary members of a branch.

(e) Women Members: Women other than those enumerated in Rule 4 (b), unless they are dependants, shall be eligible to join a Women's Auxiliary section in accordance with by-laws to be framed by the National Executive Council.

(f) No member who is not an ordinary member in accordance with Rule 4 (b) shall be entitled to vote or hold office or be a member of any council or committee of the Legion.

Rule 9. Areas: The Legion shall be divided into geographical areas and a body shall be formed in each area, to be known as "The Area Conference." Each branch shall belong to an Area Conference.

ALL VETERANS OF THE GREAT WAR

The G.W.V.A. and unattached veterans assembled in open meeting to discuss the advisability of joining Earl Haig's proposed British Empire Service League, requests that every returned soldier in Peterboro City and County express on this form his opinion as to the propriety of taking the step. Forms, when completed, may be mailed to, or handed in at, the Examiner Office. No obligation is incurred, only the general opinion of returned men being sought.

LAUDS THIS CITY FOR ITS PROGRESS

Charles Stevens Visits Peterborough Frequently—Tells Changes Seen.

Charles Stevens, of Milwaukee, president of the Stevens' Publishing Co. of that city, who has been a periodical visitor to Peterborough over a number of years, has some very flattering things to say of the changes he has seen in the city during the passing years. He says that Peterborough has changed from a small local to a national centre. From a city of small businesses it has become one boasting large concerns of national and international importance. With its splendid surrounding country he says Peterborough should advance now that the tide of trade appears to have set in. The streets are nice, he says, and the people are nice, and all classes seem to take a pride in keeping up the attractiveness of their town. The civic pride common among the higher classes in all cities is manifested in all groups here, he thinks.

Mr. Stevens thinks prohibition in the States has been a ghastly failure and will soon be repealed. It discriminates unfairly, he says, depriving the poor man of a drink, while more prosperous people can get liquor in unlimited quantities.

MILLION MINERS TO GO ON STRIKE

If Notices Are Obeyed in All British Fields—No Settlement.

LONDON, July 24.—(Canadian Press.)—Between a million and a million and a quarter miners in Great Britain will go on strike on July 31st if notices sent out by the executive of the Miners' Federation to terminate the existing agreement between miners and mine owners is obeyed in all fields. These are the estimates both of the Miners' Federation and the mine operators.

The decision of the miners' executive to call the strike on July 31st was taken last night. It followed upon more than a week of unsuccessful attempts to bring the miners and the mine owners together for negotiation of a new agreement to take the place of the one which expires on the day on which the strike has been called. But the miners have insisted that the owners withdraw their proposals which provide for a reduction in wages and the adding of an hour to the working day. Otherwise they would not meet them to discuss the new agreement.

Another effort to bring the two sides together has been made by W. C. Bridgeman, First Lord of the Admiralty, by inviting representatives of the mine owners and Miners' Federation to meet him separately to-day. The owners accepted, and after much persuasion the leaders of the miners decided to meet with Mr. Bridgeman to discuss a re-opening of negotiations.

So far the strike notice has only been posted in the Southwest and West Yorksire and South Wales, where the number of men employed in the mines is somewhere in the neighborhood of 400,000.

TOURIST RELATION TO TRADE ADVANCE

Leon Frazer Gives a Brief Resume of Association Activities.

Since his appointment as Secretary Treasurer of the Tourist Association of Ontario, Leon Frazer has been actively engaged in organizing alotting a period of three days a week to the work. Offices were secured by the Ontario Government in the Highway Administration building at 110 University Avenue and since that time Mr. Frazer has been distributing maps and government literature as well as securing members for the new organization.

The Provinces of Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and British Columbia have experienced considerable success since they have adopted a tourist programme which has been a sufficient warranty for the province of Ontario to carry out a similar scheme. Estimates from the Highway Commission for 1924 show that Ontario benefitted to the extent of 30 millions by selling the Ontario proposition to prospective tourists and the Tourist Association expect within a short period to increase that figure to fifty millions.

Already applications have been received which gives a conception of the wide range of support that will be forthcoming. Saulte Ste. Marie on the west, North Bay on the north, Ottawa to the east, and Windsor of the south are already included in the membership which was opened first on June 11 with no very active organizing work until July 8.

The announcement last night of the gain of 1-16 per cent. in the Canadian dollar over the American unit was attributed directly to the advance in Canadian exports in the influx of American tourists to Canada. From now forward the application by the States of the Fordney tariff will preclude to a large extent the export of Canadian foodstuffs.

It was estimated last year that the food used by the auto tourist would feed the entire population of Ontario for four meals. In other words the presence of the tourist means an increase in the domestic demand for our food products. Thus the decline in exports resulting from the tariff exclusion will be made up within the bounds of the province and the mountain will, in a manner of speaking, approach Mahommet.

The Association is taking advantage of the fact that the more easily accessible and more densely populated states are immediately to the southward, and it but remains to speed up methods of reception at the points of entry and to make certain that proper treatment be accorded the guests during their stay in the province.

European countries realize their value and have exploited their properties to tourists which advertising has resulted in a fresh spring of revenue. Such an exploitation of Ontario is certain to react on the general development of business in the province and will bring a direct return for the capiltal outlay on the modern transportation facilities afforded.

WESTERN CROP GOOD.

R. E. Harrison, Here From Alberta, Tells of West's Condition.

R. E. Harrison, druggist, of Lamonte, Alberta, and a former resident of Peterboro, who was druggist with Mr. W. Madill some 18 years ago, is in the city to-day with his wife, on his way to Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, where he is attending the annual meeting of the Dominion Druggists' Association, of which he is vice-president.

Mr. Harrison states that business in the West is improving, that conditions are more solid than they have been for a number of years back, and that if this year's crop reaches expectations the West will be in a very substantial position.

FRAME BUILDING BURNED IN NIGHT

Old Imperial Oil Storehouse Lost With Damage of $1,000.

One thousand dollars is the estimated loss arising from a fire which gutted a frame building near the corner of Perry and Bethune streets, formerly used by the Imperial Oil Co. and lately occupied by W. J. Fitzgerald, Junior.

The flames were observed at 12.45 by the watchman of the Nashua Paper Co., when the flames were issuing through the roof. In spite of the efforts of the Fire Department the fire spread rapidly through the oil soaked boards, sending out huge sheets of flames which lighted up the whole neighborhood until the fire burned itself out.

'FIRE PREVENTION' AT KIWANIS CLUB

Chief George Gimblett Tells of Necessities For Care By Everyone.

"Fire and its prevention," was the appropriate topic on which Chief Geo. Gimblett addressed the Kiwanis Club at the weekly luncheon to-day.

He emphasized the necessity for the general public to cultivate methods and practices that would tend to eliminate the danger of fire. In his inspections he had frequently come across business places where loose stuff and papers were left lying in huge bundles on the floor, greatly increasing the danger of an outbreak, and giving the firemen no chance whatever if a fire should occur.

Peterboro had improved in this respect in recent years. He believed there was fully 75 per cent. less danger of fire at the present time than there was three years ago before the inauguration of the inspection scheme. Some of the business men in the city were slow to move. One business man persisted in keeping the stairways of his premises blocked up with merchandise. Warning after warning was issued without effect until finally an ultimatum was presented giving him six hours to conform to the decrees of the Fire Department. He pleaded for more time. The Chief said: "Now, look here; let us change places; you are the Fire Chief; a fire has broken out here in your place, what are you going to do?" "I'm hanged if I know," answered the man. He promised to clean up within 24 hours.

The Chief gave many instances of culpable negligence of a kind that causes fire: carelessness in dealing with electric wires in factories, motorists working about the tank while smoking, and the habit of allowing inflammable materials to accumulate.

About a month ago a man accompanied by two ladies, drove a car into a garage. The two ladies got out while the tank was being filled. The man with a cigar in his mouth peered into the tank to see if it was nearly full, and immediately the whole car was blown up into the air.

He had known instances of men lighting a match, and holding it over the tank to see if there was enough gasoline. A case happened only recently in Peterboro, where a car took fire while some welding was being done for a repair job.

Eighty-five per cent. of fires originated in dwelling houses. Many started through the night from causes unknown. In at least 95 per cent. of homes there was a little bottle of gasoline used for cleaning purposes. Few women realized that this bottle of gasoline was more dangerous than dynamite. No woman would handle dynamite, but the majority of them work quite unconcernedly with a quart of gasoline having 83 times the explosive power of a stick of dynamite.

He wanted all his hearers to make a resolve, that so far as their factories and homes were concerned, fire prevention week would be every week in the year.

Last year the loss through fire was $45,906,000 in Canada. Ontario's figures were $16,312,000.

He wanted to give them a comparative table showing the losses by fire in Peterborough during the first six months of the years 1922 to 1925:

1922	$9,729.25
1923	138,549.87
1924	26,049.58
1925	25,912.73

The figures could be further reduced and he asked the members of Kiwanis to do their part.

Rev. J. D. Paterson, who was also described as a fire fighter, in thanking the Chief for his address, promised that the members of the Kiwanis Club would co-operate as far as possible in fighting the fire fiend.

HAIG NOT AVERSE SUCCEEDING BYNG

One of the Things He Prefers Not to Talk About.

TORONTO, July 24.—(Canadian Press).—Field Marshal Earl Haig, though he did not say so in words, gave the impression that he was not averse to returning to Canada as Governor-General if the opportunity presented itself, when he was questioned concerning the rumor on the train from Sarnia to London to-day, a report says. Lord Haig said it was one of the things he would rather not talk about. "I have always said I am too old and have too much to do in the Old Country. I have spent my life in the service of the Empire in different parts of the world and have had very little time at home."

UP IN THE AIR 28 HOURS

After being in the air for over twenty-eight hours in an attempt to establish a non-stop mileage record for a balloon of 35,000 ft. capacity, John H. Boettner, left, and Porter D. Collins, right, who left Akron, Ohio, on Saturday, were forced to land near Richmond Hill, Ontario, on Sunday evening. They are shown little the worse for their experience.

Programme Provided For Chautauqua Entertainment

Exceptional List of Talent—Varied and Entertaining.

The sparkling comedy, "Give and Take"; original musical production, "The Shepherd's Dream"; the Great Laurant in magic and mystery extraordinary; lectures by such headliners as William Rainey Bennett and Dr. Hilton Ira Jones—these are among the exceptional attractions which will appear here at the big 1925 Dominion Redpath Chautauqua which opens Friday, July 31st and continues for five days.

The Jogo-Slava Tamburica Orchestra, one of the best-known and most distinctive musical organizations of the platform, will open the Chautauqua on the first afternoon with an outstanding program. Following a prelude concert by the Jogo-Slavs on the first night, Dr. Hilton Ira Jones, noted scientist and lecturer, will deliver a popular and informative lecture, "Science and the Future", illustrated with interesting and platform demonstrations.

A novelty concert given on the second afternoon by the Faubel Entertainers will feature costumed sketches, character impersonations and instrumental number both classic and popular. At night, the Great Laurant and Company will appear in a lavisly staged, spectacular production of magic and illusions.

On the third afternoon Julian B. Arnold, distinguished traveler, author and savant, son of Sir Edwin Arnold, will deliver his fascinating, enthralling lecture, "Arabian Knights."

The great modern comedy success, "Give and Take," will be given on the third night by a cast of New York actors organized especially for the Dominion Redpath Chautauquas.

On the fourth afternoon the well known Chicago Lyric Singers will give a grand concert. Beautiful songs of Wales, sung in typical Welsh costumes, and gypsy air rendered in Spanish gypsy garb, are special features of their offerings.

Following a prelude by this talented company at night, William Rainey Bennett, internationally known dramatic orator, will deliver his inspiring address, "Pathways to Power."

On the last afternoon, following a prelude by the Harp Ensemble Company, Everett Kemp, eminent reader-entertainer, will be heard in a great new program.

"The Shepherd's Dream," original musical production, is the feature number of a grand concert presented by the Harp Ensemble Company on the last night. This production is a charmingly portrayed idyll of Arcadia, produced with special costumes and scenery and enhanced by novel lighting effects. In addition, a concert program is given featuring the music of the harp. This is one of the most distinctly enjoyable numbers on the entire Chautauqua program.

Three unique entertainments for children, each to be presented on a different day, will be given in addition to the regular programs for adults. Mr. and Mrs. Faubel will tell the children of many interesting lands in which he has traveled. Everett Kemp will delight with a specially arranged program of children's stories.

SOLDIER DEAD ADDED TO ROLL

Twelve Names Published To-day—Further Additions Are Invited.

NEARLY 500.

Many more names have been added to-day to the list of Peterboro's war dead, and it appears that the total may now reach 500. The Examiner and the war veterans in Peterboro appreciate the efforts being made to bring this list to perfection. Relatives and friends of Peterboro soldiers who were killed overseas or who have died since their return, and whose names do not appear in the list published on Tuesday, are invited to communicate with The Examiner.

To-day's additions are:
A. E. Sims.
Pte. George Minorgan.
Pte. Odely Taylor, 2nd Batt.
John Jinks.
A. W. White, 2nd Batt.
Harry Copson.
Pte. Stewart Hayes.
Pte. Eric Cumberland.
Stewart Moody, 93rd Batt.
Pte. Horace Hill.
Pte. Hubert Norgrove Stuart, 4th Batt.
Pte. Tom Davis, 93rd Batt.

This list includes some names printed last night incomplete, now completed by comrades.

TOWN IN FLAMES.

One-Third of Port Essington Destroyed Before Blaze Was Conquered.

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C., July 24.—Fire which broke out in a Japanese residence last night destroyed about one-third if the town of Port Essington, near the mouth of the Skeena River, and a few miles south of Prince Rupert, before it was brought under control.

CITY OF BABEL CURSES 'PHONE

Knowledge of Six Languages Needed Now; Automatic Plan to Be Tried.

LONDON, July 24.—Americans who consmider the telephone system rotten might be cured of complaining were they to try to put through a call in Cairo, Egypt.

All things considered, the present Cairo telephone service is really excellent. But the languages used by the people who talk into them makes a problem far more exasperating to Americans than the poorest service in the United States, a newspaper correspondent explains.

It was with one big sigh of relief that Cairo telephone subscribers heard the announcement that an automatic telephone system is to supplant the call plan. The step is revolutionary to all who are unable to talk at least six languages, and there are few who can do that.

Must Be Linguist.

A British firm has secured the contract for the installation of the automatic exchange, according to the correspondent. He described some of the handicaps under which the present Cairo exchange now labors.

The Minister of Communications is an Egyptian; all the senior officials of the telephone department are Italians, French or Greeks; the engineers are mostly Southern Europeans, with a smattering of Syrians and natives; the operators girls such as one would find nowhere else in the world.

Then there are the nationalities of the subscribers. A British official desires to ring up a brother officer. If he is wise and talented he will ask for the number in Italian, switch off into Arabic when he is connected with the switchboard of his colleagues' department, address his colleagues secretary in French, and finally revert to English when he talks to his friend.

In the Next Booth.

While he is talking in one booth a Greek in another is firing his language into the receiver, in an adjacent box a Jew is lapsing into Hebrew and in another a Turk is talking his own tongue.

Say the number is asked in perfectly good English. A tense moment is shattered when a harsh gutteral exclamation informs one "much fadi," (number engaged). On trying a second time a French voice may inquire "Oui," and a third attempt may bring a soft, "Si?" When the connection is finally made, an Egyptian servant at the other end of the line probably answers with a "Aiwa?" (Yes?)

By the time he is made to understand what and who are wanted, one is apt to be cut off, necessitating a repetition of the whole process.

DIVORCE EVIL LAID TO EXTRAVAGANCE

Only Remedy is Strict Home Training, Judge's Counsel.

PHILADELPHIA, July 24.—One out of every three marriages in Philadelphia goes on the rocks, and the rapidly increasing number of divorces is imperiling the home life of the nation, according to Judge William M. Lewis, of the Domestic Relations branch of the Municipal Court.

Judge Lewis blames extravagance and the blunting of women's finer sensibilities during the war for the increase of more than 100 per cent. in the number of divorces since the war.

He sees no possibility of the situation being remedied by legislation, and declares that only a stricter home training for the younger generation can overcome the growing tendency toward domestic instability.

"In most cases it is not the eternal triangle, another woman or another man in the case that causes the trouble," he said. "It is the fact that one or both of the parties have been trying to live beyond the means of the family.

"The auto causes a lot of it. They put their money in a car instead of in their home. It takes their interest away from the happiness and the pride of home building. That can lead only to unhappiness.

"Even in the last year the rate of divorces has increased by a high percentage. It is not limited to any walk of life. Divorces among the rich are heard of less frequently because the man can make a quiet settlement of money upon the woman and the struggle in the court-room is eliminated. The poor man fights to keep from having to make this settlement. That is why they are heard of more frequently.

"There was a time when a woman would feel that her respectability was in question, and would forbear much rather than air her grievances in court. Now, and especially since the war, this finer sensibility has been completely broken down. They come flocking to court with their troubles. Since others have tasted of this freedom, they are anxious to try it themselves.

"The foundations of the home are being threatened, but there is no law that might be passed that would be a solution to this growing problem. The remedy must go deeper.

"The institution of the home depends on the training of the next generation. Our children must be imbued with more respect for their elders, their parents and their home. If they see nothing within the home to attract them and are not trained to respect that greatest of American institutions, then we can expect only a more disastrous increase of cases in the Domestic Relations Court in the future."

FIFTEEN ERRORS IN JUNIOR GAME

Lakeviews Kicked in Eleven and Lost to C.G.E. by 17 to 10.

A most ragged game of baseball was provided for the fans by the C. G. E. and Lakeview junior teams in the first game of the City League finals. The C.G.E. won out 17-10. At one time the score was 17-2 for the Electricians, who reached their large count by a judicious combination of their hits and the other side's misplays.

Up to the seventh inning the winners could do nothing wrong. In the six frames they made but one error, a dropped fly by Rody. The Lakeviews made six hits but in every inning except the fourth the hitters were left stranded. In the seventh the complexion of the game was entirely changed. Made careless by their big lead, the Electricians made a few errors, while McDonough let up on the batsmen, and they commenced to slam his offerings. He assisted them in scoring runs by walking four batsmen, but tightened up before things got too close for comfort.

The Lakeviews got away on the wrong foot. Woods was the pitching selection and it was apparently not his day as the Electricians slammed his offerings to all corners of the lot and piled up ten runs in the two innings he worked. Woods was not helped by his teammates, who contributed five errors, and some bonehead plays. Last year's champs did better with Mein pitching, although they slipped a little in the fourth and sixth innings. On the bases the Lakeviews were equally bad, throwing away runs with abandon.

Both teams hit hard and often, the losers having the edge with 13 hits to 12. Scully was the leading batsman, with three singles and a double in six trips to the plate. Franks was second with a triple and a single, and T. Jones and Marchen, with a single and a double each were next, while Delahaye, Milloy and Rody each had a pair of singles.

Fourteen strikeouts by McDonough had a great deal to do with the result of the game. The C.G.E. hurler was especially good in the pinches. Wood struck out 1, and Mein 5 of the Electricians. McDonough walked four and hit one while Mein walked five.

LACROSSE NOTES

Percy Lancaster in his Havelock Standard muses as follows: "Local enthusiasts are wondering why Hastings-Campbellford defaulted to Peterboro last Saturday. They had a mighty good team this season, and stood a good chance to a least tie for the district honors."

A letter from Campbellford which was shown to The Examiner yesterday might interest Havelock lacrosse fans. It rather mysteriously blames Havelock "for playing their cards as they wanted to this season." It was intimated that Albert Armstrong of Havelock, first vice-president of the O.A.L.A. is "non persona grata" in Trent lacrosse circles.

Havelock comment suggested that the first game of the season took all the fight out of the Campbellford-Hastings combination.

From this distance it seems that Albert Armstrong, as an officer of the O.A.L.A. should have done all in his power to discourage the several amalgamations which have resulted in curtailing lacrosse in this district this summer. Perhaps he did, but in any case Havelock did not lose anything as events have proved.

The following is from the Havelock Standard:

The junior series in this district is in a muddle. Everything was going along nicely until the O. A. L. A. Executive wrongfully allowed the Campbellford team to play with Hastings by alleged amalgamation, which combination defeated Norwood. On complaint being made about this infringement of the rules and regulations of the O.A.L.A., that body threw out all games already played (Havelock having won two and heading the district) and ordered an amalgamation of Havelock and Norwood and a new schedule drawn up at once. We understand that the Campbellford-Hastings combination, like the intermediate players, can not get along together, and as a consequence there has as yet been no schedule drawn up or even arranged for. The fault for the whole muddle lies on the shoulders of the O.A.L.A. Executive is allowing Hastings players to hook up with the Campbellford team, which already was the strongest in the district and would have easily won the district honors. Thats' the pity of the whole affair, in keeping out a bunch of players like Campbellford can line up in the junior series, who would we think go far in the semi-finals series.

As for Charlie Holmes' statement in regard to Campbellford's request for a postponement, it is true that his letter was received by Johnnie Sutherland on the Monday preceding the Saturday game. However, the local club had bills and tickets out, and consequently referred the proposal to the O.A.L.A. secretary, who replied that the Trent team would have to fulfil their engament. It was not until Friday that Peterboro knew definitely Campbellford-Hastings were not coming, although Alex Weir of Norwood called on Thursday with the positive information.

The Peterboro Club regrets the turn of affirs. Their relations with the Trent teams have always been cordial, and they were looking forward to the games as scheduled.

SPORT GOSSIP AND COMMENT.

The last appearance of the Belleville team here for the season tomorrow is expected to provide a real battle for the usual Riverside Park Saturday afternoon crowd. The Petes must win to keep up there, and they are prepared for a hard fight from Walter Gerow's men, who always give their best in an attempt to beat Peterboro. Whitehouse is expected to do the firing for the home talent, his first home start in several weeks, while Gilly Goyer, Belleville's right-hander, will slant them in for Belleville. The game is billed for 3 o'clock sharp.

Oshawa and Kingston will hook into each other at Oshawa on Monday instead of on Saturday, the big General Motors picnic tomorrow being the reason for the Oshawa club requesting a postponement. Another loss for Oshawa would make the Motorists' chance of figuring in the play-off decidedly gloomy, and Ted Saunders' crew are likely to put up a tough argument. They have beaten Kingston in their last three starts.

• • • • • • • • •

The averages of the Central Ontario League team show that Max Swanston has driven in 19 runs in 15 games, conclusive evidence of the timely hitting of the Peterboro backstop. Harrison and Wolfe have also shown a happy faculty of getting their clouts with men on, the former batting in 16 runs and the latter 14. Altogether the trio have batted in 49 runs and scored 42 themselves, three players thus figuring in 91 runs.

• • • • • • • • •

The Petes have yet to play each of the other three teams two games each, thus giving the homesters three games at home and three on the road. Wednesday's game completed three-quarters of the schedule for Oshawa and Peterboro, the Motorists, who were even with the Ponies and Petes at the half-way mark, having fallen back two games since that time.

PLAY CANADIAN OPEN GOLF AT LAMBTON CLUB

Tourney Becomes More Important as Producer of Good Golf.

GOOD PLAYERS.

Attracts Cream of Amateurs and Pros From Canada and States.

TORONTO, July 24 (By Canadian Press)—Each year the Canadian Open Golf Championship becomes more important from the point of view of the production of excellent golf. This year's tournament, to be staged over the course of the Lambton Golf Club, just outside the city, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday next, July 30-Aug. 1, will maintain and probably improve the excellent record of the past seven or eight years. The event annually attracts the cream of Canadian professional and amateur players as well as a number of the great golfers from across the line.

Last year at Mount Bruno, near Montrel, one of the sensations of the open championship was the playing of Willie Macfarlane, who came from behind to win third place and thus give the first suggestion that he might ultimately win the United States Open, which he did at Worcester this year. Macfarlane is a probable entrant at Lambton next week. Leo Diegel, the fine United States player wwho won the championship last year, has intimated that he will defend his title, while Gene Sarazen, former U.S. champion, who was runner-up at Mount Bruno last year, has also stated he will play in the Canadian Open.

Canadian players who will give the United States invaders competition will be Charles R. Murray, Royal Montreal, who after being off his game early this season due to an injured arm, signalized his return to form recently by a sizzling 68 around his own course; Andrew Kay, the Toronto professional who led the Canadian contingent in the Open last year, and who will be playing over his own course; Nicol Thompson, Hamilton; and Karl Keffer, Royal Ottawa, who also has a 68 to his credit this season. Keffer and Murray have each been Canadian Open champion twice.

Don Carrick, juvenile marvel from Scarboro', Toronto, the Canadian Amateur champion, will be among the amateurs playing, as will probably be Ross Somerville, of London, Ont., runner-up to Carrick in the Canadian amateur at Ottawaw, and W. J. Thompson, of Toronto, Ontario Amateur champion.

A change in order of play for the Open will be made this year. On the first day there will be a qualifying round of 18 holes, and another 18-hole qualifying round on the second day, both for the entire field. Only entrants within 20 strokes of the leader will be allowed to compete in the final 36 holes to be staged on Aug. 1. This will solve the problem of large and unwieldy fields which in the past two or three years has resulted in some players finishing in the twilight.

Extensive changes have been made in the Lambton course for the Open tournament. The course has been strengthened and stiffened until now it is more than 6,300 yards, with water hazards making it a difficult course to score, and medal play is the method of deciding the championship.

Past winners and runners-up in the Canadian Open Golf Championship are:

BELLEVILLE WILL FIGHT HARD TO WIN FROM PETES

Railroaders Are Here Tomorrow for Their Last Visit of the Season.

WILL NOT BE EASY

Gerow Men Always Make It Difficult for Petes to Register a Win.

The Central Ontario League schedule is rapidly drawing to a close, and tomorrows Peterboro-Belleville game at Riverside Park is the third last regularly scheduled fixture of this season and, incidentally, the Railroaders last visit of the year to Riverside Park. They have invariably played good ball here and will make the Petes step to town tomorrow to earn the verdict. It looks as if Whitehouse and Goyer will be the opposing pitchers and the two should have a merry duel. The game will start at 3 o'clock sharp, and the attendance will undoubtedly be large.

BRITISH TENNIS STARS AT QUEBEC

Kitty McKane Wins From Joan Fry in Twelve Game Set.

QUEBEC, July 24 — Miss Joan Fry and Miss Kitty McKane, two of England's outstanding tennis players and members of the British ladies' touring team, renewed yesterday their rivalry which started in England here and gave one of the best exhibitions of tennis witnessed on local courts. The pair played a twelve game set before the issue was decided in favor of Miss McKane, seven games to five.

Wonderful placement work, lengthy duels between the two and crafty lobbing featured the match.

Miss McKane's victory was rendered more impressive by the fact that just previous to her match with Miss Fry she had competed in a doubles match. She won by taking the last three games and the set, after her opponent had a count of 5-4 against her.

The most spectacular tennis of the afternoon was provided in the doubles events.

Miss McKane and Miss Evelyn Collyer, deefated Mrs. R. L. Chambers and Miss E. H. Harvey, two sets to one, after a brilliant contest. The visitors' victory was due to the stellar playing of Miss Collyer who at times had her opponents dazzled by her wonderful returns.

OLD COUNTRY CR'CKET

LONDON, July 24. — (Canadian Press). — In the county cricket matches yesterday, Gloucester defeated Derbyshire by an inning and 32 runs. Derbyshire 81 and 142; Gloucester 255 (Bloodworth 57).

UNION OFFICIAL ASSAULTED.

CALGARY, July 24.—(Canadian Press).—William Sherman, president of District 18, United Mine Workers of America, was assaulted at Drumheller yesterday morning by a party of alleged Communists. Sherman was not seriously hurt.

DE LAVAL - C.P.C. IN DRAWN GAME SOCCER CUP TIE

A Real Old-Time Cup Battle Between Two Junior Teams.

GOALKEEPERS GOOD

Many Exciting Attacks Failed to Penetrate the Goal.

A large crowd of spectators witnessed the Taylor Cup Tie at King Edward Park, last evening, between the Canadian Packing Co. (cupholders) and the De Laval which culminated in no scoring. The result is the right decision of a hard-foughty ninety minute battle that will, in all probability, be replayed next Thursday evening on the same park.

George Blowers handled the match in an amicable manner and to the satisfaction of both elevens.

Mr. Roland Denne was present, in place of ex-mayor Taylor, to hand over the cup.

First Half.

De Laval compelled C.P.C. to face the sunset and were the first to make headway, through Dyer, who tested C.P.C. guardian. James tried to break away but Warde stopped him. De Laval pressed but offisides robbed them. C.P.C. attack gave Frick a fright when he muffed a drop shot from Gore. Mitchel tackled the defense on the right for a corner-kick that De-Laval custodian fisted clear. Warde transferred to the other end where the centre-forward made Montgomery throw himself full length to put around the corner for an unsuccessful flag-kick. The C.P.C. goalkeeper grasped a fast one that Hanson rattled at short range. Amidst great excitement, he green and red boys hammered he De Laval into their own territory that culminated in two players—one from each team—being sent off the field, for indulging in fistic tactics. This enlivened up the ambition of the players to gain the necessary goal. Montgomery giving a splendid display in goal which was backed up by two excellent half-backs who only conceded flag-kicks. Bennett broke away again on the left to make C.C.P. guardian pick the ball from under the cross-bar. Occassional raids by James and his mates were of a far range character but the round of applause was greeted to the C.P.C. goal-keeper when he beat everything ranged at him. A free kick against Grant for upsetting Lindsay about caused disaster when Dyer hit the upright from the free-kick. At the other end, James dropped one into Frick's arms. Then De Laval presse as half-time was announced. Half-time, no scoring.

Half-Time.

On resuming, Bennett went through on his own until Montgomery stopped his progress. Mitchell came back again to Frick's charge where he kicked clear. Exchanges were even thereafter, until De Laval left wing went right close i nwhere Grant punted clear along the wing, which resulted in Frick conceding a flag-kick when he tipped the ball around the post, from Mitchell's effort. Hensby sent his forwards down in C.P.C. territory through nice combination that the full-backs frustrated with first-time punts. Both line of forwards were working hard to gain the only goal to get the trophy. At this period of the tussel many of the players went after he man insead of the ball which inclined to spoil a real captie match.. A flash was created on the C.P.C. left wing when the outside man placed the ball to James' foot, but was facing wrong way to have a shot. This was followed up by many raids against each goal-keeper's charge by brilliant exhibition of picking them up from every position. A few minutes before the final whistle Pennett ha a lively tussel with the defense that were favorable to Abraham who missed by inches. Play was in mid-field as full time arrived. No scoring.

C.P.C.—Montgomery, goal; A. Downer and Grant, full-backs; Cross, Buchanan and J. Downer, half-backs; Mitchell, Gore, James, Laidlaw and Foster, forwards.

De Laval—Frick, goal; Frost and Hensby, backs; Evans, Warde and Harvey, half-backs; Lindsay, Hanson, Dyer, Abraham and Bennett, forwards.

Referee—George Blowers. Linesmen—Ted Jones and S. Calladine.

T. C. ELLIOTT IS SINGLES WINNER

Splendid Bowling Duel With Alex Dick Won at Midnight Last Night.

DOUBLES TO-NIGHT.

One of the best games of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club's annual tournament was the duel between T. C. Elliott and Alex Dick in the finals of the singles, in which the former won in twelve ends by 12 to 6. There was not a break in the whole game, every point being taken by superior bowling. When the lead off man lay a point the other slipped in on the kitty to rob him, and the other came back.

The five spectators who remained at 11.30 saw an outstanding display of the art. There were only two wicks in the twelve ends, each man playing dead on the kitty. In the eleventh end Alex Dick was lying three, with the nearest bowl almost touching the kitty, when T. C. Elliott played his last bowl in a perfect shot to nestle against the white ball and give him a point. Instead of killing the end, Alex Dick made an almost successful attempt to touch his nearest bowl. Coming home after that end Dick made an almost perfect shot to open, but was robbed when T. C. cut in between to count another. Alex Dick conceded the game with two ends to play.

In the doubles, Dick and French put out Elliott and Cullen by 17 to 6, and Maynoord and Elliott eliminated St. John and Williams by 18 to 10, both games featured by a number of breaks favoring the winner, but showing excellent bowling for the tail end of a strenuous tournament. The play-off lying between two Peterborough pairs, will be played tonight.

Splendid Tournament.

Expressions of satisfaction with the entire tournament were general yesterday in the closing hours of the best affair of its kind the Peterborough Club has had. In the numbers of rinks entered, the prizes awarded, the interest shown by hundreds of spectators, the brand of bowling, and the financial results, the tournament was far ahead of any other year.

Probably the presence at all times of from twenty to a hundred and fifty spectators gives the best indication of the attraction the game is gaining, and even up to 10.30 last night there was a big party inside and outside the fence.

Charles Seymour, energetic secretary of the club, was enthusiastic in reviewing the outstanding success achieved. While he was in great measure to be credited, he passed the bouquets to his committee and to the men who had helped. "It was the best tournamen we have ever had," he told The Examiner. Alex Dick declared it "Without doubt, the most successful tournament yet." T. C. Elliott, who may have been biased by having just won the silver sugar set that was emblematic of victory in the singles, concurred in anything good that was said of the tournament.

The one regret expressed was that the club has not the facilities to entertain the Dominion tournament. With proper club-house accommodation and a larger green the club could have gathered many more rinks in competition, and might even have aspired to the honor of entertaining the Dominion clubs.

Thanks to Ladies.

The thanks of the club are due to the ladies, who maintained a refreshment booth on the two days of the tournament, and helped in many ways toward the success of the affair. Many of them were among the most interested spectators, following the play with the eyes of experts.

PETERBOROUGH C. O. B. L. AVERAGES.

Since getting into the game as a regular in the last four contests Fred. Ash, graduate of last year's Lakeviews, has helped himself to the very respectable average of .421, and is at the top of the list, although Herb. Wolfe still leads with .358 among the players taking part in the majority of the games. During the week Heckman, Hall and Harrison all clouted their way into the .300 class, Harrison just reaching that figure.

Harrison, by virtue of crossing the plate three times on Wednesday, has taken the lead in run-getting, having scored sixteen times in eighteen games. Rose, who gained seventeen points in the last two games, is hitting .344 and is just a run behind Harrison.

Swanston leads in doubles with 9, Harrison in triples with three and Hall in home runs with two.

The leadership in other departments remains unchanged as the result of the week's developments.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

In the first part of the back swing there is very little wrist action, as I have often pointed out, and I believe the average player can get the knack of delaying his wrists by using an open stance if he will observe the following: Having taken your stance—open—and with the wood clubhead resting back of the ball, begin a circling movement of the entire body toward the right. (Remember that all the weight is on the left foot at the start). The entire body weight shifts over to the right leg, which stiffens. Meantime, the clubhead has slid along the ground, inside the line running straight back from the ball. Well back, the clubhead lifts upward from the ground of its own accord. Keep on going around now with the body and let the arms swing around and up naturally, the wrists breaking, naturally, at the top. This keeps everything all together—body, arms, wrists and clubhead, as it should be.

ZEV IS RETIRED.

Greatest of U. S. Thoroughbred Winners Went Stubborn on Track.

NEW YORK, July 24.—(Canadian Press).—Zev, the greatest winner of U.S. thoroughbreds, who earned for his owners $313,630, has been retired from the track because he has gone stubborn. He was loaded into a truck yesterday at Belmont Park and sent to Rancocas Stables in New Jersey, where his owner keeps his veterans of the track. Zev is 5 years old.

SOCCER NOTES

The senior league game for Saturday is between the Quaker Oats and the Thistle, at the Oval. Kick-off at 3 o'clock. Referee, Alex McKinley.

In a previous league game, the porridge boys put it over the jags like a tent and were the far superior team, but tomorrow the "blue sweater" boys intend to come back at them to record a win but we will "wait and see" tomorrow afternoon.

An exhibition game will be played on King Edward Park on Saturday afternoon. Kick off at 3 o'clock.

Canadian Woollens will not travel to Campbellford to play the Trent Valley boys in a "friendly match" but on some other date.

HOME BANK RELIEF.

Payment of 35 Per Cent Will Be Made on Application.

TORONTO, July 24. — (Canadian Press.)— The repayment of the additional 35 per cent. to Home Bank depositors of $500 and less under the relief measure recently enacted by the Dominion Parliament will not be through individual notification or cheque, but by application of depositors concerned to the same banks through which they received the original 25 percent. payment. Liquidators of the bank are working on prepaartions of lists showing names, addresses and amounts on deposit of 42,000 depositors of $500 and less, who will be eligible under the Act.

HASTINGS BEAT THE LAKEVIEWS

Good Ball Put Up By Both Teams in Splendid Exhibition.

SCORE WAS 4-2.

HASTINGS, July 24. — On Wednesday afternoon at the Athletic Grounds, the Lakeviews of Peterboro and the Hastings baseball teams presented a good game. The locals were back to their old-time style of this season's ball, and a decided improvement over last week's game was noticed by the spectators. Scriver, the cub pitcher for the locals, hurled the nine innings and played even in the game with the visitors' twirler, LeBarr, both having five strike-outs to their credit.

Lemoire made a spectacular play when he ran out from centre and caught a fly from the bat.

The visitors, while the majority are all young baseball players, some still eligible to play junior, put up a great game and were a real good sporty crowd.

Umpire at plate—Devell. On the bases—Stewart.

U. S. NAVY NOT DRY IN SOUTHERN SEAS

Officers Willing to Accept Liquid Hospitality of Antipodeans.

SYDNEY, New South Wales, July 24.—(United Press).—Many of the hospitable officials and leading citizens of Sydney were sorely perplexed as they celebrated as an official holiday the arrival of the United States fleet here Thursday. But soon after the American war vessels had steamed majestically through the heads, escorted by sea-planes and greeted by roaring guns, it became generally understood that the visitors from across the seas, especially the officers, were willing to accept liquor if it were offered to them.

The New South Wales Golf Association wirelessed to the ships, "Welcome to our bunkers and our nineteenth holes." And the American officers replied: "Hearty thanks, will do our best on both hazards mentioned."

M'INNIS' 17TH YEAR IN MAJORS

Veteran First Baseman Began His Career in 1908—Now With Pirates.

NEW YORK, July 24.—Stuffy McInnis, veteran first baseman, who is now serving his first season as a member of the Pirates, is one of the oldest players in the major leagues in point of actual service. He is now serving his seventeenth season as a big league player and he has been a member of five big league clubs. In addition to being with the Pirates, he has also sported the uniforms of the Athletics, Red Sox, Indians and Braves.

In 1908 McInnis started his professional career with the New Bedford club of the New England League as a short stop. He finished that season with the Haverhill club of the same league. He played short stop exclusively during that campaign and his batting average for fifty-one games was .301. In the following year he joined the Athletics and he was used as a substitute infielder during that season. He played in only nineteen games with the Philadelphia club that year. In 1910 the Athletics used him at short stop in thirty-eight contests and his batting average for that season was .361.

At the start of the season of 1911 McInnis became the regular first baseman of the Athletics. He played in 126 games that year and batted .321 In the following season he played in a total of 153 contests and batted .327. While still with the Philadelphia club in 1913 he helped them win another pennant that year. He played in 148 games that season and batted .326. In the following year he batted .314 in 149 contests.

During the season of 1916 McInnis played first base in 149 games for the Athletics and his batting average for that campaign was .295. In the following year, his last as a member of the Philadelphia club, he played in 150 games and his batting average was .303. Several months before the start of the season of 1918 he was traded by the Philadelphia club to the Red Sox. During his first season as a member of the Boston club he was used at third base in a number of games as well as playing first base. He played in 117 contests during his first campaign with the Red Sox and his batting average for that season was .272.

In 1919 the Red Sox used McInnis exclusively at first gase and he batted .305 in 120 games that year. In the following season he played first base in a total of 148 games for the Boston club and his average for that season was .297. During 1921, his last as a member of the Red Sox he participated in 152 games and his batting average was .307. He played third base in several games that year.

Several months after the close of the season of 1921 McInnis was traded to the Indians for Elmer Miller and Joe Harris. He immediately became the regular first baseman of the Cleveland club and during the season of 1922 he played in 142 games and his batting average was .305. At the end of that season he received unconditional release from the Cleveland club and he was soon signed by the Boston Braves. During his first season as a National Leaguer he played in 154 games and batted .315. Last season while still a member of the Boston club he took part in 146 games and batted .291.

During his sixteen years as a major league player before the start of the present season, McInnis played in a total of 2,021 games. He went to bat 7,538 times and made 2,311 hits for an average of .307. He paparticipated in four world's series during his long career, three as a member of the Athletics and one while with the Red Sox. He played in one game with the Athletics against the Giants in 1911, but did not go to bat. He played first base in five games with the Athletics against the Giants in the series of 1913 and he made only two hits in seveneteen times at bat for an average of .118. He covered first base for the Athletics in the four games with the Braves in the series of 1914. His batting average for that classic was .143. He played first base in six games for the Red Sox against the Cubs in the series of 1918 and made five hits in twenty times at bat for an average of .250.

ENGLISH STUDENTS FOR U. S. VARSITIES

Scholars Go to Yale, Princeton and Harvard For Year.

CAMBRIDGE, July 24.—(Associated Press).—The committee of the Henry P. Davison Scholarship Fund has selected the following scholars for the academic year 1925-6: H. H. Thomas of Sidney Sussex to Yale; W. P. N. Edwards of Corpus Christi to Princeton, and G. C. R. Eleq of Trinity to Harvard. Thomas won the Chancellor's medal for English verse this year; Eley recently gained a first in the law tripos, and Edwards has played golf for the university.

The Henry P. Davison Scholarship Fund was founded in 1923 by Mrs. Davison, widow of the former Chairman of the Red Cross and partner in J. P. Morgan & Co., in memory of her husband and to carry out an ideal of his own. The fund provides that six English students representing "the highest type of university man" shall spend at least a year in Harvard, Yale or Princeton. The object of the fund is "to aid in fostering good-will between the United States and Great Britain."

THEATRES

AT THE ROYAL.

THRILLS TO BURN PACK "FEAR-BOUND"

Alluring Romance Threads Way Through Moving Photoplay.

Volumes have been written about the erring girl and the debt or responsibility which the whole family owes her. What about her brother—not the "wandering boy" but the timid creature who fails to make good simply because sister and the rest of the home folks fail in their duty to him?

Well Jim has come into his own at last. He's the central figure in Vitagraph's "Fear-Bound" at the Royal Theatre now playing and the steps leading up to his reclamation are said to provide a drama that is certain to thrill the entire family.

Will Nigh plays the role of the ne'er-do-well who is eternally losing out just because he is insufferably timid. Majorie Daw is his sister, who—but who wouldn't be reclaimed if pretty Marjorie wanted him to be? Little sister's unyielding faith in big brother finally causes him to see the light and "find himself." After that——

The once cowardly human apology becomes instead a human wildcat who whips everybody in sight. Everybody, that is, who formerly took advantage of his weakness. Once a laughing-stock, he finally becomes the laugher.

The thrills and suspense in "Fear-Bound" are tempered by comedy touches and by an alluring romance that is said to bring delight to every spectator. The cast is an excellent one, composed, as it is, besides Miss Daw and Mr. Nigh, of such favorites as Niles Welch, Louise Mackintosh and Ed. Roseman.

AT THE REGENT

FORBIDDEN CARGO.

Fights at sea, battles between bootleggers and hi-jackers, rows in the exclusive and highly intoxicated social set which goes to make up the Bahama Islands, famous hang-out of rum-runners, and the strong thread of virile romance between a girl pirate and a revenue officer form the basis of "Forbidden Cargo," which was shown at the Regent Theatre last night.

The fourth feature picture starring Evelyn Brent proves more exciting and even better entertainment than its predecessors; and when the success of "Silk Stocking Sal" and "Midnight Molly" are recalled that is no idle praise. The background against which this fast action is projected is the old Spanish Main, where years ago the Captain Kidds, the Morgans and the other famous buccaneers waited to leap on the unwary Spanish galleons that wallowed slowly along with their burdens of gold. Nowadays times have changed. The hi-jackers, in swift motor-boats armed with machine guns, await where the corsairs lurk, and prey upon the rum-runners who are themselves but freebooters.

Miss Brent is cast as a sort of female Captain Kidd; brought up by her father to hate the United States Government because of a wrong which he has sustained during the war. She is the commander of the rum-runner which her crippled father can no longer command!

Robert Ellis plays the part of Burke, Secret Service agent, who proves to be the girl's Nemesis. Boris Karloff has a strong role as the nefarious first mate of the bootleg craft.

AT THE CAPITOL

Again Zane Grey and Paramount have joined hands in glorifying the Great West, and the result of their painstaking efforts revealed itself last night at the Capitol Theatre. "The Light of Western Stars" is the rather brilliant title of this new photo-thriller, and, as is typical of practically all Zane Grey stories, it depicts another glorious, colorful phase of the early, romantic West.

This time it's the Arizona cattle country, back in those adventurous days when it was America's last frontier, that provides the picturesque setting for the stirring story of action, drama, conflict and love. From the moment the plot introduces Jack Holt as the daredevil cowboy, Noah Beery as the bandit chief and Billie Dove as the adorable heroine, the picture grips the interest like a vise and holds it till the final fighting finish.

All the essentials of Mr. Grey's original story have been carefully preserved by George C. Hull and Lucien Hubbard, who made the screen adaptation, and with the added advantage of marvelous desert backgrounds, the production has an air of realism that is refreshing in its details and significant because of its historic values.

To William K. Howard, the youthful producer, goes the major share of the credit, for it is his shrewd and resourceful direction that lifts "The Light of Western Stars" out of the class of the purely melodramatic westerns into realm of the epic photoplays.

Although the theme of the story concerns the mighty struggle between the forces of outlawry and the forces of law and order, as typified by Beery on one hand and Holt on the other, it gains in dramatic intensity when those two clash for love of Miss Dove.

The action reaches a point of tremendous suspense when Beery captures Miss Dove and Holt, and forces the latter to take the "walk of death"—a favorite form of execution at that time, in which the victim is apparently turned loose only to be shot as he makes a dash for freedom. Holt's escape and the startling developments that follow furnish plenty of excitement and some brand new thrills.

"The Light of Western Stars" has everything the average movie-goer looks for in film entertainment!

Popular Chicago Lyric Singers at Coming Dominion Chautauqua

CHAUTAUQUA IN PETERBORO JULY 31 TO AUG. 5 INCLUSIVE

The Chicago Lyric Singers, popular musical entertainment organization, will be a distinctive feature of the coming Dominion Chautauqua here.

This notable company presents, with rare artistry, many of the beautiful songs of Wales, given in typical Welsh costumes.

Gypsy selections sung in Spanish gypsy costumes and oratorio gems, together with selections from both light opera and grand opera, are included in their repertoire.

The members of this company are not only exceptional singers, but possess in remarkable degree the dramatic qualities so necessary in addition to their vocal gifts.

BOWLING FINALS SHOULD BE SEEN

Doubles Competition, Postponed Yesterday, to be Played To-night at 7.30.

An opportunity offers to-night for all bowling fans to see a battle royal. Dick and French have yet to meet Mayneord and R. Elliott in the final of the doubles, postponed from last night.

This meeting should be a classic. Dick and French eliminated Allan and Bredin in the first round 10 to 5, and Bacon and Boucher in the second round 17 to 5.

Mayneord and Elliott put out Fox and Freeman in the first round, 12 to 10, and Curvin and Gilliam in the second round, 18 to 16.

Mayneord skipped the rink that won the Stratton trophy, while Dick was runner-up in the singles.

It is evident that four of the premier bowlers of the club are scheduled to meet on the green to-night to decide the prizes to be contended for.

The game starts at 7.30.

Of Canada's population of 9,250,000, nearly 2,200,000 are attending school.

FINANCIAL NEWS.

Report Of Crop Damage Cause Of Rise In Wheat

CHICAGO, July 24 (Canadian Press).—Although the wheat market showed a downward trend at the opening today, decided rallies soon took place. The initial declines were due more or less to scattered rains in the Spring wheat territory. Buying, based largely on crop damage reports, however, led to a quick upturn of values. Late wheat in North Dakota which two weeks ago promised a bumper yield was said to be badly injured.

Opening prices, 1-8 to 2c lower, September 146 3-4 to 147 7-8, and December 147 1-2 to 148 1-2, were followed by recovery that carried the market to well above yesterday's finish, September touching 149 1-8 and December 150.

Further complaints of a lack of moisture gave strength to the corn market, despite considerable selling from speculative sources. After opening at 1-2c decline to 1-4c advance, Sept. 104 1-8 to 104 1-4 prices underwent a slight general sag and then scored material gains all around.

Oats changes were narrow. Starting at 1-8c to 1-4c off, Sept. 44 3-8c, the market held nearly to initial limits. Provisions were responsive to firmness of hog values.

General Rise Is Shown With Speculators Ruling

NEW YORK, July 24 (Canadian Press).—A steady improvement was maintained throughout the forenoon, with speculators in Wall Street for a rise in full control of the situation. Representatives stocks in various industrial groups were taken in hand one after the other and pushed rapidly ahead with speculative activity centering mainly in Tobacco, Baking, Merchandising, Oil and Independent Steel issues. Mack Trucks continued its climb to a new peak at 202, and Sears-Roebuck bettered its previous high record following the circulation of reports that a split of stocks was under consideration.

American Can duplicated yesterday's record high of 210 1-2, as rumors of a capital readjustment continued. Phillip Jones sold 8 points higher before noon and advances of 1 to 5 points were registered by General Electric, Amn. Radiator, Atlantic Refining, Universal Pipe Products and National Enamelling.

Call money renewed at 4 per cent.

Brisk Trading In Morning Session Of Mining Exchange

TORONTO, July 24 (Canadian Press).—Trading on the Standard Mining Exchange was brisk this morning, transactions totalling 122,429 shares. Trading in Keora was heavy at a fractional decline to 15. Teck Hughes sold two points up at 174, and Vipond advanced three points to 116. Clifton Con. was 3-4 lower at 5 3-4, and McIntyre rose 25 cents to 18.75. Crown Reserve sold one point lower at 21 1-2.

Smelters Dominated the Markets in Toronto To-day

TORONTO, July 24. — Canadian Press. — Consolidated Smelters dominated the market on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, climbing to a new peak at 102½, in dealings totalling close to 1500 shares; Smelters climbed steadily to 102½, and closed at noon at that high—a net gain of 3 1-8 points. Elsewhere the trading was light and scattered, though some dealing as evident in Twin City, which sold steadily at 62, a 1-4 point decline. Brazilian on light sales registered a new big at 60, easing off to 59½ at noon—a gain from yesterday of 1-2 a point. Bread issues as usual were prominent, common easing a quarter, preferred improving a half and B Preferred being unchanged. Bell Telephone and C. P. R. sold fractionally firmer.

Around The City.

The finals in the doubles competition in the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club tournament will be played to-night at 7.30.

The city road making gang is now engaged in rebuilding London street, between Aylmer and Reid streets. This morning the steam roller struck a weak spot in the street, near Reid, and began to settle. Investigation showed that it was the site of one of the old tanks that were used for fire purposes before the installation of the water works system. It is at least forty years since it saw service.

One of the trees near the corner of McDonnell and Downie streets looks somewhat the worse for wear since Tuesday's storm which stripped the tree of a great deal of its bark besides temporarily stopping the lights.

ENNISMORE PLANS AN OLD HOME WEEK

Centenary of Settlement Will Be Held on August 18 to 20.

Preparations are now being made for the celebration of the centenary of the settlement of the Township of Ennismore to be held on August 18, 19, 20. Notices are now being issued to the old boys and girls, giving them a cordial invitation to return to the old home. The last day, August 20, also coincides with the annual social of the Ennismore Church.

The Rev. Father McAuley is honorary chairman of the re-union committee.

WEDDING BELLS.

RAINBOTH—PAYETTE

A very pretty wedding took place at St. Mary's Cathedral, North Bay, on the morning of Tuesday, July 7, when Blanche Ruth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Payette of Penetanguishene, became the bride of Edward Leonard Rainboth, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Rainboth of Ottawa. The marriage ceremony was conducted by Rev. Father O'Leary, following which a nuptial Mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Bunyan. The bride, who was given away by her brother, Mr. Philip Payette, of Ottawa, was lovely in a charming gown of palest coral georgette with flower and pearl trimming, and carried a shower bouquet of lily of the valley and Ophelia and Sweetheart roses. The bridesmaid was Miss Regina Hill of Peterboro. Mr. Henry Payette of North Bay, brother of the bride, supported the groom. After the ceremony, breakfast was served at the home of the bride's brother, following which the happy couple left for Algonquin Park and Ottawa. The bride travelled in a French ensemble of rosewood charmeen, with hat to match, and wearing the groom's gift, a handsome fox fur. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Rainboth will take up residence in Sudbury.

OBITUARY.

W. J. BULLOCK

There passed away at his home at Orono, Ont., on Saturday, July 18th, a highly respected resident, in the person of William John Bullock at the age of 75 years and three months. Deceased was born near Warsaw, Ont. RHODES TO CONSULT HIS CABINET ON POLICY TOWARD MINE STRIKE AFTER A WEEK SPENT IN SYDNEY

Negotiations Have Been Transferred to Halifax Where Government Meets Monday.

MAINTAIN SECRECY.

Further Communications Expected With Company and Miners Next Week.

SYDNEY, N. S., July 25. — Canadian Press. — Sydney for the time being ceases to be the centre of interest in attempts of the Nova Scotia government to settle the four and a half months old tie-up of the provincial coal fields, with the departure for Halifax of Premier Rhodes and Minister of Mines, the Hon. Gordon S. Harrington.

They left by motor to-day, and a full meeting of the government will be held in the capital on Monday.

Negotiations between the Government, the British Empire Steel Corporation and the miners are not likely to be resumed before Wednesday or Thursday, according to the Premier.

In the meantime, President Roy Wolvin of the corporation is returning to Montreal, and the mainland members of the miners district executive have returned to their homes, all leaving on last night's train.

The meeting of the government is to give an opportunity to the premier and Mr. Harrington to present to their parliamentary colleagues the situation growing out of negotiations todate and to delineate the policy to be followed.

Secrecy has been maintained concerning the trend of the negotiations the Premier thinking that the delicacy of the situation forbids any statements which might prejudice their programme.

Premier Rhodes and Mr. Harrington have been in Sydney since Monday in furtherance of the new government's pledges to make the Nova Scotia problem, the first subject of their efforts.

Others who have been in Sydney, but not present at the tri-party meetings are D. H. McDougall, former vice-president of the corporation, and T. J. Brown, Deputy Minister of Public Works and Mines, who met with the Government members for informative purposes concerning the industry.

A development of another angle of the situation took place Friday when a warrant for the arrest of Joseph McLeod, premier policeman of the corporation, was sworn out charging him with the murder of William Davis, a miner, in the Miner-Corporation police fight, at New Waterford, on June 11th.

The warrant was not served yesterday as McLeod is still confined to bed in the hospital here from injuries received in the fight.

The decision to arrest McLeod was taken to allow an investigation of the shooting to go forward, it having been found impossible to proceed legally under the old plan against an unnamed person.

Heavy Rains Where Most Needed In South Manitoba

WINNIPEG, July 25. — Canadian Press. — A ... rain over large sections of Southern Manitoba Thursday, is reported by the Dominion Meteorological Bureau, it being also stated that tht moisture fell in the districts where it was greatly needed. Precipitation registers show heaviest falls at Boissevain with 1.45 inches, Pierson coming second with 1.25. Cypress River and Killarney and Morden also reported rain, while cloudy conditions prevailed generally through southern points in the province.

Forecasts for Manitoba and Saskatchewan speak of light to moderate winds, mostly fair and moderately warm to-day.

NO COAL MOVES IF MINERS OUT

Transport Men Won't Handle Fuel in Case of Lockout.

SUPPORT MINERS.

LONDON, July 25 (United Press) In the event that the miners are locked out by the operators on July 31st, steps will be taken to prevent all movement of coal.

This was decided today in a meeting between representatives of the Trades Union Congress and delegates from the Unions which have movement of coal under their jurisdiction, members of the Seamen's Union, invited to attend, decided at the last moment not to share in the deliberations.

The other conference agreed that the miners were right in rejecting the owners' demands that a long day be inaugurated or the pay be cut if the present length of day were maintained.

NET REVENUE UP FOR BOTH LINES

Two Railways Show Higher Revenues in Five Months.

EXPENSES DOWN.

OTTAWA, July 25 (Canadian Press)—The net operating revenues on both Canadian railways for the five months, January to May last, show an increase of $1,063,372 over the corresponding period of 1924. The net operating revenues on Canadian National railways from January to May, 1925, inclusive shows an increase over the similar period last year for the Canadian lines of $380,387 and for the United States lines of $238,528. Operating expenses on the Canadian National Railways were cut by $1,585,994, or 9.4 per cent. the largest reduction being $1,009,622 or 12.8 per cent in transportation expenses. On the Canadian Pacific railway, the operating expenses were cut by $1,139,369 or 9 per cent.

WEATHER

Another little shower occurred last night, bringing the total rainfall for July up to two inches. This is less than half what fell in June. Notwithstanding the dire prophecies made by some that we were to have a drought this summer, their doleful forecasts failed to materialize, and we can put it down with every degree of assurance that long-range weather prophets, whether they profess to base their prophecies on scientific principles or on signs in nature, are not to be depended upon. Naturally, they strike it correct by at times. It would be strange if it were otherwise. Twenty-four hours ahead is about the limit that any one, with all the scientific instruments available, an speak with any certainty. And by the way the initials at the end of these weather notes do not stand for "Weather Prophet" as many persons seem to think.—W. P.

Haig's Greetings to Peterborough Veterans Express Hope For Their Union In League

The following telegram is addressed to The Examiner:

The Field Marshal is much encouraged by your telegram announcing that the veterans of all organizations in Peterborough had come together and were prepared to form one United Canadian Association. His Lordship keenly desires that not only members of existing organizations but veterans of all ranks shall become active members of the new organization and that that organization will receive the confidence and support of the people of Canada because it is only with this confidence and support that they can carry on the good work on behalf of their fallen comrades, the dependents and these of their comrades who are unable to look after themselves. The Field Marshal sends hearty good wishes to the five thousand ex-service men of Peterborough. COLONEL NANGLE.

Hungarian Girl Suicides For Love of Valentino

BUDAPEST, July 25 —(Special)-.— Julia Boebe, a servant girl, committed suicide on Friday when she realized the futility of her love for the American film star, Rudolph Valentino, whom she knew only from having seen him in the films, according to her friends.

Since she first saw Valentino she has gone to see every picture in which he played.

HEROIC BATTLE IN RAGING SEA

Two Men Perished With the Woman They Tried to Save

AT BIARRITZ.

PARIS, July 25 — Biarritz famous watering place, to-day mourns the loss of three persons, including an American, Mrs. Alice Ernest Williams, believed to be from New York, who perished in a desperate battle with a rough sea and treacherous rocks.

Mingled with the mournning is praise for unselfish heroism of a French lifeguard and a giant English artist, who fought a losing fight with the swirling currents, though they snatched from what appeared sure death, Mrs. Williams' daughter.

Hundreds of resort guests from the beach watched the tragedy Mrs. Williams first was swept out by the turbulent waves and dashed, unconscious on the rocks. Her daughter sought to save her, but her strength was sapped by the fight with the heavy swells.

At this juncture, Paul Fourquet, French lifeguard, dashed into the waters and saved Miss Williams with the aid of William Jammet, British artist. Jammet then turned to aid Mrs. Williams. But giant though he was, the struggle was too great for him, and he was overcome.

Fourquet, more accustomed to the roaring tides, smashed his way to the sinking Englishman, who had come within a short distance of the unconscious Mrs. Williams.

Fourquet succeeded finally in lashing a rope around the two and was starting back to shore. The waves hammered him against the rocks and his rope broke.

All three perished. The bodies of Mrs. Williams and the Englishman have been recovered, but so far it has been impossible to recover the corpse of the master lifeguard.

DRUMHELLER MINE STRIKE CONTINUES

Several Efforts For Settlement Have Been Unavailing.

DRUMHELLER, Alta., July 25— The strike situation here Friday was no nearer solution in spite of several efforts being made towards that end. President Sherman went to Rosedale on Thursday afternoon and says he found things very encouraging for the United Mine Workers of America, although the executive of the new Union claims that the men at Rosedale are unanimously in favor of the Red Deer Valley Union.

Howard Stutchbury, Alberta Trade Commissioner, is at Wayne trying to arrange an understanding between the operators and the miners.

Non one has as yet been arrested in connection with the assault on President Sherman.

DAMAGE CLAIMS WERE REFUSED

Legal Committee Denies City's Responsibility for Damages.

$100 TO BATTALION

The legal and reception committee of the City Council decided at its meeting last night to give the 21st Batalion $100 to help cover the expenses of the re-union here in September.

A deaf ear was turned to several claims for damages. The claim of A. B. Gates for damage to his car when it collided with a fire truck was not granted, as Fire Chief Gimblett testified that the siren had been blowing while coming along Dublin street and the driver had done all he could to dodge the car.

Miss Ferguson's claims for damages when the creek flooded her house at 221 Brock street was disallowed on the grounds that the jam had been caused by ice on private property and the city employees had done all they could to prevent trouble.

No action was taken in the case of a little girl who broke her leg when she tripped over a standpipe in Victoria Park. The county council has also repudiated liability according to a letter which was read. It was said by Mr. Armstrong that the accident occurred on the lawn of the park near the path, where signs are posted asking people to keep off the grass.

Ex-Mayor Rush Observed System Used on Hamilton Streets.

Ex-Mayor Rush has just returned from Hamilton where he noticed the splendid traffic regulation at intersections, which he says follows closely the plan suggested for Peterborough by Alderman Crowe. "It is a splendid system," Mr. Rush told the Examiner, "helping toward safety. It appears to be a repetition of the plan Chief Newhall tried to introduce here three or four years ago."

RUSSELL SCOTT AGAIN VACATES THE DEATH CELL

Second Respite For His Friends After Tireless Efforts to Save Him.

FORM NEW PLANS.

Scott Removed For Second Time to Regular Prison Quarters.

CHICAGO, July 25 — Russell Scott, saved from the gallows twice in eight days almost at the hour set for his execution, yesterday lost his comfortable death cell and mattress, after a stay had been granted to inquire into his sanity.

Late Friday the former Canadian financier, who has spent ten days in the death cell, twice coming within half a dozen hours of the death march, was moved from the cell into regular quarters with less comfortable accomodations. The condemned man saved from hanging yesterday morning less than four hours before the trap was to be sprung, by a stay of execution to test his sanity, gave up his cell willingly enough.

Scott, sentenced to hang July 17, for shooting a drug clerk during a hold-up received a week's reprieve six hours before the hanging when Gov. Small received a telegram purporting to be from Scott's brother Robert, indicted with him, confessing th murder. The telegram later was proven a hoax.

This reprieve expired Thursday night and Governor Small refused further clemency. Four hours before the execution, however, Judge Joseph B. David entered a stay until a test of Scott's insanity is made.

Those who have worked desperate to save Scott's life, including Thomas Scott, his aged and crippled father, Mrs. Catherine Scott, his wife, who was racing here from Springfield to bid him farewell when he was snatched from the gallows Friday morning and Detroit and Windsor, Ont., club women and his attorneys, today took a much needed rest and breathing spell while planning new moves to prevent his execution.

THREE DAYS TO SIGN HIS BONDS

Secretary of Australian Commission Has Big Job Ahead.

SIGNS 20 AT ONCE.

NEW York, N.Y., July 25 (United Press)—D. M. Dow is secertary of the Australian Commission which recently successfully completed arrangements for floating a $75,000,000 loan in the United States. The cheerfulness over the success, however, has suddenly left Dow. His job now is to sign the bonds and they are all in $500 and $1,000 denominations. By means of a signagraph it is possible for him to sign twenty bonds at a time. Even so he has figured that to sign them all will require a minimum three days' time, if he applies himself to it each day.

HEAVY TIMBER LOSSES.

Fires Ravaging British Columbia Woods—Some Under Control.

VICTORIA, B. C., July 25. — (Canadian Pres.)—Improvement in the forest fire situation in British Columbia was reported at the Forestry Department of the Provincial Land Department here Friday, although conditions in the southern interior section of the province still gives cause for alarm.

All fires on Vancouver Island and in the Vancouver districts are said to be under control.

The situation in the interior of the province, despite the broken heat spell and the falling of rain at some points is still serious, bad fires are raging in the Revelstoke districts and every available man is being enlisted to fight the flames. A large fire in the Big Ben country is causing a large loss in valuable white pine timber, and about 100 are trying to cope with it. East of Revelstoke all efforts are being made toward preventing the fire from destroying the water shed which safeguards the city's water supply.

Canada has spent $141,000,000 on a hundred miles of canals—or over a million a mile.

Hope For The Best Expect The Worst

In last Wednesday's Examiner, Mr. Gaby of The Hydro Electric Power Commission, is reported to have said to the Council "That the Commission did not wish to force the City into anything but suggested that it was in the best interest of the Municipality to take over the ownership of The Peterborough Street Railway System and let the Commission run it."

It was a maxim of Napoleon Bonaparte: "Tell me what this man has done and I will tell you how useful he is."

Let us therefore examine what The Hydro Commission has done with the Peterborough Street Railway.

Under private ownership, the old Peterborough Street Railway was dug out of the ground and with a much smaller population in Peterborough, the Street Railway paid its own way and made a profit to its private owners, according to information that was furnished to me by our former esteemed citizen, Mr. J. H. Larmonth, who managed the Street Railway and at the same time performed other very responsible duties.

The Hydro Electric Power Commission took over the management of the Railway on the first of March, 1916, and during the first one year and eight months it showed a profit of $1,848.84 and then in the year 1918 The Hydro Commission showed a loss of $12,000 and then in the following year a loss of $26,000. and a like loss during the next year. In 1921 the loss jumped up to $33,000, and the next year to $34,000, and now Mr. Gaby claims that the total loss that The Hydro Electric Power Commission has made in the operation of the Street Railway amounts to $181,000. during the years the Commission has operated it.

Mr. Gaby's further suggestion is that this City purchase the Street Railway from The Hydro Commission for $150,000 and spend between $60,000. and $75,000. in re-equipment.

But he said that the Hydro Commission paid in 1916, $288,000. for the Street Railway and further expenditures on the Street Railway by The Hydro Commission has brought the total cost up to $340,000. Therefore if the Hydro Commission were to sell the Street Railway to the City for $150,000. there would be a further loss made by The Hydro Commission on the Street Railway of $190,000. and if this is added to the loss already admitted to have been made of $181,000. the total loss would then amount to $371,000

It is quite apparent, therefore, that the advice given by The Hydro Commission to this City is about as poor as its past management of the Street Railway has been, and its promises for the future are that "the Commission could operate the system and the City could hope for the best." And he might have justly added that the taxpayers could expect the worst.

It would be interesting to the citizens of Peterborough, and I would respectfully suggest that His Worship, the Mayor, should request the Hydro Commission to send a summary of its receipts and expenditures from the time the Street Railway was taken over down to the present date, so that the taxpayers of this City may form some appreciation of the waste, extravagance and incompetence that follows in the wake of public ownership.

In 1921 the total receipts of the Peterborough Street Railway were $100,816.37 but they gradually dropped down from year to year until in 1924 they fell to $80,683.16. This falling off was largely due to the fact that the Street Railway equipment was allowed to run down, be patched up, run down again and never kept up-to-date, but always giving poor service and charging high rates.

This City has been sickened and deceived by the advocates of public ownership and hence it is that I most respectfully suggest that private ownership in the operation of transportation service to the citizens of Peterborough should be given a chance and in making this suggestion the taxpayers will be assured of the fact that first class service can be furnished or the private owners will be quickly put out of business and without any expense to the taxpayers.

HEAT TOOK TOLL OF WHEAT CROP

Last 20 Days Have Made Great Difference in Yield Expected.

GOOD CROP STILL.

WINNIPEG, July 25 (Canadian Press)—All ideas of a bumper crop of wheat may as well be laid aside but with a little more general rain, cool nights and bright days from now on these is a promise of a lot of good wheat out the Canadinn West this year, according to the crop report published by the Manitoba Free Press today. The reports of 314 out of 350 of the Free Press correspondents queried indicated that the past twenty days have taken a heavy toll from the original fine promise of the 1925 crop of the prairie provinces. Heat and hot winds have accounted for practically all the damage and from these Alberta has suffered the most severely and Manitoba the least, but all have suffered a considerable loss.

CONCERN SHOWN OVER PACT NOTE

Comments of M. Briand Arouse Apprehension Among London Papers.

MAKE FIRM STAND.

LONDON, July 25. — (Canadian Press).—Considerable concern is shown by some newspapers over divergencies between French and German views as revealed by the preliminary comment of the French Foreign Minister, M. Briand on the reply to the French note concerning Germany's proposals for a security pact.

A dimplomatic writer of the Daily Telegraph says the latest developments have aroused some apprehensrion regarding the future of the evisting pour parlers.

The trenchant nature of M. Briand's counter demands, however, mildly framed, threaten in the opinion of the writer, a veritable deadlock. He believes the British Govern ment will make a very firm stand against any excessive or dangerous stipulations by either France or Germany and declares their respective attitudes must be changed if Great Britain is to give practical efect to her desire to quiet the fears and suspicions of both. Fears are voiced by the diplomatic correspondent of the Westminster Gazette that it will test all of the skill and diplomacy of Austen Chamberlain, British Foreign Secretary to bridge the Franco-erman difference.

VANDALS BUSY IN MINING AREA OF NOVA SCOTIA

Colliery Manager's House Burned, Occupants Escaping Through Window.

STORE LOOTED.

Cavalry Dispersed Gangs of Men at New Aberdeen—Minor Disturbances.

GLACE BAY, N.S., July 25—The destruction of a building at Reserve by fire, the looting of John R. Blue's store at New Aberdeen, interference with high tension wires at New Waterford and other minor depredations, were among the acts of vandalism which were reported yesterday from the colliery areas.

Windows were broken in the colliery stables at New Aberdeen and at Saunderson's Hotel. Troop detachments of cavalry dispersed gangs of men, who were collected about vacant company houses. The fire at Reserve occurred in a shop and residence occupied by Mrs. Michael Danteen and owned by Thomas MacDonald, manager at Number 24 colliery.

The blaze had gained considerable headway when oticed by the Chief of Police at Reserve.

The Chief had difficulty in awakening Mrs. Danteen and child who were sleeping in another section of the place unaware that the building was afire. The occupants were taken out through a window.

AVOID STRIKES IF POWER USED

Government Has Ample Authority to Deal With Coal Situation.

WON'T EXERT IT

WASHINGTON, July 25.—(By Canadian Press).—Threats of another strike in the anthracite coal field, along with talk of a bituminous strike, have served to direct attention once more to the question of what the federal government purposes to do about it if there is a strike. It is currently said that if a strike develops, the government will do its utmost and that the President will exert the full power of the executive to settle the strike.

The truth of the matter is that if a strike develops the government and the public will be found in the same situation as in the past. This is a situation of more or less helplessness. The chances are the strike will be composed after some authority, either the federal government or the state of Pennsylvania, has set in motion some form of meditation. This is better than nothing but in the past it has not proven very satisfactory from the standpoint of consumers of coal. They have paid for it in shortage of coal in the fall and early winter and in higher prices.

The government has ample power to deal with the coal situation but it will not exert it, if the course taken in the past is a criterion and it apparently is. And the executive authority is by no means inclined to go to the limit of its power. It is probable Mr. Coolidge will be as conservative about using his power to stop a coal strike if it comes as his predecessors have been.

Congress is handicapped by decisions of the courts that say mining is not interstate commerce. Hence it is a subject for state regulation rather than federal regulation. Nevertheless, there are things Congress and the administration could do on the coal question. The government could obtain and distribute accurate information about coal prices and supply. It could reduce freight rates, could in various ways regulate the movement of coal in interstate commerce, could shut impure and unfit coal out of interstate commerce and could act in other ways. It has been repeatedly suggested that it would be entirely feasible for the government, through the War Department or some other agency, to build up great stores of coal at important centers and that these could be used in time of crisis at once to protect from coal famine and to hold down the level of prices.

But the cry of the conservative influences that the government must stay out of everything in the nature of business prevents it from taking any action which would go to the roots of the trouble. If it were really believed that the government would exert the large powers it actually has to stop a strike, there would not be the slightest likelihood of one.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

ABOUT PROHIBITION.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

I appeal to the people to demand a sane temperance law. The O. T. A., till lately ruthlessly enforced by gun play, is not a proper solution of the liquor question. The O. T. A. is not a law of the Medes and Persians which cannot be changed.

I respectfully submit the following problems to the prohibitionists:

(1) Prove that the prohibition act known as the O. T. A. did not defeat the Hearst Government.

(2) Prove that extravagance and that despicable tyrannical acts of the Raney-Spracklin enforcement squad did not defeat the U. F. O. Government.

(3) Prove that, while the Bible teaches temperance in all things — condemns drunkenness as a terrible sin—it teaches prohibition.

(4 Prove that the slogan, "Banish the bar and save the boy," is a success when the vast majority of the criminals in the United States and Canada are mere youths. Would it not do more to save the boy to have more religion in the home — lessons in honor, purity, goodness and truth for boys and girls? Religion in the homes, good literature good company and clean sports as a programme for boys and girls — carefully and prayerfully carried out might lessen the number of candidates for prison.

(5) Prove that prohibition prohibits when there is less drunkenness in Roman Catholic Quebec than in Protestant Ontario with its O. T. O. The deadly home brew and boot legging products are responsible for a lot of drunkenness.

(6) Prove that the O. T. A. is not a wretched piece of class legislation The rich man has his cellar stocked with all kinds of liquor, while the poor workingman has to be satisfied with his four per cent. The workingmen's petition for a more palatable beer was met by a prompt refusal. The workingmen used their ballotts, when the chance came, to overthrow the modern Pharisees in Queen's Park. They will now demand a sane temperance law.

(7) Prove that the framers of this infamous O. T. A. did not see its injustice when, in order to enforce it, they trampled under foot a principle of British justice.

(8) The murderer, adulterer, burgler, hold-up man and swindler are innocent in the eyes of the law till convicted in open court before Judge and jury. The person charged with a breach of the infamous O. T. A. is guilty and has to prove his innocence. Magistrates who often have little knowledge of the law are endowed with this act with infallibility. There was not lately a chance to appeal from the decision of this Magistrate. The victim can be sentenced to jail for an indefinite time.

(9) Prove that it is not a sin against charity to denounce all who fail to see the supposed benefits of the O. T. A.

A lot of men and women voted for the O. T. A. in order to give it a chance to make good. The prohibition leaders know this, and for that reason are frantic in their efforts. They know what the people did in other Provinces with the so-called prohibition acts. They are afraid of the defeat of their precious O. T. A.

People should demand a sane temperance law; a law which will not make the members of an honorable profession bar-keepers; a law which will allow the proper use of liquor to reasonable and responsible people; a law which will drive the boot legger out of his wretched business. A sane temperance law, backed by an overwhelming majority of the people can be respected and enforced by the regular officers of the law.

We had a trial of the old crooks act and the revised statutes of the Crooks Act. We also had a trial of the Duncan Act which was a failure also: the Scott Act another failure, the local option and so-called prohibition act all failures. The prime promotors and the so-called O. T. A. I am creditably informed some of them are drawing as much as $10,000 a year to keep the agitation up.

In 1886, I told the people of Canada, I would assist them to frame a temperance law. Townships, towns, cities, Province and Dominion would place all on an even footing and which would do away with the deadly home brew and the private stills distilling deadly poisonous liquors which were filling up our graveyards, from day to day, also, our jails and penetentiaries. The prime promotors are creating a nation of law breakers and perjurers and as a certain crown attorney told me recently while he held office he had to prosecute and that the so-called temperance fanatics would not only wreck Canada which they were doing but they would wreck the British Empire.

God Save the King and our young Dominion and that he may never die until Canada and the Empire's grievances are redressed.

Sincerely yours,
Wm. J. Kearns,
182 Elm st., Peterboro.

"BRINGING UP FATHER" — Geo. McManus

BOAT WILL GO A MILE A MINUTE

New Craft Has Airplane Propeller and 90 H.P. Engine.

TWO-INCH DRAFT

PLAQUEMINE, La., July 25.—Capable of making a mile in 55 seconds, "Miss Plaquemine," a hydroplaned boat constructed by Henry N. Sherburne, of Plaquemine, is believed to be one of the fastest boats ever built in this section.

"Miss Plaquemine," with the eight other members of the fleet, is the result of the need of Mr. Sherburne, its inventor for a rapid means of transportation over the bayous of Louisiana in visiting his various business enterprises scattered along these channels. It has no underwater propellor, being driven by a 90 horse power Curtis airplane motor mounted on the stern, using a propellor of the type mounted on planes for driving power. The boat is 20 feet long and seven feet wide and when travelling at full speed draws only two inches of water, while at slow speed she draws six inches.

"Miss Plaquemine accomodates three passengers and a pilot, who controls the boat from a steering post similar to an automobile. With a full load the boat will attain a speed of more than 60 miles an hour and its inventor claims that it will maintain an average speed of 50 milees an hour throughout a day without injury to the motor.

RIFF REGULARS IN FULL FLIGHT

Massing of French Troops Has Apparently Filled Them With Terror.

DESERT FRIENDS.

FEZ, Morocco, July 25. — Canadian Press. — Information reaching the general staff here is to the effect that having abandoned the dissident tribes to their fate, Abd-El-Krim's regulars are in full flight towards the north.

It is asserted that the French concentration of troops on the Taza and Ouezzan sectors, evidently in preparation for a most powerful offensive, appears to have struck terror to the hearts of the Moorish chieftain's shock troops, and that the tribesmen who under duress joiend ed the "Red" Sultan's colors, are prepared to make their submission to the French.

NORMAL SUMMER TRADE IN WEST

Crop Outlook Encouraging For Business in the Autumn.

COLLECTIONS SLOW.

WINNIPEG, July 25—The weekly trade report of the Canadian Credit Men's Trust Association Limited, reads:

Halifax: Trade conidtions continue steady with collections fair.

Saint John: Wholesale trade quiet and retail trade fair. Collections fair.

Montreal: Trade conditions in both wholesale and retail circles are holding their own, but better volume of business looked for with the opening of the fall trade. Collections fair.

Toronto: In most lines of business wholesale trade is standing up fairly well—that is on a slightly better basis than for some time past. Summer goods are meeting with a good reception. The same conditions apply to the retail trade.

Winnipeg: Wholesale trade generally is reported to be steady with better conditions looked for when the fall goods begin to move more readily. Retail trade fairly satisfactory. Collections fair.

Regina: Steady improvement shown in some wholesale lines, and retail trade reported quiet to fair. Collections slow to fair.

Saskatoon: Wholesale trade is improving and retail trade reported fair. Collections poor. Crops are looking fine which should have a good effect on future business.

Calgary: Business conditions remain satisfactory for this time of the year. Collections inclined to be slow.

Edmonton: Business generally is fairly good. But collections inclined to be slow. Crop prospects are good but some districts need rain.

Vancouver: All lines of wholesale trade report business as fair which is mostly due to the travellers being off for their holidays.

BIG RALLY WON FOR LAKEFIELD

Defeated Curve Lake 13-12 After Being 6 Runs Down.

WILD THROWING.

LAKEFIELD, July 25—In their first game of the second half of the East Peterboro League, Lakefield succeeded in handing out a one run defeat to Curve Lake last night. Wild throwing in the last two innings by the Indians was the cause of their downfall, as at one time they had a lead of six runs on the local nine. The game was featured by some heavy slugging. "Mucker" Hull, the Lakefield third baseman, getting five safe hits in that many times to bat.

The star of the Curve Lake team was C. McCae, the youthful second baseman who showed up with some pretty snappy fielding and some timely hits.

HUGE PRICES PAID FOR MODERN ART

Might Indicate That Sargent Was a Master of the Craft.

LONDON, July 25. — (Canadian Press).— Late John Sargent, famous American painter who died here recently has become an "Old Master" judging by the huge prices paid for his pictures at a sensational auction at Christies' here yesterday afternoon. Contest for most of the pictures was fierce and the pace of bidding unusually fast. Sale yielded about $265,000.

Most of the pictures offered were found by executors of the painter's will in Sargent's studio where they lay hidden for years.

One of the highest bids was 4,600 guineas for a study of a canal in Venice—a water color drawing of but twenty inches by fourteen.

EUROPE'S ARMIES DISPLEASE STATES

Believe They Will Lead to Hostility and Ultimate Economic Ruin.

WASHINTON, July 25—(Canadian Press).— Reports from Europe that 6,000,000 armed men are being maintained by European Governments, will be used by congressional advocates of an international conference for the reduction of land armaments in the next session. No fear is expressed here that huge armed forces of Europe will lead to any immediate outbreak of war but it is believed in many quarters that the drain must inevitably lead to an outbreak of hostilities or to economic ruin.

CHANGE IS MADE IN C.N.R. OFFICIALS

C. G. Bowker Succeeds H. E. Whittenberger as Manager of Western Lines.

MONTREAL, July 25. — (Canadian Press.)— Announcement was made yesterday of the appointment of C. G. Bowker, General Manager of the Central Region, C. N. R., with headquarters at Toronto, to General Managership of Grand Trunk western lines, including all lines owned and operated by the National Railways west of Detroit and St. Clair River. He succeeds H. E. Whittenberger, who is retiring after many years of service. A E. Warren, of Winnipeg, will succeed Mr. Bowker.

AMUSEMENT PLANS LAID FOR BIG FAIR

Al. Sweet and His Singing Band Will Be Primal Attraction.

Webber Turner, the enterprising amusements manager for the Peterborough Exhibition, which is due on September 15, has the midway and grand stand attractions already engaged, and he declares that, in accordance with custom, they are bigger and better than ever.

The World Amusement Service has been booked through the agency of Frank Melville, New York, and the aggregation of diversion promoters will stage their acts before the grand stand. This service includes Al Sweet and His Singing Band and an illustration of the musical assembly has been handed to the Examiner, which pictures twenty-three musicians holding their instruments at the "Ready."

This band of sterling performers will play at the Exhibition both afternoons and evening during the five days' period of the big fair.

In addition to this attraction, Boyd and Lindeman Midway Shows have been engaged, which are admittedly the biggest carnival company on the road, carrying as they do eight riding devices, among which are the "Caterpillar" and "Over the Jumps."

A brilliant display of fireworks will conclude each evening's performance, a feature which is becoming increasingly popular among all ages.

Mr. Turner is certain that the stellar attractions which he has been enable to secure will write a brilliant page in the annals of exhibition history.

LIGHTNING STRUCK S. MONAGHAN HOUSE

Damaged the Roof of Reid Brothers' Home Near Centreville.

BAILIEBORO, July 25—During the terrific electric storm on Tuesday night the home of Reid brothers about two miles north of Centreville was struck by a bolt of lightning.

Although considerable damage was done to the roof and shingles where the lightning struck, still no blaze gained any headway, and the damage can be repaired with only slight cost.

Although the storm was a severe one there was very little damage done in South Monaghan.

The rain which fell very heavily during the night did untold good to farm crops, and it was much needed in this district. The majority of farmers have their hay safely under cover, so the rain did not do the hay crop very much harm. Some farmers would have liked to see the rain keep off a few days longer until they could get their alsike in, but alsike and wheat will dry out again, and in the mean time while they are drying, the root crops, oats, buckwheat, and pastures will all be making a good growth.

After the rain many of the farmers got out their ploughs and started to plough their land and prepare it for fall wheat, they stated that the rain had gone down a good depth and that the sod ground ploughed good.

Berry Crop Good This Season

The garden berries as well as the wild raspberries are an excellent crop this summer in this district. The recent rains have been a great benefit to the berry crop. The housewives are busily engaged in preserving their year's supply.

Bailieboro Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Byers, and Miss Rachel Lang of Oxbow, Sask., have started on their return trip home, after having spent a month's vacation with friends here. They are making the trip by motor, and will return by route through the United States and visit friends in different parts of the States.. Mrs. Jos. Lang accompanied them as far as Oshawa and will remain there for a brief visit with her son Clifton.

Mr. Fred Perrin and sister Mrs. Eurite Darling of Oakwood visited Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Falls on Sunday. Misses Norma and Ruth Staples and Miss Dorothy Falls accompanied them back to their cottage at Scugog Lake where they will be their guests for the next couple of weeks.

Mrs. Horace Wood and family of Vancouver, B.C., are the guests of friends in South Monaghan.

Mr. Harold Nurse has recently purchased a fine new car.

Byron Wood has purchased a tractor and has been covering the ground very rapidly during the past while.

Progressive Candidate in the Last Federal Election Fatally Burned.

AYR, Ont., July 25 (Canadian Press)—John H. Lillico, ex-Warden of Oxford County, was accidentally scalded to death yesterday by escaping steam from a threshing engine.

He was a Progressive candidate in the last federal election and always took an active part in public affairs.

JAPAN GETS WIRELESS

Premier States It Essential to Insure Development.

TOKYO, July 25.— Viscount Shibusawa and Baron K. Nakashima have been appointed by Premier Kato respectively, of the committee which will establish the Japanese Wireless Telegraph Company under joint management of the government and private interests. The company is to be organized with the government wireless station at Iwaki, Fukushima prefecture, as its principal asset. This will be supplemented by subscriptions to shares by prominent business men of Japan.

In the course of a speech to the committee members, Premier Kato stated that the completion of the international telegraphic service was a matter of vital importance for military, diplomatic and cultural development.

R. Sculthorp & Sons, Ltd., Contracts To Be Carried Out

All Peas To Be Paid For and Handled in Regular Way.

The above is a re-organization of a new firm to continue business formerly done by H. Sculthorp & Son of Port Hope, who have been operating the seed and grain business in this section for a number of years. The business, plant, stocks and all contracts were bought by auction from the Liquidator, E. R. C. Clarkson, 15 Wellington Street, Toronto, by Morrow & Company, of 39 Front St. East, Toronto, and it will be of interest to the growers of Peas who received stock from H. Sculthorp & Son during the past winter and spring to know that these Peas will be paid for and handled in the regular way by the new firm of H. Sculthorpe & Son, Ltd., Port Hope.

WEDDING BELLS.

WOODING—BLACKLOCK

COBOURG, July 25. — A pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Blacklock, Grafton, on Wednesday afternoon, July 22, when their daughter Vera Helen was married to Leonard Douglas Wooding of Trenton, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Wooding, Brockville.

The ceremony took place beneath an arch of pink roses, blue larkspur, and maple leaves, and was performed by Rev. S. H. Moyer, Grafton. The bride, who was unattended, wore ivory crepe de chene with tulle veil and orange blossoms, and carried lily of the valley and cream roses.

Her going away gown was tan and blue with blue hat.

After the wedding luncheon Mr. and Mrs. Wooding left to spend their honeymoon on a trip on the upper lakes before taking up residence in Trenton.

ROBBER BANDITS ANNOY BULGARIA

Travellers Held Up on Broad Highway, Discrediting Government.

SOFIA, July 25.—(Associated Press).—Increased activities of robber bands after the explosion in the Cathedral of St. Nedelia have been met with a determined effort on the part of the Government and police to run down the bandits. Numerous holdups of travellers on highways and villages have been reported, which, it is maintained, is an effort to weaken and discredit the Government.

The members of several bands have been captured and sent to prison. It is the intention of the Government to continue its activity against them until organized robbery is stamped out and the roads and villages made safe for travellers.

BOOST THE EXHIBITION.

Peterboro's annual Industrial Exhibition this year, to be carried on for five days, September 15 to 19, gives promise of being the most ambitious and most successful in the history of the event.

The citizens generally can do much to bring such a success about by constituting themselves a boosters' committee.

There is no need of waiting until the last week or two before the Exhibition.

Get busy now.

Talk Peterboro's Exhibition wherever you go; write about it in your letters, to your friends; ask them to come and visit you during Exhibition week.

You need have no hesitation about praising the Exhibition; the directors are seeing to it that the programme this year will be the best that has been offered.

There will be five days of amusement and entertainment, a rare musical treat in the visit of Al. Sweet's famous band, the finest array of special exhibits, and the best showing of livestock and field products that the Peterboro Industrial has yet presented.

There is no reason why Peterboro should not have thousands of visitors during the week, and if you, Mr. and Mrs. Reader, will do your part by making yourselves publicity agents and boosters.

Talk Peterboro's Exhibition—it will be well worth it.

A PLAN WORTH TRYING.

A suggestion made recently by the Lord Mayor of Hull, England, that the cities and towns of Great Britain should each adopt some centre in the Overseas Dominions to which the overseas relationship of that particular city or town should be directed, will appeal to many people as a valuable pointer that shou'd receive attention.

Naturally among many Britishers not quite decided as to whether they should migrate or not there is a hesitancy about going into a strange land and endeavouring to make a new start in life among strangers.

The Lord Mayor of Hull has recognized that tendency, and his suggestion would cause its disappearance.

Suppose, for example, that the city of Hull adopted Peterboro under this plan and a number of people from Hull migrated here and were successful.

Other former fellow-citizens in the homeland would be much more inclined to also come out to Peterboro knowing that they would find friends here when they arrived.

In addition, the close connection between the two cities maintained by correspondence would be the best kind of immigration propaganda.

The idea is worthy of development—and the Lord Mayor deserves thanks for his sagacious suggestion.

HEROIC MRS. RODGER.

It is no uncommon thing to see a wife go through fire, torture and horror for the sake of husband or child—on the screen, says the Montreal Star. In fact, the younger generation is quite convinced that is not only the proper, but the probable fate of every wife. But the older generation, with experience of life to suit the heroics of the movies, is more difficult to convince. Therefore, the bravery of Mrs. W. R. Rodger of St. David's, Ontario, in going to her husband's aid and shooting the bank robber with whom he was grappling, will come with all the more conviction as a deed to be set on record that all may read.

Mrs. Rodger hated firearms, and, like most women, went in fear of them. Yet this did not prevent her from seizing a revolver and firing at the robber, and—what is much more to the point—hitting him. The bandit died four hours later. Mr. Rodger's life was saved, and the bank was protected from robbery. But for Mrs. Rodger, it is possible that another capital crime might have been added to the already long list of bank robberies, though another woman, a next-door neighbor, stood ready with her husband's pump-shot gun, also prepared to fire at the marauder.

The instinct that prompted Mrs. Rodger to seize the gun and fire at the man who was trying to knock her husband senseless was a primitive one. It lies deep in every woman's breast. But it is not always that moral ecurage can control physical aversion to the point of effective action. In the case of Mrs. Rodger, there was no hesitation. There was also no bungling. She has vindicated her sex and saved her husband's life.

THE SCOTT CASE.

It is difficult for Canadians to understand the methods followed in law administration across the border when it is exemplified by such cases as that of Russell Scott, the young Canadian sentenced to death in Chicago for murder.

Scott was to have hanged a week ago yesterday, but a week's reprieve was granted at the eleventh hour because of a telegram received by the Governor that indicated that Scott's brother was guilty of the killing for which he had been convicted.

Apparently that telegram had nothing back of it—it was merely a desperate attempt to temporarily save the condemned man, and it succeeded.

Then the prisoner was to have been hanged yesterday, and until four hours of the time set for his execution was allowed to think that there was no further hope for him.

When his death was becoming only a matter of minutes away, a stay of execution was ordered, by a Circuit Judge, after Governor Small and the State Board of Pardon and Paroles had refused further clemency.

The last minute reprieve is for the purpose of having Scott's sanity investigated, it having been declared that he had become insane since his incarceration.

Canadians who know how efficiently and sternly the law is administered in this country will be inclined to think that such methods as those in vogue in Chicago may be the chief explanation for the terrible homicide record of the Illinois city.

THE STREET RAILWAY SITUATION.

The Manufacturers' Association of Peterboro has wasted no time in unanimously condemning the proposal from the Hydro-electric Commission of Ontario that the city should take over the Peterboro Radial Railway system from the Commission.

As men capable of handling large business deals, it was not to be expected that the manufacturers would take any other action than to unequivocally oppose the acquisition of this white telephant on such terms as the Commission offered.

When it comes to sinking several hundred thousand dollars into a transportation system that has piled up a deficit of $181,000 in nine years, street railway service becomes a luxury that no city already burdened with taxation as Peterboro is, can afford.

The best that the Hydro representatives could promise was that, after paying $150,000 for the system and $75,000 in bringing it into some kind of shape, the city might break even so far as actual operating expenses were concerned, if the present service was curtailed, part of the line abandoned altogether and an auxiliary bus service added to the equipment.

The Manufacturers' Association evidently believes, and hundreds of citizens believe with them, that Peterboro can afford nothing but a prompt and emphatic negative to such a proposal—even if the alternative means the scrapping of the system by the Hydro-electric Commission.

It is true that the withdrawal of a street railway service would be a hardship to some citizens—but the day of the motor bus has arrived, and there seems no reason why the gasoline-propelled vehicle could not be made to take the place of the street car.

At all events the proposal in its present form cannot be seriously entertained.

Peterboro has heavy commitments in the sewage disposal plant, and has a serious school problem to face; it would be folly to add a "lame duck" street railway to the obligations that have to be faced.

THERE MAY BE BANANAS.

The jazz composer, who found inspiration for one of the most popular of modern songs in the common, ordinary banana, was not the lunatic many people afflicted by the reiteration of the refrain may have been tempted to suppose. He proved, beyond demonstration, that he knew his public; he made a fortune, and, not least, he did what genius only can do—he discovered the human appeal in a common comestible, and translated it into terms of an art which, whatever the high-brows may think of it, evoked a universal response.

The artistic possibilities of the banana having been thus hauntingly revealed to a world hitherto satisfied with its appetizing qualities, it goes without saying that public appreciation of the commercial value of the familiar stems has not diminished. What transpired at the recent conference of West Indian delegates and Canadian Parliamentary representatives, which resulted in the treaty known under the somewhat cumbrous title of "The Canada—British West Indies—Bermuda—British Guiana—British Honduras trade agreement" has not been disclosed, but there is good reason to suppose that the importance of the banana, made classic through the medium of syncopated music, was an impressive element in the negotiations.

An analysis of the text of the agreement, indeed, suggests that the basis of the whole arrangement, as regards both transportation and trade, was not so much the imperial sentiment which seeks expression in the oft quoted desire to bind different parts of the Empire together, nor even the aspiration to develop closer trade relations between the Dominion and the colonies in the Caribbean Sea along general lines, but a somewhat exclusive spirit of commercialization largely governed by the need of a market for Jamaican bananas.

The alpha and omega of the agreement are every line of the bananas. Their flavor permeates text. They are the fruits by which, in accordance with the Scriptural dictum, the signatures shall be known. Upon bananas, more than anything else, depend the success or failure of the treaty. In the list of tariff preferences granted by Canada, they have first place. From the various colonies mentioned in the agreement, which means Jamaica in particular, they are to be admitted to Canada free, as against a general tariff to all other countries of fifty cents per stem. And one of the essential conditions of the steamship service, which the Canadian Government undertakes to provide, is that the passenger ships shall be fitted with refrigeration space for 70,000 stems of bananas, and the freighters with refrigeration space for 50,000 stems. Moreover, Jamaica, the leading banana producing colony, with an eye on the Canadian market, has agreed, subject to ratification by her Legislature, to substantially increase her share of the steamship subsidy.

The significance of these provisions may be better appreciated when it is remembered that in the last trade agreement with the West Indies, negotiated only five years ago, bananas were not even mentioned. Of the fruit which, apparently, has become an important factor in trade within a comparatively short period, Canada is a large consumer. Hundreds of thousands of stems are imported every year, practically all of them via New York where the banana trade is controlled by a company which is virtually a monopoly.

Whether the arrangements concluded under the new agreement will have the effect of breaking the combine and diverting the trade from New York to Canadian ports remains to be seen. After all, the test of the agreement will be, not the capacity of Jamaica and the other islands to produce and export a sufficient quantity of bananas to meet Canadian requirements, nor the capacity of the subsidized steamships to carry them, but the price at which they can be sold to the Canadian consumer.

That this is the key to the success of the agreement is fully recognized by the Canadian Government, which, in the event of certain contingencies arising, reserves the right to admit bananas from all countries free of duty "to give the public the benefit of reasonable competition." It is to be hoped that the expectations of all parties to the agreement will be realized, and that if, in the words of the song, "there ain't no bananas today" coming direct to Canada, there will be a different refrain in the near future.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Lindsay people object to paying for the Peterboro Street Railway, calling it a "lame duck." Yet who ever heard of a lame duck with flat wheels?

Peterboro is not the only city that has troubles over a dog bylaw. Hamilton's dog catcher has resigned after being fined for not having a license for his own canine.

A THOUGHT.

NOT HIS JOB.

"I'm not supposed to do that," said he,
When an extra task he chanced to see;
"That's not my job, and it's not my care,
So I'll pass it by and leave it there."
And the boss who gave him his weekly pay
Lost more than his wages on him that day.

"I'm not supposed to do that," he said;
"That duty belong to Jim or Fred."
So a little task that was in his way
That he could have handled without delay
Was left unfinished; the way was paved
For a heavy loss that he could have saved.

And time went on and he kept his place
But he never altered his easy pace,
And folks remarked on how well he knew
The line of tasks he was hired to do;
For never once was he known to turn
His hands to things not of his concern
But there in his foolish rut he stayed
And for all he did he was fairly paid,
But he never was worth a dollar more
Than he got for his toil when the week was o'er;
For he knew too well when his work was through
And he'd done all he was hired to.

If you want to grow in this world, young man,
You must do every day all the work you can;
If you find a task, though it's not your bit,
Andw it should be done, take care of it!
And you'll never conquer or rise if you
Do only the things you're supposed to do.

THE COACH'S JOB

Something of the taskmaster, the general and the diplomat, and a lot of the doctor must be hidden away in the man who would be the coach of a successful football or track team.

Emergencies of all kinds are his daily routine. A thorough knowledge of first aid is as essential as a knowledge of the game played by his men.

Bumps, bruises, strained ligaments and muscles are every day happenings, but the coach never becomes contemptuous of them. He knows that if neglected, they may result in anything.

Trainers everywhere keep Absorbine Jr. in their lockers. They use it not only for sprains, cuts and bruises, but for the skin and blood protection of its disinfecting properties. In one convenient container it combines the functions of a number of preparations.

It is the first of all the First Aid requisites in use in all of the leading athletic clubs.

And there are just as many everyday uses for Absorbine Jr. in the homes of Canada as there are in the training camps. Always "jump to it" in case of emergency. $1.25 at your druggist.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, July 24. — The usual midsummer slackness is bearing heavily on the cattle markets just now. Cattle feeders in many sections that have suffered from summer drought are finding feed very short. Thin hay crops in many districts too are not encouraging for late fall feeding. Under these circumstances many are shipping their cattle in almost from necessity, long before the cattle are in good marketing condition. The result is an over supply of rough and unfinished stuff hard to dispose of. In competition too with these eastern half-fed cattle are large numbers of westerners, rough and weightier, but still better killers than the common Ontario green steer. While the well finished choice quality Ontario fed steer or heifer is taken for preference for the finer beef trade, the large packers are relying more than ever on the prairie fed cattle for their heavier and coarse supplies. Many of these western cattle are now coming east direct to the plants in dressed form as well as on the hoof. This practice explains why, this week for instance, there have been heavy carryovers of unsold cattle of the commoner quality. Choice handy weight butcher stuff has sold freely at steady prices, but the half fat unfinished green steer is not in demand, and in Thursday's closing market there were still some hundreds of left over cattle unsold.

The export trade has held practically steady.

Cable prices from England are coming easier and there has been a like tendency to take a little off prices here but on the whole there has been little change in the average. Choice fat export steers are quoted steady at $7.50 to $8.15 and $8.25. Export bulls steady $4.50 to $525. Store calle export trade is quiet. Rogers and Maybee took about 1,300 cattle off this market durthe week. Total export shipments to seaboard for the week, including billed through about 1,700.

Calves have held steady to firm from $9 to $10 tops, a few choice selling at $10.50 in closing market.

Sheep and lambs steady, $15 to $16.50, falling off about a dollar at close.

Hogs held from all week, 25c to up at $12.75 f.o.b, and $13.75 thick smooths of cars.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, July 24. — On account of the fact that exporters are bidding $1.25 per bushel for new crop Ontario winter wheat, f. o. b. country points advices from Ontario millers state that it is difficult for them to make offers of new crop wheat flour for future delivery at present prices rulling for old flour. A firm feeling prevailed in the spot market, but the demand for supplies was limited.

There was no important change in the condition of the local egg market. There was a slight improvment in the demand for supplies to meet week-end requirements and the volume of business was a little larged. The feeling was steady and prices were unchanged. The receipts were 1,565 cases, as compared with 1,413 for the same day last week, and 2,388 for the corresponding day a year ago.

The receipts of cheese were 8,357 boxes, as against 8,686 for the same day last week, and 11,528 for the corresponding day a year ago. The feature of the trade was the easier feeling that devolpoed in the market and spot prices were reduced 1-4c to 1-2c per lb. The demand from over the cable was reported very limited and in consequence there was little disposition on the part of operators here to trade with the market was much quieter.

ONTARIO CHEESE AUCTION

MONTREAL, July 24. — At the United Dairymen Co-operative Auction sale of Ontario Cheese held here today the offerings were 3,649 boxes for which 21 3-16c per lb. was bid for 1,526 boxes No. 1 white and 21c per lb. for 2,123 boxes No 1 colored and refused owing to the fact that these prices were 1 7-16c to 1 5-8c per lb. below a week ago.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, July 24—After a brisk advance of 5 1-4 to 5 3-4 from today's inside figures, the wheat market closed firm at 1 3-8 to 2. 5-8c net gain. September 1.50 3-8 to 1.50 1-2 and December 1.51 7-8. Broadening of export demand, together with a reduced estimate of the 1925 domestic spring crop yield, was largely responsible for the upward swing of the wheat market. Corn closed at 1-8 to 7-8c advance. Oats unchanged to 1-4c higher and provisions varying from five cents decline to a rise of 7c.

Wheat made its lowest prices early and then rallied in double quick fashion, but later eased back to a material extent. The price advance was accompanied by asserttons that export business to-day had totalled 1,000,000 bushels. Simultaneously, a leading crop authority issued an opinion that Spring wheat indications at present wer for a crop of 255,000,000 bushels in this country as against the July 1, government forecast of 276,000,000 bushels. However, signs pointed to an enlarged movement of wheat to the Chicago market next week, and profit-taking sales put considerable pressure on values in the final half hour.

STERLING RATES.

MONTREAL, July 24. — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here as follows:

Sterling demand $4.84 1-2.

Sterling cables $4.85.

DAMAGE DONE BY TUESDAY'S STORM

Burnbrae Farmers Lost Animals—Rain Made Ploughing Possible.

BURNBRAE, July 25.— Rain is the order of the day here now, with Tuesday night's electric and rain storm being one of the worst on record. Some damage from lightning is reported. Robt. Matthews, on seventh concession of Rawdon, lost five head of cattle, while S. Hinds, on the same line, had a horse killed. The rain, however, will do a great deal of good as it was the first in some time, heavy enough to go to plough depth. A number of farmers are now starting to plough for fall grain. A good deal of hay and wheat cut recently is in bad shape for storing as the weather is too damp and cold for proper curing.

Ball Game Postponed.

The Hoards-Burnbrae baseball game, scheduled for Tuesday evening, was postponed due to rain, but the social in connection was held in Mr. Alex. Milne's hall at Menie. Although noly a small crowd was present, everyone had an enjoyable time and a large quantity of eatables, ice cream and soft drinks was disposed of. The proceeds amounted to over $24, which is to be used to pay expenses of the two teams.

Several Burnbrae folks attended the lawn social at Wellman's Corners on Wednesday evening. A good crowd was present in spite of the threatening weather.

The St. Andrew's W.M.S. met at the church on Wednesday afternoon.

Cheese prices still look up, the top mark on Monday at Montreal for Belleville district cheese being 22 5-16c. per lb.

The Unionist group of St. Andrew's held Sunday school and a short service in S. S. No. 11 schoolroom on Sunday afternoon last. Mr. Winters, of Campbellford, was present and gave a short address.

STANDARD PAVING COMPANY IN SUIT

$100,000 Claimed on Charge of Infringing Patent.

MONTREAL, July 25. — Coupled with an action in damages for $100,000, the Amiesite Asphalt, Limited, sought and was granted a restraining order against the Standard paving, Limited, Ottawa, to prevent the latter using the trade name Amiesite or laying paving similar to this product in Quebec, and from tendering to the Quebec Highway Department to lay such pavements. The Amiesite Company has taken action in damages for $100,000 against the other for alleged infringement of patent rights.

CIVIC WELCOME.

Official Programme Covers Events on Sunday and Monday.

MONTREAL, July 25. — Canadian Press. — Preparations for the reception of Field Marshall Earl Haig and Countess Haig, were completed yesterday. The distinguished party will arrive in Montreal on Sunday morning at 11 o'clock and will proceed to their otel. Later they will be officially welcomed at the civic library by Mayor Duquette.

In the afternoon Earl and Countess Haig will review the veterans' parade following which they will be tendered a dinner at the Mount Royal Club.

On Monday afternoon Field Marshall Haig will be the guest at a luncheon at the Canadian Club, and will later place wreaths on the cenotaph on Dominion Square.

Wreaths will also be placed on various war monuments in five of the neighboring municipalities.

On Monday evening Earl and Countess Haig will be the guests at a military banquet.

Field Marshall Earl and Countess Haig have also decided to stay over in Montreal, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, instead of leaving Montreal on Monday evening as first planned. The additional sojourn will be informal and no official engagements will be made during that period.

Their official depature will take place on the morning of July 31, when Field Marshall Earl and Countess Haig will sail on the S. S. Letitia from Montreal.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS POST FOR CANADIAN

B. C. Professor Appointed Director in Research Division at Geneva.

VANCOUVER, B.C., July 23 (Canadian Press).—Dr. Mack Eastman, professor of history at the University of British Columbia, has left for Geneva where he will assume his new duties as director of general studies in the research division of the International Labor Office, working in association with the League of Nations.

This represents an unusual distinction for Dr. Eastman, and an honor for Canada. The post is a recently created one and the British Empire was asked to make the appointment. All the Dominions were in turn requested to send in nominations. Canada named Dr. Eastman and although he did not volunteer for the office he was the unanimous choice. Ten men, representing ten different nations and each an expert in labor and economic problems, will serve under the Canadian professor.

Dr. Eastman is a native of Oshawa, Ont., and a graduate of the University of Toronto. He spent three years at the University of Paris, perfecting his knowledge of the French language and studying French-Canadian problems. In Paris he came into touch with such leaders of thought as Anatole France, Jean Juares and Albert Thomas, the latter now being director of the League of Nations International Labor office.

In Canada, Dr. Eastman won a reputation as an authority on European affairs. He served overseas and on his return became a champion of the League of Nations, making speeches in its behalf throughout the Dominion.

RETURNS TO TORONTO

Superintendent of Shriners' Hospitals Travelled Over 70,000 Miles Last Year.

TORONTO, July 23 (Canadian Press) —Miss Florence J. Potts, lady superintendent of Nurses of the Shriners' Hospitals for Crippled Children, is visiting in the city, renewing friendships made when she was superintendent of the Hospital for Sick Children here. Last year she travelled more than 70,000 miles in the discharge of her duties. "Our hospitals are not run for the benefit of Shriners' children, as so many seem to think," said Miss Potts, in an interview. "They are intended first and foremost for children whose parents and guardians are unable to pay for treatment, and when they leave for home each patient is given a farewell gift of a complete set of clothes. We have a waiting list in every one of our hospitals, and the field of endeavor is a Wide one.

"These institutions are also used as teaching centres for medical students; we feel that we have such wonderful material in our hospitals and we are glad to have students in training receive the benefit of our experiences and researches. In connection with our Montreal unit, the Royal Victoria, the Montreal General, the Homeopathic Hospital and the Jeffrey Hale Hospital of Quebec send their student nurses to us. Towards the upkeep of these hospitals each Noble contributes $2 a year as a regular fee, thus ensuring an income of over one million dollars."

British Miners To Meet Owners Next Wednesday

LONDON, July 25—Although the miners' federation has announced a strike of colliers on July 31, and only a bare week now remains for a possible cessation in coal production, the situation last night appeared more hopeful for a bridiging of the chasm of dissension between the miners and the coal mine owners.

Mediation in the situation by W. C. Bridgman, First Lord of the Admiralty, has been so effective that yesterday he persuaded the disputants to meet together in conference next Wednesday in an endeavor to smooth out their troubles.

LONDON GOSSIP ON AUSTRALIAN LOAN

Was Fully Subscribed, But Investors Lacked Information.

LONDON, July 25 (Canadian Press Cable) — The result of the Australian loan in London has been a matter of considerable gossip. The issue £5,000,000 at 99 1-2 bearing interest at the rate of 5 per cent undoubtedly hung fire the first day which seems to betoken that the issuing house would have been well advised to have taken a leaf out of the book of promoters' commercial propositions who usually bring out a prospectus over the week-end, ginving potential subscribers time to think it over. However, by Wednes night there was news that the loan had been fully subscribed. Indeed the big subscriptions must have come in with a rush at the last moment, for while the small subscribers got allotments in full those taking £1,000 obtain only about 50 per cent of their applications.

Lieut.-Commander J. M. Kenworthy, Liberal M.P., criticizes the Bank of England and the treasury officials for having cold shouldered the commonwealth government in compelling it to go to New York for three-fourths of the Australian loan, £15,000,000. What should have been done, he says, was to issue the loan in London and if necessary have part of the underwriting done in Yew York, over which there would have been no difficulty. "The grandiose talk of the conservative party," he declares "is shown to be idle mouthing, and a heavy blow has been struck at imperial connection."

This of course is only one man's opinion. Other people say the Australian issue was hardly a real test of Australian credit as between New York and London respectively. More than one critic draws attention to the fact that the prospectus failed to convey a comprehensive, intelligible statement about Australia's financial position. It is asserted that this kind of thing often mars dominion borrowings nowadays.

CANADA REPRESENTED AT GENERAL'S FUNERAL

General Strange Helped to Quell the Riel Rebellion.

OTTAWA, July 24. — (Canadian Press). — Canada was represented at the funeral in England recently of the late General Thomas Bland Strange, hero of the Riel Rebellion and former inspector of Canadian artillery, by Lieut. Col. H. D. G. Crerer, according to advices received on Friday by the Department of National Defensre. A military funeral was accorded to the late General Strange on the thirteenth of this month, and interment was made at Woolwich cemetery.

The late General Strange, took in the Siege of Lucknow, he came to Canada about 1871 and for a time was in command of B battery at Kingston and Quebec. Subsequently he was inspector of Canadian Artillery. Afterwards retiring on the outbreak of the Riel Rebellion, he returned to duty at the request of the Canadian Government and was appointed to command the Alberta Field Force. He fought the action of Frenchmen's Butte, resulting in th defeat of the Cree Chief, Big Bear.

PRESS INTERPRETS VISIT OF U.S. FLEET

See Demonstration of Mighty Weapon to Keep Peace in Pacific.

LONDON, July 25.—(Canadian Press.)— The Sydney correspondent of the Morning Post says that a section of the press of Melborne and Sydney interprets the visit of the United States' fleet to Australia as a mission of special significance, asserting that while the United States may not propose to fight anybody for Australia's protection, she has evolved a mighty weapon with which to defend general peace in the Pacific.

Visit the Capitals

Become familiar with these points of historic and national interest

Know historic Ontario, know its points of interest, know the two Capital cities—Toronto and Ottawa—that lie within its borders. All through the Province there's a wealth of national and historic interest which should be familiar to every man, woman and child.

An intimate knowledge of our seats of Government will result in a better appreciation of our country's institutions. It will make better citizens of the boys and girls.

This summer, get the family in the car and drive either to Ottawa or Toronto. Both cities are at their best in summer time. In each you will receive courtesy and attention from those who are in a position to give you information as to what you should see.

Good highways to the Capitals lead from every direction. They are in excellent condition and in every case will take you through magnificent stretches of farm and orchard lands, or by lakes and rivers and woods.

Take your time and see the country as you go. Don't attempt any speed records. They have all been made. Fast driving is dangerous; it detracts from the pleasure of your trip because you cannot see the country; it destroys road surfaces and thus it makes your trip more expensive than it need be.

For your money is used to repair damaged roads in Ontario. The user must pay. In your own interest, you are requested to minimize this damage, and you can do so by moderate driving.

The disposition of yourself and almost all other users of the roads is good, if you will only think. Your co-operation is thus confidently depended upon. To those who disregard the law and this request, notice is given that vigorous prosecution will follow where speed limits are broken.

An advertisement issued by the Ontario Department of Highways to secure the co-operation of motorists and truck drivers, Automobile Clubs, Good Roads Associations and all other public spirited bodies, in abating the abuse of the roads of the province.

YOUR HEALTH

Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

A BABY'S BATTLE TO LIVE IN SUMMER

With the babies, Summer-time is danger time.

They suffer from the heat even more than adults do. Indeed, they have all the obvious discomforts of excessive heat and, in addition, the dangers which come from contaminated food.

Little things which mean nothing to big folks are big things to little folks. For instance, while it is disagreeable, of course, little is thought of a cold. "How are you?" you say to a friend. "Oh, all right," he replies, "just a little cold, but that's the style!"

But a cold is a serious thing for a baby. Twenty per cent of all babies, dying under one year of age, die from colds and the complications of colds. This means that in a city like New York the deaths of more than 2,000 babies every year can be traced back to colds.

Many persons have Summer colds. They should bear in mind that the trifling thing a grown-up has, may be fatal if it is passed on to a baby. In hot weather, particularly, when the powers of resistance are low, a cold is serious. Guard the baby against association with grown-ups who have colds.

But this isn't what I started out to tell you. Frequently, of late, I have told the mothers some of the things they should bear in mind during the summer. I want to talk a little more on this theme.

Bottle-fed babies have a hard time to keep well. Such babies require a tremendous amount of attention on the part of the mother. The most painstaking care must be exercised in the preparation of the feedings and the protection of the bottles.

It may seem a simple thing to purchase and apply a rubber nipple for the feeding bottle. But it isn't.

Here are some of the requirements.

It must be firm enough so that the pressure of the eager baby mouth won't crush it and cut off the supply of milk. If it is too soft it collapses at once. So, when the purchase is made, get a non-collapsible nipple.

It must be large enough and of the right make to permit turning it inside out. This feature permits of thorough cleaning, without which there is sure to be trouble in the digestion.

The hole in the nipple must be just the right size. This is tested by permitting milk to flow through it. The hole must be small enough to allow not more than a single drop to escape. The milk should fall drop by drop, about two seconds apart, thirty drops in a minute.

With the normal suction this nipple will permit the proper flow of milk.

If the test shows that the milk runs steadily and not by drops, the hole is too big. This will allow too much milk and, in consequence, the baby will vomit.

The nipple should be washed inside and out after the feeding. Then it is left immersed in cold water until needed again. Before using, it is boiled and not handled afterward with careless hands.

These few suggestions will help to keep baby well in hot weather.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

R. M. J. Q.—For the past two years I have been bothered with pimples and blackheads. What can I do for them?

A.—First of all, correct the diet by cutting down on sugar, starches and coffee. Eat simple food. Correct faulty intestinal elimination. For further stamped envelope and restate your question.

* * *

MISS MAY. Q.—What can be done for chronic bronchitis? Is it contagious? Can it be cured?

A.—Build up the general health and in this way benefit your entire system. Not unless it is tubercular. Yes, if properly treated. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

* * *

M. M. Q.—What can I use for enlarged pores?

2.—What is a good preparation to put on the hands at night to soften them.

A.—Apply hot and cold compresses to the face for five minutes night and morning.

2.—Any good cold cream will do.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SUNDAY AND MONDAY, JULY 26-27

Sunday's astrological forecast is a fairly fortunate one, with propitious rulings for study, literary pursuits and for dealing with superiors, but be careful of disputes.

Those whose birthday it is are under a favorable ruling for employment, dealing with superiors, and for literary or professional pursuits, but theyr should guard against contention and impetuosity. A child born on this day may be thoughtful and talented and should succeed in employment.

Monday's horoscope shows a lively day, with an inclination to new undertakings, but these may be put in jeopardy by speculation, too lavish expenditures or lending money. Also sign papers cautiously.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a lively year, with probable new ventures, which should not be weakened by money loans, speculation, extravagance or careless signing of papers. A child born on this day may be expected to be resourceful and enterprising, but will require training in conservative handling of money, else it may invite financial failure.

MY EUROPEAN EXCURSIONS

By Edw'n Robert Petre

NEVER SCAMP THE LAKE DISTRICT.

While on my way to Scotland last summer, three American tourists carrying grips got on at Keswick and I overheard them say they had "done the Lake District in two days." It can't be done. The peaceful beauty of Grasmere and the charm of Derwentwater is too elusive for such scamping. Too many over-seas visitors think its like seeing Niagara Falls—"one eyeful and its over," though that even fails to do credit to the Falls. After visits to the shrines of Wordsworth, Southey, Coleridge and De Quincy, a June morning sail on Windermere, or sunset behind the Langdale Pikes, or among the peaked and splintered hills about Derwentwater, and at least a week amid the forested fells where the thrush's evening hymn "calls home the heart to quietness," as Dorothy Wordsworth put it,—only then have you begun to know the Lakes of England.

THE ALPS IN FRANCE.

Some visitors forget that France as well as Switzerland has majestic alpine scenery. A night on the P. L. M. Railway transports you from the boulevards to glacier lands and old world villages between snow capped peaks. The auto trip from Briancon to Grenoble and the wonderful climb of the Lautaret Pass through meadows ablaze with flowers will not soon be forgotten. Never shall I forget the great glaciers of La Meije seen from the little Alpine village of La Grave, where the children gathered round the cars seeking to sell the tourists their bunches of freshly gathered lavender. The Graisivaudan the magnificent plain around Grenoble is the best picture I know of what Nature will do in return for intensive farming and gardening—fifty miles of Eden.

HAPPY MARRIED LIFE

Dame Clare Butt Gives Recipe—Love and Understanding.

LONDON, Eng., July 23 (Canadian Press).—"If anyone wants a recipe for happy marriage I can give it to them. It is love and understanding—especially understanding." Thus Dame Clara Butt, the famous contralto, who celebrated her silver wedding with Kennerly Rumford recently. "My married life has been a dream of blissful happiness," she said. At her anniversary concert where she and her husband sang Dame Clara wore her wedding dress Lady Duff Gordon having altered the 19-inch waist to a more modern line.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DAVID MEETS A NIGHT FLYER.

"Bat, bat, come under my hat," David yelled at the top of his voice as he spied the thing flying above his head one night.

"Bat, nothing!" laughed a merry voice and David was surprised to see a wee little elfin trotting at his side.

"Why, Squeedee!" he exclaimed, grabbing the elfin's hand and shaking it. "Dear, I'm glad to see you. What did you say about that bat?"

"Bat, I said it wasn't a bat," laughed the elfin. "Here, you come down here," he called loudly. The flying thing hesitated a second, then sailed down beside David and Squeedee. "Mr. Night Flying Swallow, I want you to meet my little friend, David Dorn. He saw you flying around up there and called you a Bat."

"Well, excuse me, Mr. Swallow," said David rather confused. "You flew around so swiftly I thought you were Mr. Bat. What's the idea, do you really fly around at night?"

"Sure I do," replied Mr. Night Flying Swallow proudly, "I find not so many hungry mouths to feed after night. You see swallows feed on the wing—"

"On the wing," began David when Squeedee laughed merrily.

"Mr. Swallow means, he eats while flying," the elfin said. "Why, there isn't a swifter flyer among the bird family than our friend here."

"Because I'm built for flying," said Mr. Night Flying Swallow, spreading out his wings and tail, so David could see them. "I'm built something like a fish-shape; my feathers are short and quite stiff and fit so closely to my body, at makes my body smooth and shiny.

"There's Work for Me To-night."

"There's not many of my bird friends built that way. Then, see my wings; notice they are long and sickle-shaped; they help me in flying swiftly, my tail is so long and stiff. I can use it just like a man uses a rudder on a boat; by turning it, I can easily change my course so quickly, your eye can hardly follow my movement."

"Those two long feathers that trail out back of your wings certainly look pretty," said David. "I don't think I've ever seen a bird just like you."

"I guess you've never seen Mr. Night Flying Swallow before," said Squeedee. "I've never seen him stay still as long as this—"

"And I really shouldn't stay any longer," chirped Mr. Night Flying Swallow. "I must fly away. There's plenty of work for me to do tonight. I've never noticed so many mosquitoes around these parts before. I guess the wind blew them up from the marshlands.

"There's no rest for night flyers, so if you'll excuse me, I'll be on my way. I'll stop and chat some other time," so spreading his pretty sickle-shaped wings he sailed into the air.

"He's quite a large bird and it takes so very much to fill him up," stated Squeedee. "Mosquitoes are very small, so he has to catch all he can to get a square meal. But do you know David Mr. Night Flying Swallow is one of our very best friends?"

"He is if he gets rid of mosquitoes" David declared.

FINE PICNIC.

Welcome United Church Scholars Visited Sylvan Glen.

WELCOME, July 25. —The Sunday School of the United Church of Welcome held its annual picnic at Sylvan Glen on Friday afternoon. Sylvan Glen is one of the natural beauty spots of this part of the country, and admirably suited for picnics.

Early in the afternoon the older ladies challenged the girls to a game of ball, which resulted in a victory for the fair maids.

Races were held, which began with the wee tots under two years old, who each received an orange, and continued for all ages up to a married ladies' race. There was also a three-legged race and a peanut scramble. Suitable prizes were given the winners.

Altogether, a most enjoyable time was spent by those present, and much credit should be given the teachers and officers who arranged the details, which made such a successful picnic.

A man's good breeding is the best security against other people's ill-manners. —Lord Chesterfield.

"Living"

HAL COCHRAN'S DAILY POEM

The eight hours for work and the eight hours for play, with the eight hours for sleep make a night and a day. You're wise as can be, so the doctors all say, if you use each eight hours in the 'sposed-to-be way.

The man who sits tight, till his work hours are through, and does the best work that he knows how to do, need never have reason to worry and stew. When work is successful, your troubles are few.

The strain over labor that piles up each day, will ne'er reach the point where your system gives way, if you offset the work by the eight hours of play. That's how you can keep nervous breakdowns at bay.

Then, last, but not least, is the rest that you need. The full hours of sleep are just p lanting the seed that grows you the strength that will keep you well keyed to meet with the toil of your work-a-day deed.

Too many folks feel that they're always too strong, to ever have health or ambition go wrong. You pay, in the end, when your living is rash, for a haphazard life rarely leads to a crash.

YOUR GARDEN

DESTROYING ANTS.

These pests are a nuisance everywhere you may find them in the garden. They build nests in the lawn and heap up quite large mounds in many perennials, particularly the dwarf phloxes, pinks, etc., iris and peonies if the soil is at all sandy. When this mound construction is found to be serious it is just as well to destroy the whole plant and nest and replant the best parts. It is better to stir around the nests repeatedly and prevent this condition.

There are a number of remedies suggested such as placing an old meaty bone near the nest and when the ants are attracted in large numbers, drop it into boiling water. If no valuable plants are near, the nests and runs may be sprinkled with a mixture of six parts of water to one part of kerosene.

Vaporite, a soil fumigant, is very effective and being already to use is safe and easy. Probably the best remedy is Bisulphide of Carbon. This has a very disagreeable odor, however, and must be carefully handled as in excess the fumes are poisonous. Use a pointed stick between a quarter and a half inch in diameter and push this well down in entrance to the nest. Then pour in a small quantity of the carbon bisulphide, afterward cover up the entrance with soil and tramp it firmly to hold the fumes. This treatment may be used on lawns or anywhere. As it is highly inflammable care should be taken to avoid igniting it at any time by smoking, etc. Pot plants on the verandah or elsewhere may be forceably syringed with warm water.

PERFECT BRIDGE HAND BUT LOST

Player Had 13 Diamonds But Could Not Break In.

CHICAGO, July 24.—John Donahue, of the Chicago Board of Trade, in a bridge game held thirteen cards of one suit, far rarer than a hole-in-one in golf, and did not get to play them.

Donahue had thirteen diamonds and an opponent with a strong hand in spades and good support outbid him, seven spades. The opponent lost through a misplay, but not one of Donahue's diamonds got a trick.

Perfect hands, containing thirteen of a suit, are almost unknown, and experts said the legitimate outbidding of such a hand is unprecedented.

Donahue made the mistake, he admitted afterward, of bidding only one diamond when he picked up his hand and found the whole diamond suit in it. His opponent countered with a heavy spade bid. Donahue went up to seven diamonds after his opponent's partner had indicated good support, but he was too late, for the bid was raised to seven spades.

The opponent who outbid Donahue was H. H. Neutz. Donahue's partner was Lisle C. Hart. H. C. Fisher was playing with Neutz.

Neutz held the ace, king, queen, jack, eight, seven, trey and deuce of spades, the king and deuce of clubs, and the queen, jack and deuce of hearts. Fisher laid down the ten and five of spades, the ace and two small hearts and the ace, queen and several smaller clubs.

Donahue opened the play with the ace of diamonds. Had Neutz trumped out of the 'dummy" with the ten of spades he could have discarded a heart from his own hand, led back spades, gone into clubs and dropped another heart on one of Fisher's clubs. Thus he would have taken all the tricks and filled his contract.

In his hurry, though, he sluffed a heart from Fisher's hand and trumped the diamond from his own hand. Thus he finished with one heart too many in his own hand and lost a trick to Hart's king of hearts.

It was hard to tell who suffered most. Donahue with his unplayable perfect diamond hand or Neutz with his misplayed "grand slam" of spades.

Canada's farm population is nearly half of the total.

FUMES CLEARED FROM TUNNEL BY HURRICANE BLAST IN TUBES

75-Mile Gale Will Whistle Through Airways Driven by Fans.

TUNNELING RECORD

Danger From Carbon Monoxide Gas Will be Eliminated.

NEW YORK, July 25.—(Canadian Press).—A man-made hurricane will clear the new Jersey City-New York vehicular tunnel of deadly carbon monoxide gas generated by the 46,000 motor cars it will transport daily far beneath the bed of the Hudson River.

Designs for the ventilation system, embodying features entirely new to engineering practice, have just been approved and bids for its installation will be opened here August 3. This announcement by the supervising commission marked the solution of the last and most difficult of the many problems met in planning the great subterranean double-tube.

Driven by immense electric fans, a 75-mile wind will whistle through a seven-foot airway under the traffic road to which it will have ingress through continuous slots set in each side a few inches from the bottom.

The used aid will be sucked out through ceiling vents, set every thirty feet, into another immense airway, assuring a continuous movement of air at every point in the two-mile tunnel.

Four great ventilation houses—two on each side of the river—will contain the intake and outlet flues and the propelling and exhaustion machinery. They will rise four stories above the surface.

Proper ventilation of deep tunnels has been a source of anxious study to engineers since the use of subways began as a means of traffic relief. It always has been a problem to mining engineers who face the necessity of provising fresh air to deep drifts.

Recognizing the load which would be imposed by the passage of more than 16 cars a minute, each way, the engineers were not satisfied with the success of their model, but installe the same system in a Pittsburgh mine where touring cars and trucks were operated under every conceivable traffic condition.

As a further precaution, indicate system of barometers and gas meters will record in central stations, the status of the air at any point in the tunnels so that extra pumps, supplying special sectors, may be speeded to take care of an emergency.

Traffic policemen will be posted at intervals throughout the length of the tube with an advanced type of semaphore bearing the order "Stop all motors," as well as the familiar "Stop-Go" signs. Telephone connection with both ends will permit further regulation of traffic in case of need.

Anticipating the effect of the tunnel traffic upon the congested streets of New York and Jersey, the engineers have gone to great lengths to insure rapid dissemination of the tube traffic. Running side by side under the river the two tubes separate sharply at either edge, so that entry and exit are thrown several blocks apart. As a further relief the traffic is delivered into 160-foot plazas which themselves give into the 100-foot approaches. The plazas cut numerous feeder streets through which the tube traffic may be diverted to the city arteries. Widening of the approach streets in New York has through that particular section of the city developed into a real estate boom which rivals that of the most hectic Florida development. Hitherto held by warehouses and freight handling forms, entire squares are now beinng taken for hotels, loft buildings and similar structures.

Opening of the new highway is tentatively set for November, 1926. One hundred and fifteen thousand tons of cast iron lining went into the tunnel in the shape of rings thirty inches wide. Each of these consisted of fourteen sections with a short "key-section", which was forced into place from within to bind them in place. These were emplaced by crews, working behind a pneumatic shield, as other blasted and dug the material away.

A world record for tunneling—95 feet in a week—was made at one point but frequently rock formations held the progress to between 4 and 5 inches a day so that only one ring was installed after a weeks work.

BEARS NAMED FOR OUTLAWS

"Jesse James" Lives Up to His Name by Forcing Tourists to Feed Him.

MANY IMITATORS

WEST YELLOWSTONE, Mont. July 25.—Jesse James, the celebrated holdup bear of the Yellowstone National Park, has a number of understudies this year and automobilists are making many unwilling contributions of chocolates and other foodstuffs before they are able to escape the skilful thieves.

Old Jesse James, [illegible] bear, discovered several years ago that by planting himself in the middle of the park roads he could halt autos and force passengers to feed him. Being thoroughly protected in a national park he was in no danger and found the delicious candies and luncheons carried by tourists far more apeptizing than the refuse in the garbage cans at the hotels.

The first imitator of the original holdup bear was a little black bear which has been nicknamed Little Jesse James, but now there are a half a dozen holdup bears and all are members of the James and Younger gang have namesakes among the animal thieves which take much delight in terrifying tenderfeet and separating them from everything in their larders.

Wags take delight in subjecting Easterners to the attacks of impudent animal outlaws which have no hesitation about climbing into cars with passengers and making a search of their pockets for candy. The bear's sense of smell for sweets is so keen that he can locate chocolate or any sort of candy without fail. Tourists who lock up candy in their cars for the night frequently find in the morning that they have been badly damaged by bears which are so daring and skilful that they can force their way into any car.

A southern Pullman car porter who recently made his first trip to the Yellowstone Park was taken into the park on an auto ride by some of his co-workers who knew the habits of Jesse James and wanted to give their friend a scare. They regaled him with stories of how dangerous the animals were and pretended when Jesse James stopped them that their car had stalled and that escape was impossible as the bandit would certainly kill anyone who tried to run. The porter also was warned against resisting Jesse's search of his person. The new visitor was so badly frightened that he insisted on being taken out of the park as soon as the bear had made his search and refused to make any more trips into the Northwest.

OBITUARY.

W. A. McMASTER.

HAVELOCK, July 25.—The sad and unexpected death of W. A. McMaster, one of Havelock's most highly respected merchants, on Monday, July 20, evoked expressions of keen regret from a host of friends in this district.

The deceased had been unwell for some time, but his illness did not assume a serious phase until last week, and on Sunday evening he underwent an operation as the only means of saving his life. But owing to his weak condition, he did not regain consciousness, and passed away on Monday at six p.m.

The late Mr. McMaster came to Havelock twenty-one years ago. In politics he was a life-long Conservative. He was a member of the United Church, and always had been a strong supporter of the Methodist Church. He was a regular attendant at all the services, and took a deep interest in all Christian activities.

The funeral took place on Wednesday afternoon from the family residence, King Street, to the Campbellford Cemetery, and was an impressively sad one. A large number of sorrowing relatives and friends gathered at the home, where the funeral service was conducted by Rev. E. O. Seymour, of the United Church, assisted by Rev. T. H. Stanley of St. John's Anglican Church.

Rev. Mr. Stanley, in his address, said that he came to pay a tribute of respect to one who was held in high esteem by the entire community, and although not of the same religious denomination, yet all are united in one family by faith. He chose 1st Thessalonians iv., 13 and 14: "But I would not have you ignorant brethren concerning them which are asleep that ye sorrow not even as others which have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with Him. to show the attitude the Christian should have towards death."

Rev. Mr. Seymour chose as his text, Luke vii., 13: "And when the Lord saw her he had compassion on her, and said unto her, Weep not." And said that compassion was suffering with another, not suffering instead or in place of but sharing another's sorrow and in the trials of life which all are called to pass through. "From time to time," he said, "we have the assurance that we are not alone, for Jesus has compassion and will share our sorrows."

Two hymns, "Abide With Me," and "A few more years shall roll," were sung during the service. A quartette, "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," was also sung by Messrs G. Chiles, W. J. McBurney, R. Campney, C. Godden.

The deceased leaves to mourn his loss, besides his widow, one daughter Miss Josephine, and one brother Mr. F. C. McMaster, of Belleville.

The pall-bearers were: C. H. Brewster, E. Fennell, S. S. Joyce, W. B. Ritchie, W. Noftal, H. Wing.

There were many beautiful floral tributes, showing the high regard of friends and business associates.

STREET CLEANING BILL.

Montreal Spent Two Millions Last Year.

MONTREAL, July 24. — (Canadian Press). — Cleaning streets, removing snow and sprinkling cost the City of Montreal $2,000,000 in 1924, according to the annual report of the Roads Department. Of this, the Montreal Tramways will reimburse the city $250,000 for snow removal from streets having car tracks.

HASTINGS TAXPAYERS TO DECIDE CONTINUATION SCHOOL PROJECT

School Board Requesting Council to Submit By-law to People For Opinion.

TO COST $15,000.

(By a Staff Reporter).

HASTINGS, July 25. — C. P. Doughty, secretary of the school board, has had J. R. Corkery, barrister of Peterboro, prepare a by-law which the Council at its next regular meeting on August 7th, will be asked to submit to the taxpayers, leaving to the latter the decision of the question as to whether or not Hastings is to have a new Public and Continuation School. The specific and question which is to be submitted to the people reads as follows: "Are you in favour of raising the sum of $15,000 by a debenture issue for the purpose of erecting a Continuation School?"

At the July meeting of the Council it was unanimously decided to refer this question to the people so that it is likely that the by-law above referred to will be submitted.

Separate School Supporters.

T. A. Coughlan, ex-councillor and a Separate School supporter, said to The Examiner yesterday that this class of residents are in favour of a Continuation School and are ready to co-operate with the Public School supporters under certain conditions They stand ready to bear their share of the expense in proportion to their assessment if the old public school building is converted into a Continuation School, and to be so, maintained as an experiment for five years.

Aagain, the Separate School supporters will co-operate in the erection of a new Continuation School Building but such building must be paid up apart from the new Public School.

Mr. Coughlan says that this latter decision has been reached on the advice of Inspector Milis, the official who has the oversight of Continuation Schools Ontario and who is opposed to a combined building. Complications the Inspector says, are likely t arise in the future, just as they have done in other places where such an experiment has been made.

Compulsory Consolidation.

Reeve Hess still maintains that the village of Hastings is not financially able to carry the burden which the plan of the School Board would entail, a burden which the Reeve says, would practically double the present tax rate. The Reeve has another reason for going slow in this matter. The cost of education in Ontario he belives, is so high and constantly increasing, that the Government at Toronto is likely to make consolidation of schools compulsory instead of leaving that proposition to the will of the people as at present. The township system which Premier Ferguson favours, is practically consolidation, according to Reeve Hess.

In support of his argument that the cost of education is increasing, Reeve Hess points out that this year the grants to schools made by the Counties Council show a total increase of $10,000 over the amount exnended in 1924.

The school rate in Hastings at present is 13 mills for Public and eight mills for Separate School supporters.

C.N.R. Changes.

Superintendent McMillan of the Belleville Peterborough branch of the C.N.R. was here in his private car yesterday arranging for some changes that the Railway Commission has ordered in the tracks in the local yard. The law provides that all sidings shall be 13 feet from the centre of the main line and to meet this regulation there must be a shift in some of the spurs here.

Reflooring the Bridge.

The repairing of the bridge, which is a part of the county road system, and the cost of which will be paid by the counties, is well under way, the special committee of the Counties Council in charge of the work being Reeve Hess and Deputy Reeve Nelson of Percy. Ordinary plank flooring on this bridge lasts about four years and the joints make the surface rough for traffic. This time the flooring is to be made permanent. First plank that has been submitted to the creosote process, is put down and this is covered with tarvia. The crushed stone required has been purchased from the Ontario Rock Company near Havelock and the committee saved money by having this delivered by motor truck instead of by freight train. When the bridge is completed the town will have a structure that will last indefinitely. The work is being done by day labor instead of by contract.

Wilson Family Re-union.

Every member of the Wilson family, to which Alex. Wilson, the village clerk, belongs, is visiting here with one exception, the first time so many of them have been together, since their childhood days in Norwood vicinity and in Hastings. The visitors are: J. K. Wilson, for merly in business here and now of Regina, where he holds the position of Fire Commissioner for Saskatchewan, Thomas Wilson of Drayton, North Dakota, where he is in the banking business, and Mrs. R. W. Weir and Mrs. W. Hart, of Toronto. The two latter are the guests of their sister, Mrs. William Fleming of town, while the brothers are stopping at the home of the village clerk. The absent member is Mrs. J. Harper, of Edmonton.

Hastings Personals.

Miss Thelma Davis and Miss Eva Bell, of Toronto, are guests at the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Hess.

Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Hess, accompanied by Miss Thelma Davis, of Toronto, and Miss Hazel McDonald of town, motored to Cobourg, where Dr. Hess attended a special session of the Counties Council.

Clifford Hess is visiting in Toronto.

BALLOON RACE WINNER.

AKRON, Ohio., July 25. — (Canadian Press). — The Akron Chamber of Commerce entry in the Junior National Balloon race of last Saturday was declared winner of the event yesterday. The bag landed near Lydonvill, N. Y., after traveling 223 miles.

The Akron Rotary Club balloon took second place, landing at Toronto, 217 miles away.

WOMEN'S PICNIC AT CAVAN HOME

Millbrook Institute's Business and Social Sessions at Mrs. H. A. Earle's House.

MILLBROOK, July 25.—The annual picnic, under the auspices of the Women's Institute, was held on Thursday afternoon, Mrs. H. A. Earle, 4th Line, Cavan, extending the hospitality of her home for the gathering.

The Orono Institute was invited to join with Millbrook for the outing, but owing to other events intervening, was unable to accept the invitation. Fifty or more members and friends of the local organization were present, and a thoroughly good time was enjoyed.

The regular business session was held in the living room, the president, Mrs. C. Thorndyke, occupying the chair, and at its conclusion adjournment was made to the lawn where the sports' programme was carried out.

The wide verandahs were most convenient for those who preferred social converse to the games, races, etc., but everyone took part in the guessing contests prepared by Mrs. W. Armstrong. For the first one a mysterious parcel was passed around, each person writing on a slip of paper her guess as to what it contained, and for the second the number of beans in a glass jar gave opportunity for exercising the imagination as account was kept of the various guesses regarding the total contents. Five persons had to draw for the prizes in the first instance, the winners being: Mrs. John Rowland, Mrs. G. Berry, and Miss Martha Lunn. Mrs. Hawthorne came the nearest to the correct number in the second case.

The spirit of merriment ran high for those who went to the big barn and were weighed, hazarding a guess as to the avoirdupois of the heaviest ones giving rise to some lively competition. Those members to whom Nature had not been generous in the matter of flesh had no part in this contest, other than seeing fair play extended in the course of the friendly rivalry.

The high wind made it impossible to carry out the plan of serving the picnic tea on the lawn, but tables were laid in the house, so that everyone, except the waiters, could sit down at once, and a jolly social time was enjoyed as the meal proceeded.

A game of ball for the younger folk after supper, followed by formal dismissal within doors, Mrs. Thorndyke presiding, with a hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Earle for her generous hospitality, brought the gathering to a close.

Among the guests were Mrs. Larmer, Sr., the hostess' mother, whom all were delighted to see so improved in health, taking a keen interest in the social occasion, and enjoying the reunion with friends and neighbors.

The suggestion that an effort be made to include all the Institutes of the district in the annual outing another year will probably be entertained.

Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Oliphant of Montreal were recent guests of her aunt, Mrs. C. M. Westmacott, the former assisting with the services of the parish on Sunday.

Misses Estelle Hetherington, Marjorie Skitch, Marjorie Sayles, and Messrs. W. G. Hetherington, J. Larmer, E. Burnham, and G. Elson motored to Orono on Wednesday evening for the district debate between Millbrook and Tyrone Leagues.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thorndyke have announced the engagement of their eldest daughter, Kathleen Isabel, to Mr. Edward A. Hill, B.A., of Winnipeg. The marriage will take place in August.

Mrs. Leonard McNeil nee Miss Luella Staples), is receiving for the first time since her marriage, at her home 8th Line, Cavan, on Tuesday and Wednesday, August 11 and 12, both afternoon and evening.

Mr. T. H. Aiken has been visiting friends in Gananoque this week.

Miss Helen Staples will teach at Cedar Valley next year; Miss Anna Hawthorne at Carmel; Miss Florence Fallis at the Marsh, and Miss L. M. Stutt is expected to again have the Fairview School, 4th Line, Cavan.

Rev. G. S. Gervan has accepted a call to Chalk River, near Pembroke, in Eastern Ontario, and will take his first service as pastor on Sunday, August 2.

The annual picnic of St. Thomas' Sunday School will be held at Wallace's Point, Otonabee River, on Thursday, July 30, and that in connection with the Sunday School of the United Church on Thursday, August 6, at the same place.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Dunford and family of Oshawa, who have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Smith, returned home on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Burnham and family, joined friends from Peterborough for an outing at Wedlocks', Otonabee River on Thursday.

Mrs. T. H. Aiken is visiting her sister, Mrs. J. Lang, Peterborough.

DEATH SENTENCE REVIVED IN CUBA

After 19-Year Lapse the Garrote Will Be Used Again.

HAVANA, July 25.—(Associated Press).—Capital punishment, unknown in Cuba since 1906, is to have a revival. President Machado, recently stated that all future death sentences will be executed. Two cases, both from Pinar del Rio, have been confirmed by the criminal section of the Supreme Court, sentencing Valentin Martinez and Nazario Hernandez to death.

"I have not yet received the sentence which condemns to death Martinez," said Secretary of Justice Barraque, "but if there exists no reason to the contrary, it is certain that the President and his Secretary of Justice will inflexibly comply with the law.

"And the sentence of death of our courts, to whose majesty we all have profound respect, will be complied with quickly and without procrastination, in the form which our legislation places in force."

Secretary of the Presidency Virato Gutirrez, in an emphatic statement, said the President intended to sanction the sentence as soon as it reaches him, and does not intend to commute any death sentences imposed by the courts, but will see that they are carried out.

Closely following the statement of Secretary Gutierrez was the action of the Supreme Court in confirming a second death sentence which the Audiencia Court of Pinar del Rio had imposed on Nazario Hernandez of Pinar del Rio.

Valentin Martinez was tried and convicted for the murder of his wife, Pauda Ledesma, on the night of March 29, 1923, in Candelaria, Pinar del Rio Province.

Nazario Hernandez was given the supreme penalty for the killing of his illegimate daughter in Pinar del Rio, during November, 1923. The child's mother was Rosalina Lopez, sister of his wife.

The last man to die by the garrote, Cuba's death chair, was Juan Capin of La Lisa, near Havana, convicted and sentenced for the murder of his nephew. Capin, the twentieth in Cuba, to pay the death penalty, was executed on June 12, 1906, by Patricio Lopez, called "El Gallego Colorado," (the red Galician), the official executioner. Since that time an executioner has held office, he being always a long term convict, whose sentence is shortened for each execution. The present executioner, Antonio de Paula Romero, was appointed June 12, 1922.

The garrote is a relic of the Spanish regime, and furnishes almost painless death to the victim. The criminal is seated in a chair, with his back against a post, and a brass collar, the garrote, is placed about his neck. In this collar is inserted a screw, at the point where it touches the back of the neck. The executioner turns the screw, and the spinal column of the condemned man snaps in two, producing death. A quarter to a half turn is sufficient.

About six years ago a bill prohibiting the garrote, substituting life imprisonment for capital punishment, passed the Senate. No action was taken in the House of Representatives, however, until recently, when the bill was dug out of a mass of tabled legislation, and attempts were made to place it on the calendar. The House, at the close of the last session of Congress on June 30, had taken no further action.

ESKIMOS CHANGE HABITS OF LIVING

Have Become Improvident By Contact With Whites.

REGINA, Sask., July 25.— That the Eskimos in far Northen Canada were becoming a real problem was the word of Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior here Friday. The incursion of the white man into those teritories was partly blamed for the falling from grace of the Aboriginies, the Minister declaring that the native providence of the Eskimo was giving way to improvidence, the result being that when difficult times came he was without stores of food and supplies he formerly used to provide and became in danger of starvation. The plains Indians, the Minister further declared, were less troublesome to his department than the bush Indians of the northern territories and generally were in better circumstances.

INDIAN COMMITTED.

Charged With Capital Offence Against Girl.

HULL, Que., July 25. — Frank Wabi, 56 year old Algonquin Indian from Baskatong Reserve, was ordered held for trial on a grave immoral charge by Judge Roland Millar, in Hull police Court Friday.

The offence charged is punishable by death.

Wabi will be transferred to Bordeaux jail at Montreal to await trial at the next term of Hull assizes. His arrest and accusation grew out of the death of eight-year-old Angeline Beaugage, half-breed Indian girl from Baskatong, who died at Maniwaki in June last, the result of alleged criminal attacks she claimed the Indian made upon her.

RAKES GOVERNMENT

Danish Explorer Criticizes the Privilege Granted MacMillan Party.

COPENHAGEN, July 25.—The Danish explorer, Peter Freuchen, launches a violent newspaper attack on the Danish government for permitting the American explorer, MacMillan, to search the ruins of Viking homesteads in Greenland on terms hitherto refused to highly reputed Danish explorers.

Freuchen winds up his attack by saying that while Amundsen remained unheard from, any attempt at saving him—even by MacMillan—might have been tolerated, but now that Amundsen is safe there is no reason to grant MacMillan any facilities.

FRENCH TO DISCUSS DEBT IN SEPTEMBER

Caillaux Planning to Visit London and Washington.

PARIS, July 25 — The experts who have been working on the French debt to Great Britain are continuing their consultations with the British experts. Finance Minister Caillaux yesterday informed the cabinet that the situation was expected to be ripe for discussion of details of a settlement early in September, when M. Caillaux will go to London to take up the matter with Winston Spencer Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer.

The commission to consider the funding of the United States debt will then, it is thought, also be ready to start for the United States to talk over France's debt to that country and, unless the situation then seems such that M. Caillaux cannot be absent from France for trhee or four weeks, he will head the commission.

NEW PILOT SHIP.

Larger Vessel Ordered For Port of Halifax.

OTTAWA, July 25.— (Canadian Pres.) — The Governor-in-Council has authorized the construction of a larger pilot vessel for the port of Halifax. The sum to be expended is to be refunded by the pilots at the rate of $1,300 per annum, the total amount of $26,000 to be returned within 20 years. The recommendation of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, states that the present pilot vesels in use at Halifax are inadequate and that the pilots are not financially in a position to build an up-to-date powerful vesel, able to stay at sea at all times. The sum not to exceed $26,000 for the construction of a vessel, is payable out of the Parliamentary appropriation for "the administration of pilotage."

HI-JACKERS ROUT AND ARE ROUTED

Four Things Scare Off Three Bootleggers and Police Scare Them.

DETROIT, Mich., July 25 —(Canadian Press). — Liquor valued at $20,000 was seized and four hijacker who had seized the liquor from three men, said to have brought it in from Walkerville, were captured yesterday by State police.

The police say that boot-leggers landed the liquor on the dock and that they were immediately routed by four heavily armed men, who assumed charge of the consignment.

When the state police approached the hi-jackers ordered them to throw up their hands. Lieut. Gillette identified himself and all of them dropped their weapons and surrendered without a shot being fired. Five weapons were recovered. The men taken into custody are: James Casuro, Joseph Catalina, Joseph Loracana and James Licata.

A 45 foot launch worth $8,500- al, so seized as well as a small truck and touring car belonging to the hi-jackers.

SUMMARY JUSTICE GIVEN ASSAILANTS

Mexican Troops Shoot Bandits Found Attacking Two Women.

MEXICO CITY, July 25.—(Special By United Press.) —Federal troops dealt summary justice to baldits whom they found assaulting two women Friday.

Two dark skinned women, believed to be Syrians, were peddling goods in the oil district around Tampico, when they were set upon by a band of ruffiians. In a quarrel which fololwed a drunken orgy around a camp fire, several of the band stabbed the women to prevent their being carried away by other members of the crew.

While the bloody assault was progressing soldiers closed in on the bandits, all of whom were executed on the spot. One woman, it was found, had been killed. The other victim was removed to a hospital.

EARL HAIG IS IN QUEEN CITY

Soldier Veterans Welcome Inspection of Field Marshal.

VISITS HOSPITAL.

TORONTO, July 25 Canadian Press).—Toronto received yesterday and continues to entertain today Field Marshal Earl Haig, former commander in chief of British forces in the Great War, he took part yesterday in veteran, provincial and civic functions. Against a background vibrant with the rhythm and color of martial display, Field Marshal Earl Haig last night received—and was received by—soldier veterans of Toronto. A reception was held in the Exhibition Park and fifteen thousand people crowded the grounds.

Field Marshal Earl Haig spent an hour or two this morning at the Christie Street Military Hospital, where hundreds of crippled and sick soldiers of Canada in the Great War are still confined. The enthusiasm displayed as the war commander of the British Army passed through the wards, left no uncertain impression of the loyalty, confidence and esteem in which the broken "boys of the old brigade" held their commander of those hectic days. The Field Marshal exemplified without reserve his characteristic sympathy with the maimed and bed ridden. He made his visit one of cherished memory for the inmates of the hospital. Earl Haig later left by steamer for Hamilton, Ont., where he was a guest of honor of that city at noon. This afternoon, he may drive to Niagara Falls. Tonight Earl Haig will return to Toronto to attend a dinner at Government House. Lady Haig has expressed her intention of leaving Toronto this afternoon by aeroplane for Niagara Falls, after attending a luncheon given in her honor by the women's organizations of that city.

STUTTGART, July 25.—(Associated Press).—The "German Ring" has been created as a new distinction by the Foreign German Institute. This finger-ring is to be accorded every year to such a person who has merited the distinction by reason of having served the German cause abroad in some special form.

CASE WITHDRAWN.

Matrimonial Troubles of Singer Heir Won't Be Aired.

NEW YORK, N. Y., July 25. — (United News.)—The family squabbles of an heir to part of the $44,000,000 Singer Sewing Machine fortune wil not be aired in public.

Arthur K. Bourne, Jr., arraigned in Harlem court Friday on charges of striking his young wife with whom he eloped three years ago, was discharged when Mrs. Bourne announced her desire to withdraw her complaint.

PLAYFUL PACHYDERM DONATES ABLUTIONS

14 Years Fail to Erase Joys of First Bath.

VIENNA, July 24. — Associated Press. — A decree issued by the late Emperor Francis Joseph 14 years ago, recently was vacated and the act which caused the issuance of the decree immediately was repeated by the one punished by it. The victim of the aged Emperor's wrath was "Maidy," the female elephant, born at Schoenbrunn Zoological Gardens in Vienna, Ju. 17, 1906.

When about five years old "Maidy" was being admired on day by party which included a lady-in-waiting at the royal court. Filling her trunk from the great concrete tank which had been provided for her, "Maidy" blew the water straight into the face of the lady-in-waiting. When the Emperor heard of the mishaviour he ordered the elephant's tank covered and condemned "Maidy" to go without a bath for the remainder of her life.

It happened that the 19th anniversary of the elephant's birth last month was a warm day and those now in charge of affairs in Austria, figuring that no danger could come from vacating the late Emperor's decree, restored "Maidy's" bathing tank The big beast plainly showed her delight with her first plunge in 14 years.

That plunge apparently recalled her last previous one, and "Maidy" perhaps thinking it part of the programme as before, immediately filled her trunk with water and then emptied it into the face of the park inspector and half a dozen of his friends who had assembled to watch her get reacquainted with the tank. This time, however, the offense was overlooked.

AMERICAN GERM IN THEATRE OF FRANCE

U. S. Pictures Infecting Europe and Killing Legitimate Stage.

BERLIN, July 25.—(Associated Press).—America is setting its imprint upon the French theatre quite as much as upon that of Germany or of Austria, in the opinion of Hellmuth Barnick, critic, writing in the Lokal Anzeiger.

"America is the bacillus," he observes, "which is infecting Europe. One notices this in Paris quite as much as in Berlin or Vienna. What Itallan would have thought of producing 'Aida' in the open air outside of Vienna for an audience numbering tens of thousands, were it not for the fact that New York transformed a church into a theatre, and made a theatre into a church? America with its super-European dimensions simply kills the theatre halls that have been kept up since the days of baroque. At Hollywood America builds up the while inner city of Paris in order to film the photoplay 'Notre Dame.' America cracks the whip in the Casino de Paris and in the Olympia, and all Paris applauds."

BRITISH AND TURKS.

GENEVA, July 25 — (Canadian Press).— Neither British nor Turk will be satisfied with the League of Nations Mosul Commission recommendation, exceeding 100 pages which will be presented to League Council, August 1, for consideration at the September session according to reliable information received by correspondents.

It is understood that the commission favours giving the village of Mosul to the British because it found the majority of dwellers in the surrounding territory, including Kerkouk, pro-British.

Features Which Out-Chrysler Past Chrysler Results

Increased Power—Approximately 10 per cent more torque, giving 70 miles per hour with greater ease and quickness than ever before.

Greater Acceleration—5 to 25 miles in 7 seconds, power enough to climb the steepest grades and pull through deepest mud or sand, from refined power plant with a crankshaft of 50 per cent greater torsional rigidity.

Remarkable Fuel Economy—Carburetion improved to deliver 24 and more miles per gallon of gasoline, notwithstanding increased power and acceleration.

No Vibration—Larger seven-bearing crankshaft and scientifically balanced rotating parts completely smooth out periodic vibration which ordinarily would result from increased power.

Still Easier Gear Shifting—Softer-operating clutch and larger transmission gears to compensate added power give still easier-and-smoother shifting.

Improved Rear Axle—Ring gears and pinions are larger; differential carrier heavier to handle increased engine power.

Distinctive Color Combinations—Body colors, in duco, are the most attractive and tasteful ever offered. Chrysler-designed, Fisher-built closed bodies are further refined; attractively low and gracefully rounded.

As other cars strive to draw close to the Chrysler Six—the Chrysler Six pulls farther and farther away.

To emulate Chrysler Six appearance is a privilege almost any one can exercise.

But to approach Chrysler Six performance even distantly is an achievement which Chrysler engineering and Chrysler manufacturing facilities will continue to render difficult to the point of impossibility.

If there was a thrill in Chrysler Six performance before—and the whole world knows there was—that thrill is immeasurably accentuated now.

In spite of almost overwhelming public approval—in spite of a sales success surpassing anything in the history of the industry—in spite of complete and deep-seated satisfaction on the part of more than 53,000 owners—

Walter P. Chrysler and his staff of engineers have never relaxed for a moment their labors to emphasize and enhance the wonderful performance qualities of the Chrysler Six.

Where before there was power beyond the highest ability of any engine of equal size, now there is increased power, in prodigal plenty—power that the average owner will probably never use to its full extent more than two or three times during his ownership.

Where before get-away and acceleration were swift, they are even swifter now.

The 70-mile speed was always in leash at the tip of your toe—but now, with greater power, it is more easily and more quickly reached.

In smoothness, Chrysler engineers now actually excel the former super-smoothness introduced by Chrysler.

The beauty [illegible] by Chrysler—and which still belongs to Chrysler alone—is re-expressed in refined and attractive body lines and new body colors, with Chrysler-designed closed bodies built by Fisher.

Chrysler pioneered in providing a degree of performance, quality and riding comfort which began to render obsolete the heavy, older-fashioned, costly vehicles; and it now goes even farther, with more alloy steels than before, and with the still higher quality which increased production makes possible.

Chrysler pioneered in designing bodies and creating new beauty on the basis of dynamic symmetry.

Chrysler pioneered the light, compact quality six, combining utmost convenience with generous roominess—with low center of gravity—with the center line pivot steering which makes the car delightfully easy to handle—with seven-bearing crankshaft—with thermostatic control of motor heat for maximum efficiency—with hydraulic four-wheel brakes to assure safety—with a new scientific spring suspension which prevents sidesway.

Chrysler pioneered, almost two years ago, in providing the Purolator—a filter which removes all impurities from the crankcase oil as the motor runs—and set an example which is now being generally followed.

Today's Chrysler Six puts an interpretation on performance, quality, agility, and a riding ease enhanced by Watson stabilators, as far in advance as was the original Chrysler interpretation almost two years ago.

We are eager to have you drive this new Six for yourself.

If you will do that, you will realize as we do that there is nothing in the present market, and nothing likely to appear, to equal the Chrysler Six.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

Dear Annie Laurie:

I am about to be married and we are to have a double ring ceremony.

Is it the bride's place to buy the groom's ring or does the groom buy both rings? —Ignorance.

Ignorance: Since the ring is a gift from the bride to the groom and vice versa, the bride buys the groom's ring, and he hers.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

We are two young girls in our teens We have been going with two young men for about a year. They object to our going with other young men.

Please advise us whether we should or shouldn't give up our other friends. LONELY AND BLUE.

LONELY AND BLUE: Indeed, I will be glad to advise you in this matter The question of whether or not a girl should give up her friends when she is especially interested in one man has come up time and again and I want to settle it right here. It is unnecessary and unwise for anyone—man or woman—to limit his friendships until he or she is engaged to be married. Any friend who asks that you devote all your time to him when you are not engaged, is making a very selfish and unreasonable demand on your time, my dears. Talk to these young men and tell them that you have the privilege of meeting your other friends, and that you feel you should avail yourself of this privilege. If you are tactful and kindly in your tone they will not be offended and you will have gained your point.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

We are two girls who do not like petting parties. All our friends do. And they consider us very old-fashioned. BLUE AND BROWN EYES.

BLUE AND BROWN EYES: Those people who expect you to violate conventions which you hold to be sacred are not worthy of your friendship, my dears. Because you have regard for the wholesome virtues is no reason why should be termed "old-fashioned." I suggest that you tell your friends very frankly how you feel about this. If they are tolerant enough to appreciate your viewpoint, continue your friendship with them. If, on the other hand, they still persist in being disagreeable, join a church club or lecture class where you will meet people who respect you and who are congenial.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this office.

SOME NEW HOUSEHOLD CONVENIENCES OF MERIT

The offerings of modern shops have their educational value. Housewives are thoroughly awake to the gospel of labor-saving.

Almost every housewife makes ice cream at home. A white canvas bag and wooden mallet is fine to crack the ice. It saves wetting everything up and confusion in preparation. Then, the small vacuum freezer requires no turning. The freezing takes care of itself, though it may be wise to open the freezer and scrape down the sides once or twice during the freezing. In fact, there is a new version of the vacuum freezer this year that has a small paddle and crank that is turned once in a while. This freezer is fastened permanently in a wooden bucket that is bottomless, and the freezer is filled with the ice and salt at the bottom the same as the other freezer. The two-quart is the most popular size.

The pretty straw table-mat sets are to be had now in square shapes as well as round. They replace the linen sets, or even the seats of painted oilcloth. The mats are lightly but firmly woven by their Japanese and Chinese manufacturers, and should they becomes with salad oil or other greases, can be easily scrubbed with white soap, lukewarm water and a small brush. They are rinsed in clear water, then dried on a flat surface so that they do not curl, in any way. They may be used a long time before it is necessary to scrub them, though they may be brushed off and wiped with a clean [illegible] meal.

To those who have not seen them, the Japanese willow garden or lawn rake will be a revelation. The rake is shaped like a palm leaf fan, with deep woven teeth across the end, and with a bamboo handle. They are light, efficient, nice for a woman to handle.

The wide and varied use of aluminium has sounded the death knell of things made in other wares. Small and flat tableware for kitchen use looks almost as well as plated ware and is much more easily cleaned. The ware is to use on the servant's table or for cooking. Many people are also taking it to shore and mountain cottages.

AS YOU LIKE IT

When you sit down for a quiet smoke in the twilight, and the blue smoke swirls around your head, what wonderful pictures you envisage! Would you have it any different? Certainly not! When the fair faces which have caught your fancy appear one after another softened and sweetened by the thoughts which prompt their visioning, it's hard to decide which one is to be The One. But it's "as you like it"—each one there before you that you may think and decide which it is to be. But Love will prompt the decision, and the four will eventually narrow down to one—then you'll know your fate.

A FASHION MODEL'S DIARY

By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE DESCRIBES A YOUTHFUL DANCE FROCK.

Madame came into the shop to-day, and the doorman followed her with an interesting looking package.

Madame seated herself on a divan, removed her hat and began to fan vigorously with it. After a minute she said:

"I've just been down to the Customs House, had to look up a package I've been expecting from abroad."

I raised an inquiring eyebrow and glanced at the box on the floor.

"Yes, I got it all right," Madame answered. "How about a pair of shears?"

I had soon produced them, and in no time we were removing the layers of tissue from the contents of the box.

I was so excited I could hardly wait, and I gave an exclamation of pleasure when I saw what the box had held.

Madame held up the material, which was shimmering taffeta that shaded from a light pink, through gradually deepening shades, to a deep cerise.

"Isn't it delightfully unusual for an evening dress?" Madame asked.

I agreed with her that it was, and she explained her plan to me. She said:

"One of the young players in the new musical comedy that is opening next Monday night wanted a smart dance frock, and I've been hoping this would come in time to use it."

"How will you make it?" I asked..

For an answer Madame said:

She [illegible] a little in doubt as to the exact outline of the dress, so Madame took a pencil and made a hasty sketch.

"The bodice will be square-necked and sleeveless," she said. "It will be made from the light pink. The skirt will begin with light pink and show the varying shades."

I was delighted with the idea, and Madame seemed in a great hurry to begin. She had someone telephone immediately to make an appointment with the actress.

This Taffeta Model Frock Shades from Light Pink to Cerise.

"It will help her a lot in the play to have such an unusual looking dress," Madame remarked in a pleased tone.

"I shall suggest that if she isn't the hit of the evening it isn't your fault," I said to Madame with a smile.

About Ourselves And Other People

By Winifred Black

WHY MEN WHO PLAY DON'T HAVE HYSTERICS

Charlotte Perkins Stetson Gillman, the clever lady with the long name hasn't much use for men.

She says they are unreasonable, and she thinks they are stupid and she has written an article saying that men are nothing but little boys—never were and never will be.

"Look at the way they go crazy about games, says Mrs. Gillman—"Imagine a six foot man going perfectly will about a baseball game and making some baseball player a hero."

Mrs. Gillman has a good deal more to say about men than this but I want to talk about the little boys grown up idea.

It's true in a way—most of the things Mrs. Gillman says, are true, in a way, but somehow I don't always like the way—do you?

Men do act like boys a lot of the time. They never seen to grow up as women do.

What would you think if you went in to see your dearest friend or your dearest foe either for that matter, and found her sitting on the floor playing with paper dolls as she did when she was seven years old.

But you think nothing of hearing your brother or your father or your husband go raving crazy over somebody's home run, just as he did when he was seven.

And if he could—that husband of yours would fly kites every March. Oh, yes he would, if he wasn't afraid of what the neighbors might say—and you know your father neglects his business to go out and play golf every afternoon of his life, time or no time, money or no money.

Would you leave your baking—would you forget a cake in the oven or a short-cake in the making and run over to your neighbors to see somebody play "Andy, Andy over" or "Three Old Cat?"

You certainly would not and if you did, your friends would say that you were simple minded.

Men,—Oh men are different—very different. No matter how old they are, or how gray they are or how rich they are or how poor they are or how wise they are or how dull they are, they never forget how to play.

And there's where men have the advantage of women. That's where they show their plain everyday common-sense. The man who plays games doesn't have hysterics—that's one thing. I know a woman who loves to go gypsying and go she will, rain or shine, ill or well, tired or rested and there is something fresh and childlike and interested and interesting in that woman that makes me think of a man.

Here's to the men and here's hoping they will never learn to grow up.

The more they are like little boys, they better I like them.

Let's Talk It Over

THE PRIZE FOOL AND ANY TWO WOMEN.

Who's the fool—the woman who accepts the married man's attention or the wife who pretends not to see them? The giggling, boastful "vamp" or the silent, "stupid" wife?

The Telephone Girl has been listening in" on the Married Man's telephone calls, and she's feeling a little guilty and more than a little confused. She wants to know what we think of the situation.

I being an exchange operator at a switchboard hear and see many things. What is your opinion of a man about forty, married ten years, who brings flowers from his garden to the girls in the office?

To a certain girl he not only brings flowers but candy, too. He takes her out to lunch and she boasts about it to the others. She knows that he is married. When his wife calls up, this girl comes to me and asks me to give her a line so that she can listen in.

I do feel guilty, but I can't tell all I know. The poor wife believes him when he says he has to work late. I was telling my mother how dreadful I felt to know all this and not tell the poor wife just how her husband is deceiving her.

Mother says that a man can do these things for a little while but that soon he pays for it; mother says both the man and the girl will pay for it good when they are found out. But who do you really think is the fool? The wife of the man or the girl that works with me? Sometimes I think the girl is when I hear the man call his wife pet names—other times I think the wife is the fool. What do you think?

WORRIED.

Who's the fool? Well, that's hard to say, little girl. It's a good idea to "believe nothing you hear and only half of what you see." As telephone operator "listening in" my advice to you is to hear as little as you can, and to let what you do hear flit in one little pink ear and out the other.

To allow another employee to "listen in" is inexcusable. You are violating all the ethics of your profession, and incidentally jeopardizing your job.

Yes, I know that other operators do it and I know the girl will be "mad" if you refuse to let her but it's up to you to do the square thing, regardless of what other folks do. Eavesdropping over the telephone is no prettier vice than eavesdropping through the keyhole or peeping into a window. It's contemptible and you can't afford to be a party to it.

So far as telling what you know is concerned, remember that officially you know "nothing." Practically, you know very little. And that the important thing about it all is that the whole affair does not concern you and your knowledge of it all can only be a dangerous thing, as is a little knowledge about anything. To warn the wife of what you suspect would be both unwise and unkind.

There are times when ignorance is bliss. There are others when ignorance is assumed. For all you may know to the contrary the "poor wife" may have chosen to ignore her husband's escapades or she may have two detectives on his trail, and the divorce papers ready to serve. The "vamp" may be an outrageous liar magnifying an innocuous, silly flirtation. We don't know and it's not for us to say.

GOOD MANNERS

People do not greet each other in church, except at a wedding. At weddings people speak to friends near them, but in a low tone of voice.

HOME TOWN RECIPE.

Whole green tomatoes pickled, have been described by those who have sampled them as being particularly appetizing. A recipe for preparing them is from Mrs. A. J. MacPherson, 533 Patterson street, who says the process is not nearly as difficult as might appear from the formula:

Take a large basket of green tomatoes (of good size, but not ripe) and peel without breaking the skins. Bring to a boil in slightly salted water. Then put the tomatoes in a colander and allow to drain over night. In the morning put a whole clove in the centre of each tomato, and place in a syrup made of one quart of vinegar and five pounds of sugar. Bring to a boil, then let stand in the syrup for twenty-four hours. Heat again, and bottle.

Jumbo Frocks

NEW YORK, July 25 (United Press). —Jumbo frocks, which are jumper frocks adorned with embroideried elephants are featured by a Fifth Avenue shop. These frocks, designed by Lanvin, come in white, tangerine and purple and large elephants embroideried in soft gray and silver trim the front of the blouse portion.

Violet is one of the most popular daytime shades of the season. The younger set have adopted this color as their own and both blonds and brunettes seem to find it becoming. Usually where violet is used for the frock, the hat is of exact shade in either felt or straw.

Shoes, hats, hosiery and handbags of blond or light beige shades are popular with Summery frocks of plain or printed fabrics. Occasionally gray accessories are chosen where the frock is of gray tone. White accessories are seldom worn except with the white frock.

Sport frocks on one-piece lines made of shirting silk or radium are the accepted style for sports wear. Light pastel such as green, yellow, orchid or white piped in color are most popular. Front panels of pintucks, jabots and string belts give them a tailored effect. Hats match the shade of the frock in most cases and shoes and hosiery are of light beige or blond shade.

'Modernistic art in dress' is being stressed by many New York shops. Bold designs appli[illegible] solid backgrounds of the [illegible]. A bathing suit, for instance, has an appliqued lighthouse in vivid shades set at a slanting angle on the bodice. A white sports frock has a handblocked design in numerous colors on the skirt and it labeled 'Mid-Summer Night's Dream.' Huge appliqued animals adorn otherwise plain and simple frocks. Nothing is startling these days.

RACE CLASSIC AT GOODWOOD

Exclusive Meet Over England's Finest Course Favors Two-Year-Olds.

SUSSEX SOUTH DOWNS

LONDON, Eng., July 25.—(Canadian Press).—Ranking with the outstanding flat race events of the season is the four-day meet at "Glorious Goodwood" which opens this year on Tuesday next, July 28, closing on July 31. Goodwood is the finest race-course in England, and the meet is the season's most exclusive, more so even than Royal Ascot. Several races of recognized and long-established importance are on the programme, chief among them the Steward's Cup handicap, the Goodwood Stakes, the Goodwood Cup and Chesterfield Stakes.

A feature of the Goodwood meet is the prominence accorded the two-year-olds. Among the several early closing races of value for the youngsters are the Ham Produce Stakes; Prince of Wales' Stakes; Lavant Stakes and Rous Memorial Stakes. The winner of the Rous Memorial Stakes last year was A. R. Cox's champion colt Picaroon, conceded the finest three-year-old at the beginning of this season, but who through injuries has not raced for months. Last year's winner of the Lavant Stakes was Lord Astor's still unbeaten filly, Saucy Sue, winner of two of this year's classics; and the winner of the Richmond Stakes was H. E. Morriss' Manna, who has won the Derby and Two Thousand Guineas this year. It will be seen that the Turf's finest two-year-olds are brought out at Goodwood.

The popular feature of the meet is the Steward's Cup, a handicap run over the six-furlongs course, established in 1840. Priory Park, the Duke of Richmond's three-year-old colt, is a favorite by virtue of the fact that he has been trained hard on his owner's demesnes right at Goodwood. Also to be reckoned with are the five-yearold Compiler, winner of the Cup last year, the three-year-old Silent Guard and S. W. Beer's crack three-year-old sprinter Diomedes.

Of the other important races the Goodwood Cup, established in 1812, is the oldest. It is run over a course of two miles, five furlongs. The Goodwood Stakes, a handicap of two miles, three furlongs, and the Chesterfield Cup, a mile and a quarter handicap, are the other valued races for the older classics.

Races of particular interest for three-year-olds are the Gordon Stakes, Nassau Stakes, King George Stakes and the mile Sussex Stakes. Sir John Rutherford's colt Solario promises to be a warm favorite for the latter, and if he goes to the post and wins he will be a popular choice for the classic St. Leger Stakes at Doncaster in September. In the King George Stakes Lord Astor's champion filly Saucy Sue can meet among the first class thoroughbreds Manna, winner of the Two Thousand Guienas and the Derby. Saucy Sue has won the other two classics, the Oaks and One Thousand Guineas, for fillies only, and interest will be intense if the two come together The race is a six-furlong one.

The course at Goodwood has one of the most beautiful settings in the kingdom. Placed high in the hills of the Sussex South Downs, with wooded uplands to the north, there is a stretch of open country to the waters of the English channel on the south and in the distance the purple hills of the Isle of Wight. Behind the stands is a magnificent plantation of beeches. The third Duke of Richmond established the meet for the public in 1735, and the present Duke of Richmond, who occupies Goodwood House, is responsible for the stands erected a few years back. The King and Queen or other members of the Royal Family are usually present at Goodwood during the meet.

Not An Earned Run in Game at Rochester—Reading Add a Pair.

BALTIMORE WIN.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., July 24 (Canadian Press).—The Tribe made it two in a row over the Leafs here this afternoon, when Herb Thormahlen bested Satterfield in a hurling duel, 3 to 0. There was not an unearned run in the pastime. The two outfits jump over to Toronto tonight for two games tomorrow, returning to Rochester Sunday for a second double-header. Score:

Toronto	000000000	0	8 2
Rochester	00000201x	3	9 2

Satterfield and Manion; H. Thormahlen and Lake.

Baltimore 3; Jersey City 2

JERSEY CITY, N.J., July 24 (Canadian Press).—Baltimore made it two straight over the Jersey City Club by winning today's game, 3 to 2. The Orioles won the game in the ninth after the Skeeters had rallied to tie the count in the eighth. Score:

Baltimore	002000001	3	11 1
Jersey City	100000010	2	6 1

Thomas and Cobb; Zellars and Freitag.

Buffalo 4; Syracuse 1.

BUFFALO, July 24 (Canadian Press).—Joe Lucey held the Syracuse Stars to five hits, one of the slight number being a home run by Niebergall, and winning his game by 4 to 1. Lucey was knocked out for a few minutes as the result of a collision with Ed. Miller, the pair coming together hard in attempting to field Taggert's slow roller in the eighth. Lucey finished strong after a sliht rest. Score:

Syracuse	000010000	1	5 1
Buffalo	10000201x	4	9 1

Day and Niebergall; Lucey and McAvoy.

Reading Win Twice.

READING, Pa., July 24 (Canadian Press).—Reading defeated Providence in two games today, 14 to 8, and 5 to 1. In the first game Providence used three pitchers and Reading four. Middleton, pinch-hitting for Smith, produced the needed punch in the second game to clinch the victory. Scores:

First Game.

Providence	000110600	8	16 0

Tomlin and Lynn; Wilson and Smith, McCarty.

OLD COUNTRY CRICKET

LONDON, July 24 (Canadian Press Cable).—In the County cricket championship games concluded today, Barnes and Watson of the Lancashire team each made a century. Following are the results of the matches:

Surrey defeated Sussex by an inning and 3 runs; Surrey 343 (Duest 91, Nowell 57, and Fender 80; Sussex 189 and 151 (A. E. Gilligan 60 not out).

Lancashire defeated Glamorgan by 105; Lancashire 241 (Barnes 103) and 265 for eight wickets, declared (Watson 113); Glamorganshire 166 and 254 (Davies 72).

The Hampshire-Middlesex game was drawn: Hampshire 224; Middlesex 196 for six wickets (Hendren 59, Mann 57, not out).

Somersetshire defeated Worcestershire on the first innings: Somerset shire 219 (Young 90) and 189 for seven wickets, declared (White 60, not out); Worcestershire 160 and 112 for seven wickets.

Essex defeated Kent on the first innings; Essex 157 and 64 for five wickets; Kent 43 and 29 for two wickets.

PIRATES GAIN ON THE GIANTS

Braves Beat New York While Pittsburgh Defeat St. Louis.

CUBS LOSE TO REDS.

PITTSBURGH, July 24 (Canadian Press).—Pittsburgh's grasp on first place in the National League tightened today when the Pirates defeated St. Louis, 5 to 3, while the Giants were losing to Boston. Rhem and Reinhart, Cardinal pitchers, were given ragged support. Max Carey, Pirate captain, had three hits and a stolen base to his credit. Score:

St. Louis	100100001	3	10 3
Pittsburgh	11200010x	5	10 1

Rhem, Reinhart and O'Farrell; Morrison and Gooch.

Boston 3; New York 1.

BOSTON, Mass., July 24 (Canadian Press).—Larry Benton held the Giants to seven scattered hits today and Boston defeated the champions, 3 to 1. The veteran Jack Scott started for the Giants, but was removed for a pinch-hitter in the eighth, Wisner taking up the pitching burden at this point. Score:

New York	000010000	1	7 1
Boston	00021000x	3	11 0

Scott, Wisner and Snyder; Benton and Seimer.

Reds 3; Cubs 1.

CHICAGO, July 24 (Canadian Press).—Cincinnati defeated Chicago 3 to 1 today by bunching hits off Cooper, one of which was a homer by Pinelli in the first inning. Luque allowed Chicago seven hits and eightened up in the pinches. Chicago's lone run was aided across the plate by an error by Caveney. This was Maranville's first appearance before the home fans as manager. Score:

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

The reason you delay the wrist action in the back swing is because you want it to be delayed in the forward swing—and you cannot think about such things while making the swing. The forward swing being a reverse of the back swing, it is obvious that the wrists breaking late in the back swing will also break late in the forward swing. In other words, the wrist action is the last thing to take place in the back swing and, in the reverse or forward swing, the wrists break last, as the clubhead nears the ball, and add their powerful snap of the clubhead into the ball. However, the clubhead must be in motion before this takes place—hence the delayed wrist action in the back swing. If you break the wrists quickly in the back swing they will break quickly at start of the forward swing and their power thus be spent while the clubhead is far away from the ball.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

LIVELY BALL MYSTERY

Who will solve the mystery of the lively ball?

The manufacturers suppiying same to the two major leagues insist there has been no change in the material used.

Despite this, the big league sluggers continue to make home runs with monotonous regularity.

In discussing the so-called lively ball, the manufacturers do state that possibly the uniformity of the yarn used, permitting the ball to be wound tighter, has something to do with increased hitting.

Once upon a time the yarn was bought from various sources, now it is produced by the makers of the ball in their own factory.

* * *

While home runs still produce a thrill, there is no longer the novelty to a circuit drive that once existed Its common rather than exclusive.

* * *

HOME RUN REACTION

I am of the opinion that sooner or later there will be a reaction to the epidemic of home runs.

Unquestionably the fans like hitting. However, it must be hitting, due to the superior ability of the batsman rather than the liveliness of the ball.

During the first eight weeks of the 1923 campaign the major leagues made 334 home runs. Last season there was a slight lull, only 295 circuit drives being registered.

This year the batters have again gone wild. In the same period of time 490 home runs have been made 253 in the National, 237 in the American.

Close to 200 more home runs have been made this year than last in the first eight weeks of play.

* * *

It is too great a margin to be charged to inferior pitching or increased batting power. The lively ball is the only way out to the solution.

* * *

FOUR-RUN MARGIN

"When I came into the major leagues,' remarked Pitcher Joe Bush to me recently, "if a pitcher acquired a four-run margin at any stage of the game it was supposed to be in.

"In other words, a pitcher who couldn't hold a four-run margin after his teammates had supplied him with that advantage, was simply terrible.

"But take it from me a four-run margin doesn't mean a thing to a major league pitcher any more.

"In a great many cases the home run is nothing more than a lazy fly which the outfielder could have easily caught had he the room to make the play."

* * *

There is no doubt but that the lively ball and the smaller playing fields have greatly increased the troubles of the major league pitcher.

* * *

TOO MUCH GOLF

More and more major league managers are becoming convinced that golf in large doses and baseball do not mix.

Two or three years ago Arnold Statz of the Chicago Cubs was a sensation in the National League. The other day he was sent back to the minors.

Statz is a star at golf. It is said he gave more thought to hitting hem from the tee than the home plate. His perfected golf swing took something from his baseball cut.

* * *

As a result his hitting slumped to a mere nothing. Too much golf unquestionably spoiled a promising big league career.

SPORT GOSSIP AND COMMENT.

Next week the Petes will hook up with Kingston in a most important series that will have a lot to say about first place in the league race. On Wednesday the Johnstonites invade Kingston and on Saturday the Ponies will be at Riverside Park. The two games should be about the most interesting of the season. The teams have broken even so far, each winning three at home and losing three on the other fellow's ground. Jeff Hardill, who has not worked against the Kingston crew, may draw the assignment in Wednesday's game, and if he does the big youngster should give the Ponies plenty to worry about.

* * * * * * * * *

The C.G.E. juniors have the edge in the Junior City League playoff series by reason of their easy victory on Thursday night. They have to win but one more game to earn the right to represent Peterboro in the O.B.A.A. play-offs, in which the Lakeviews have for two seasons brought home the Provincial honours. However, Lew Le Barr's team can play much better ball than they showed in Thursday's clash, and if they pull themselves together may yet make things interesting.

* * * * * * * * *

The Lakeviews, win or lose, have done more than their share for baseball here, and Lew Le Barr deserves the thanks of local fandom. In bringing two Ontario championships to Peterboro and developing such players as Frank Whitehouse and Fred. Ash, the Lakeviews deserve a prominent niche in the Hall of Fame.

* * * * * * * * *

Of last year's junior champions only Marchen, Halliday and Johnston remain. Whitehouse, although still young enough for the junior series, is helping the Petes in their battle for senior honours. First Baseman Le Barr, Shortstop Cameron and the entire outfield of last season, McIntyre, Whitlow, Ash and Griffin, are too old for junior company, and Catcher Collins is with the C.G.E.

* * * * * * * * *

By reason of the postponement of today's game, Oshawa and Kingston have a busy time next week, being called on to play Monday, Wednesday and Saturday. The fixture scheduled for today will be played at Oshawa on Monday evening.

* * * * * * * * *

Monday night's dance at Rye's, the first of two in aid of the Peterboro Hockey Club, should be largely attended. The second dance will be held a week from Monday, and tickets are on sale for both events. The Hockey Club is preparing for next winter's campaign and deserves the support of the public.

* * * * * * * * *

The first of August used to be a big day in hockey circles. This year it will merely mean that July has gone.

ENGLISH LINE BEAT RYLSTONE

Seymour League Ball Game at Lawn Social Ended 11-7.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 24.—In a Seymour League game, played at Rylstone lawn social on Thursday evening, English Line team defeated Rylstone 11 to 7 in six innings. The ground was rather rough, making the fielding of ground balls a difficut matter. Ibey was in good form in the box for Line, allowing only 6 hits, and striking out 11, while his team mates gave him good support, having only two errors which did not figure in scoring.

Neither team scored in the first. Ibey was out Spencer to Bateman, Daniel lined to Kerr; E. Godden reached first on Kerr's high throw but Craighead fanned. For Rylstone Bateman fanned, Heath reached first on a double error, Ibey tumbled and Maybee dropped his last minute throw, but the next two fanned. The second was the big innings. Diamond, first up, reached first, when Roy Fry threw high to the bag, went to second on Maybee's single. Maybee was caught on hidden ball trick, but Diamond reached third and scored on a passed ball. Little reached first on the catcher's second high throw and then the game opened wide for a few minute. K. Godden singled, Grills tripled to left; Ibey, Daniel, E. Godden, Graighead and Diamond singled in succession, sending 7 runs over the platter. Maybee reached first on Heath's error, but Little and K. Godden were both out to Dunk at centre. Rylstone got four back in their half. Ray Fry drew a walk, Roy Fry fanned, Fry scoring on a passed ball after stealing to third. Spencer singled, went to second on C. Barnum's sacrifice, stole third and scored on a passed ball. Kerr walked, went to second on passed ball, stole third and scored on Bateman's single to centre. Bateman stole to third and scored on Heath's single, but Dunk fanned to end the frame. The Line added three in the third. Grills singled, went to third on two passed balls, scoring on Ibey's single. Ibey stole to third, scoring on Daniel's double to centre, which Roy Fry missed after a hard run. Daniels went to third on E. Godden's single, and home on a passed ball. Craighead was out when Burkitt made a fine runing catch of his foul fly and the next two fanned. Rylstone went out in order in their half The Line added their final tally in the fourth. Little singled, stole second, went to third on K. Godden's sacrifice, and scored on Grill's single. Grills was forced at second on Ibey's hit and Ibey after stealing to third was tagged by Burkitt when he tried to score on Daniel's single. Rylstone got two more in their half. Spencer singled and stole to third, Barnum walked and stole second. These two scored on successive sacrifices by Kerr and Bateman. Heath was out at second on a pop fly. In the fifth Dunk, first up, reached for one of Ibey's high ones and singled to left, stole to third and scored on a passed ball. Burkitt and Ray Fry fanned. Sine was hit and stole to third, Spencer walked and stole second, but Barnum was out to centre. The Line wasted three hits in the sixth. Maybee singled but Little popped a short fly to Kerr, who doubled Maybee off first. K. Godden singled and Grills followed with a single, his fourth hit in as many trips to the plate, but Ibey was out at first. Rylstone failed to score in their half and darkness halted the game. This win puts English Line in undisputed possession of second place, while Rylstone will have to win both remaining games to get into third position with a chance at a play-off.

NO HIT, NO RUN GAME BY CRARY

Rotary Bantam Pitcher Set Down Athlete Batsmen.

SCORE 16-0.

A no-hit, no-run game was turned in by Crary, pitching for Rotary against Athletes in a Bantam game last night. He was given fine support, three errors being chalked up against the team. Twelve of the Athletes went out by the strike-out route and five were given free tickets to first base, where they were usually left stranded.

The Rotarians slammed out 16 hits off Killenbeck's offerings, making them good for sixteen runs. Five errors helped them to score.

Crary, besides hurling a splendid game, gave a good account of himself at the bat, as did Dormer and MacDonald. Cuffe held his picher up in splendid style.

VETERANS PLAN FIELD DAY FOR CIVIC HOLIDAY

Preliminary Arrangements Made for First Annual Community Fair.

FILLS BIG WANT

First Draft of Sports Shows Wide Selection and Many Prizes.

Preliminary arrangements were made last night at the hall of the Great War Veterans Association for the staging of a Community Fair in the Exhibition Grounds on the Civic Holiday, August 10, which will be repeated every year. In arranging this fair the War Veterans hope to swell their funds for the carrying on of their work during the winter and in addition to supply a long felt want in the life of the city on the annual holiday. The following programme of events was drawn up:

TRACK EVENTS.
Open Championships.
1st—100 yards.
2nd—880 yards.
3rd—1 mile.
4th—5 miles.
Open to Peterborough County Residents Only.
1st—220 yards.
2nd—440 yards.

Relay race, open to teams of four from any business, fraternal or industrial organization in Peterborough.

FIELD EVENTS.

Five or six aside football competion, open to all local clubs and teams from the 93rd, 21st, 2nd and 39th Battalions, to all militia units, English and Scottish Imperials, to compete for the G.W.V.A. Challenge Shield and individual prizes. This competition will be carried on from year to year.

Soft ball competition open to all fraternal organizations.

Tug of war. Open to C.G.E., Board of Works, Caledonians and G.W.V.A. This also to be an annual event.

High jump.

Long jump.

Novelty baseball match, each player to carry a raw egg while fielding or batting, two innings each.

Relay race, open to all schools.

Boys and girls teams of four.

A community dance will be held in the evening and a refreshment stall will be under the supervision of G.W.V.A.

All tickets to have stubs, and at conclusion of the day's sport a draw to take place.

The prizes for winning stub will be:

1st—One ton of coal.
2nd—One cord of wood.
3rd—A ham.

Dr. E. Wood offers a prize of $5 to the person entering in the greatest number of events.

It was decided to have a ticket selling competition among the school children who have passed the Entrance examination, the prize to be one year's training at high school.

It was also decided to approach various firms and individuals in the city, asking them to make donations of prizes.

The Kiwanis Club in response to a request had a representative at the meeting. Other fraternal organizations are being requested to co-operate with the Veterans in this enterprise.

ROSENEATH NOW IN THIRD PLACE

Beat Colborne 16-10 in Lakeshore Village—Have Good Chance.

WENT 11 INNINGS.

COLBORNE, July 25. — Roseneath climbed to third place in the Northumberland League on Wednesday here when they defeated the home team, 16 to 10, in an eleven inning game. The game was a good exhibition of baseball, although interspersed with a few costly errors. Warner for the home team pitched a good game, having twelve strikeouts to his credit. He passed six men and nearly all these meant runs as the visitors seemed able to deliver hits when they were needed. Outside of the second and fourth innings, he had the visitors well in hand until the ninth when he weakened, and Roseneath, who were then one run down, took advantage of it and scored three runs. In Colborne's half of the ninth, after Myles had singled, Mulhall drove a hard one out to right, which Varcoe just succeeded in touching with his glove and on the relay throw in Varcoe to Leach to Turner, Leach made a bad peg, the ball bounding over Turner's head and Mulhall was home with the tieing run. In the tenth, neither team scored, but in the eleventh the visitors got their batting togs on and, after they had scored three times and filled the bases again A. Zufelt drove a Texas leaguer over second. Hawkins came in fast to get it but missed, the ball going to deep centre, and when the dust had settled down Zufelt was on third and Roseneath had a six-run lead. Colborne went out in their half on the first three men up.

Zufelt pitched the entire game for the visitors, and turned in a splendid performance, striking out eight and passing three. With the exception of the fifth inning, he had the home team well in hand, allowing only three balls to be hit into the outfield, a into bright, two of which Varcoe got, one an easy one, and the other after a hard run. Mulhall's hit which was good for a homer had the ground in the outfield been good. Zufelt helped to win his own game by getting a triple, double and two singles in six times up. Armstrong and Leach led the visitors in runs, getting three each, while everyone helped. Myler get three for Colborne and Mulhall two.

The game was handled by Umpires Macklin and Cowie, and both gave very good satisfaction. This win gives Roseneath a gambling chance in the race, and after an eleven inning battle like this, next Wednesday's game between these two teams at Roseneath should be well worth seeing, as a loss will put Roseneath out and Colborne are going back to get their revenge for Wednesday.

The following is the line up:

Roseneath.—Dawson, lf; A. Zufelt, p; Davey, ss; K. Zufelt, 1b; Varcoe, rf; Leach, 2b; Armstrong, cf; Turner, 3b; Wilson c.

Colborne.—Hawkins cf; Bilcox, 3b; Myles, ss; Mulhall, 2b; Warner, p; Barfelt, rf; Haig, lf; Allan, 1b Maghew, c.

DICK AND FRENCH IN DOUBLES WIN FROM MAYNEORD-ELLIOTT

Game See-Sawed Throughout With Splendid Bowling Shown.

ENDS TOURNAMENT.

Winners Jump From Seven Down to Win Out By Two Shots.

Alex Dick and Bob French last night came out victors in the Scotch doubles competition in the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club annual tournament when they defeated Jack Mayneord and R. Elliott by 16 to 14 in the final.

Every end of the game had its thrill, the losers holding a seven point lead at the fourth end and a lead of six points at the tenth end. Then Dick and French came through with 8 points in the last four ends, enough to win by two points.

In the last end Mayneord had little choice. Dick was lying one and only a slim chance offered of cutting in between to even up the score.

The score by ends:

Dick and French	xx3x13x1xx14-21
Mayneord and R. Elliott	16x3xx2x11xx-xx

The 13th end was dead.

CHINESE NEEDS SPORT TRAINING

Lack Appreciation of True Sportsmanship — Losers Wrecked Building.

WINNERS CHASED

ANKING, July 25.—Sports meets which are being held throughout the Yangtze Valley in central China are demonstrating the lack of appreciation among Chinese youth of the spirit of sportsmanship and the need of training along this line. At an Anhwei meet recently a government technical school was playing basket ball with the local Mission Cathedral school. The technical school was ahead most of the first half, but a few minutes before the whistle sounded the Cathedral boys picked up and tied the score.

In the second half it became quite obvious that the Cathedral team was the stronger and would doubtless win. The technical boys seeing themselves losing stopped playing on the pretext that the baskets were not round. They proceeded to tear down the baskets and then went to the government dressing building and wrecked the place.

Two days later St. Paul's high school in Anking was playing football against a local government school. The head master of the mission school saw to it before the game that the back gate to the grounds was unlocked as a precaution against trouble. St. Paul's won, and the minute the game was over the winning team made a hasty exit through the gate and hurriedly found refuge in the mission compound, closely pursued by the losers and their supporters.

SECOND GAME MONDAY NIGHT

C. G. E. and Lakeviews Will Meet Again in Junior Play-off.

A GOOD GAME.

The second game of the City League junior finals is scheduled for Monday night and if the C.G.E. team has its way, there will be no third game. They beat the Lake-views 17-10 on Thursday night and are sure that they can repeat the performance.

The Lakeviews got a lot of bad baseball out of their system on Thursday and think that they can make the series go three games and win out.

After the errors shown on Thursday, a good game should result and the fans should take the opportunity of seeing the games.

Visitors Present at Regular Meeting Gave Short Addresses.

The Vimy Ridge L.O.B.A. held its regular meeting in Victoria Hall this week and had a good attendance, including visitors from different lodges. Mrs. Watts, Worthy Mistress of McKinley Lodge, Toronto, also Mrs. Sands, Worthy Mistress of Eastern Star Lodge, L.O.B.A. 525, Peterborough, were present. Both visitors gave short addresses which were very beneficial and much enjoyed by all. The Worthy Mistress of McKinley Lodge invited Vimy Ridge to visit the lodge which she represented at any time convenient.

TRAFFIC PLANS OF COMMISSION ARE DISCUSSED

Police Board Will Await Arrival of Convention Regulations.

NEW SIGNAL.

Secretary Will Obtain Information on Flash Equipment For Busy Corner.

A meeting of the Police Commission was held at 11.00 this morning in the Committee room of the City buildings presided over by His Worship Judge Huycke, and attended by His Worship the Mayor, Magistrate O. A. Langley, Police Chief Newhall and secretary Armstrong.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted fullowing which designs of traffic signals were submitted by the Chief for the approval of the Commissioners. Two designs were approved, one which could be suspended above traffic from wires and the other which would stand on a post and act as a pivotal point for traffic. Both signals were of the flash light type and can be operated by a person standing on the pavement.

The secretary was authorized to communicate with the manufacturing company in order to procure a list of specifications and prices.

Traffic Problems Discussed

A general discussion of traffic problems then occupied the attention of the board, dealing particularly with problems presented by through thoroughfares and slow moving vehicles using congested streets during rush hours.

Magistrate O. A. Langley recorded a case in point wherein this morning a heavy load of wood en route up George street controlled the situation, having a disturbed wake of a dozen or more automobiles in the rear endeavouring vainly to pass. A measure may be considered which will relegate horse drawn vehicles to less used streets.

Chief Newhall submitted a list of traffic regulations which had been carefully compiled by City Solicitor Widdifield in 1921. These suggestions which included a measure providing for vehicles halting before entering a main thoroughfare were not adopted.

Few Violations.

The Chief, in comparing convictions for violation of traffic acts with the records of other cities, said that this city was comparatively free from accidents and declared as well, that Peterborough drivers were, as a rule, careful and considerate. He was of the opinion that the parking evil was more predominant and merited more consideration than was devoted to it. The confusion which would result from the stop system might counteract any direct benefit derived.

His Worship the Mayor suggested that the stop area might be designated as existing between MacDonnel and Charlotte street, including both, but the Chief demurred, saying that when a through street is declared, it is considered as such throughout its length to the city limits unless the restricted area is thoroughly posted and advertised, although were this latter course followed considerable confusion would result because of visiting motorists who knew nothing of the local regulations.

The International convention has just drawn to a close, but as yet the Chief has not received a draft of the new standardized traffic regulations which have been formulated by the convention.

On account of this the Chief believed that it would be wise to await the statement before any measures are adopted which may prove unsuitable and would be discarded if better plans were received.

Accounts were received, read and after consideration, passed, following which the meeting adjourned.

DEMPSEY PREPARES FOR BOUT NEXT YEAR

Champion is Through Movies and Eager to Fight.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., July 25.—(Canadian Press.)— Back from his European honeymoon and his New York negotiations for a Harry Wills fight in 1926, Jack Dempsey to-day was preparing to enter the training grind that will fit him for a return to the prize ring in which he won the world's heavyweight boxing championship. By his own admission, "through with pictures" and eager to put aside the false whiskers and grease paints of moviedom for the leather mittens of pugilism, Dempsey arrived here last night. Accompanying him was his bride, Estelle Taylor, motion picture actress.

GAME DEFAULTED.

Belleville Could Not Field Team Against Deloro in Quinte League.

MARMORA, July 25. — Belleville being unable to field a team against Deloro in the Bay of Quinte League fixture on Wednesday, defaulted the game to the Smelters.

Deloro is eagerly awaiting its next game at home with Picton on Wednesday, hoping this time there will be no tie.

Duke of Manchester Seeks To Divorce American Wife

LONDON, July 25. — Canadian Press. — An application for divorce has been filed at Nice, France, by the Duke of Manchester, who in 1900 married Miss Helen A. Zimmerman, of Cincinnati. The application alleges desertion and incompatibility.

The Duke's attorney says an estrangement has existed since 1914. The papers were served upon the Duchess at Paris three weeks ago.

HUCKLEBERRIES ON THE MARKET

Brighton Truck Brings Fruit Many Miles—Other Produce Plentiful.

POTATOES AT 40 CENTS

Huckleberries were a new item on the bill of fare at the farmer's market this morning. From a big wagon busy owner was retailing them at 25 cents a quart.

A small motor truck all the way from Smithfield in the Brighton district, came fifty-seven miles to sell fruit, acme fifty seven miles to sell raspberries at two boxes for 25 cents, red berries at two for 35 cents and cherries at 10 cents a box. Upstairs, berries were selling at 15 and 18 cents a box, with one dealer disposing of his fruit at 2 boxes for a quarter, and wild raspberries were $2 for a sixteen pound pail.

There was a goodly supply of honey on the market this morning, most of it the light clover brand. A youth in the basket section had pound jars at 25 cents, and ten pound pails at $1.45. On the open market, pound jars were 35 cents, and 20 cents and 25 cents was asked by other dealers. Comb honey was 35 cents a section.

At the entrance to the stairs, a trio of collie pups, two creamy little fluffy wrigglers and one brown and white sample, had a large and interested audience. They retailed for $1.50 apiece.

Little Yorkshire piglets were $12 a pair.

New potatoes ranged in price from 50 to 40 cents a peck, the latter specimens being small in size. Old potatoes in good quality were 20 cents a peck. Beets were a nickle a bunch, and radishes the same, string beans were 10 cents a quart. Green peas were four quarts for 25 cents with shelled peas 25 c per qt., Green apples were 20 cents a measure, and black currants 25 cents a quart. J. M. Lowes of Otonabee, who had the sole supply of district tomatoes on the market last week, as also the only vendor this morning, and had a good supply at 25 cents a pound.

In the basket section, dairy supplies were plentiful. Chickens were priced from 28 to 35 cents a pound, and duck at 35 cents. Butter sold from 38 to 40 centsa pound and eggs from 35 to 38 cents a dozen.

A novelty in the flower line were water lillies, at 3 and 6 for a lime, in varying sizes.

Gone from the circle of familiar faces that greets the weekly shopper at the farmers' market is that of the late Mr. Coombes. Frequenters of the Saturday morning market may not all have known him by name, but they couldn't fail to remark the cheerfulnes of the whimsical kindly old man, used to sell garden stuff at the curb, and was a prime favorite with his companions.

Married men and women carrying peanuts on a knife: W. Jones (six tumblers); S. Field (mustard pot).

Soda biscuit eating contest: T. Kitchen (top); M. Leether (whistle).

Kicking football (men): W. Jones (belt). Women: Mrs. Monk (cake plate).

A softball game, with married men playing single men, was won by the former, with a score of 19 to 4, under Captain C. Shaugnessy. F. Cripps captained the single men.

Myles Rundle won the drawing prize (butter dish and knife), and a special race with first and second prizes of $2 and $1, was won by W. Fields and C. Yardley.

A tug of war was won by Captain J. Killbreck's team, with the following taking part: Messrs. Rishor, Jones, J. McMartin, L. Fields, Lackey, Anderson, Monk. Capt. W. L. Ferguson's team had the following taking part: Messrs. Dickson, Murray, Lester, B. Fields, Aiken, Darrah, Thomas.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

WHAT THE WELL DRESSED WOMEN WILL WEAR—

Dress styles that are said will be all the rage a year from now are brought to the screen in the Paramount picture. "The Dressmaker from Paris," which marks Leatrice Joy's return to the screen after a brief absence. Miss Joy is featured with Ernest Torrence in the production which comes to the CAPITOL Theatre on Monday next. Paul Bern directed the picture, written for the screen by Adelaide Heilbron and Howard Hawks.

"The Dressmakers from Paris" is a story of a little French girl who runs errands for a fashionable modiste. Fifi (Miss Joy) wins a contest which enables her to study gown designing and it is not long before we see her in America with her beautiful models giving fashion shows in leading department stores, to stir up trade.

Fourteen international Beauty Models, gathered together after a world-wide search, are cast as Miss Joy's manikins in the picture. Each has four or five changes or gowns, the costumes being designed by one of Paris' foremost fashion creators, brought to this country for the express purpose of showing on the screen the styles that will prevail during the coming seasons.

The fashion show staged in "The Dressmaker from Paris" is said to for outshine anything of its kind ever attempted for the screen. The combination of beautiful girls and gowns, too, is claimed to make this production most delightful entertainment.

AT THE ROYAL.

"LOST—A WIFE" BRILLIANT COMEDY OF MARRIED LIFE

"Lost—a Wife," which opens a three days' run at the Royal on Monday, is claimed to be one of the most colorful and interesting William de Mille comedies. It is filled with many intensely interesting bits of continental life. It has one of the funniest bedroom scenes on record, wherein Adolphe Menjou hides behind the curtains on the wedding night of his divorced wife and a French count.

De Mille, it is said, has put across these scenes with his usual extraordinary skill.

Menjou is featured with Greta Nissen and Robert Agnew in the picture, which is a screen version of Alfred Savoir's Broadway stage hit, "Banco," adapted for the screen by Clara Beranger.

There's a typical De Mille cast playing in support of the principals.

FOR MEN ONLY!

One of the most interesting scenes in the new William de Mille production for Paramount, "Lost a Wife," is one without a woman in it—and that's not its only claim to interest.

There are twenty five men at two roulette tables watching the wanton white ball of fate. These twenty-five men weer all "hand picked" by Mr. de Mille as he insists upon his groups being actors, not merely atmosphere.

His crowd of men in this particular scene represent nearly every foreign country. They are interesting actors whose names are known to picture fans, and they contribute to this scene exactly the thing Mr. de Mille wanted—intelligent authentic realism.

Featured in "Lost—a Wife" are Adolphe Menjou, Greta Nissen and Robert Agnew. Edgar Norton heads the supporting cast. Clara Beranger wrote the screen play.

FINDERS KEEPERS?

Laugh and grow grins at the funniest, smartest, most enjoyable De Mille comedy since "Grumpy"
Cast includes—Adolphe Menjou, Greta Nissen, the new screen beauty, and Robert Agnew.

Reward of one hundred laughs!

Show windows at home

YOU can get a degree of enjoyment just by looking at show windows . . . seeing the clocks, radios, fountain pens you might like to own. But you can't be sure you'd like them till you know their unseen merits. What they do, how well they do it, how long they'll keep on doing it well.

When you look at advertisements, you are looking at show windows that display not only what you see, but what you can't see. The product, its quality, use, pleasure to you. All you want to know about it—yours at a glance. You don't need to walk blocks to see what's new . . . nor look at it in doubt. Nothing doubtful is offered. It can't be doubtful and be widely advertised. You are as sure of a product's worth as if you saw it in a window, asked about it, examined it, took it home and tried it. The facts in advertisements are the facts of actual use.

You can get more than enjoyment out of these show windows at home. You can get solid economy.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.
Jesus said, "No man can come to me, except the Father draw him, and that all shall be taught of God, and every one that hath heard from the Father, and hath learned of Him, cometh unto me." John 6:44, 45. He also said, if He be lifted up out of the earth He would draw all men said referring to His death on the cross.) Again, he said, that no man can come unto Him except it be given him of the Father. John 6:65. Every one that has heard from the Father, and hath learned of Him, cometh unto Jesus. John 6:45. "Many are called, but few are chosen." The few chosen ones, who will comprise the "Bride" in the age to come, have heard the call of God, and have learned of Him, and have come to Jesus, accepting Him as Saviour and Lord, continuing faithful unto the end, they are made heirs of eternal life. The millions of earth's inhabitants outside of the little flock, are not on probation for life in this age, but shall have their trial or probation for eternal life after being released from the first death, the penalty for sin, in this age, from which penalty Jesus has redeemed all. — M. WHEN THE SYSTEM IS ALL RUN DOWN

Often All That is Needed is a Tonic to Build Up the Blood..

There are many women who have been invalids or semi-invalids so long that they accept their condition as a life burden. They have endured broken sleep, stomach trouble, nervousness, headaches and weakness so long that they have given up hope of enjoying good health. In most of these cases a well chosen diet, fresh air and a tonic to build up the blood would do wonders. To all rundown, nervous people the experience of Mrs. H. J. Cameron, Watervale, N. S., will be of deep interest. She says:—"About two years ago I was in a miserable run-down condition. I was unable to do my work, my head ached day and night, my nerves were all unstrung, and for three weeks I could not eat or sleep. I then decided to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial and got six boxes. By the time I had used half of them I felt much better, and when I had taken the six boxes I was as well as ever. I could work all day and not feel tired and have been strong and healthy ever since. I have never taken any medicine that did me so much good and will always highly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Building Trade Workers Are Behind Miners in Crisis, Says Executive.

LONDON, July 25 (Canadian Press)—The executive committee of the Amalgamated Union of Building trade workers today adopted unanimously a resolution calling upon the general council of the Trades Union Congress to establish "a council of action that will insure that every atom of strength of the organized working class movement is utilized in support of the miners' present crisis."

MOROCCO TO ROME

Woman and 3 Children Walk to Receive Pope's Blessing.

ROME, July 25.—(Associated Press).—Thousands of devout Catholics have made Holy Year pilgrimages to Rome, but few have come in the manner in which the word truly connotes. One such, however, has been completed by Luisa Cruces, a Spanish woman living in Morocco, with her three children, whose ages are seven, four and two years.

Senora Cruces left Morocco with her little brood on December 9, 1924, and they made practically the whole journey on foot. They started with 25 pesetas in their possession, and throughout the trip they had no other means of support, except from the sale of picture postcards showing their photograph. For the most part they slept on the grass under the stars or along the sand beaches, but occasionally they were taken in by kind people along their route.

They have received the special Holy Year benediction from Pope Pius XI.

CARDINAL BEGIN INTERRED AMID DEEP MOURNING

Church and Surrounding Streets Thronged By People During Service.

BUILDINGS DRAPED.

Tokens Everywhere Showed Deep Sense of Loss to Quebec People.

QUEBEC, July 25. — (Canadian Press).— With the transference of the body of Cardinal Begin, deceased Roman Catholic Primate of Canada, whose death occurred on Sunday last, from the Archibishop's Palace to the Basilicia, the people of Quebec to-day took part in the last ceremonies when the Cardinal's remains were laid to rest in the crypt of the church alongside those of the other sixteen Archibishops of Quebec who have preceded him. To-day's ceremonies were replete with dignity and impressiveness. Thousands thronged the church and many thousands more had assembled outside as the solemn services were conducted. Everywhere signs of deep mourning were in evidence. Public buildings were streamed with drapery and private residences displayed tokens eloqent of the sense of the loss that has been sustained by the church .Quebec's population had been augumented considerably at the present season by tremendous invasion of visitors and by the assembly of pilgrims here on the eve of the feast of Ste. Anne De Beaupre. These added their numbers to the mulitude and joined in the mourning.

ROOM KEPT EMPTY

Place Where King Was Born Will Be Preserved for Posterity.

NAPLES, July 25.—(Associated Press).—After much discussion as to the best way of preserving for posterity the room here in which King Victor Emmanuel III. was born, Minister of Public Instruction Fedele, after consulting Benedetto Groce, noted Sicilian philosopher, has decided to leave it entirely empty, except for a marble tablet in the middle of the room to record the event.

It was first proposed to restore the room to its original appearance at the time the King was born; then there was a plan to fill it with relics excavated from the ancient city of Herculaneum, but both these suggestions were abandoned.

FINANCIAL NEWS.

General Drop In Grain Prices At Chicago To-day

Press).—With hedging sales in progress from mills and mash interests, the wheat market averaged lower today during the early dealings. The relative weakness of Liverpool quotations counted as a bearish influence here. There was little or no general speculative selling, however, and rallies were frequent. The opening which ranged from 1 1-4c decline to 1-8c advance, September 150 to 150 1-2, and December 151 to 151 1-2, were followed by transient upturns but then by a drop to 149 1-4 for September and 150 3-4 for December. Corn and oats were easy, owing more or less to scattered rains west and southwest. After opening at 1-2c lower to 1-4c gain, the corn market underwent a moderate general sag.

Oats started unchanged to 1-4c off, September 44 1-2 to 44 5-8. Later all months showed a slight setback. Provisions lacked support.

Smelters Moved Higher; Other Stocks Advanced

TORONTO, July 25 (Canadian Press).—Consolidated Smelters surpassed all its advances of the current movement, when on Toronto Stock Exchange this morning it was sold up to 109 3-8, a net gain from yesterday of 7 3-8 points in dealings approximating 1,200 shares. The closing session of the week was a record one for strength, the market scoring material advances all round. City Dairy gained 2 1-8 at 87, and Dominion Canners Common 2 1-2 at 114, Preferred being sold up to 113, a gain of 4 poins after opening at 110 1-2. Winnipeg in active dealing gained a half point, as did Twin City and Brompton advanced a half while Atlantic Sugar Common strengthened 1-8 at 3 7-8.

Aggressive Buying Imparts Firm Tone to Wall Street

NEW YORK, July 25. — Canadian Press. — The aggressive buying of motor shares imparted a firm tone to the stock trading to-day in Wall street, although the market was forced to contend with intermittent profit taking and short selling.

An overcrowded short interest in the automobile group operating on the assumption that the industry had passed the peak of its 1924 activity, was sent scurrying to cover when bullish demonstrations lifted General Motors and other leaders to new high levels; virtually all representative motor and accessory issues participated in the upturn, with gains of 1 to 4½ points scored by Chandler, Maxwell B certificates, Hudson, Jordan, Fisher Body, Stromberg Carburetor and Pierce Arrow issues.

Frisco reaching a record high at 88 3-4 continued to lead the medium priced rails to higher ground.

Oils however were unsettled by sharp breaks in the Pan-American issues, the B shares dropping three points despite official denials that a new stock isue was planned; the closing was firm. Sales aproximated 700,000 shares.

AT CHEMONG PARK.

Even with the tempermental weather of the last few weeks, Chemong Park is enjoying a pleasant season. The majority of the cottages are occupied and have their quota of transient and permanent guests. A convenience afforded the residents this years is a second telephone line installed by the Bell Telephone Company to take care of the extra demand for 'phone service.

Much interest is taken during these evenings in the softball games played between visiting members of the Jopling and Cooney cartage firms and residents of the Park and district.

Numerous little porch parties were in progress yesterday. There were groups on the verandahs at the Bradburn, Golding and Hungerford cottages. A weiner roast, in charge of Mrs. Jos. Lynch and Mrs. J. Carroll, was one of the events this week.

The old Pavilion is open for business in the restaurant line, and a portion of the lower floor has been converted into half a dozen airy bedrooms fitted up for guests who wish to make a stay at the Park.

The latest addition to Mr. Gettas' feathered family, which already consists of a number of lively ducks and chickens, is a fierce-eyed eagle, only eleven days old, but already sporting long wings and hailing all the way from Balsam Lake. May and June, two little sportive beagle hounds also add to the joy of life at the Pavilion.

On Wednesday afternoon and evening, the old people from the Protestant Home were entertained at the cottage of Mr. W. R. Breyfogle, who enlisted the aid of a number of youths of the Park in giving them a programme of sports.

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Macdonald and family and Mr. and Mrs. P. Westbye are in their cottages. Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Ephgrave are in town for a few days, removing to their new home on London Street.

Miss Amy Watson of Toronto is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. J. A. Morgan.

Miss Irene Buchanan of Peterboro is visiting Miss Jean Duffus.

Miss Alice Fisher of Lindsay is visiting Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Davidson.

Miss Alice Clarke of Toronto is the guest of Miss McFarlane.

Mrs. S. E. Cavanah is occupying Mr. and Mrs. Roy's cottage. Mr. and Mrs. Guy Hutchings (nee Ola Cavanah) of Toronto, are her guests. Yesterday being Mr. Orme Cavanah's birthday, was the occasion of a little surprise party from his friends in the Park.

Mrs. F. J. Russell of Toronto is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Ballard.

Mrs. F. Merritt and Miss Edith Cottrell from the city have been guests this week at the summer home of Alderman and Mrs. Jones.

Mrs. C. Wright of Toronto is visiting her daughter, Mrs. G. H. Roper.

Miss Violet Davidson is visiting at Judge Ruddy's cottage at Stoney Lake.

Miss Audrey Willard of Toronto is the guest of Miss Ann Golding.

Mrs. McNamany of Thorold is the guest at the Park of her brother, Dr. F. P. McNulty.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Warne are in Dr. H. M. Yelland's cottage.

Miss Madeline O'Connell of Toronto and Miss Kathleen Kelly of this city are visiting Miss Josephine Lynch.

Mrs. Johnson and Miss Johnson of Springfield, Ohio, are visiting the former's daughter, Mrs. W. R. Breyfogle.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Mann of Hamilton and Mr. and Mrs. John LeDrew and daughter of Brantford, are at Nicholl's Grove.

The death took place today at Keene of W. T. Harrison, M. D., in his 89th year.

WILLIAM CURRY.
OMEMEE, July 25. — The death occurred to-day of William Curry, aged 77, after an illness of a few days. Mr. Curry suffered a paralytic stroke on Thursday evening and never regained consciousnes..

After engaging for a number of years in the drygoods business, Mr. Curry had lived retired for some years. For a great many years he had been treasurer of the Township of Emily, from which post he resigned about a year ago. At the time of his death he was treasurer of the village of Omemee and the village school board. He was also treasurer of Christ church, of which he was a faithful member.

The funeral will be held on Monday afternoon from Christ church.

GEO. H. MURNEY.
The death of George Henry Murney on Monday, July 20th, at Springville, removes a well known resident of South Monaghan. Deceased was born at Prince Edward seventy years ago and in 1880 was married to Miss Mary Moffatt, of Hope township. To their happy union three sons and five daughters were born. One son, William, was killed in action in France at the World War, a daughter died eighteen years ago, and a son, Gordon, died in infancy.

The surviving members of the family are his sorrowing wife, one son, Wilbert of Cavan, and four daughters, Mrs. C. Curtain, of New Liskeard, Mrs. D. Huggins, South Monaghan, and the Misses Evelyn and May at home.

The late Mr. Murney was a Presbyterian, a Conservative and a member of the S.O.E.

The funeral to Centreville cemetery was largely attended. The pallbearers were Messrs. Fred Waterman, William Hutchison, Richard Thompson, David Huggins, Robert O'Heir and William Atchison.

Rev. A. H. McConnachie and Rev. G. Ingram Craw officiated.

CLERKS IN BANKS IN PARIS STRIKE

Management Refused to Concede Increases in Pay —Other Cities Follow.

PARIS, July 25. — Canadian Press. — France is faced with the possibility of a general strike by the end of next week.

Taking advantage of the increased business caused by the new four per cent. guaranteed loan, the employees of one of the largest Paris banks have gone on strike because the management refuse to concede increases in pay, and employees of other banks have called meetings to decide whether to join the movement. Bank employees in Marseilles are already on strike and the movement shows signs of gaining in Avignon, Toulon and other cities.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN DIED OF HEART FAILURE WHILE SLEEPING AFTER HEARTY LUNCH ON SUNDAY AFTERNOON IN TEMPORARY HOME AT DAYTON, TEN.

Eventful Career of "The Gre at Commoner," Three Times Democratic Candidate for th e Presidency of the United States, Ends Suddenly in the Southland He Loved.

WAS THE PRINCIPAL FIG URE IN RECENT SCOPES EVOLUT ION TRIAL AT DAYTON

Ardent Prohibitionist and Prominent Leader of the Fundamentalists in Opposition to Modernism in the Chu rch.

STRICKEN IN MIDST OF BIBLE CRUSADE

DAYTON, Tenn., July 27.—William Jennings Bryan died here of heart failure Sunday afternoon about four o'clock while sleeping in the residence of Richard Rogers. He had partaken of a hearty dinner, and had said he was feeling well, but would take a short nap and rest.

Mr. Bryan had attended the morning service at the Southern Methodist Episcopal church, and retired to his room after lunch about 1.30 p.m. Mrs. Bryan and her companion and the chauffeur were in the house when he died.

The companion of Mrs. Bryan passed through the room and noticed him breathing heavily and rushed for the nearest neighbor, A. B. Andrews, who on reaching the scene summoned Doctors W. F. Thomison and A. C. Broyles, who on examination said Mr. Bryan had been dead probably fifteen minutes.

Mrs. Bryan was writing on the porch when her husband passed away. Efforts are being made to locate the son, W. J. Bryan, Jr., who is in California, and a daughter, who also resides in California.

Mrs. Bryan was preparing to leave Dayton in the next day or so for Idaho, where she expected to spend the summer with her son.

Mr. Bryan was to leave Dayton for Knoxville, where he would deliver two speeches, then go to Nashville for a similar engagement before going to Florida. He expected to join Mrs. Bryan again in the fall.

He was taken to Dayton Sunday morning by A. W. Lessly, owner of the Ross Hotel, and they reached there about 9.30 o'clock. Mr. Bryan made arrangements for the speech to be delivered at the courthouse, in Dayton, tonight. Another engagement of importance was one at the Hotel Aqua today at 6.30, when he would meet with the Progressive Dayton Club and lay plans for the Bryan College and movement for which was to be definitely launched at the dinner Monday night.

He had planned to leave Tuesday morning for Knoxville.

Townspeople Shocked.

The town was shocked by the tragedy and five minutes after the doctor's examination revealed that Mr. Bryan was dead the streets near the home were thronged with people. Mrs. Bryan is said to be entirely composed and is bearing up wonderfully, under the terrible blow.

She expressed the desire that her husband be buried in the Arlington Cemetery, and feels it may be arranged in that he holds the title of colonel She also said she had heard her husband express a desire to be buried there. No arrangements will be made, however, until W. J. Bryan, Jr., is located and communicated with.

Adresses On Saturday.

Following the sudden collapse of the Scopes evolution trial at Dayton, in which he was leading counsel for the prosecution, Mr. Bryan turned his attention to preparing for the printing of his speech which he was not allowed to make at the trial. He went to Chattanooga Friday and spent the entire day going over [illegible] with a local printer [illegible] morning for Jasper and Winchester, where he made addresses.

While here, Mr. Bryan stated that his speech would be ready for distribution to the press by Monday and would be released by next Sunday. He appeared in the best of health and stated that he was ready to carry his campaign in behalf of fundamentalism to the people of the country.

He made engagements to speak in Chattanooga, Knoxville, Nashville and Hartsville, Tenn., on evolution!

Ruled Democratic Party.

William Jennings Bryan was the greatest Democrat of his generation. His absolute party reign ended when he threw the votes he controlled to Woodrow Wilson in the Baltimore National Convention of 1912 and saw a new sun rise on the hosts of Democracy.

Since the Chicago Democratic Convention in 1896 he had ruled his party almost absolutely. Three times he had been named for the party leadership and as many times been defeated at the polls. And it takes ability in a beaten leader to continue leading.

The story of his accession to the throne will live as long as the political history of the United States. The Chicago convention of 896 was controlled by the free silver men. Silver was the issue. The gold men however were making a bitter fight. "Silver Dick" Bland of Missouri was the probable nominee. As the debate grew bitter a young man with flowing black hair, made his way to the platform.

"Who is he?" asked one.

"Oh, just a dub congressman from Nebraska. They'll choke him off before long."

Half an hour later the entire convention was cheering "The Dub from Nebraska," while the state standards were carried in parade down the aisles and grouped in front of Nebraska.

Bland was Beaten.

BIGGEST TROUT AT EAGLE LAKE

R. G. Sturgeon Captures 14 Pound Monster on 175 Feet of Line.

32 INCHES LONG.

The biggest gray trout known to have been captured in local waters was landed on Saturday by R. G. Sturgeon at Eagle Lake after a halt hour battle. The champion measures 32 inches in length, 21¼ inches in girth, and weighed 14 pounds. This fits perfectly with Sturdy's table of comparative weights and lengths, which only goes as high as 30 inches, with a weight of 11 pounds, 9 ounces.

One peculiarity about the capture of this particular fish is its objection to leaving bottom. Mr. Sturgeon who was fishing in 75 feet of water with 175 feet of line out, says the trout refused to rise, and had to be pulled in hand over hand until near the surface. A 22-gauge line was used with an Archer spinner.

F. L. Roy, who last year caught a 12 pounder, is reported as having conceded the laurels to Mr. Sturgeon after Saturday's catch. Mr. Stuprgeon will have the fish mounted.

SUPPLIES LOST IN ARCTIC SHIP

Sinking of Hudson's Bay Supply Boat Leaves. Posts Short.

NO LIVES LOST.

MONTREAL, July 27 (Canadian Press).—The sinking of the Hudson Bay Company's supply ship Bayeskimo in Ungava Bay, July 23, news of which was picked up by radio stations last night, may result in a shortage of supplies at some of the far northern posts on the Labrador and Ungava coasts and isolated trading stations in Hudson Bay and James Bay.

The S.S. Nascopie, which rescued the passengers and crew of the Bayeskimo from the barren coasts near Port Burwell, has her own round to make in the Arctic Ocean around Baffin Land [illegible] farther north, and the necessity for relief visits to posts on the Bayeskimo's beat will possibly hinder the Nascopie from completing her round. The latter is now racing around the posts delivering supplies, before resuming her scheduled voyage to Baffin Land and the Hudson Bay Company believe she can [illegible] the round this season.

Meanwhile the crew and passengers of the wrecked Bayeskimo are aboard the Nascopie and the full story of the wreck will not be told until some of them return to civilization when the Nascopie's journey is done. When she sailed from Montreal, on July 7, the Bayeskimo carried a passenger list including several missionaries and some traders and trappers. It is positively stated by the Nascopie that there was no loss of life.

CHILD AND NURSES DIE.

Three Lives Lost in Fire at Perth, Scotland.

LONDON, July 27.—Thousands of London people leaving Saturday for their annual vacation were shocked to read of a child and two nurses being burned to death in Perth, Scotland, while the mother was at Aix-les-Bains and the father in London.

The home of Major and Mrs. Andrew J. Murray-Graham was totally destroyed by fire Saturday morning and their four-year-old son and his two nurses perished while the fire department stood helplessly by unable to find water. The boy's grandmother and other servants escaped, but the child and his nurses were in a room next to the one in which the fire started and had no chance to escape.

KITCHENER, Ont., July 27. — (Canadian Press). — Walter Tirko, a Bulgarian, aged sixty, was found hanging from an apple tree in the back yard of his house in Waterloo, at six o'clock this morning. Financial worries and lack of employment are believed to have unbalanced the man's mind. There will be no inquest.

Lot's Wife May Flavor Dinners of Present Diners If Plans of Palestine Government Are Carried Out

LONDON, July 27. — (United News.)— Lot's wife, whose penchant for fires caused her metamorphosis in a chunk of salt, is scheduled to flavour the breakfast steak of some twentieth century epicurean if the plans of the Palestine Government are carried out. According to an announcement here Sunday, more than 30,000,000,000 tons of salt lying in the Dead Sea area covering the scene of the Biblical transformation of Mrs. Lot will be reclaimed and sold by the Palestine Government.

It is proposed to erect a plant on the great beds of the Dead Sea to recover valuable stores of common salt, of which there is a large estimated deposit. The remainder consists largely of salts of potassium and magnesium. Huge chemical warehouses and reclamation plants will soon be erected on the desolate site of Biblical cities which have remained undisturbed for centuries.

LAUNCH BURNED DROWNING TWO AT STONY LAKE

Telephone Message to the Examiner Received as Eyewitness' Story of Tragedy.

TANK EXPLODED.

Toronto Man and Wife Jumped Into the Water as Fire Spread.

That two Toronto visitors were drowned in Stony Lake when their launch caught fire and they jumped into the water was reported by telephone to The Examiner yesterday evening, but efforts to secure confirmation of the story have proved unavailing.

John Thompson, said to be of Stony lake, told The Examiner of the double tragedy, involving Thomas Walsh and a lady, presumably his wife. The informant could not afterwards be reached, and several persons at Stony lake were unable to gather any information on the accident. Walsh, the report says, was sailing in his motor launch when the vessel caught fire, and he and his wife jumped into the lake. The engine blew up, and when help arrived the victims had disappeared.

Thompson's story is that he was fishing with a troll when he passed a motor launch containing a man and a woman, headed in the opposite direction, in a quiet part of the lake. When about a quarter of a mile separated the boats, Thompson looked around and saw smoke ascending from Walsh's boat. He immediately cut his line and started back at full speed to render assistance. He saw the couple frantically throwing water on the engine, but the smoke became worse, enveloping the whole boat and spreading out over the water in a thick cloud. Thompson saw the woman, who was dressed in white, stand up on the edge of the boat and leap into the water. The man kept on trying to put out the fire by baling water from the lake, but was evidently forced to cease, and he too jumped into the lake. Then, Thompson says, before they had sufficient time to swim far away, the gasoline exploded, throwing water high in the air and scattering fragments over the surface of the lake. When he arrived at the scene of the disaster there was no sign of the occupants of the boat, and very little wreckage was to be found. He cruised around for half an hour, and then returned to his cottage.

Thompson told The Examiner he considered it very foolish to throw water on a gasoline fire, and from this he took it the couple had only little experience in motor boats. He carried sand for such emergencies and [illegible] with the thought of helping [illegible]

Mystery Appears

Close enquiry by The Examiner yesterday failed to identify Mr. and Mrs. Walsh among any guests at the summer hotels or among the holders of cottages, but it is impossible to check up all the camping parties that line the lake shore for miles, and the many travelling parties that make the lake a rendezvous over the week-end. No boat is reported missing.

William Thompson, manager of the Bell Telephone office at Mount Julian was one of the first interrogated by The Examiner. He could throw no light on the mystery, but said he knew a John Thompson, who, however, could not be found. Viamede hotel, Crowe's Landing hotel, Burleigh Falls hotel, the store at Juniper Island, and the telephone operator at Glenwood were among others who had no report of the tragedy or intelligence of Mr. and Mrs. Walsh.

The lake was quite calm yesterday, and the usual number of boaters dotted it at almost every point so that the accident must have occurred at some of the less frequented parts. Provincial Constable N. F. Maker has no report, nor have the local police.

Canada is the second largest manufacturing country in the Empire.

MINERS RUSHED DEAN OF DURHAM TO RIVER'S EDGE

Right Rev. J. E. C. Welldon Roughly Handled by Crowd on Saturday.

LAUNCH TO RESCUE

Dean's Article Urging Fairness in Dispute Was Resented by Miners.

LONDON, July 27.— (Canadian Press Cable).— Right Rev. J. E. C. Welldon, Dean of Durham, was handled roughly by a crowd at a meeting of Durham miners on their gala day—Saturday. He was noticed approaching the platform to give a temperance address. The crowd jostled him and rushed him to the water's edge. The dean was rescued by the police who commandeered passing motor boat and conveyed him to safety. Ramsay MacDonald, former Prime Minister, who addressed the meeting condemned the government for belated action during the coal crisis and declared that the coal trade must be organized nationally and thus secure unification of production, wages and conditions.

Premier Baldwin, speaking Saturday at Knowsley, Lancashire, explained that he set up the court of inquiry in order to clarify the issues, adding:

"Where public opinion is the final arbiter, there can be no case that is not helped by ventilation. I thought it might act as a fan to circulate some fresh cool air into the workings of overheated brains and tempers."

Attack on Aged Bishop.

The need of some such moderating force was shown by the attack on Bishop Welldon. He has been noted all his life for his outspoken utterances, but never until the present was he supposed to be personally obnoxious to the labour men. When he arrived on Saturday to pay a visit to the fete of some miners near Durham, at which Ramsay MacDonald and Emanuel Shinewell, the latter Minister of Mines in the Labour Government, were the principal speakers, the crowd made a wild rush at him. He was jostled to and fro amidst a mob of angry men, and shouted, 'To the river."

He was hustled over the race course and was within a few steps of the River Wetar when the more cool-headed in the crowd came to his rescue. A motor launch which was passing saw the trouble and drew in to shore, when a group of men flung themselves at the Bishop's captors and drove them back, and Dr. Welldon was taken aboard the launch. The Bishop, who is over 70, merely said:

"I lost my new hat and umbrella."

He returned to the deanery and a [illegible] recovers[illegible]

ed to preach in the Cathedral at a gala service for miners when he urged both sides to the dispute to seek moderation and conciliation.

The incident shows the bitter feeling being aroused. The Bishop who always has been sympathetic with the miners grievances, aroused their animosity on this occasion by writing an article in which he said he was trying to present both sides to the

TO MEET OWNERS.

LONDON, July 27 (Canadian Press).—It is understood that Premier Stanley Baldwin will devote his personal attention to the threat of a strike of the British coal miners.

The Premier held an hour's conference this morning with a special committee of the Trade Union Congress.

The Trade Union Congress committee, upon leaving Mr. Baldwin conferred with the executive committee of the Mine Workers.

After Mr. Baldwin's conference, the Trade Union Congress committee announced it had urged the Premier to request the coal mine owners to postpone their insistnece upon a new working agreement and to allow the miners to continue under the present agreement which expires July 31, pending negotiations.

REPORT ADVISES FORCES IN EGYPT

Britain Should Keep Troops at Suez Canal and Cairo.

VESSELS ON CANAL.

LONDON, July 27. — (Canadain Press). — The Daily Express says that a committee on Imperial defence to which Ramsay MacDonald referred the question of British military policy in Egypt, has reported that it is of vital strategical consequence to maintain adequate British forces on the banks of the Suez Canal, adequate naval patrols on the canal itself and that with a view to insuring the safety of these forces, the present British garrison of Cairo must be maintained as it is now.

The paper adds that the Cabinet has accepted the report, which will form the basis of British policy.

DYNAMITE IN STOVE.

MONTREAL, July 27. —(Canadian Press). — Throwing sticks of dynamite into the stove in the kitchen of their home at St. Faustain Station, 76 miles from Montreal, brought two little boys and little girl to St. Justine Hospital, last night. It is feared that the younger boy may lose one eye.

GEORGE STREET MERCHANTS AGREE CITY NEEDS MEANS OF TRANSPORTATION FOR ITS CITIZENS BUT FEAR PURCHASE WILL MEAN HIGHER TAXES

J. H. Miller Classes Rolling Stock of Street Railway as "a Junk Pile"—P. Simons Thinks American Enterprise Would Extend Line to Chemong.

C. E. COLEMAN SAYS CITY SHOULD CATCH ITS FINANCIAL BREATH REFORE PLUNGE

Men to Whom Street Cars Bring Business Are Opposed to Purchase on Terms Outlined by Hydro — Some Advocate Bus System to Cover City.

COUNCIL FACES DIFFICULT PROBLEM.

In order to obtain the opinions of George Street merchants [illegible] Power Commission, that the City of Peterborough purchase the street car system. Examiner reporters today interviewed every merchant from Brock Street to King Street, and their opinions are tabulated here.

The proposal made by the Hydro Electric Power Commission is that the City take over the street car system as it stands for $150,000, and spend from $60,000 to $75,000 on putting it in running order. Hydro would then operate the system for the City.

The general opinion among store-keepers is that the people must have some means of transportation, but they are averse to shouldering the burden they feel this purchase would lay on them. A few could not be reached today, and a few would not make any statement. The following are the opinions given:

B. Rogow did not think that the present patronage of the system and the condition which it was in would justify the City in assuming the responsibilities of operating it.

Mr. Rogow, who lived in Toronto previous to his arrival here, saw a distinct difference between conditions in that city and Peterborough. He said that the population was far removed from the business section and accordingly made more use of the facilities than is accorded to the Peterborough Street Railway system. Mr. Rogow was of the opinion that motor buses could very easily take care of the traffic at rush hours.

J. H. Miller voiced a terse and emphatic negative and referred to the aggregation of rolling stock as "a junk pile." He put the question: "Would you buy a heap of rubbish in that state of disrepair? Then, why should the City buy it? In Peterborough nearly everyone has a motor car, whether he can properly afford it or not, and the motorists choose the private means of transport at hand rather than walk blocks to a street car."

A. Campbell was unable to see any method by which the city might relieve the Hydro of it unprofitable onus. Neither could he see that a bus service would take the place of the street railway as in order to relieve the rush hour congestion a sizable fleet would be necessitated, which would prove unwieldy. A youth who was undergoing tonsorial treatment remarked sagely that if the fare were reduced to five cents then five times as many people would use the street cars. He [illegible] "In Toronto you can go ten or twelve miles for seven cents; here you can't go more than two."

Ambitious Programme.

P. Simons was grieved to think that the street car service looked shaky but he thought that if it were put up for auction some enterprising American individual or corporation would step in and say "Here, we'll make this thing pay." Upon which they would drop $100,000 or so on the tracks in the form of new cars, and [illegible] Paris, where the people wanted to go.

Mr. Simons said: "When I stand on the corner waiting for a car, and someone stops and asks me what I'm waiting for, I tell him I'm waiting for my car, and so I am. It is my car and I pay my way. It's the people's car and they don't have to run up gas bills to pay for it. Taxis and busses can't take the place of a

BRYAN'S WEALTH ONLY MYTHICAL

Letter Written By Great Commoner Tells of Financial Affairs.

ABOUT $500,000.

TAMPA, Fla., July 27 (United Press).—W. J. Bryan's wealth, a matter of much speculation, totalled at the time of his death, approximately $500,000, according to a letter he wrote on April 27 last to E. D. Lambright, editor of The Tampa Morning Tribune.

The purpose of this letter was to refute reports that the commoner was a millionaire. Bryan wrote, "I am far from it and never shall be, but I have been fortunate in the matter of finances.

There has never been a year since my first nomination in which I could not have made a million had I taken the side of privilege and favoritism.

"I have sold nearly all my property, including my first home here, Villa Serena, except the new and less valuable home into which we moved last fall.

"When the remainder of my property is turned into interest bearing securities, I reasonably expect to have for the first time in my life an income sufficient for the needs of Mrs. Bryan and myself even when I am no longer able to add to that income by literary work."

TIGHTEN UP POP TAX.

TORONTO, July 27 —(Canadian Press). — The collection of the Provincial tax on soft drinks is to be tightened up, according to the department of the Provincial Treasurer. Henceforth, prosecutions will be instituted against those retailers who do not [illegible]

BRYAN ON HIS LAST CRUSADE AT DAYTON

'QUAKE PROPHET SUCCEEDS AGAIN

Bendandi's Seismograph Registered a Shock on Sunday Morning.

A LONG WAY OFF.

FAENZA, Italy, July 27 (Canadian Press).—Seismographic instruments at the observatory of Raphael Bendandi, Italy's earthquake prophet, registered an earthquake at four o'clock Sunday. Several days ago Raphael Bendandi predicted that a violent earthquake would occur on July 25 or 26 in the region of Alaska He also declared that there would be earth shocks in Japan on July 30.

LOCKWORKS ANNUAL OUTING SUCCESSFUL

Delightful Trip to Hastings and Sports Events There.

The annual outing of the Lockworks Employees is easily the foremost of the industrial picnics and this year their trip held last Saturday proved to be no exception to the rule.

The Start.

At eight o'clock, the Steamer "Stoney Lake" started on its outward trip. A call at the Ashburham Wharf, the stoppage at Peterboro Lock, and another at the Street Railway Wharf, added to the passengers who numbered some two hundred and fifty. And yet there was room for more on this occasion, the managers had cut out the military band of some eighteen or twenty, on the upper deck so that the considerable space occupied by them was available.

A dance orchestra—The Jerry Collins aggregaton — commenced playing at the start and it was but a few minutes before a number of couples were dancing. At intervals, Mr. Tom Cockerell gave some amusing comic and serio-comic songs and recitals. During the time the orchestra was resting or partaking of necessary and acceptable meals. A Miss Clancy whose hands were remarkably nimble, kept the dancers busy and her kindness was much appreciated.

As a rule, the weather man is friendly disposed on the the occasion of this particular picnic. There was a slight departure this year from the almost universal good weather. Not that it was bad, only there might have been a little more sun to make it a perfect day.

The Outward Trip.

At 10.30 a. m., the sun had come out brightly and at eleven o'clock, we had entered Rice Lake, and a two hours pleasant, agreeable sail brought us down to Hastings at one o'clock. There was, of course, a booth on board where soft drinks, cigars, candies, ice creams, etc., etc., were dispensed and which was ably attended to by Misses Burke and Guerin.

On arrival at Hastings, the Recreation Ground, the City Hall and all that pertained to the town. Accordingly a large number after an inspection of the memorial to those who had lots their lives in the war, both on the landing wharf and in the St. Church, wended their way to the Recreation Ground. Both these monuments were worthy of inspecting. That on the landing stage is of granite, very elegant in style while that in the Church is surmounted by a large angel sounding "the last trump."

Then a general "trek" to the Recreation Ground where a soft ball game was played and a number of races were run.

The Sports.

The soft ball game was between the married and the single men of the lock works, and was won by the latter, the score being 12-1.

The batteries were Guiry and Tranter for the winners and Whatley and Sarasson for the losing aggregation, Rube Brady being umpire.

The line up for the single men consisted of Bailey, Clancy, Jobbitt, Murray, Westbrook, Daynard, Guiry, Stanton and Burke; the married line up being C. Westbrook, Huard, O'Brien, Perry, F. Whatley, Northey, M. Whaley, Sarasson and Nokes.

Races.

Flat race for girls 7 years and under—1 M. Whaley, 2 B. Huard, 3 F. O'Brien.

Boys, 7 years and under — 1 V. Walton, 2 H. Cockrell, 3. B. Kent.

Girls 10 years and under — 1 L. Cockerell, 2 G. MacMahon..

Boys 10 years and under — 1 K. Devlin, 2 J. Derocher.

Married ladies—1 Mrs. Sarasson, 2 Mrs. Huard.

Boys 15 years and under — 1 M. Loucks, 2 L. Herron.

Girls 15 years and under — 1 M. Nokes, 2 L. Holden.

Young ladies race—1 M. Hickie, 2 M. Nokes.

Married men's race — 1 W. Hostson, 2 T. Sarasson.

Single men's race — 1 J. Bailey, 2 B. Westwood.

The Management.

The committee, the members of which were unsparing in their efforts to make this a bright happy [illegible] which [illegible] ceeded admirably, consisted of D. Burke (chairman), Fred Guerin, W. Whatley, Joseph Clancy, J. Burke, E. Gibson, M. O'Brien, F. Whatley and J. Primeau. Frank Jobbitt was secretary and treasurer. M. O'Brien was "Floor Manager." Mike Tooley being "High Stepper."

The Return Journey.

At 3.30 we started homeward bound—and a very pleasant trip we had back to the city. As on the outward journey dancing was enjoyed to the utmost, the orchestra and Miss Clancy keeping things going.

This year a departure had been made in the general arrangements. The tickets had not been sold to outsiders generally. That being the case the employees of the Lock Works were enabled to bring in many cases all their families. Although there was such a number on board there did not appear to be any crowding or discomfort and all were united in expressing their delight at the pleasant day afforded them.

At 8 p.m., we reached the street railway wharf, then the Ashburnham wharf, and at 8.30 p.m. we had discharged our holiday makers at the George street wharf.

Needless is it to say that the genial Captain Scollard and his able crew were very attentive to the happiness, safety and comfort of their passengers.—Frank Russell.

TERRITORY SURVEYED.

Charts Issued of Canada's Farthest North Wooded Areas.

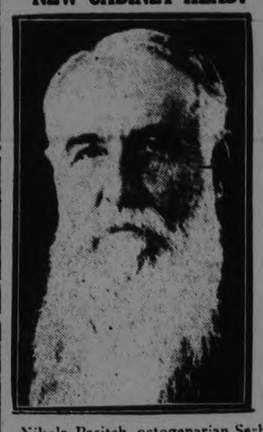
VANCOUVER, B.C., July 22.—The "line of the last woods"—that is to say, the farthest North region in which timber thrives in Canada—has at last been surveyed and charts of the area are being issued by the Canadian Topographical Survey. The charts embrace the territory served by the Lockhart, Coppermine, Backs and Hanbury rivers in the Northwest Territories.

Most of the trees are of stunted growth, because the long, hard winters, the bitter, penetrating winds and lack of rainfall are not conducive to forest development; but many of them are three hundred years old. At Thelon overland portage there are several clumps of scrub spruce only a foot and a half high and yet they have existed in much the same as their present form for many years, according to the Indians of that neighborhood. The trees change little from one human generation to another.

Occasionally, in this Northern wilderness, one encounters valleys that are slightly protected from the driving winds from the Northeast and in those places there are fair stands of spruce and tamarack. It is probable that many seedlings engage in the battle with the elements, but few survive.

Although the "line of the last woods" has been described as a cruel, inhospitable country, the natives manage to secure sufficient food from day to day to supply them without worrying from one day to another where their next meal is coming from. But occasionally when the winters are severe the tribes are forced to go on reduced rations.

NEW CABINET HEAD.

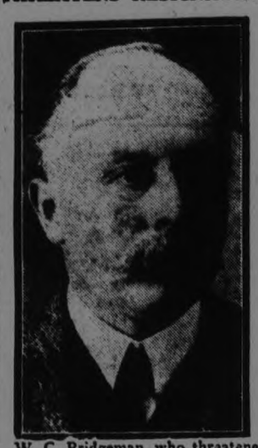


Nikola Pasitch, octogenarian Serbian statesman, who heads the new coalition cabinet in Jugo-Slavia.

"CLEAN-UP" DICTATOR.

Gen. Smedley B. Butler, Philadelphia's "clean-up" dictator, may be the Republican candidate for the governorship of Pennsylvania next year, succeeding Gifford Pinchot (below), who is aspiring to a senatorship.

THREATENS RESIGNATION



W. C. Bridgeman, who threatened to resign as first lord of the admiralty in England as a result of divergent opinions on the question of naval construction. He disapproved of Churchill's plans for cruiser construction, but it is now probable that a compromise will be reached.

FAMOUS COLLEGE 400 YEARS OLD RICH IN HISTORY

Christ Church Stands on the Site of a Priory and a Monastery.

GOTHIC ARCHITECTURE

Has Contributed to Illustrious Names in English History.

OXFORD, Eng., July 24 (Associated Press) — Christ Church, the largest and most notable of Oxford Colleges, begins the fifth century of its existence this month. For reasons of convenience, the celebration already has been held, so the true birthday of this curious institution, which is both a college and a cathedral and yet is called a church, will pass quietly during the long vacation.

Modern investigation has revealed a remarkable continuity in the history of English ecclesiastical foundations. The Saxons built their churches on the ruins of the great Roman temples, and the Normans in their turn rebuilt the Saxon churches. This continuity is most remarkable in Oxford, where nearly every college has grown out of a medieval monastery. Christ Church stands on the site of a priory, a parish church and at least two older monastic colleges, its bells were removed from a neighboring abbey, and both the stones and the funds used in its construction were obtained from the dissolution of more than 40 monastic foundations.

In 1846 the tercentenary of this same college was celebrated, and in a sense properly, for 1546 was the date of its last foundation. The true credit belongs, however, to an earlier date and to Cardinal Wolsey, son of an Ipswich butcher, who began it as Cardinal College at a time when he was the favorite of King Henry VIII and stood second only to him in power and pomp and fortune. Wolsey was nothing if not a man of action. To make room for his college a quarter of the city of Oxford was pulled down. In the first year alone he spent a sum equivalent to three-quarters of a million dollars. His plan was so vast that the great church of St. Frideswides which serves as the cathedral of the Oxford diocese was to be razed to make room for his college chapel. His kitchen is one of the largest in the country and the great dining hall is second only to the hall of Westminster in size and grandeur.

When Wolsey fell from favor his college was taken over by the king, who refounded it under his own name, then suppressed it as a college to unite it with his new Oxford diocese.

Beside Wolsey's great hall and kitchen, Christ Church boasts two of the finest English examples of the Gothic style of architecture, both built more than a century after Gothic became merely a historical term. One of these, the stairway to the hall, was designed in 1640 by a genius known only as "Smith of London." The other, Tom Tower, carrying the Great Tom bell which every night rings 101 peals to announce the closing of college gates, was designed by Christopher Wren, architect of St. Paul's, in one of the few happy moments when he really sensed the feeling of medieval builders.

Christ Church in its 400 years has contributed its share of illustrious names to history, American as well as English. William Penn was a student of The House until he was sent down for his religion, as was George Grenville whose stamp act led to the Revolution and the loss of the American colonies. Sydney, knight and poet, Hakluyt, the geographer, Ben Jonson, John Locke, the philosopher, Bishop Stubbs, the historian and "Lewis Carroll," author of Alice in Wonderland, are but a few of the great Christ Church company. The college has been fortunate in its rulers, nearly all its deans being men of great ability. One was the greatest smoker of his day, and when a bet was made that he would be smoking his pipe at ten in the morning it was only lost because he was cleaning his pipe at the moment. Another worthy lean called "Presence-of-mind Smith" won this unusual designation by thumping with an oar a boating companion who had fallen overboard and was risking the dean's safety by his attempts to re-enter the boat.

TARIFF QUESTION COMES UP AGAIN

Europeans Want It Lowered While Other Interests Want It Maintained.

WASHINGTON, July 25. (Canadian Press).—It is beginning to appear doubtful whether the President and the republican high tariff leaders can keep down the tariff issue. In spite of the statement some time ago that the republican chiefs had decided not to permit tariff revision the next session of Congress the agitation for revision is going on and is proceeding from several directions. In the first place, the European countries that owe the United States want duties lowered in order that they may pay impart in goods. Importing interests want the rates lowered. International banking interests that want to see the foreign debts funded and disposed of in order to increase the value of the private loans in which they are concerned are agitation for lower rates. Then, too, there are the farmers. The outcry of farming interests to the effect the rates are too high on the things the farmer buys is growing stronger and stronger and it may become a most serious matter for the party in power. Some of the influential farm papers are stirring the farmer to revolt on the tariff. Farm members will bring the matter up next session and at the same time renew demand for the passage of the McNary-Haugen bill to promote agricultural exports, while shutting out agricultural imports.

Meantime, high tariff interests in this country are clamoring that the rates must be kept up. What they really fear is that public pressure may force Congress to take up the issue of revision of tariff rates and once this is done that Congress will proceed to cut rates. A combination of democrats and progressive republicans might be able to make such a cut.

EX-COUNCILLOR WAS ACQUITTED

Former Cobourg Man Was Exonerated on Fraud Charge.

COMPANY FAILED.

H. F. Pillsworth an Oshawa real estate man, and a former member of Cobourg Town Council, was acquitted by Judge Huycke on Wednesday afternoon in the County Court on a charge brought against him by David McBride of Hamilton Township. The complainant alleged fraud in connection with the purchase by Mr. McBride of $1,009 worth of stock in a building concorn which apparently afterwards went into bankruptcy. It was alleged in rebuttal that Mr. McBride had looked over the company's books before subscribing. Also that he attended a meeting of shareholders. Crown Attorney W. F. Kerr was present in his official capacity, and F. M. Field, K.C., was counsel for Mr. Pillsworth.

Mayor McArthur has proclaimed Monday, the 3rd of August to be Cobourg's civic holiday. In addition the Cobourg Horse Show Association has asked the mayor to proclaim two half holidays during Horse Show week, which will be the third week in August.

Camp Broke on Friday.

About fifty Girl Guides who have been camping at Richardson's Point, five miles east of the town, broke camp Friday. Mrs. Bray, Midland, has been visiting friends at Canborne and Plainville.

BAND CONCERT WAS ENJOYED

Lakefield Musicians Provided Tuneful Entertainment For Villagers.

WEATHER HINDERED.

LAKEFIELD, July 27.—The village band rendered a splendid program at an open air concert which they gave in the band-stand on the market square Thursday night. Despite the rather chilly state of the atmosphere, quite a few of the villagers turned out to listen to the strains of melody which were the result of their efforts. Had the evening been warmer a larger attendance would have resulted.

The hay crop in this district is going into the barns with a rush and will soon be finished with. Soon the merry hum of the binder will be heard in the rye and fall wheat fields, both of which grains have ripened fast these last two weeks. Other grains promise to be a bumper crop, whilst the corn and root crops are coming on in a most satisfactory manner.

A.Y.P.A. Picnic.

On Thursday afternoon a merry and at sometimes boisterous party, consisting of twenty-five members of the local A.Y.P.A., left the village for their annual picnic. The place this year was Sandy Point. They were guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Fitzgerald of Lakefield, who have their summer cottage at this charming spot. After a splendid and much enjoyed motor trip, the party arrived at their destination and were made welcome by their host and hostess, who put everyone at ease at once. During the afternoon a softball game was played between two teams, captained by Mr. C. C. Skinner and Mr. Robertshaw, respectively. The former nine won by the score of 21 to 14, but the losing side have pledged themselves to avenge this humiliating defeat in the near future. After the game was over those who felt inclined that way refreshed themselves with a swim in the cool waters of Clear Lake. At six o'clock the welcome call for supper came, which, judging by the remarks of some of the party, came none too soon. This was held in picnic style, the guests of honor being Mr. and Mrs. Fitzgerald. When supper was over and everything packed up for the return journey, a walk was taken along the beautiful shore as far as Karwatha Park and back. Just as the twilight was beginning to darken the horizon, a tired but happy party bid good-bye to their genial host and hostess, climbed into the truck and were soon speeding back toward the village. All voted the picnic a huge success and had their cup of enjoyment filled to the brim.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN DIED, ETC.

Democrats was seated down in front. When Bryan started Hill looked bored and yawned. When Bryan reached his climax and thundered:

"You shall not press down uopn the brow of labor this crown of thorn;s you shall not crucify mankind upon a cross of gold"—and even before that never-to-be-forgotten parade of standards about the hall, Hill turned to one of his friends and said: "That ends Bland's and every other boom in the convention."

It did. Bryan was the nominee.

Strange to say, the speech wasn't new, either. Bryan had delivered it climax and all a dozen times, but never under such dramatic circumstances.

Bryan made a wonderful campaign—he travelled 18,00 miles, spoke at every stopping place, and was defeated by Wm. McKmley by 271 electoral votes to 176 for Bryan. Senator Mark Hanna of Ohio had carefully planned the campaign for McKinley. The "free silver" issue was held up to scorn as the fallacy of a Populism gone mad, an evil that combined all the weaknesses and at the same time all the destructive forces of Greenbackism and Populism. Bryan was derided as a second "Sockless Jerry" Simpson. "Free Silver would close the factories and the working man would starve," was the cry of thousands of orators and hundreds of newspapers. "Full dinner pail" parades were organized by employers all over the nation. McKinley made a "front lawn" campaign at Canton, O., the forerunner of the "front porch" campaigns of later years. McKinley was posed as the champion of conservatism, the defender of property rights. Suave, dignified imposing McKinley looked the part. The Republican press spoke of Bryan in terms compared with which Charles Evans Hughes' characterization of the Bolsheviks was a compliment. To the Republican orators Bryan was a wild-eyed torch-bearer ready to wreck the United States.

Killed by Free Silver.

Free silver killed Bryan politically insofar as elective office holding was concerned as dead as oil killed others; gold some and free trade others. Although the 1896 campaign was the only one that Bryan made on a strictly free silver platform the mass of the voting public could never be convinced that Bryan was not a hair-brained theorist whose cult was ruin. Long after the body of Mark Hanna had rusted to dust in a Cleveland cemetery the effect of the bitter campaign of 1896 kept its veto on Bryan's elective ambitions.

In many ways Bryan was a statesman in advance of his times. He was accustomed to say that economic progress while it had made legal establishment of Free Silver 16 to 1 unnecessary had proved the soundness of its theory. He lived to see four of his pet ideas become the law of tis land: Prohibition Woman Soffrage Direct Election of United States Senators and Direct Primaries. Bryan was a prophet not without honor but without elective success in his own country.

The mass of the voters cheered him admired him but would not vote for him. His issue of imperialism fell flat. His issue of governmental ownership of the railroads was rejected by his generation. Whether time will vindicate that as it did other Bryan issues time only can answer.

Bryan's Last Fight.

In the convention of 1920 when James B. Cox of Ohio was selected as the Democratic standard bearer, Bryan held a proxy and made the fight for a dry plank in the national platform. With Bourke Cockran he staged one of the greatest debates of a career full of oratory. The erect young form that had electrified the 1896 convention had grown somewhat paunchy, the long, jet black hair of yesteryear had begun to turn and was much thinner. But Bryan had the same force, the same magnetism, th esame fire, the same easy flow of thought and language, the same eloquence. Cockran, the great Irish orator of Tammany Hall, was cool, keen logical and incisive. And when it was over the convention rose and cheered its old hero to the echo. For perhaps the last time Bryan saw the standards of the states plucked from sockets and carried in parades—for him. It was a tribute to the great party leader who was passing—had just passed.

Voted against Bryan.

Then the delegates calmly returned to their seats and voted against Bryan's eloquence and for his opponent's logic and their own personal preferences. It was the party's parting salute to a peerless but stricken political gladiator.

Four years later — a little less — Bryan attended the meeting of the Democratic national committee at Washington, and was barely noticed. Gone alike were his friends and foes. Many were dead, including the brilliant Cockran, his San Francisco adversary. Others were returned from politics. Still others had been brilliantly retired by the voters. It was as if Napoleon had returned to the field of Waterloo. "Champ" Clark on whose ambition Bryan had trampled at Baltimore, had passed on. Woodrow, estranged, had death's seal already on his bowed head. What Bryan thought as he passed through the throng no man knows. Bryan never wore his heart on his sleeve, and had killed more than one fair young political boom with his own hands. He knew that in politics the man who wields the sword must also perish by the sword. But he made no sign.

The Break with Wilson.

Although Bryan had broken years before with the party leaders he always retained a large following among the masses of his party in the south and west especially. He never had been strong in the east. His break with the Wilson forces, when he resigned his office as Secretary of State in 1915, had alienated him from the bulk of the new men who led the party for eight years under Wilson.

Bryan was named to head the Wilson cabinet in 1913, partly because of the part that he took in Wilson's nomination and as a graceful recognition on Wilson's part, but more because Wilson needed the help of the Bryan Congressmen and Senators from the west and south to carry his policies into legislation.

There never was any real friendship between Bryan and Wilson.Both were men accustomed to giving orders, not to taking them. There was too much iron in both constitutions to bend. The result was forecast by friends of both men. When the World War broke both Wlison and Bryan were pacifists. As it progressed Bryan adhered more and more to the idea that the United States should withdraw from all European interests and not under any condition allow the United States to be dragged into the conflict. Wilson at the start, as pacific as Bryan, found himself gravitating the other way. Wilson and his Secretary of State were getting further and further apart on the foreign policy of the United States.

Differed in Lusitania.

Then came the Lusitania disaster. Just what happened will remain a secret, unless Bryan divulges it in his memoirs—if he wrote any. The story current in Washington at the time and told by Senator Lodge on the public platform was that the ultimatum to Germany, calling her to account, was written by Bryan and Wilson, and that Bryan included a confidential note, to the effect that Germany could regard this as a matter of form and not worry about it —that it was only a diplomatic gesture. Wilson objected to the confidential section. Certain members of the cabinet threatened to resign if any "kicker" appeared in the ultimatum. Garrison was one. Wilson then elimintaed the confidential section and Bryan resigned. Bryan believed the unsoftened ultimatum meant war and he was against war.

Wilson issued a categorical denial of the story of a confidential note. So did Secretary Tumulty. Bryan and Garrison refused to talk. Lodge later issued a statement which, in effect, said: "The President denies. The President is always right. Therefore this version is an error."

It is said that the bitted feud between Wilson and Lodge dated from that statement. Wilson regarded the apparent evasion as an insult. He believed an absolute withdrawal was the least apology Lodge could have made.

Be that as it may, the Lusitania ultimatum marked the retirement of Bryan from official life. It was sent, minus any confidential note.

Having become a permanent resident of Miami, Fla., Mr. Bryan was elected from that state a delegate to the Democratic national convention at New York in 1924. He took a prominent part in the proceedings, but his influence was greatly curtailed as compared with that which he exerted at previous national conventions of the party. His advocacy of the nomiantion of William G. McAdoo had no effect in breaking the deadlock which continued for nearly two weeks between Mr. McAdoo and Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, the contest eventually being ended when the delegates switched to John W. Davis, who was nominated.

Mr. Bryan was a member of the resoltions committee and at one of the sessions when the K. K. K. issue was being discussed he dropped to his knees and urged the other members of the committee to join with him in prayer that they might be guided in the right light. The former secretary took part in the campaign, but was not as active as he had been in some previous ones. His brother, Charles W. Bryan, then governor of Nebraska, was the Democratic nominee for vice-president.

Opponent of Darwinism.

Easing up on his political activities with the 1920 national campaign, Mr. Bryan took a greater interest in the affairs of the Presbyterian church and devoted more of his time to lecturing. In 1923 he was defeated for moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church after an exciting contest. He was elected vice-moderator at the general assembly of 1924.

An avowed opponent of the Darwin theory of evolution, Mr. Bryan made many addresses on the subject. Speaking in 1923 before the legislature of West Virginia, which was considering a bill to prohibit the teaching of the Darwin theory in the schools of that state, Mr. Bryan said:

"School teachers paid by taxation should not be permitted to teach under the guise of science or philosophy anything that undermines faith in God, impairs belief in the Bible or discredits the Son of God and the Savior of the world. Evolutionists rob the Savior of the glory of the virgin birth, the majesty of His deity and the triumph of His resurrection. They weaken faith in the Bible by discarding the miracles and the supernatural and by eliminating from the Bible all that conflicts with their theories. They render the Book a scrap of paper."

Later in an address in New York Mr. Bryan denounced the Darwin theory as the greatest enemy of religion and declared that in the schools it was undermining Christianity. "I don't object to scientific truth," he said, "for no truth disturbs religion. What we object to is for any scientist to put forth his guess and demand that we substitute it for the word of God. Evolution is an enemy of the Bible and furnishes a respectable excuse for man to deny the Bible." Among his writings on the subject were: "The Menace of Darwinism," and "The Bible and Its Enemies."

To-day the world is still re-echoing Bryan's defense of the Bible's account of creation against the bitter, cynical assaults of Clarence Darrow, of Chicago, and Dudley Field Malone, of New York, both avowed atheists and counsel for W. T. Scopes, the young Tennessee teacher found guilty last week of teaching at Dayton the theory of evolution contrary to a statute of the State. That trial, described by some observers as the strangest ever witnessed in an Anglo-Saxon court of law, rang round the world with many reflexive comments disparaging Bryan and his uncompromising attitude toward Darwinism. But the old covenanter never wavered in his loyalty to his beliefs under the abusive and deriding taunts of the famous Darrow, who, Bryan retorted, desired chiefly at Dayton to heap ridicule on the Bible and deny its Christ.

In the death of Bryan yesterday the drama of Dayton was swiftly and suddenly turned to shocking tragedy in the death of its most prominent actor.

WEDDING BELLS.

HAMILTON—McFARLAND

A pretty summer wedding took place Wednesday afternoon, July 15, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Alice McFarland, when her daughter, Zetta Martha, became the wife of Mr. Bruce Alexander Hamilton of Montreal.

At two o'clock the little nieces of the bride, Winnifred Glover and Elsie Meeks entered the drawing room unrolling as they came the white ribbons that formed the aisle from the arch at the foot of the stairs to the bay window canopied and banked in ferns and sweet peas.

The Rev. W. R. Archer, B.A., pastor of the United Church, led the way followed by the groom and groomsman, Mr. Wellington McFarland, brother of the bride. The bridesmaid, Miss Gertrude McFarland, sister of the bride, dressed in corn color crepe romaine, preceded the bride by a few steps, as she came down the aisle, on the arm of her brother, Mr. Albert McFarland. The bride's dress was of peach color crepe romaine with hat to match and she carried Columbia rose buds. The groom wore the bride's' gift, a diamond tie pin. The two little nephews, Walter Glover and George Meeks, were attendants. Miss Elsie McFarland played the wedding music and during the signing of the register Miss Dorothy Welsh sang "All Mine Alone."

After the marriage ceremony a buffet luncheon was served. Later the happy couple left for Montreal amid a shower of confetti and good wishes.

The bride travelled in a suit of navy cashiette with a smart model hat of navy ribbon and wore the groom's gift a handsome fox fur.

The groom presented the bridesmaid with a white gold bar pin inset with pearls, Miss McFarland with a white gold ring with amethyst setting, Miss Dorothy Welsh with white gold bar pin with a pearl setting, and Mr. McFarland a belt with engraved sterling buckle.

The guests numbered about fifty, among whom were: Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Sanderson, Mr. and Mrs. A. Meeks, Peterboro; Mrs. Harold Copp, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Glover, Willowdale; Mr. and Mrs. Jos. McFarland, Mr. E. L. McFarland and Miss Elsie McFarland, Toronto.

Does "Eating at Night" Interfere With Your Sleep?

NEARLY everyone likes to have something to eat at bedtime. Yet too often we eat, at this time, foods which are difficult to digest. The result is that we roll and toss in bed for hours, unable to sleep.

Often you've had that experience, haven't you? Well, here's a suggestion:

Grape-Nuts is made from whole wheat and malted barley, which give to Grape-Nuts a wealth of nourishment—energy-giving carbohydrates; iron for the blood; phosphorus for the teeth and bones; proteins for muscle and body building; and the essential vitamin-B. They give to it, too, a temptingly-appetizing flavor—its crisp, crunchy granules have a delicious nut-like flavor that everyone likes. But here's the important point—Grape-Nuts is easy to digest! Baked 22 hours—it is one of the most digestible of all foods. That's why Grape-Nuts is a perfect bedtime treat. You can SLEEP after eating Grape-Nuts at night. Try it at bedtime to-night and see! You'll enjoy it as much as you do at breakfast.

All grocers have Grape-Nuts in wax-wrapped packages. Ready to eat. One serving—4 teaspoonfuls—costs less than one cent. Serve with milk or cream.

"There's a Reason"

Grape-Nuts

Made in Canada

Doctors and dentists are constantly warning us that we must eat more hard foods that require chewing. Grape-Nuts must be chewed—and its pleasure "crumbles away" and delightful flavor tempt you to chewing. This starts digestion in the mouth—where it should start—and gives to teeth and gums the exercise which alone can keep them in healthy condition.

Mail the coupon and we will send you two individual packages of Grape-Nuts free—enough for two breakfasts. We will also send you "A Book of Better Breakfasts," containing menus for a series of delightful health breakfasts—and written by a former college physical director. Follow these menus and form the habit of healthful breakfasts.

DAUGHTERS AS PARTNERS.

Lady Rhondda, daughter of one of the world's richest mining men, makes a timely suggestion when she urges that women be admitted to partnerships in business when they prove their ability. Lady Rhondda sighs for the day when signs reading "John Brown and Daughters" will be as commonplace as announcements like "John Brown and Sons."

Thousands of women in this country are in business for themselves under their own names. Many other women use initials to screen their sex in commerce and the professions. Hundreds of women are efficient directors and officers of corporations. Yet, as the progressive Englishwoman says, men appear averse to admitting that their daughters and wives are fit to be their partners in business. The wife or daughter who is a successful partner in the home would seem to be worth training for partnership in business, where responsibilities are no more important.—New York American.

THE SCOTT CASE.

Russell Scott, former Canadian promoter, who, had the law been permitted to take its course, would have been hanged this morning for the murder of a Chicago drug clerk, has been again reprieved—this time indefinitely. It is unlikely he will ever hang for his crime. Ballyhoos by friends in his behalf have stirred public opinion to his support, rightly or wrongly, and it has many times been demonstrated that the United States courts are more concerned about public opinion than they are about justice. They eat up melodrama, do our American cousins. For fifteen months Scott languished in jail and only members of his family and a few intimate friends were concerned about his plight. The usual pleas resorted to in cases of this kind proving impotent, it became apparent that the saving of Scott from the gallows was a job for a "stage manager." The fact that he had a missing brother, who he claimed fired the fatal shot, provided the necessary dramatic interest. Would the brother surrender and confess the crime and save Russell from the hangman's noose? The big American dailies played up this angle for all it was worth—and considerably more, but brother Bob did not come forward, and the fact that he did not surrender to the police may be construed as proving his innocence as easily as it can be interpreted as proving his guilt. It is incredible that any man would let his brother die in his place on the gallows, but the court records are full of cases of condemned men blaming their uncaught partners in crime. A fake telegram sent by a drunken telegraph operator and purporting to have been signed by the missing brother saved Scott at the eleventh hour a week ago. Even more dramatic was the midnight court session last night and the issuing of an order staying the execution indefinitely., while the sanity of Scott is investigated. It will be surprising if he will ever again be placed in the death cell. The work of dismantling the scaffold was begun a few hours after the reprieve had been granted, and so far as the capital penalty is concerned the case may be considered closed. All that remains now is for the drunken telegraph operator—the man who actually saved Scott's life—to be signed up to a vaudeville contract.—Hamilton Spectator.

GERMAN AND BRITISH WORKERS.

Of the two leading industrial nations in the European war, it is the defeated nation, Germany, that has experienced less disturbing labor consequences. Compared with Great Britain's nearly 20 per cent. of unemployment in 1921 and her present 11 per cent. of idle workers, unemployment in Germany has been a comparatively minor factor except for a few months after the Ruhr occupation. For a long period before the invasion of the Ruhr there was virtually no idleness in Germany. A puzzle that still awaits complete elucidation is how Germany kept her factories going full blast at a time when her exports were less than half of the pre-war years. Part of the answer is in the large production for plant instead of for immediate consumption. But consumption, too, was encouraged by the demoralization of the currency. Wages were spent as soon as earned, for no one knew what the paper mark would be worth tomorrow.

The contrast between German employment and British unemployment is emphasized by the fact that German labor has been working longer hours. Officially the eight-hour day survives. In practice it has been largely done away with through mutual agreement. At Essen the metallurgical workers operate in twelve-hour shifts with two hours for rest, making a ten-hour day. In the Krupp machine shops it is an eleven-hour shift with an hour's rest. In the blast furnaces and coke ovens the eight-hour day obtains. In Great Britain the nominal working day is eight hours, but in practice the week runs less than forty-eight hours. In the British metallurgical trades the average weekly wage is a little over $15. At Krupp's the scale is from $8 to $12. Measured in terms of well-being, the British workman stands far higher than the German—provided he has employment. He receives 25 per cent. more in wages for 20 per cent. less in working time. The comparison is somewhat rectified to the advantage of the German worker by the moderate amount he expends on rent. At Essen the worker who earns 200 marks a month pays 16 marks for rent; where company housing is not provided the outlay on rent is higher.

Except for his longer hours, it is probable that the German workingman in comparison with the Englishman is better off than he was before the war. He has willingly accepted the longer working day with employment as an alternative to the shorter day with a high ratio of idleness. The cheaper production made possible by the longer day has enabled German industry to make itself increasingly felt in the world market and to cope with a depleted purchasing power at home. National necessity has modified class demands in Germany. The same spirit is asserting itself in Great Britain, where the radical move for a great labor "alliance" and increased pressure upon "capital" has been rejected by the moderate labor leaders for a policy of co-operation.—New York Times.

"DECENCY" BY STATUTE.

Now comes Lord Darling, says "Editor and Publisher," introducing a bill in the House of Lords to regulate press reports of law cases. Lord Darling, while on the bench gained constant newspaper publicity by a habit of joking in court, humorous remarks and cutting flings that lent themselves to headlines and pointed stories. He became a nationally known character.

Under his proposed measure publication of any "indecent matter" which comes out in court would be punished by imprisonment not exceeding three months or a fine not exceeding £500, or both, and a special prohibition would be put on publishing medical, surgical and physiological details which "might injure public morals." In divorce cases the bill would permit only publication of the names, addresses and descriptions of the parties to the suit and the witnesses, the grounds on which the suit has been brought and defended, as set forth in the legal papers, the submission of any legal questions in the course of the trial and the summing up of the judge, the action of the jury and the judgment of the court, provided that none of these violate the general clause prohibiting publication of improper matter. In this particular Lord Darling's proposals are in line with French law.

Lord Darling knows something of the depths to which divorce and scandal trials may descend. He presided on the King's Bench when the $750,000 blackmail case of "Mr. A." was heard recently. As a judge he refused to allow the central figure in that disgusting mess, Rajah Sir Hari Singh, nephew of the Maharajah of Jammu and Kashmir, to be named in open court like an ordinary citizen would have been named without any ceremony whatsoever. Lord Darling has heard many sensational divorce cases, involving persons of high social standing.

We believe that such a measure as it proposed by this aged jurist is false in principle, and seeks to increase the privileges of a class. Indecency is not interesting to news writers when it concerns notoriously indecent people; it becomes valid copy when it concerns pretentious people. The effect of such publication is to level such persons to the plane of life to which they properly belong. For instance, it is not a bad thing, but highly desirable from every public point of view, for the people to know what an evil person is "Mr. A." He assumes, by right called divine, to govern other men. He would exact, by reason of inherited power, respect and following. By law and custom other men, fashioned as he, are compelled to bend the knee in his presence. This royal personage was turned up in court proceedings as a moral leper, a man lost to all decency, a coward and a snob, and Mr. Justice Darling sought to draw a curtain to shelter him and perpetuate his fame, thus ommitting an act against the public which, in our view, amounted to fraud. The British people had a right to know that this potentate was unworthy of respect.

Libertines would rejoice at such a press gag. It would eliminate their one serious source of fear of consequences of degenerate life—publicity. We do not believe that public morals are ordinarily "injured" by the publication of the realities of life, no matter how offensive, if and when the publication is in the nature of righteous exposure of anti-social conditions. Evil must be recognized before it becomes repugnant. Supress the news, according to Lord Darling's measure, and you present a pleasantly false view of one of the most unpleasant conditions in modern society and inhibit corrective processes. A few good newspapers might have saved Sodom.

What of the innocent victims of disgraceful court proceedings? Every day sees pure hearts dragged in the dust through circumstances beyond control. There is an innocent party to almost every divorce case carrying unjust burdens of infamy. They suffer according to natural degrees of sensitiveness. Something better than the "sins of the fathers" doctrine seems to apply to them. Yet we do not know what it is. A charming, wholesome, dignified woman is drawn into the limelight of publicity by a husband, dead to honor, from whom she must free herself as one would cast off a pernicious contamination. She cannot escape degrees of obloquy, odium, disgrace in her position. Call it her "fate." However, be it said, news writers, except in rare cases, use their finest talents to protect innocent persons who appear in the news. This springs from a motive higher than any statute or custom, it is the innate grace of a gentleman. "In writing, treat strangers with as much consideration as you would personal friends," is the rule which governs reporters and editors, here and in England.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

With Al. Sweet and his singing band coming, Peterboro's Industrial Exhibition should be even more harmonious than ever.

The Chicago method of administering justice may possibly explain the record number of murders in the Windy City.

The greatest trouble in Great Britain seems to be finding work for the unemployed and persuading the employed to stay at the work they've got.

A shipment of barrels labeled as cement was seized at Niagara Falls, and the containers were found to hold whiskey. The London Advertiser thinks that the police have found concrete evidence.

A THOUGHT.

We have watched cold, bloodless machinery revolutionize industry. We have wattched the old stage-coach give way to the steam locomotive, and steam to electricity, and the whole combination in danger of giving way to the automobile. We have heard people talk through a wire, and then astound us by talking through thousands of miles of atmosphere. We have witnessed progression from Magellan to the world-circling flight of our aviators The log cabin has been replaced by towering skyscrappers. The old Indian trials have been covered by concrete highways, and the blast of the automobile horn disturbs that which not so long ago was sylvan solitude.

Each generation sits back astounded at what they themselves are doing. Each new step at first has been doubted as to successs many until they have watched its amazing completion.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, July 25. — Increased movement of winter wheat to market gave wheat prices to-day a lower trend. Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at 3-8 to 1 1-8 cents net decline, with September $1.49 3-8 to $1.49 5-8 and December to $1.51 3-8. Corn finished at 5-8 to 1 1-8 cents down. Oats 1-4 to 5-8c off, and provisions showing 2 to 1-2c drop.

QUEBEC BUTTER AUCTION.

MONTREAL, July 26. — At the Auction sale of the Quebec Federated Co-operative Society held here last week there were only 2,250 packages of creamery butter offered as compared with 7,000 packages for the previous week, and 5,100 packages for the same week last year. The demand was amply to absorb the offerings of No 1 pasteurized creamery of which 1,500 packages sold at an advance of 1-8c per lb. to 38c per lb., but as the price bid for No. 1 creamery was 1c per lb., below the asking figure it was refused.

STERLING RATES.

MONTREAL, July 26. — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here on Saturday as follows:

Sterling demand $4.84 3-4.

Sterling cables $4.85 1-4.

MADOC CHEESE 21 9-16.

MADOC, July 25. — At the chees board session 344 boxes were offered and all sold at 21 9-16c per lb., which was 15-16c per lb. Lower than the previous week and 5 1-4c per lb. Higher than the same date last year when 380 boxes sold at 16 5-16c per lb.

ST. HYACINTHE CHEESE.

ST. HYACINTHE, July 25. —The offerings of cheese on the Board were 266 boxes, of which 131 boxes sold at 21 1-8c per lb., showing a decline of 7-8c per lb., since this day last week, and an advance of 5 5-8c per ub. with a year ago, when 30 boxes sold at 15 1-2c per lb.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, July 27. — Owing to the warm weather that has prevailed of late the domestic consumption of eggs has been curtailed to some exetent and in consequence the demand from retail houses for supplies was somewhat limited with the result that the volume of business for the week was smaller than usual and the market was rather quiet with final sales of fresh extras at 41c, firsts at 38c, and seconds at 34c per dozen.

The receipts of butter in Montreal for the week ending July 25, 1925, were 28,854 packages which show a decrease of 3,522 packages, as compared with the previous week, and an increase of 6,895 packages with the same week last year, while the total arrivals from May first to date have been 15,949 packages in excess of the same period of 1924.

There was no important change in the condition of the market the past week, prices generally being fairly well maintained but the volume of business was smaller owing to the fact that there was a lull in the demand from English importers for supplies and local houses showed no dispostion to operate to any extent at the present level of prices. The market on the whole was quieter than any previous week this month.

The receipts of cheese in Montreal for the week ending July 25, 1925, were 63,170 boxes which show a decreaseof 4,198 boxes, as compared with the previous week, an increase of 7,503 boxes with the same week last year, while the total for the season to date have been 45,303 boxes larger than the same period of 1924.

The feature of this department of the trade was the easier feeling that developed in the market and spot prices declined 1-4c to 1-2c per lb, for the week, while at the boards in the country purchases were made 1-8c to 7-8c per lb, below the previous wek. This was attributed to the falling off in the demand from foreign buyersr and the easier tone of cable advices, there being reselers in the London market of western No. 1 white and colored cheese at 108s to 109s per cwt, The export trade on the whole hrere was much quieter.

QUICK RELIEF FOR RHEUMATICS

Local Druggists Sell Rheuma on Money-Back Plan.

If you suffer from torturing rheumatic pains, swollen, twisted joints, and suffer intnesely because your system is full of uric acid, that dangerous poison that makes thousands helpless and kills thousands years before their time, then you need Rheuma, and need it now.

Start taking it to-day. Rheuma acts at once on kidneys, liver, stomach and blood, and you can sincerely exclaim: "God riddance to bad rubbish."

Many people, the most skeptical of skeptics right in this city and in the country hereabouts, bless the day when McDermid & Jury and other good druggists offered Rheuma to the afflicted at a small price and guaranteed money refunded if not satisfied. If you have rheumatism get a bottle of Rheuma to-day.

PLAYGROUNDS PROVIDE SPLENDID PLACE FOR CHILDISH RECREATION

Competent Supervisors and Good Equipment at Three Schools.

MANY GAMES.

Great Variety of Amusement Provided—Children Taught to Swim—Use of the Stadium.

In three of the playgrounds, are rests of the City. King Edward, Busses, which and Queen Alexandra, Peterborough facilities, under competent supervision, are available without recreation of the children had one holiday weeks. Swimming

For the boys, there baseball, football, horseshoe pitching (when it gets too hot outside) checkers. The girls play volley ball soft ball, and sometimes tennis. Boys are the very small children neglected, as there is a large sand pile in each playground and a teeter board, various occasionally by such games as London Bridge and French Tag.

At King Edward School.

King Edward which has the largest playground and the best equipment has the greatest number of children taking advantage of the opportunities afforded. As many as 200 children have been counted on an afternoon there. Ken Goheen who is the supervisor, has classes in swimming, in the waters at the end of Lake Street. This season, two of the youngsters have learned to swim and others are just on the brink. A horseshoe tournament also forms a part of the days sports at King Edward. Miss McNiven organize the girls games and teaches embroidery work, raffia work and the use of sewing cards. Miss McNiven has had a complete course in physical training and instruction and is admirably qualified to look after the children.

At Central School.

There is not quite so much room at the Central School but here also there is sufficient equipment to ensure a good afternoon's sport for the children. Mr. Abraham and Miss Cameron are the supervisors in charge.

At Queen Alexandra School.

At Queen Alexandra, although the childrens homes are widely scattered, quite a number gather there every day, and on some days as many as 150. There are two horse shoe pitches and three baseball diamonds, together with swings and sand piles. Ted Outram looks after the boys, while Miss Cruickshanks who has been trained in girls work at the summer school takes charge of the girls, teaching sewing, singing and dancing. Seven boys of the district have been taught swimming at Inverlea Park.

There are two baseball leagues, a senior and a junior, formed from the three schools and a neck and neck race is now being run to decide the championship. Inter-school softball games are also staged for the girls.

The three schools are combining to have a picnic in the near future. Last year, an outing was held at Lock 4 on the Canal which was a great success and it is hoped this years effort wil have a similar outcome.

THANK THE MASONS

Protestant Home Management Expresses Appreciation of Outing.

The thanks of the management of the Protestant Home are due and are hereby tendered to the gentlemen of the Royal Arthur Lodge, A.F. and A.M., who on Thursday afternoon, July 23rd, arranged a very delightful outing for the inmates of this institution. Though the morning was very cloudy and cool, the weatherman relented about noon and gave us a clear, breezy afternoon. The objective of the drive was Chemong, where Mr. and Mrs. Breyfogle had kindly placed their cottage at the disposal of the guests, and had arranged a program of sports for their entertainment.

A delicious hot supper was served about five. The catering was done by St. Andrew's Ladies' Aid, and that statement is a guarantee of its excellence.

Not the least pleasant part of the entertainment was the drive home, some of the drivers going out of their way to afford their guests beautiful views of far-spread fields and woodlands, with enchanting glimpses of blue water interspersed. So came to an end a day long to be remembered, and very gratefully appreciated by those who have once more been the recipients of the kindness of the Royal Arthur Lodge.

ONLY FOR FARMERS.

Condition of Union Affiliation With Grain Growers.

SASKATOON, Sask., July 26 (Canadian Press).—The Farmers' Union of Canada will link up with the Saskatchewan Grain Growers Association on the specific understanding the membership in the association is strictly confined to bona fide farmers not engaged in other business, according to a resolution passed at the final session of the union here.

Resolutions were passed, expressing opposition to any policy favoring one line of elevators in the marketing of pool wheat. Support also was urged for a large coarse grain pool.

BODY OF WOMAN WASHED ASHORE

Short Distance From Where Man's Body Found Friday.

NEAR GRIMSBY

ST. CATHARINES, (Canadian Press).—The body of an unknown woman wearing a diamond ring with the initials D. was washed ashore at Lake Ontario, was washed ashore at think North Grimsby Township fruit farm morning of July 17 mile Blue Berrie spot where the body was discovered on Friday lying sitting with bodies which were beyond that condition were of people about years of age, and had been in the water for about two weeks.

The woman, about 4 ins. height, bobbed dark hair wore a brownish grey coat with blue line, and narrow belt, red dress with light blue spots, light khaki knickers, light tan stockings and dark tan Oxford shoes. Besides the signet ring she had a cheap ring with three stones, a bar pin and an ornament with a crystal centre tried about her neck with a black ribbon. County Crown Attorney Lancaster gave permission for the immediate burial of the body at Grimsby when the find was reported to him by Provincial Officer McKay from Grimsby.

UPHOLD O.T.A. DECISION.

Appeal of Lindsay Veterinary Doctor Was Dismissed.

LINDSAY, July 27 (Special)—His Honor Judge Swayze has handed out judgment in the appeal entered by the solicitor for Dr. Broad, V.S., against the decision of Police Magistrate Bradford in an O.T.A. case. Dr. Broad was found guilty of violation of Section 40 of the Act, and was ordered to be imprisoned in the county jail for a period of four months and to pay a fine of $100 and costs. Judge Swayze dismissed the appeal with costs.

NEED TWO LICENSES

CALGARY, Alta., July 27 (Canadian Press).—Commercial travellers operating in Alberta and British Columbia are being compelled to take out motor car licenses in both provinces, if they extend their operations. A similar arrangement is being adopted in Saskatchewan.

DISARMAMENT TENDENCY

"The tendency among nations to limit armaments is growing very slowly," declared General Sir Frederick Maurice, director of military operations for Great Britain in the war, who has just reached this continent via New York. "Before nations limit their military establishments," he said, "they will have to feel secure, and free from sudden attack. There is growing, however, a sense of disarmament, but I do not expect that the time will come when nations will completely disarm."

MAY RECOMMEND GRANT FOR THE COAL INDUSTRY

Rumor That Government Committee May Propose Temporary Subsidy.

BALDWIN STUDIES

LONDON, July 27. —(Canadian Press Cable). — There has been a lull over the week end in the moves for a peaceful settlement of the mining crisis. All parties are waiting events pending the conference between the mine owenrs and the miners under the auspices of the government next Wednesday. Most of the leaders of the miners left London during the week end for their respective districts. The members of the court of inquiry are spending the week end together drafting their report.

There is a note of hopefulness in ministerial circles regarding the outcome of the government's meditation. The strictest secrecy is being observed regarding the report of the coal inquiry but it is persistently rumoured that a temporary subsidy for the industry will be recommended. In well informed quarters it is pointed out that the present impasse must be met by a new method which might be the subsidy. Premier Baldwin spent all Sunday making himself familiar with the situation in preparation for his meeting the Trades Union Congress on Monday.

Miner's Preparing.

A. J. Cook, secretary of the miners, interviewed on Saturday said: "We are making all the necessary preparations for a stoppage including arrangements to feed the miners their wives and families. At the moment I can see no hope of averting the struggle unless the government insist upon the withdrawal of the owners' notices and proposals," Frank Hodges, secretary of the international miners federation when interviewed expressed great relief that the mine owners and miners were again in joint consultation. "You ask me if a stoppage is inevitable. Most certainly not," he said. "If the parties meet Wednesday in a joint conference to consider a possible agreement, notices to terminate contracts should immediately be withdrawn by the owners for a reasonable period and the workmen allowed to carry on on the old terms until acceptable solution is found."

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP GAINS NEW FRIENDS

Developments Gain By Retirement of Adverse Senator.

WASHINGTON, July 25. (Canadian Press).—The possibilities of public ownership and operation of the power project at Muscle Shoals are said to be increasing by the friends of public ownership. They are encouraged by several developments.

One of these is the announcement that Senator Underwood of Alabama will retire. He has been the foremost advocate of the private control of Muscle Shoals. Senator Norris of Nebrasks, who blocked the plan of Underwood, has recently returned from Ontario and is more enthused than ever in favor of public ownership and operation of power plants. He intends to make a harder fight than ever for this idea in the next session of Congress.

Another factor is the power development in New Brunswick under the power commission of that province. It has recently obtained a permmit for the development of the Grand Falls project. Senator Norris and others who take his view look on the development of power in New Brunswick as well as in Ontario as affording strong reasons why this country must take up with the public ownership and operation of power.

M. G. BOSWORTH DIES IN LONDON

Was Chairman of the Canadian Pacific Steamship Lines.

OPERATION FATAL.

LONDON, July 27 (Canadian Press).—M. G. M. Bosworth, chairman of the Canadian Pacific Steamship Lines, died in London Sunday. Death followed an operation for appendicitis.

Apart from his duties in the Canadian Pacific Railway, he was a director of the Povincial Bank; of the Crown Trust Company; and some smaller financial institutions.

He was a member of the St. James Club, the Canada Club, the Montreal Hunt Club the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club, the Lachine Boating Club, the Canadian Camp Club, N.Y., and the Century Club, Ogdensburg, N.Y.

Mr. Bosworth was twice married, and his second wife, nee Miss Birchall, daughter of Lieutenant-Colonel Birchall, of Montreal, survives him, together with two children: a daughter, Mrs. Douglas Seely, and a son, S. M. Bosworth. His first wife was a Miss Medbury, of Detroit.

ELECTION DATE NOT LIKELY TO BE FIXED TODAY

First Meeting of Council Since Parliament Prorogued Thornton Presents Problem.

CONTRACT EXPIRING

Nine Seats in Senate to be Filled—Changes in Cabinet Expected.

OTTAWA, July 27. — (Canadian Press).— While the meeting of the cabinet which has been called for this afternoon derives a special interest from the rumours of impending dissolution and a general election, it is very improbable that it will result in any decision on these important matters. Premier King and the majority of members of the Government, some of whom have been away from the Capital for weeks, will attend. There will doubtless be an exchange of information which has been gathered during the interval since the prorogation of parliament, and views for and against an election this Autumn will be presented. It is rumoured that there is not unanimity among the members of the Government as to the wisest course to pursue. In this event the final decision must be made by the Prime Minister and he has said that it will not be made hastily.

In the meantime, the Government is allowing a whole sheaf of appointments to stand over. These will, of course, be made before going to the country in the event of a decison for an election.

Cabinet re-organization furnishing some of the necessary material for filling the vacancies. But there is one question which must receive the attention of cabinet before very long Sir Henry Thornton's three-year term as President of the Canadian National Railway will expire in October. His contract must be renewed or his successor found. Although rumours that he has been re-engaged at a largely increased salary have been declared foundationless, the present government will doubtless seek a renewal of the contract. Whether or not an increased salary will be one of the features of the new agreement, should one be made, remains to be seen.

Fielding's Portfolio.

Whatever be the decision in regard to an election, Premier King is confronted with the necessity of making some changes in his cabinet before long. Rt. Hon. W. S. Fielding, Finance Minister, has been unable to attend to his duties for years, and now that provision has been made, he will probably retire. Hon. James A. Robb, the acting Finance Minister, will relinquish the immigration portfolio and devote at least, his complete attention to finance, thus there will be one vacancy, at least, andl it is said that the Prime Minsiter is anxious to strengthen himself in the West by filling it from the Prairie Provinces. One or two of the other ministers are quite willing to retire if they can be accommadated in either Senate or elsewhere, it is rumoured. There are nine seats to fill in the upper chamber, as well as a vacancy on the Railway Commission, some in the Judiciary, and a post at Washington.

The decison in regard to an election will probably not come for some weeks. The result in New Brunswick will doubtles have a bearing on it.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS POST FOR CANADIAN

B. C. Professor Appointed Director in Research Division at Geneva.

VANCOUVER, B.C., July 27 (Canadian Press).—Dr. Mack Eastman, professor of history at the University of British Columbia, has left for Geneva where he will assume his new duties as director of general studies in the research division of the International Labor Office, working in association with the League of Nations.

This represents an unusual distinction for Dr. Eastman, and an honor for Canada. The post is a recently created, one and the British Empire was asked to make the appointment. All the Dominions were in turn requested to send in nominations. Canada named Dr. Eastman and although he did not volunteer for the office he was the unanimous choice. Ten men, representing ten different nations and each an expert in labor and economic problems, will serve under the Canadian professor.

Dr. Eastman is a native of Oshawa, Ont., and a graduate of the University of Toronto. He spent three years at the University of Paris, perfecting his knowledge of the French language and studying French-Canadian problems. In Paris he came into touch with such leaders of thought as Anatole France, Jean Juares and Albert Thomas, the latter now being director of the League of Nations International Labor office.

In Canada, Dr. Eastman won a reputation as an authority on European affairs. He served overseas and on his return became a champion of the League of Nations, making speeches in its behalf throughout the Dominion.

RETURNS TO TORONTO

Superintendent of Shriners' Hospitals Travelled Over 70,000 Miles Last Year.

TORONTO, July 27 (Canadian Press) —Miss Florence J. Potts, lady superintendent of Nurses of the Shriners' Hospitals for Crippled Children, is visiting in the city, renewing friendships made when she was superintendent of the Hospital for Sick Children here. Last year she travelled more than 70,000 miles in the discharge of her duties. "Our hospitals are not run for the benefit of Shriners' children, as so many seem to think," said Miss Potts, in an interview. "They are intended, first and foremost for children whose parents and guardians are unable to pay for treatment, and when they leave for home each patient is given a farewell gift of a complete set of clothes. We have a waiting list in every one of our hospitals, and the field of endeavor is a Wide one.

"These institutions are also used as teaching centres for medical students; we feel that we have such wonderful material in our hospitals and we are glad to have students in training receive the benefit of our experiences and researches. In connection with our Montreal unit, the Royal Victoria the Montreal General, the Homeopathic Hospital and the Jeffrey Hale Hospital of Quebec send their student nurses to us. Towards the upkeep of these hospitals each Noble contributes $2 a year as a regular fee, thus ensuring an income of over one million dollars."

AN ANCIENT RELIC FOR A MOVIE THRILL

Guam Children Give Strange Tickets to Gain Entrance.

HONOLULU, July 27.—(Associated Press).—An ancient sacred relic in exchange for a ticket to the movies is the latest tale to float up from the mysterious islands of the South Seas where a group of scientists is attempting to solve the problem of the origin of the Polynesian race.

It is told in a letter from one of the workers attached to the Bishop Museum, Honolulu, and concerns Guam and the Chamorro children on the sun-baked shores of that island who will hunt assiduously for bits of weathered stone in order to enjoy viewing the cowboys, train wrecks, shooting scrapes and bathing girls that appear on the Guam screen as representing that far away and unknown country, America.

The search is "hazardous," for the children, because of the tradition that the strangely-shaped stones which are in such great demand at the Agana "movie-house" belonged once to the "Taotao-Mona," or the "people of before time," who are feared so greatly that none of the adult residents dare touch the relics.

The stones are the implements and weapons left by the former inhabitants of the Marianas, who may have belonged to a race antedating the Polynesians, the scientists say.

Many varieties of the objects are necessary for the study of the habits and customs of the race and the Bishop Museum expedition has contracted with the Agana motion picture theatre in one of the strangest compacts ever signed. Its terms provide for an exchange of the relics for free admission to the show, the museum to redeem the stones, most of which have come from "tabu" or forbidden spots. They will be studied carefully and perhaps in them will be found the clue that will lead to the origin of the Polynesian peoples.

"Music can, indeed, be a medicine; but we must be our own doctors. Happy the man who, like the dog out of sorts, makes straight for the kind of grass that will cure him, knows what music to "take" and when to take it."—Ernest Newman.

MERCHANT MARINE CAUSE OF WORRY

Shipping Broad and Emergency Fleet in Continuous Wrangle.

WASHINGTON, July 27.—(Canadian Press).—The shipping question is steadily forcing its way to the front as one which cannot be ignored at the next session of Congress. With the great merchant marine which this country had at the close of the war being steadily dissipated and the Shipping Board and Emergency Fleet Corporation in a more or less continuous wrangle, also with little unanimity of public or official opinion as to what ought to be done to build up and strengthen the merchant marine, the shipping outlook for the country is not good. Members of Congress who have the welfare of the merchant marine at heart are much worried about it.

The latest evidence of friction between the Shipping Board and the Emergency Fleet Corporation is the disapproval by the Shipping Board of a bid recommended by Admiral Palmer, head of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, for the sale of 200 all-steel vessels. The vessels originally cost the Government over $100,000,000, and Palmer recommended acceptance of a bid of the Boston Iron and Metal Company for $1,370,000. In other words, he proposes to get rid of the vessels for junk.

The President seems disposed to give more and more authority to the Emergency Fleet Corporation and take it from the Shipping Board. The Board is not disposed to give up its authority. In fact, it has its authority from Congress for the most part and no power but Congress can really take authority from it unless it simply vacates it.

Now, however, in view of the friction, there is talk that the President will recommend abolition of the Board. In any event, some members of Congress have already declared it should be abolished.

Down at bottom, the trouble over the merchant marine is that part of Congress and part of the Shipping Board favor Government ownership and operation of shipping, and want it made a success. While another part of Congress and of the Shipping Board oppose Government ownership and operation and want to force the Government out of the shipping business regardless of what is done with the ships which the Government now owns. The President is declared to be in sympathy with those trying to end the policy of Government ownership and operation. Of course, all the private shipping interests of the country want to end Government ownership and operation.

The result is that there is all manner of pulling and hauling and wrangling. The merchant marine suffers from lack of any vigorous and well-sustained and permanent policy. Vast numbers of ships, tied up at wharfs, are rusting and rotting away. What ships are operated cannot be operated with the vigor and success that would obtain if there was on all hands energetic backing for Government ownership and operation.

While this goes on, the private shipping interests that want the Government to get out of the shipping business are trying to engineer a plan for ship subsidy. Congress has repeatedly refused to pass a ship subsidy bill.

It is charged by Senators and House members who are earnestly in favor of a U. S. merchant marine that unless a new and better and more whole-hearted and intelligent policy is adopted the merchant marine will be scuttled in five years and most of the ships scrapped or in the hands of foreigners. Then, they say, U. S. business men will find they are forced to pay higher ocean freights, and foreign trade will gain large advantages over U. S. trade.

MUCH INVESTED IN PALESTINE LANDS

Jewish National Fund Has Put in More Than $6,000,000.

JERUSALEM, July 27. — The Jewish National Fund has invested almost $6,000,000 in the purchase and improvement of land in Palestine from October, 1920, to April, 1925, approximately the period of Sir Herbert Samuel's administration as high commissioner, according to a report issued by the world headquarters of the fund here.

Of this money $5,194,440 was spent in the purchase of agricultural and urban land and $774,150 in land improvements, including the drying up of swamps, road building, water supply installation and building loans to new settlers.

Twenty-nine of the 43 colonies established by the Palestine Foundation Fund (Keren Hayesod) during this period, were built on land purchased by the Jewish National Fund. This includes the dozen colonies thus far established by the Palestine Foundation Fund as part of its colonization scheme in building up the Valley of the Jezreel.

Both the Jewish National Fund and the Palestine Foundation Fund are financial agencies of the World Zionist Organization, the former being a land purchasing agency, and the latter engaged in the principal constructive enterprises such as agriculture, education, public health and promotion of trade and industry, aimed at the rebuilding of the Jewish Homeland. More than sixty percent of the $8,000,000 spent by the Palestine Foundation Found in the Holy Land was contributed by American Jews.

Here is the way to glistening teeth that dentists now advise

It removes that dingy film from your teeth. It clears cloudy teeth. Start beautifying your teeth today—why wait?

MODERN science now tells us how to clean and brighten dingy teeth. A new way widely urged by leading dentists of the world. Different in formula, action and effect, it does what no other method has yet attained—removes and combats, without harsh grit, the dangerous film that covers teeth and which old type dentrifices do not fight successfully.

Run your tongue across your teeth. You will feel that film. Under it are the prettier, whiter teeth you envy in others. If you combat that film your teeth will quickly glisten in a way that will delight you. Ask your druggist for a tube of Pepsodent. Results will amaze you.

The Great Enemy of Teeth.

Film is the great enemy of tooth beauty. And a chief cause according to world's dental authorities, of pyorrhea and most tooth troubles. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs by the millions breed in it. It holds food in contact with teeth, inviting the acid that causes decay.

You can't have prettier, whiter teeth; you can't have healthier teeth unless you combat that film.

Mail the coupon now. Don't expect the same results from old type dentrifices. Begin beautifying your teeth to-day.

UNCLE SAM SETS BORDER TRAPS TO CATCH PEOPLE WHO WISH TO BEAT THE IMMIGRATION QUOTAS

Inspectors Are Wise to Every Trick Used by the Smugglers.

CHANGED SYSTEM

No Landing Cards Now — Officers Can Tell Foreigner at Glance.

By C. R. GREENWAY

The first fact a Canadian tourist crossing Lake Ontario notices this summer is that the United Sttaes immigration officers are not riding the boats as they did last year.

You remember the system last summer? About the time the shore line at the mouth of the Niagara river crept into distinctness, the familiar tones of the American immigration officer invited everybody going in to the United States to step into a cabin to obtain a landing card.

The invitation is missing this year. There is no officer. All the people are examined as they come off the boats. At the end of the steep boards incline at Lewiston, they are held up at half a dozen gates by the immigration officers. Here they are questioned about their business, just as they are at the Niagara Falls bridges, at Fort Erie, or at Detroit.

"As a consequence, the number of people traveling on the boats and getting off at Lewiston has declined materially." The officer says this in an ironic tone.

The explanation is the common one you hear along the border; bootlegging in undesirable citizens. It was the alien smugglers who stopped the convenience of the landing ticket. The American immigration officers discovered that alien smugglers were transferring their landing cards on the boats to foreigners who could never otherwise have crossed the border.

The officer pictures an instance. A Russian, naturalized for many years in the United Sttaes, receives word that a relative has got as far as Canada and wants to join him. Legally, he cannot enter the United States. The Russian quota is full. So he is met in Toronto by the relative from the United States. The pair take the Niagara boat for Lewiston. The naturalized citizen obtains a landing card which he transfers to his foreign relative. While the debarred man smuggles himself through, the other lands at Queenston, crosses one of the Niagara Falls bridges and joins his smuggled relative on the American side.

Just for that reason—and a thousand more—it is, perhaps, a little more difficult for you to enter the United States this year; although, if you are genuine, you may not know it. The lawless try some ingenious tricks, and the whole immigration line along the border tightens slightly. The officer become—if this is possible—just a little bit more acute and suspicious.

And so it happens that in almost every conversation among Canadians this summer there is usually someone who commences to tell about some unpleasant experience personally felt or witnessed in crossing the border.

The talk usually goes something like this: A woman describes what happened to her at Detroit. "And then the officer said: 'Just step inside, please!' We might have been a lot of monkeys. And the things he asked us! Crazy things!"

Just exactly what the inspector said; he often asks them crazy questions. Then, if they have been coached about the things to say, they are puzzled; they show unmistakable signs to the crafty inspector.

Then a man tells a different tale from the woman. He is an insurance inspector. "Well, that's funny about people saying they have been held up at the border. I've crossed over a dozen times, I suppose, this year; at Sarnia, Windsor and Niagara Falls, and no officer has said more than a half dozen words to me. They've scarcely looked into my bag. You must have said something, or done something wrong."

Clapipng Down the Lid.

Almost invariably that is the explanation, if you are genuine. There was a young woman from Toronto inclined to joking at Lewiston. "Where are you going?" asked the inspector at the turnstile. "Oh, just where they're going." She was referring to the destination mentioned by two young men in front of her. "Where's that?" "Oh, Buffalo!" "But they were going to Niagara Falls! Please step inside for a minute!"

Invariably, too, the conversation about crossing the border ends up with the pathetic story. There is usually a case of some woman who has been held up while a relative was dying. Some take the part of the woman, some the side of the immigration inspector. Usually there is nothing definite on which to base a judgment. The reports never seem to give the inspector's explanation. The customs officer at a distance can't quite understand it. "Some people just naturally antagonize the officers. Some people lie and say they are American citizens, thinking they will get past the gates faster."

So the mystery—the legend—of the border continues. To the seasoned traveler it is only humdrum. But to thousands of others it still remains the thirll that comes once in a lifetime.

The fact remains that in the meantime 2,930,000 people in the immigration year just finished actually crossed the upper and lower bridges at Niagara Falls alone. The fascination of crossing the border at Niagara Falls increases. All day long the line of cars and people at the suspension bridge is continuous. At the rate of 385 an hour, more than 10,000 automobiles passed the officers at the barrier on July 1. This enormous total calcalated by the officers indicates the difficulties of crossing the frontier are usually only for those who do not play within the rules. For, at most, only 150 people a day are ever turned back on the Niagara Falls bridges.

"If car owners carry their provincial registration cards," said the officer, "they have no trouble crossing to the American side. If they don't have them, three times out of five they will be turned back."

It remain just as true this year as it was last year that the new immigration law of the United States was not aimed to check Canadians crossing the border. All it did was to clamp down the lid on the melting pot. That idea was a bad joke that has been worked overtime. Suddenly the United States wakened to the fact that one-third of its population was either foreign born or descended from alien parents.

One year ago, on July 1, the present law came into force on the principle that immigration is a matter of biology pure and simple. The country was rapidly being swamped by the unassimilable surpluses of the slums of Europe. The former 3 per cent quota law had been in operation since 1921. It provided that the number of aliens or any nationality to be admitted to the United States in any given fiscal year should be limited to 3 per cent of the foreign born persons of the same nation resident in the United States at the time of the 1910 census. It was a good law in one respect that it cut down the number of immigrants; but, unfortunately, it was letting in thousands of people who were slow poison to the continent.

The legislators, casting around for a remedy to keep out the southwest Europeans, hit upon the idea of basing the quota on the census of 1890 instead of that of 1910. That would go back to the time when the great bulk of the population of the United States was composed of English, Irish, Dutch, Germans and Huguenot French. So the new law of July 1, 1924, limited the number of immigrants to 2 per cent of their nationality resident in the United States at the time of the census of 1890, the minimum, however, to be 100. Under the old 3 per cent. law about 357,000 Europeans were being admitted each year. By the new act, this figure was cut down approximately to 170,000.

Don't Try Any Tricks.

Fortunately, at the head of the lit of exceptions to the new law are native-born Canadians. The Englishman, maybe for many years a Canadian citizen, finds himself, awkwardly underprivileged in the quota classes. In the interests of apparent dispassionateness and simplicity it could not be avoided. But immigrant born in Canada, Newfoundland, Mexico, Cuba, Haiti, the Dominican republic, the Panama canal zone, or any independent country of South America, with their wives and unmarried children under 18, having complied with the other restrictions regarding health, wordly goods and prospects, can still enter the United States almost as easily as they ever could.

Hundreds of Canadian tourists seem to have the idea this summer that the law has been changed. "There have really been no changes," said Mr. Harold Stantz, the American conul at Toronto. "For the benefit of those Canadians born tourists who intend to spend their summer vacations with friends or relatives or sightseeing across the line, it may be said that they will experience no difficulties with the immigration officials at the border. English-born Canadian citizens have the same privilege if they are just tourists and do not intend to stay more than six months."

If you are a Canadian-born tourist, what are you to do when you want to cross the international bridge? Heaven help you if you have acquired the Oxford accent or any other unnatural affliction or affectation .....you'll step inside. If you are blustering, pugnacious, bumptious, sarcastic about border lines, even too facetious, you'll be a joke yourself for a while in the cage. If you try to take over a bottle or whiskey or wine in a dark corner of your automobile or a curve of your anatomy, you'll pay a fine on the spot and have the liquid taken from you. If it's beer, the charge will be $3 less. "And do many people do it?" The custom man replies: "They used to."

The customs man on the bridge doesn't know just how to describe the ideal way to cross the border. "Just don't be up to any tricks," he cautions. The whole bag of tricks has been tried a hundred times at least on the immigration inspector. For years the whole world has been passing by him. He compares the way they flourish their cigarets in Englnad and in Kentucky. He knows exactly how long it takes the English man or woman to lose those pink complexions.

A big cutoms man in Buffalo says: "It seems that almost all the people in God's world want to come to this country. And the ingenuity they show in their determination to accomplish their wishes is little short of miraculous. When people who are barred find the seaports closed they come to contiguous territory like Canada, and every possible subterfuge is used to get them across. Everybody knows how they are working Niagara Falls. We've recently found them trying to smuggle people across under the seats of automobiles. They send American-cut clothes, lodge tickets, union cards across to the Canadian side for disguises."

Quota Lists Are Full.

"Be natural." so says the immigration inspector. "Remember what the Sunday school teacher told you—tell the truth. Be genuine. It's your speech, your dress, your eyes, your confidence. If you lack confidence, get a birth certificate and a letter from the firm you work for. These are handy things for everybody to have crossing the border. But ninety-nine times out of a hundred you'll get across without hem. If the officer is in doubt, he can put you on oath and examine you, or he can exact a $500 bond. But when you realize that from 300 to 400 people a day cross the border from Toronto alone, the very small number of complaints show that the officers are not making much trouble."

Above all, if you are just a tourist going across the line for a visit, don't bother the American consul. Time enough to go to him when you are thinking of going over the border permanently. Even then there is scarcely any use of going to him unless you are a native-born Canadian. The quota lists are already full for two years in advance. "We can't take care of any more foreign-born people till at least July 1, 1926." Mr. Schantz stated further that there are already 2,000 names on the British-born list. Of these only 800 can be admitted from one July to another. There is no change of the law in this respect, and no prospect of a change even when Congress meets in December.

Yet the number of people going into the United States on a permanent basis from Toronto is all the time increasing. Mr. Schantz set the average at 30 a day. "The number," he said, "seems to be increasing. Whether it is only seasonable or not, we ar not in a postion to say just at presen."

And, after all this is said and after all warnings, there will be 25,000 more immigrants smuggled each year across the border. Two years is a long time for some people to wait until their turn comes on the admission list. Often it is a reply from the applicant's landlady that answers the consul's letter sending at last the notification. And it reads like this: "He doesn't live here any more. He went to the States to work last year.

So the humorous officer at the suspension bridge flies a big yellow box kite these days. He says to the inquisite lady: "There's a fellow up there trying to get across and he doesn't know what to do." Away up, almost out of sight in the blue sky, you can make out the speck which is the kite before the sun dazzles your eyes. And the woman answers: "Oh, the poor fellow." "That's the attitude of the people," says the officer. "But I think she's too simple to be beating her way. You see, I let her go through." He smiles.

HALCYON DAYS FOR YOUNG TORONTO SWIMMERS

With summer in full swing many of Canada's speediest mermaid are to be seen at the various bathing resorts of the Dominion. Above are shown new photos of a number of them. PETERBORO' MAN CAUGHT IN TORONTO

Constable Cradduck Captures Clinton Rightmeyer Wanted in City.

TORONTO, July 27 (Canadian Press).—Constable Cradduck, whose alertness in getting sight of the license of an automobile, led to the capture last Sunday of Leslie Hathaway, wanted in London for holding up a bank, made another arrest Saturday, when the took into custody Clinton Rightmeyer of Peterboro.

Rightmeyer is wanted in Peterboro on a charge of stealing an automobile belonging to Emma Park.

SALT OR SUGAR AS STIMULANT

Salt or sugar? That is the question. Is salt or sugar to be the new elixir of life for wavering marathon runners and other athletes subjected to prodigious effort? The problem is now being discussed on both sides of the Atlantic. England seems to be aligning itself with salt; America with sugar.

The situation in England is noteworthy. Salt as the new athletic exhilirator burst on the firmament with a suddenness thta was more or less of a shock to the more conservative runners, rugby men and oarsmen in the tight little island. It was none other than Arthur Newton, the South African agricultural athlete, who revealed the magic potion which scientific men say may revolutionize athletics in that part of the world—and perhaps in this. Newton, taking part in the gruelling London-Brighton road run, grew exhausted and "wabbly on his pins" when three-quarters of the distance had been covered. According to authentic witnesses he staggered towards the side of the road and gasped weakly to a man who accompanied him on a bicycle: "Give me some of my pet reviver." Having taken a drink of a yellow-colored liquid the pained look on Newton's face suddenly gave way to a smile, his legs at once began to function normally and he went on to win the race in record time.

When this news broke on a surprised British public the reporters swarmed to Newton's residence. "No mystery about the reviver," quoth Newton. "Just a half-pint of ordinary bottle-lemonade, add a half tumbler of sugar, a teaspoonful of salt and stir well. It's the salt does the trick." Newton said the miraculous draught was the result of a long series of experiments he had made while taking in athletic competition in South Africa.

Thus it is that the British are lining up for salt and are even taking of new records in many fields of sport, not to mention the next Olympic games.

Over here, however, scientists declare that what the wavering athlete needs is sugar. In a lecture a few weeks ago, Dr. Elliot Joslin, clinical professor of medicine at Harvard, declared that "chocolate bars for marathon runners and well-sugared tea for football players might result in new records. Examination of athletes after exhausting struggles recently showed a lack of sugar," adding that a little more saccarhine content might have led them on to greater fields.

Thus the athletic world may well ask, not whether you are wet or dry, but are you salt or sugar,—New York Times.

George Street Merchants

street railway in a city. There would be more accidents than ever, and the heavy busses would tear up the pavements anyway."

N. Febbo was averse to paying any more taxes, a procedure which he was sure would inevitably follow the city's acquirement of the street railway system. "The city has got enough on its hands now; there is no room for any more," he said. He also recalled the days when a few years ago the cars used to run out to Jackson's Park, where concerts were held. Lots of people went out there, he averred, and that made money for the street cars. People want to get out to Jackson Park yet, but the car stops at the Monaghan Road, and they have to walk a long distance to get there.

Instead of another line of rails going down to the De Laval the cars go down Monaghan Road in the south west part of the city, where everyone has a car.

Mr. Febbo's last words were a protest against the city's implicating itself in any transaction which would boost the tax rates.

W. Ingram was opposed to the idea of the city accepting the Hydro proposition and thought that the motor bus was the ultimate solution of the traffic problem. Mr. Ingram believes that two buses on George street would be ample equipment, provided they were supplemented at rush hours. He said that in Dundee, a city of 200,000 people, the 10 minute street car service was found adequate, but he could see no reason for its use here as the cars made a great number of their trips void of passengers.

C. E. Coleman advocated that the city put the matter aside and in the meantime endeavor to catch its financial breath. The Hydro is exceedingly anxious to bring the matter to an issue at once because every operating day sees that company accruing a burdensome deficit. Naturally they should wish to be rid of it. But the city should not allow itself to become inveigled into the deal yet.

When the Hydro assumed the operation of the system it was showing a profit and before it should be foisted back upon the civic ratepayers it should again be made to show a modicum of the state in which it was received.

Mr. Coleman did not consider that the patronage which Sunday cars received merited the expense of operating them on that day. He submitted that if considered essential they could be run on special occasions or at church time, but all other times only added to operating expense.

Harry Gainey said he was entirely opposed to the idea.

Mr. Dickson saw no reason why the city should assume a non-paying proposition which had proved a white elephant for years.

L. Potvin said: "I am certainly opposed to the proposal.

"Use buses, instead of running cars at a loss," was the suggestion of the Rexall Drug Store manager.

Mr. Fair counselled: "Bide a wee before entering on any such undertaking." Mr. Fair thinks it almost impossible to make the system pay under existing conditions.

A. A. Fowler: "The Hydro cannot make the system pay. How, then, can the city hope to make it a paying proposition? My opinion is that the whole matter should be left over until next year, when we shall have another council to deal with the proposal."

"No, right off the bat," was Walter H. Meredith's terse way of expressing his disapproval. There is no money in a street car system for any town with less than 30,000 inhabitants. Peterborough has not got that number and consequently can't make the system pay."

Mr. Schneider said: "A better idea would be to rip up the track and run busses instead of street cars."

The manager of the Kingan Hardware Co. gave it as his opinion that the proposition could be best handled by a private corporation.

"It's a Joke."

"It's a joke," was the way in which the proprietor of the Peterborough Floral Co. expressed himself.

"I think public ownership is simply killing the country," said the manager of Brass' store. "Where an industry is publicly owned, it is always surrounded by red tape. The purchase of the street railway would be a grave error."

"If the Hydro can't make the system pay," say the Leader Boot Store, "I don't see how the city is going to do it. We have had enough loss already on the bridge and[illegible] other things without piling up any[illegible]."

Its Day Is Over.

Wh[illegible] unhesitatingly opposed to that[illegible] said James Lynch, when ask[illegible] by the Examiner for his op[illegible] the proposed purchase of d[illegible]et Railway. "The day of h[illegible]t railway is over, and it is old[illegible]ost impossible to make it pay[illegible]em pay under existing July [illegible] a town the size of Peterboro[illegible] The motor bus is now "H[illegible]place of the street car. Ot[illegible]o as the steam Peterboro[illegible] Grinding that fines street car sys[illegible]bout paying. Replacing the [illegible]ney motor by a married to give efficient service. Mr. McKeogh has now enough debts[illegible] The incurring any more."

W. H. Lacey [illegible] no particular need of a street railway system for his own personal uses and accordingly did not wish to speak as a customer, but he had frequently observed cars rolling up and down George street with not a sufficient number of fares to justify their existence.

W. G. Howden pointed in the general direction of George St. and remarked emphatically that the day of the tracks was done.

If F. O. Allison had a thousand votes he would use them all to prevent the city from assuming the staggering burden which the Hydro representatives so coyly proferred, he said. The Council should have provided a little lunch including sandwiches and tea and then bid the Hydro men good evening without even deigning to listen to such a proposition, he added.

Mr. Allison said the day of the motor vehicle was at hand and could not be denied; where the street railway company made the grand error was in raising the fare from 5 to 7 cents.

B. Chesler said that the city should not consider the proposition and J. J. Johnston promptly labelled it as a white elephant which consumed huge meals of revenue and did no work to commensurate with the cost of upkeep.

R. Elliott promptly characterized it as a losing proposition and thought it unwise that the city become further involved than it already was.

R. J. Kidd was pronounced in his opinion that the city was laboring now and would be until some of the outstanding adventures of other years were paid for. Mr. Kidd was averse to thinking of Peterborough as an owner and operator of a street railway system.

Robert French added to the negative refrain and intimated that he came from Glasgow, a city where public ownership was very highly regarded. "But they started right," he said, "and didn't first incur an insurmountable wall of debt from which to spend futile years in abortive efforts to escape." He characterized the street railway here a dead issue not worthy of the slightest consideration.

STORMS WORK HAVOC.

Tie Up Electric Trains and Damage French Vineyards.

PARIS, July 27 (Canadian Press).—Again storms in France have caused considerable damage, the latest storms working more or less destruction on the crops and vineyards, and causing a good deal of inconvenience to Parisians by depriving the Orleans railway of electric current for the local trains and flooding cellars in Paris.

DROWNED ON HOLIDAY.

Robert Proulx Met Death on Last Day of His Vacation.

MONTREAL, July 27 (Canadian Press).—Picnicing with a party of friends on the last day of his summervacation, Robert Proulx, 16, was drowned while swimming in the Lake of Two Mountains, opposite Ile Bizard, yesterday afternoon.

That such a very beautiful bird as the Cedar Waxwing should have no song is a great pity. We would possibly know these birds better if they sang some sweet song, but Nature generally manages to divide the honors, giving some plain birds magnificent songs, and making some beautiful birds without song.

We have likened the birds to human beings, and here is a case of it. Some people can dress fine and be polite but contribute nothing but themselves to any gathering. Some women are baby dolls, but can't talk about anything requiring deep thought.

Maybe the Cedar waxwing is one of these painted dandies.

I never have heard any song from this bird and most of the authorities say the same thing, so if it has a song, it is too fine for the ears of common folks.

However, the Cedar Waxwing has a lisp, or wheeze which sounds something like this: "Zeeeep," in a very fine high tone.

Sometimes folks call the waxwing a Cherry Bird, and well they might, for they love cherries, but mostly wild cherries are taken. When folks tell me that the waxwing eat tame cherries, and I argue with them and say the bird likes wild cherries best, they can't understand how any fool would like wild cherries when he can get tame ones. Then I say, "Well, did you ever ask the bird about it?"

That is the whole point. The birds must think we are queer for not liking wild fruit. However, we all agree on Blue Berries. I love them and so do the waxwings. I have seen five waxwings sitting on a limb, so full of blueberries that the fruit could be seen sticking in their throats. They are called Polite Bird also, because they pass on the fruit to another, but it is inability to swallow, not good manners that prompts them.

Plant Mountain Ash, Wild Grapes, wild fruit of any kind and this lovely creature will count you one of his best pals.

YOUR GARDEN

BOTANICAL TERMS— WHAT'S IN A PLANT NAME

As the planting season will soon be with us again and most gardeners will be ordering their planting material well ahead for fall delivery, a short compendium of the more common botanical terms may not come amiss. The Latin name ordinarily consists of two or more words and the first designates the family (Syringa, Rosa, Paeonia, etc.) while those following indicate the species or variety. These usually set forth some marked physical, historic or geographic characteristic and it is interesting to know something of their derivations and meanings.

Acaulis: Without stem.
Acerbus: Sharp or harsh.
Acuminatus: Tapering or long pointed.
Acutilfolius: Sharp leaved.
Aestivalis: Summer.
Affinis: Related to.
Alatus: Winged.
Alba, albus: White.
Albidus: White.
Alpestris: Alpine.
Altaicus: From the Altai Mts. in Southern Siberia.
Altissimus: Very tall.
Altus: Tall.
Amabilis: Lovely.
Amarus: Bitter.
Ambiguus: Doubtful.
Amoenus: Charming.
Angustus: Narrow.
Annuus: Living only one year.
Arachnoides: Spider like.
Arborescens: Becoming tree-like or woody.
Arboreus: Tree-like.
Arenarius: Of sandy places.
Argenteus: Silvery.
Atropurpureus: Dark purple.
Atrosanguineus: Dark blood red.
Atticus: Pertaining to Greece.
Augustus: Notable, majestic.
Auranticus: Orange red.
Aueus: Golden.
Auriculatus: Feared.
Australis: Southern.
Azureus: Sky blue.
Balearicus: From the Balearic Islands.
Barbatus: Bearded or barbed.
Bellus: Handsome.
Bicornis: Two horned.
Bipinnatus: Twice pinnate.
Borealis: Northern.
Botryoides: Like a cluster, grape like.
Brachiatus: Branches at right angles.
Brachypodus: Short stalked.
Caerulescens: Becoming dark blue.
Caeruleus: Dark blue.
Campanulatus: Bell shaped.

"To Me" HAL COCHRAN'S DAILY POEM

There's a wee little fellow I want you to meet. Just a regular type of a boy. Behavior is good, and his manner is sweet, and he knows the full meaning of joy.

His name is jes' Jack, and he's growin' on three. He's a picture of health, he's so ruddy. When mother's around he's her helper, you see, and with dad, he's a pal and a buddy.

You never would think that a wee tot like this would be usin' his mind every day. But Jack never lets any chance go amiss—you can tell by the things he will say.

For instance, when daddy comes home every night, little son is as cute as can be. He'll pat father's pockets; then say, in delight, "Say, what have you got fo' me?"

That's just like a youngster—expectin a treat; then, takin' what comes with a smile. But tots are so spirit-inspiring and sweet, that they make wee surprises worth while.

STANWOOD MEN GO OVER EDGE

Drive Through Guard at Healey Falls Bridge—Miraculous Escape.

BOTH INJURED.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 27.—Garnet Redden, a merchant at Stanwood, and Chester Irwin, a farmer residing in that district, had a miraculous escape from a tragic death Saturday night, when the car in which they were riding, ran into the open draw of the Healey Falls bridge, turning completely over and pinning both men beneath it. There was no water where the auto landed or both men would have been drowned, but as it was they were badly bruised and shaken.

Danger Signals Up.

It was 9 o'clock when Arthur MacDonald, the bridge tender, in response to the usual signal, threw the draw wide open to permit the passage of the American cabin schooner, the Nemina that was bound up the river. The guard rail was up at each end of the draw and the red light showed plainly on the highway, a warning to all approaching travellers that the draw was open. The boat is equipped with a powerful searchlight, which was turned on as it passed through the draw, making everything in the vicinity as discernible as at broad noon.

Car Turned Turtle.

The car, which was driven by Redden, approached the bridge from the north side at a high rate of speed, rushing past the danger signal and crashing through the guard rail. The car turned completely over and lay at the bottom with the four wheels in the air, Redden and Irwin being held helpless under it. The end of the draw into which the car dropped, the distance of the fall being not over four feet, is clear of the water, the car falling on the rocky but dry bed of the river. It it had been coming from the opposite direction when the accident happened, the auto and its passengers would have dropped into water over nine feet deep and the men could hardly have escaped death by drowning.

Neighbors to the Rescue.

Bridge Tender MacDonald was unable to render any aid to the men under the car. He was on the swing and so could not reach them; and he could not close the draw as the overturned car was directly in the way. He called for help which soon arrived, the assembled neighbors turning over the car and setting free the two men beneath it.

Medical Aid Summoned.

The injured men were taken to the home of Mr. MacDonald and a doctor was called from Campbellford. An examination showed that neither men had sustained any fractured bones, but of the two Irwin had fared the worse. The doctor found it necessary to put stitches in his nose, tongue and in one of his ankles. Redden, too, was severely bruised but he was able to return to his home at Stanwood laste Saturday night; Irwin remaining at Mr. MacDonald's home until Sunday.

Redden and Irwin were going on a fishing trip when the accident happened, and no one seems able to explain how they missed the danger signals unless it was that they were blinded by the glare of the searchlight of the boat. The car lay on the bed of the river all day Sunday but some of the men who gathered at the scene of the near tragedy made an investigation and found that the engine was still apparently in fair working order. The steering gear, however, was a total wreck.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DORIS HAS A CHAT WITH MAMA KANGAROO IN THE ZOO

When Doris spied the queer-looking animal behind the Zoo fence, she stood still and laughed.

"See something funny?" queried the animal, turning around to look back. "What are you laughing at, anyway? Tell me. I haven't had a good laugh in a long time."

"Why, I never noticed how big your hind feet were before," said Doris. "They are so much larger than your front feet."

"Certainly," replied the animal. "Did you ever see a Kangaroo with small back feet? No! Of course, you never did. Why, I'm proud of my big hind feet. Come to think of it," and Mama Kangaroo's eyes twinkled merrily, "your feet are larger than your hands, aren't they?"

"Of course they are," Doris laughed. "I have to walk on my feet, that's why they are larger."

"And I have to hop on mine," replied Mama Kangaroo. "You very seldom see a Kangaroo running on all four feet. We use our front feet just like you folks use your hands. We hop over the ground on our hind feet. That's why they are so large and broad. But I guess I couldn't get over the ground any faster if I did use four legs.

"Do you know I can beat the swiftest horse when it comes to getting over the ground? I thought maybe you were laughing at my great big tail. Did you ever see a tail like that?" Mama Kangaroo raised her great, heavy, broad tail and showed it to Doris.

"I Have a Large Family."

"I couldn't get along without it, though. It helps me in jumping, as well as in sitting up. See, I lay it out back of me, right flat down on the ground. Then if I need to use all four feet to defend myself I can." So Mama Kangaroo suited the action to the words and raised all four feet in the air.

"And when do you ever use all four feet?" inquired Doris.

"When someone attacks me and I cannot hop away," replied Mama Kangaroo. "See these long, sharp, three-edged claws on my hind feet? Well, I can dig them into my enemy and make him retreat. By the way, you haven't seen what I found last night, have you?"

Without waiting for Doris to reply, Mama Kangaroo put her front paws into a sort of pocket and drew out a little paw full of baby kangaroos. They couldn't have been more than an inch long. She put one in Doris's hand and the child stroked its wee head.

"My goodness!" Doris exclaimed. "How very small for such a big mother. You must be at least five feet tall."

"Five feet and a half, if you please," said the proud mother. "Yes, I have quite a large family. They are small now, but just wait until they get larger, then you'll see them scampering all over this place. I'm glad we live in the Zoo. Here they can run around to suit themselves." She reached out her paw, took the baby kangaroo from Doris and put it back into her lovely pouch cradle. Then, with mighty hops, she scooted off to a shady spot. Doris watched her some time, then she ran on in search of new adventure.

TORNADO SWEPT TOWN OF SYDNEY

Twenty-five Hurt and $200,000 Damage Done in Ohio Town.

ROOFS BLOWN OFF.

SYDNEY, Ohio, July 27 (Canadian Press) — Twenty-five persons were injured and damage estimated $200,000 was caused when a tornado swept over this city Saturday. The injured were all in the audience at a Chautauqua program being given in a tent in Grammercy Park.

The tent collapsed during the 75 mile gale, burying between 1,000 and 1,200 persons under it. Those injured were caught by falling side and centre poles.

A number of factory buildings were unroofed, crops were destroyed in a path four miles wide extending north and south of the city and several farm homes were destroyed.

FINE AYRSHIRES SENT TO NORTH TO AID SETTLERS

Ontario Government Had Sixteen Shipped From Campbellford.

GONE TO HEARST.

Will Be Sold on Easy Terms to Settlers in the Clay Belt.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 27. — Sixteen head of choice Ayrshire cows (all milking) were shipped from here Saturday to Hearst, in the clay belt of New Ontario, about 60 miles from Hudson Bay. These cattle were purchased by the Ontario government, and will be sold at cost, on easy terms of payment, to the settlers in New Ontario, who are anxious to take up the dairying business.

Ayrshires were selected, because in addition to other reasons, it has been found that this breed of cattle can stand the rigors of the northern climate better than any other class of dairy stock.

From Menie District.

All the cattle were secured from the members of the Ayrshire Breeders' Club in the Menie district, and were selected by F. M. Rutherford of Bonar Law, secretary of the club, who was commissioned by the Ontario Department of Agriculture for that purpose. Mr. Rutherford chose the choice milkers out of every herd and when he made his report, I. B. Martin, an official of the Agricultural Department came here, confirmed Mr. Rutherford's choice, and paid for the cattle. The average price paid for the cows, all of which with one exception were grades, was $80.

A Prize Winner.

The single pure bred in the bunch was Carsbrooke Pussy the famous prize winner from Mr. Rutherford's herd, the animal that has won first honors in her class at Peterboro and Lindsay and other fairs in this district for the past three years. This cow was disposed off by private sale to J. H. Peever of Hearst, who came here to arrange for the shipment and who is ambitious to introduce pure bred stock in his home district.

The other breeders who sold cattle with the number secured from each for the shipment, were as follows: S. S. McComb, Alfred Grills and John McCubbin (the latter being the reeve of Percy Township) four head each, Isaac Lain, David Brunton and Geo. Dunk, one each.

Strenuous Trip.

Mr. Dunk left with the cattle for their destination, and it is expected that the trip will occupy eight days. On the journey Mr. Dunk will not only be obliged to feed, bed and water the cattle but will also have to milk the entire 16 twice daily. The milk will be thrown out along the right of way as there is no chance to dispose of it otherwise but the train crew will be welcome to all they are able to drink.

Sold at Cost.

The cattle will be sold to settlers at the same price that was paid for them here, plus $12.00 a head, the latter figure being the estimated cost of paying a man to accompany the shipment and to feed and bed the cattle on the way. The freight bill will be paid by the government. Any settler who requires time for payment will be allowed a year's credit, with interest at the rate of five per cent.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 27. — Samuel Covert, received a telegram Saturday evening calling him to the bedside of his brother George H who is reported dying at his home at Little Falls in New York State. Mr. Covert left at once by auto for Kingston where he will cross to the American side. Only a few weeks ago he went to Little Falls to see his brother who was ill at the time but when he left for home, the invalid was showing signs of improvement.

THROWN FROM BUGGY.

Automobile Crashes Into Horse Driven Vehicle at Millbrook—Some Hurt.

MILLBROOK, July 27.—An accident occurred on Tupper Street, about 9 o'clock on Saturday evening, when a car driven by Nelles Rowland, collided with a buggy which Mr. R. McInnis was driving, his wife and a little girl being the other occupants.

The buggy was badly damaged, two wheels being taken off, and the axles broken, but the horse, with the exception of a slight cut, escaped injury though the harness was wrecked. Mrs. McInnis and the little girl, were thrown out between the car and buggy, and Mr. McInnis had the reins torn out of his hands, but was not dragged from his seat. With the exception of some bruises and the nervous shock, inseparable from the accident, no serious injuries resulted, but the driver of the car had his hand badly cut the windshield being broken and medical attention was required.

Apparently failure to see the buggy in time to swerve caused the accident. Mr. McInnis kept to the right side of the road, and the car was too close to turn out with safety, when his proximity was noticed, the inevitable collision resulting.

The accident occurred between Councillor T. J. Lang's residence, and that of H. A. Elson. There is a rather deep ditch along that part of the roadway.

ABD-EL-KRIM IS WILLING TO TALK TERMS OF PEACE

Wants Assurance From France and Spain that Riffs Are Independent.

MEET AT TANGIER.

Times Correspondent Says France and Spain Are Ready For Parleys.

LONDON, July 27 (United Press).—Abd-el-Krim, according to the famous "Times" correspondent, Harris, at Tangier, is ready to negotiate peace terms with France and Spain under certain conditions.

Harris, claiming to have his information from the Riffian chieftain, says "Krim informs me that he has answered the Franco-Spanish note regarding peace terms, saying he was ready to negotiate peace upon the condition that France and Spain give an assurance that the Riff will be granted independence."

Krim also recommended that peace conversations be held at Tangier.

Harris claimed further to have information that France and Spain would agree to parleys if Krim were prepared for an immediate cessation of hostilities.

ROBBED MAN AND THREW HIM OVER NIAGARA BANK

Albert E. Dunk Was Attacked By Taxi Driver and Robbed.

CRAWLED HALF MILE.

Injured Man Made Long Trip With Broken Back—Described Assailants.

NIAGARA FALLS, July 27. — (Canadian Press). — Robbed of his money and watch, Albert E. Dunk, of Toronto, was assaulted and thrown over the Niagara bank on Friday evening and was found only yesterday afternoon in a dying condition with his back broken in several places. Toronto tourists found the unfortunate man after he had pulled himself, using his fingers only, a distance of half a mile from where he landed. He may live for several days, but his recovery is practically impossible.

His story is that he was attacked by a taxi driver and another man. The two men knocked Dunk down robbed him of $40 and his watch, then swung him over the cliff. Dunk landed half way down the steep incline, landing in the crotch of a tree There he lay until Saturday morning when he dragged himself to where water was trickling and scooped a hole in the ground so he could get some. There he lay all day Saturday and Sunday morning.

Scared that he would never be found, he started crawling and pulled himself along the muddy ground to the place where he was found. Dunk is employed by the Hydro Electric Commission Toronto, and came here to do special wire work. He is 35 years of age and has a wife and three children in Toronto. He was able to give a good description of his assailants.

THREE BURN WHEN AIRPLANE CRASHES

Machine of Obsolete Type Said to be Too Heavily Loaded.

DETROIT, July 27. —(Canadian Press). — Milton Stein, 24 years old, Mrs. Violet Fleming 20 years old, Evelyn Ejrezoj, 10 years old were burned to death yesterday afternoon when an airplane in which they had just taken of from Packard field caught fire after a forced landing.

The plane, piloted by Stein descended shortly after 3 o'clock for gasoline amount taken on according to the attache as 180 gallons and this is believed to have been too great a weight for the engine and machine, which was started to be of an obsolete type.

Stein was 30 feet in air when his engine began to miss. He made an effort to land but on account of the lack of elevation the plane turned on its right side and crashed to the earth. The gasolene tank burst and the plane became flaming mass.

Before the three could be extricated they had been burned to death.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

TUESDAY, JULY 28.

This day may be turned to advantage by proper attention to routine affairs despite the adverse figure between the luminaries. The latter mainly afflicts those in the employment of others, who should take extraordinary care not to place their positions in jeopardy. Domestic, social and affectional matters should react to a propitious Venus influence. Mercury also favors the young and literary activities.

Those whose birthday it is may have a successful year by giving proper attention to business and safeguarding the position if in employment. Pleasant domestic and personal conditions should obtain. A child born on this day may be versatile and accomplished, but should make its best success by going into business on its own account rather than in the employmefit of others.

MY EUROPEAN EXCURSIONS

By Edwin Robert Petre

NO TROLLS IN GOTLAND TODAY

After a night's journey from Stockholm, the sky fires of the morning transformed the isle of Gottland into a thing of magic, grey walls rising from a turquoise sea, tall towers standing like ancient knights, a land of roses and ruins. Legend says that Thjelvar, the first settler, was plagued by trolls who in perversity submerged his home for the hours between sunrise and sunset, until he called on the Fire Spirit to rid the isle of them. The stone circles of the ancient fire worshippers are there, and the ruins of its medieval grandeur, but the modern visitor is troubled by the pranks of no trolls. There are few places in Europe as luring as Visby in Gotland and now that I have seen its ivyclad houses, lanes of walnut trees and rose covered walls, few more beautiful.

DISCOVERING THE BALEARIC ISLES

Tourists are frequently a puzzle. They travel well worn ruts for years, seeing what everyone has seen and then suddenly "discover" some hidden nook of charm with enthusiasm. So it has of late been with the Balearic Isles off Spain. I left on the 8.30 boat last Sunday evening at Barcelona and arrived at Palma in time for breakfast, and everywhere found groups of English and French visitors. Mallorca has one of the most beautiful coast-lines I've ever seen, easily explored in a boat. Hills to the south and east, mountains to the north and west, and the fertile plain in the midst. There is much of interest to see—the old monastery at Valldemosa, the subterranean lakes and caves of Corsair pirate memories, ancient castles and miles of sandy beaches, excellent cuisine, cheap living and sunsets through the almond trees fit for any poet.

FIGHT FOR CHILD WAS POSTPONED

Mrs. Cooke Failed to Appear in Court on Husband's Petition.

FOUND IN RENO.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 27.—The legal battle of J. Henry Cooke, Toronto, to obtain possession of his little daughter, took a sensational turn on Saturday when Mrs. Cooke and the child failed to appear at the Superior Court hearing on Cooke's habeas corpus petition.

Attorneys for Cooke openly charged that Mrs. Cooke had unlawfully abducted the child and fled to Reno, Nevada, where, they said, she was with her mother. They asked that Mrs. Cooke be adjudged in contempt, but the Court continued the case until next Thursday and directed counsel for Mrs. Cooke to produce their client and child.

MISSING WOMAN FOUND.

RENO, Nevada, July 27.—(Canadian Press.) — Mrs. Hilda Betty Cooke and her daughter Shirley were located here last night at their apartment. Mrs. Cooke asserted that she had not been informed of the hearing to be held in San Francisco July 25.

OBITUARY.

JAMES LINN

CAMPBELLFORD, July 27.—James Linn, who resided on Concession Seven in the Township of Rawdon near the Seymour boundary, one of the oldest and best known residents of the district passed away Saturday morning, after an illness of six weeks, due to advancing age.

The deceased was born on the farm where he died, and was 75 years old on July 16th last. His father, the late Robert Linn, had settled on the farm where it was covered with forest, getting a deed from the government, and two generations of owners had converted the property into one of the finest dairy holdings in the township.

The late Mr. Linn was married 54 years ago to Margaret McKenzie, who died in May, 1924. The couple celebrated their golden wedding four years ago, all the members of the two families gathering for the occasion from far and near.

Surviving the parents are four sons and four daughters. The latter are Mrs. J. C. Thain, Mrs. Samuel Wallace; Mrs. B. Johnston and Mrs. Lewis Wilson, all of whom reside in Rawdon, in the neighborhood of the old homestead.

The sons are Robert, who is a member of the Seymour Council; Williaim, who is living retired in Campbellford; Alfred, a farmer in Rawdon, and Bogart, who resides on the homestead.

Robert Linn, a brother of the deceased, was chief of police in Campbellford for a number of years before his death, and another brother, John, resides in the west.

The late Mr. Linn was a Conservative in politics, a member of the Orange Order, and a life long member of the Burnbrae Presbyterian Church, remaining with the original congregation when the vote on union was taken.

The funeral will be held Tuesday from the family residence at 1.30 to the Burnbrae Cemetery, where services will be conducted in the church by the pastor, Rev. D. A. McKenzie.

MRS. JOHN HAIG.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 27.—The funeral of the late Tyrthena Heard, widow of the late John Haig, was held today to the Tabernacle United Church on the English Line, Rev. C. D. Daniel, pastor of the Seymour United Circuit, conducting the religious services at the house. There was laid to rest in the cemetery one who all her life had taken an active part in maintaining that well kept burial ground as a fit resting place for the dead.

The late Mrs. Haig, whose home was on the English Line, a short distance from town, was by birth and marriage connected with two of the oldest and most prominent families in Seymour Township. She was 72 years old and her fatal illness seized her only three days before her death.

The deceased was married 52 years ago last December to John Haig, who died a few months ago. Six children, two sons and four daughters, survive—John and William, on the homstead; Mrs. William Diamond of Toronto, formerly of Campbellford; Mrs. Frank Little of Campbellford, and Margaret and Phyllis at home. A large number of other relatives of both families reside in this district.

MRS. HUGH WILSON.

Mrs. Hugh Wilson of Westwood, died yesterday after a prolonged illness of several months at the advanced age of 78 year, 7 months. She was a member of the Westwood Presbyterian Church.

The deceased came to Canada from Ireland at the age of three and resided in Peterborough for a number of years.

Three sons survive, Hilliard of Westwood, Hector of Moose Jaw, Sask.; and Allan of Cordette, Sask. Her husband predeceased her 12 years ago.

The funeral will take place on July 29, 1925, at 2.00 p. m., proceeding from the family residence, Westwood, to the Cameron Cemetery. Rev. Archibald of Keene will preside.

ALUMINUM INDUSTRY MOVING TO QUEBEC

A Half-Billion Dollar Business Chooses Saguenay River Site for Huge Plant.

According to a resent announcement the whole of the aluminum industry of the United States is to be moved to Quebec province, and take up its new location on the banks of the Saguenay River. So large is this industry that it will mean the establishment of a new city of approximtaely 50,000 population. The capital involved will probably reach the half-billion dollar mark.

Quebec government and industrial centres are naturally elated over the decision of the Aluminum company to locate in that province. It is understood that for some time the officials of the company had been debating between Norway and Canada for the site of their new operations, and it was the abundance of water power that finally turned the decision in favor of the province of Quebec.

The construction of the plant itself will mean an investment of over $100,000,000. The raw product is obtained from British Guiana and the transport of this will mean the establishment of a company line of 15 ships operating between the Saguenay and the Guiana coast during the navigation season. The economic and industrial benefit to Canada of the establishment of this industry can hardly be estimated.

When questioned, officials of the British Aluminimu Company verified the report that the Aluminum Company of America is to establish a gigantic plant in Quebec province. "Mr. Davis is at present in Paris, but a charter has been applied for and it is understood that plans for the construction of the plant are under way," stated one man prominent in the aluminum business.

SUGGESTIONS FOR SOLVING CROSS-WORD PUZZLES

Start out by filling in the words of which you feel reasonably sure. These will give you a clue to other words crossing them, and they in turn to still others. A letter belongs in each white space, words starting at the numbered squares reading either horizontally or vertically or both.

The solution will appear in to-morrow's paper.

Most Urgent Wants

There's a world of interest in the Want Ads. They reflect the urgent desires of various businesses, households and individuals.

The Wants tell what is most needed. If the cook has left, if a worker is needed in the office or factory, if an article of value is lost or found, if there is urgent necessity to sell a piece of property, secure tenants, roomers or boarders—all such conditions are expressed and met in the Want Columns.

The Wants are close to the heart interests of hte people. It is interesting to watch them carefully.

MAID IN THE MOON

By Marguerite Lewis

A creature of silvery loveliness, this maid in the moon, who seems so far away, so unapproachable to the silent worshipper. But really, she isn't, for Cupid, playing hide and seek in the fleecy clouds, will see to it that she leaves her home in the moon and takes up her abode in the heart of him who adores her. And always to him she will be his "Maid in the Moon" with her ethereal beauty and witching winsomeness.

IN THE KITCHEN

By Jeanette Norton

TASTY SANDWICHES AND PICNIC SALADS.

The advent of the automobile has made picnicking an almost daily performance instead of an occasional treat, so that the question of suitable foods that carry well is of vital importance. The old reliable sandwich has held its own, but has also gained in glory from the many new fillings now in fashion. Sometimes the sandwiches are made at home and wrapped in damp linen cloths. They keep well for several hours. Again, they are taken in bulk. That is, the bread in the loaf, fillings, creamed butter and sauces for seasoning are carried in jars, and the final work is done just before they are to be eaten.

Ham Sandwich Filling.

Mince fine enough cold boiled ham to make a solid cupful. Mince fine enough chow-chow and mustard pickle to make a quarter cupful. Mix the two ingredients together, adding enough of the liquid mustard from the bottle to soften the mass thoroughly. Lamb or tongue may be used in the same way.

Roast Beef Filling.

Chop very fine enough roast beef to make a cupful. Add to it pepper, salt, the juice of an onion and enough fresh horseradish to soften the mass.

Cheese and Jelly Filling.

Take a package of cream cheese and add to it a tablespoonful of currant jelly. Work with a spoon to a spreading paste. Add a tablespoonful of chopped nuts, and if the paste is too stiff add a little bit of cream to soften it. Spread on white bread. Where a soft rich filling is used, it is not necessary to use butter on the bread.

Grated Cheese Sandwiches.

To three-quarters of a cupful of grated American dairy cheese add enough chili sauce to moisten to a paste. Add a little paprika and a saltspoonful of salt. Spread on rye bread brushed over with soft butter.

Macedoine Salad.

Take a pint bottle of macedoine vegetables and a bottle of French dressing, also a head of lettuce done up in wet paper. When ready to make the salad, drain the vegetables from the bottle, cut up the lettuce and add as much French dressing as is required to moisten the salad.

ODDS AND ENDS.

"For ways that are dark and tricks that are vain," the "heathen Chinee" may "be peculiar," but this season sees a great deal of the Chinese influence in many things. There is Chinese embroidery on dark cloth dresses in the stores, and a Chinese pattern to the red and yellow design of a gown of pussywillow crepe. Gay little handkerchiefs sport Chinese hieroglyphics on their borders and bright scarfs show the same trend, while bone ornaments on small sport hats have Chinese characters in gold on their shiny black surfaces.

And there are writhing Chinese dragons on the new brass novelties the jewellers' showcases and slanting-eyebrow'd mandarins on the vases of dull cream Chinese pottery that are so effective with their figures in subdued reds and greens. On the same table are the little brushes made of vegetable fibre from the Celestial Kingdom, their handles formed from twisted ropes of the brown fibrous material, interwoven with red and yellow silk.

Lacquered and enamel vases, satin-finished glass wear in soft black, the new Byzanta pieces in bright lustres of startling shades, carry out the same Oriental influence.

In the windows are the latest thing in wedding rings, bands of platinum or of white gold, studded with chip diamonds. The plain gold band that signified wedded bliss for so many centuries and in so many lands has blossomed forth at last into a new design.

For the visiting season are souvenirs quite out of the usual run, and very good looking. They are bits of light-colored bronze, with "Souvenir of Canada" in an inconspicuous place; a maple leaf of bronze picked out in green. There are lions and monkey sets and ornaments, with an owl sporting emerald-green eyes decorating an effective pair of book ends.

In the drug stores are new items for the toilet-table, soap apples and peaches, as natural as life, and looking good enough to eat, and the new "air fragrance"; perfumed salts in love-square bottles of green and mauve glass.

Let's Talk It Over

WHY LITTLE JOHNNY IS A "FRAIDY CAT."

Mary has been telling me about her little boy, Johnny. Johnny is afraid of the dark. He is also afraid of dogs—all except collies. Grandpa has a collie down at the ranch. He is afraid of bugs—except lady bugs, ants, mosquitoes. He is afraid of queer new noises, sudden silences, shadowed corners.

"I can't understand it," grieves Mary. "I've done everything I know to cure him of his fears but nothing works. I've tried shaming him, telling him big boys of eight aren't afraid. I've ignored him—laughed at him. I've even punished him, though I felt horribly when I did it. But nothing does one bit of good. He tries to hide it from me now and even fibs about it. But he is just as afraid as ever. In fact I think it is actually growing on him. And it seems so strange. He isn't sick or stupid. He is bright in school, yet he keeps right on having those silly fears. What on earth shall I do? I've done everything!"

No, you haven't done everything, Mary. The most helpful, intelligent things are yet to be done. In the first place, you haven't tried to discover just why Johnny is afraid. You've treated that fear as if it were a case of mumps or measles—something that has fastened itself on him without rhyme or reason—a disease to be cured by drastic mental treatment, by ridicule or punishment or snubbing.

You have bent all your energies to getting rid of it, but how much time have you devoted to finding the cause of that fear?

If you had studied Johnny's fear and tried to gain his confidence instead of repelling it, you would have made a very strange and beautiful discovery. You would have found that Johnny is afraid not because he is weak or stupid or cowardly or sick, but because he is very bright, sensitive, curious and imaginative.

Johnny is afraid because he insists on thinking about things.

Many little boys—and many big ones, too—never think about things. They merely accept them.

They accept the established order which governs balls and cats and cakes and dances and love and commerce without ever stopping to wonder what would happen if that established order failed.

But other little boys—and big ones, too—cannot accept things in this peaceful manner. There is no blind spot in their eye—they see it all. They question it all.

When they see a strange dog, they don't merely see a friendly wiggle or hear a joyous bark—they see the wolf in the dog. When they see the night, they do not merely register darkness—they feel silences that sniff and noises that pounce. Their imagination shivers and twists. It strikes through the thin veneer that civilization has placed upon us and pierces that savage soul, and that soul cowers in the dread of the night which used to hurt it so. Night was a menace once. Johnny remembers that fact in his sensitive consciousness. That is why he is afraid.

That is what life means to Johnny. He is filled with speculation that the little boy next door does not experience When these have been entirely satisfied he no longer fears them.

He is completely satisfied about collies, so he no longer fears them. But fox terriers and airedales still register wolf on his spirit, so he fears them. He is satisfied about ladybugs, so he does not fear them. But he is not satisfied about tarantulas and, incidentally, neither am I—I yell murder if I see one. Johnny and I are twin souls as regards tarantulas.

That's why Johnny is afraid. He thinks himself into fear—his only hope lies in thinking himself out again. And you must help him. When the terrifying fear comes, help Johnny to think about them. Talk about them. Don't try to push them into the background. Push them out into the light. Make him as familiar with them as he is with collies and ladybugs. It will take time and patience. But how it will pay! For the people who fear and investigate are the ones who will save humanity and rescue Beauty and Truth. That's the way to cure Johnny's fear.

TODAY'S FASHION

By Vera Winston

Diagonally Striped Chiffon Forms Charming Frock.

There is nothing more effective for wear in warm weather than the sheer chiffon frock of gay colors.

The model sketched above is a French import in various shades of green, starting with a brilliant grass tone and shading to white. The pattern is blocked in a huge chevron strip e treatment, so that the stripes dip once at the front, and once at the center back.

The ruffle of chiffon at the front carries out the pointed effect in its deep V dip. The back is perfectly plain.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I have been going with a young man for some time and am in love with him. His sister has invited me to take dinner with her. Would you advise me to go?

BLUE EYES.

BLUE EYES: If the invitation was extended by the young man's sister it would be quite proper for you to accept. Always be sure, however, that the invitations you accept are extended to you by the host or hostess—never by any other member of the family.

Dear Annie Laurie:

I am a girl in my teens, and am deeply in love with a nice young man, who is three years my senior.

My parents object to our marriage because he is poor. He has told me he loves me and has asked me to be his bride. Please tell me what to do.

—Peggy.

Peggy: You must realize, my dear, that your parents have had years of experience and that they have only your welfare at heart. If they feel that the young man in whom you are interested is not financially capable of establishing a home and providing for you, you should be guided by their advice. No matter how sincere your love is, your marriage will not be successful unless you do not have financial difficulties. I suggest that you continue your friendship with this young man, but do not plan for marriage until he has increased his income.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this office.

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1925

Bob

NEW YORK, July 27 (United Press). —"Bobbed hair is here to stay," according to William Kremer, whose establishment turns out as many as two hundred permanently waved heads per day.

"When only young women bobbed their hair we could not be sure that short locks would be a permanent style," said Mr. Kremer. "But to-day many of the women we bob are matrons with refinement and position to uphold. The great majority of young women have been bobbed for several years and recently older women are falling for the spell of the sheers.

"Ever so often there is a rumor that bobbed hair is going out of style. We have not noticed any decline in bobbing. Occasionally a young Miss in her teens decides to let her hair grow long but this is because she has never known long hair and she wants to try something different. She usually lets it grow a few months and returns to the bob again.

Will Return to Bob.

"Women may let their hair grow long but I believe they will always return to short locks. Short hair is youthful, becoming and sanitary. One with short hair runs no risk of scalp diseases for the air has an opportunity to get to the scalp and keep it in healthy condition.

"Many women ask whether they will become bald if they continue to wear short hair. This is sheer rot. Hair invariably grows thicker when constantly trimmed. Tight hats which smother the hair-roots are responsible for making the hair fall out and women should beware of over-snug felt hats which are in vogue at present."

When asked whether permanent waving establishments were not biased on the short hair question, Mr. Kremer replied, "It makes very little difference to us whether women wear short or long hair. Permanent waving is so successful that whether the hair is long or short women will demand it."

About Ourselves And Other People

By Winifred Black

A CLERK'S FREE LESSON IN ETIQUETTE.

The Middle-Aged Woman seemed to be a sort of friendly creature.

There was nothing particularly striking about her—she wore rather good clothes and was not bad looking and to look at her you would have thought butter wouldn't melt in her mouth.

She had rosy cheeks and blue eyes and rather a nice agreeable smile, but just as I looked at her—there was something odd about her expression.

She was standing at the news-stand in the lobby of a big hotel.

"I'll take the two morning papers," she said, "and this weekly. Has the So and So Magazine come in yet?"

The young man at the news counter was humming Oh, Katerina, and he didn't hear what the middle-aged woman said, or at least he acted as if he didn't.

"The So and So Magazine," said the Middle-Aged Woman again. The Young Man at the news counter raised his eyebrows in bored exasperation. "No." "No," he said, "it isn't in."

The Middle-Aged Woman handed the young man at the news-stand some silver. He made the change for her and gave it to her.

"Thank you," said the Middle-Aged Woman.

The young man at the news-stand grunted. He looked bored to death.

"Young Man," said the Middle-Aged Woman, "I just can't help telling you something—I just love to buy your papers and magazines from you, you are so friendly and nice.

"You'll go a long way in the world—you have such a sweet smile and you're so generous with it."

The Middle-Aged Woman smiled very sweetly herself.

The Young Man at the news-counter stopped humming "Oh, Katerina." He stared and then he turned a deep crimson.

Just as he opened his mouth to speak a middle-aged man spoke instead.

"Madam," said the Middle-Aged Man, "I want to give you a vote of thanks.

"I'd like to take up a collection for you here in the hotel and buy you a laurel wreath or a bracelet or something.

"This fellow starts the day off wrong for me every day and I have never had the nerve to tell him about it.

"And smile," said the Middle-Aged Man, "keep on smiling—you'll find it pays."

The Middle-Aged Woman went away—the Middle-Aged Man went another way, but the young man at the news-counter stood there and looked cross enough to frighten a six-months-old baby into spasms.

There was something different in his eyes, though, and he said good morning to the next person who stepped up to the stand.

I wonder if he had sense enough to learn what the Middle-Aged Woman had been trying to tell him, or will he go on as usual, and then wake up some day and wonder why he isn't much of a success.

JUVENILE FINAL FOR WEDNESDAY

Knights of Columbus and Kiwanis Teams Meet in Second of Series. K.C.'s WON FIRST.

On Wednesday evening, all roads should lead to Riverside Park, as the final game of the Juvenile series of the City League will be played that night at 5.15. After a neck and neck race all through the schedule, the Knights finished first with the Kiwanis lads right on their heels. In the first game good hitting and pitching gave the Knights a one run lead which they found hard to hold, being in danger several times. Both teams are in good shape for the crucial encounter Wednesday evening. A win for the Knights will wind up the series while the Kiwanis victory means a new lease of life and a third game.

These eighteen year old lads will be coming up looking for places in the senior ranks in two or three years and the fans should be out to get a line on the stars of the two teams.

EXPLAIN SEWAGE PLANT TO ROTARY

City Engineer Tells of Operation and Cost of Disposal Plant.

The sewage disposal plant, how it works, and how much it will cost, was explained to the Rotary Club at noon today by R. H. Parsons, City Engineer. He told of the sewerage system, which was started first in 1894, with a promise to the townships that some disposal method would be installed in five years. The matter was continually put off, being passed from one council to the next, and the question became very acute. Mr. Parsons said that one of the first things he did after becoming City Engineer in 1913, was to design a disposal plant, and that since that time he had designed quite a number without satisfying the Provincial Board of Health. The plant which has been passed by the board and started, does not satisfy Mr. Parsons, who is troubled about the disposal of the sludge. The activated sludge system is in an experimental stage, he said, and while good for a large city, does not seem practicable in a small city. The effluent produced is good, about 95 per cent. of the bacteria being removed, and it is colorless, but the solid portion is no so easy to dispose of.

Sewage from the Lock Street and Park Street mains will be taken to an outfall chamber at the foot of Park Street, from where it will be piped across the river, the pipes being laid so deep that they will not interfere with dredging operations. From a collecting chamber on the far side, the sewage will be pumped into the grit chambers, where any sand will settle to the bottom. It will then pass into aeration tanks, where air will be forced through it, oxidizing the sludge. The channel through each of these chambers is about 560 feet long. It passes then into tanks where the sludge settles to the bottom and is scraped up by clearifiers. Some goes back to the beginning of the aeration process to keep the oxidizing process a continuous one, while the rest is taken out to be disposed of. In southern cities it is lagooned, and the water rises to the top and flows off, but how this will work in winter is not yet known, said Mr. Parsons. The effluent which rises to the top of the settling tanks is run into the river and is not harmful.

The plant is estimated to cost $220,000 and for interest and sinking fund will require about $15,000 or nearly a mill on the assessment every year, said Mr. Parsons. It will also cost about $9,000 a year for power and labor to run it.

It was announced that 42 boys had been registered for the boys' camp and the members were asked to help those boys who couldn't pay the whole sum required. A. L. Killaly was announced as chairman of the entertainment committee for August. President Seels was given the hearty thanks of the members for his untriing efforts in making the recent carnival a success.

WILL HONOR MEN AIDING HOLY LAND

Names of Ten Men Are Inscribed in Golden Book.

JERUSALEM, July 25.—(Associated Press).—The names of the ten men closely associated with the issuance of the Palestine mandate to Great Britain by the League of Nations, which provided that Great Britain as the mandatory power should develop the country as the Jewish National Homeland, are to be inscribed on the first page of the third volume of the Golden Book of the Jewish National Fund. This will be exhibited for the first time at the World Zionist Congress, opening in Vienna August 18th.

The men to be awarded this highest honor conferred in Zionist work are: Louis D. Brandeis, Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court and former Honorary President of the Zionist Organization of America; Lord Arthur James Balfour, author of the Balfour Declaration which pledged Great Britain to do all in its power to facilitate the Jewish Homeland; Sir Herbert Samuel, who recently retired after serving five years as the first British High Commissioner of Palestine; Lloyd George, English Premier at the time of the issuance of the Balfour Declaration and the Palestine Mandate; Dr. Chaim Weizmann, President of the World Zionist Organization and the Zionist leader considered most responsible for the present political and economic success of the movement; Nahum Sokolow, M. M. Usishkin and the late Dr. Yehiel Tshlenow, world Zionist leaders; Baron Edmond de Rothschild, world-famous philanthropist, who for almost a half century has worked for the upbuilding of Palestine; and the late Sir Mark Sykes, British diplomat, who was closely associated with the negotiations leading up to the promulgation of the Palestine mandate.

Only the names of those who have rendered outstanding service in furthering the Jewish Homeland movement are inscribed in the Golden Book, which is preserved in the archives of the Jewish National Fund here. Among those thus honored are Woodrow Wilson, Warren G. Harding and Henry Cabot Lodge and among prominent American Jews, Nathan Straus, Dr. Stephen S. Wise and Judge Julian W. Mack, former Presidents of the Zionist Organization of America, and Louis Lipsky, its present Chairman.

BIG INCREASE BY TORONTO CASUALTY CO.

The mid-year report presented to the Directors of the Toronto Casualty Insurance Co. at their meeting was of a highly satisfactory nature, new business written for the first six months of the year showing an increase of nearly forty per cent. over corresponding period of 1924, and a claims loss ratio for the period of forty-one per cent.

In the Automobile Department the Company during the half-year, wrote, net of cancellations and reinsurances, $242,000.00 in premiums which Mr. A. E. Dawson, the General Manager, pointed out, was, as far as could be discovered, the largest volume of Automobile Insurance transacted, in this period, among the one hundred and nine companies doing Automobile Insurance business in Canada.

$80,000.00 has been added to the reserves since the beginning of the year.

BRITISH HANDS MAY BE NEEDED

Shortage of Harvesters To Handle Western Crop is Seen.

55,000 SOUGHT.

OTTAWA, July 27 (Canadian Press)—A shortage of harvesters to handle the western crop is regarded as a possibility in immigration circles here. It is felt that the necessary fifty five to sixty thousand hands required will not be easily found in Canada and that the labor markets of the United States may not be able to offer enough to meet the demand.

In the event of such a shortage it may be found necessary to return to the former practice of bringing in British harvesters.

FARM WORK TAKES MANY UNEMPLOYED

Thirty-three Placements at Local Bureau—28 Applicants.

There were 28 new applicants at the Employment Exchange last week 33 placements were made, more than half of which were for farm help for the haying. A number of women applicants were sent to the summer resorts at Muskoka.

The government summary of the employment situation in the Province reads:

"The industrial situation has not changed to any great extent during the past week. There does not appear to be any marked activities in the building trade at this time. Farm work is still giving employment to many men and will continue to do so during the haying season. Factory work is not as brisk as it might be at this time of the year. Fruit picking is in full swing at present and numbers of the otherwise unemployed are finding opportunities of a temperoray nature along this line of work.

"LOST—A WIFE" BEST WM. DE MILLE FILM TO DATE

"Lost—a Wife," a William de Mille production for Paramount, which will be shown today at the Royal Theatre, is a story of a young American whose fondness for gambling wins, then loses a beautiful girl bride and eventually wins her back.

Adolphe Menjou, Greta Nissen and Robert Agnew are featured in the cast of the picture, which is an adaptation by Clara Beranger of Alfred Savoir's stage hit, "Banco," which in turn was adapted from the French by Clare Kummer.

Menjou, as Tony Hamilton, better known as "Bet-a-thousand" Tony, meets Charlotte Randolph (Miss Nissen) at a fashionable hotel in France. He is struck by her beauty. Hamilton learns that her title-hunting mother has managed to get her engaed to a scatter-brained duke. True to form, Tony bets friends that she does not marry the duke—and goes further than that—he bets five thousand that he marries her himself that very night.

—and we'll leave it to the picture to reveal how he makes out.

To take Mr. de Mille's own word for it, "Lost—a Wife" is one of the most human and entertaining pictures he has ever made. Edgar Norton, Mario Carillo, Toby Claude, Marcelle Corday and others just as popular appear in the supporting cast.

MEET GRETA NISSEN, NEW PARAMOUNT NORSE BEAUTY

Greta Nissen is doing a lot of new things for the first time in her life. Making pictures, living in Hollywood, meeting the American youths, who seem very strange to her, are some of them.

"There comraderie is nice, but it makes me feel very boy-like," says this foreign actress who has created such a sensation in Hollywood.

She smiled wistfully, "I have heard so much about Hollywood and I see nothing of it except on my way to the studio and back to my home in the evening. At night I feel tired and so I always bo to bed early. It is better so."

Miss Nissen is the lightest haired girl in pictures. She is undoubtedly the fairest haired blonde on the screen, and her blondness is the result of nature, not the hand-done variety.

Her hair started out to be that golden color a few generations ago in Norway. It is that vibrant shining color of gold, made immortal by Chaucer.

You see Greta Nissen and you wish you fight write poetry. She is lyrically lovely. As William de Mille says, "Greta is a luminous individual from the tip of her short clipped shining hair to the golden slippers she wears."

AT THE REGENT

MADGE BELLAMY PLAYS LEAD IN "WINGS OF YOUTH."

A cast of more than the usual excellence was selected for "Wings of Youth," the William Fox screen drama, scheduled to start a three days run at the Regent Theatre Tonight.

Madge Bellamy, whose work in "The Iron Horse" and "The Dancers" earned for her a long term contract, is featured with Ethel Clayton. Miss Bellamy's youthful buoyant personality fits ideally the requirements demanded by her role in "Wings of Youth."

Miss Clayton, whose blonde beauty is ever accentuated by her delightful screen portrayals, has long been a star in her own right and her selection for the role in the Fox production adds materially to the significance of the cast.

Filling the chief supporting roles are actors and actresses of prominence. Robert Cain, whose nefarious screen deviltry has made him a much sought after player, constructs the stumbling blocks for the romancers in "Wings of Youth." Marian Harlan, dark haired, brown eyed daughter of Otis Harlran, visualizes a flapper daughter of pleasure." in a most noteworthy manner. Katherine Perry, of sober mien and dignified carriage, portrays a sedate miss with fine discernment.

In the juvenile made roles are George Stewart and Charles Farrell. George is a brother of the famous Anita and possesses an inherent talent for screen characterization. Mr. Farrel contributes a well balanced performance that augurs well for his future.

Emmett Flynn, maker of the William Fox successes "The Dancers," and "The Man Who Came Back," directed "Wings of Youth."

"We are reviving our folk songs, we are returning to older masters of music; but we shall never reach their levels until we get breadth, particularly in our songs."—Herbert Antcliffe.

FAMOUS BEAUTIES IN "DRESSMAKING" FILM.

Fourteen International Beauty Models in New Paramount.

You had to be a world-famous beauty to play a part in this picture, which opens at the Capitol today.

"The Dressmaker from Paris," a Paramount picture, which marks Leatrice Joy's return to the screen after an absence of almost a year, is said to present a parade of beauty and fashion which far surpasses anything that has yet been brought to the screen.

Fourteen manikins, chosen from the world centres of wealth and fashion for their surpassing beauty, wear luxurious gowns and costumes, created especially for this picture by one of the foremost designers of Paris, brought to Hollywood expressly for this purpose.

"The Dressmaker from Paris" is an original screen story by Adelaide Heilbron and Howard Hawks. Miss Joy and Ernest Torrence are featured. Others prominent in the cast include Allan Forrest Mildred Harris, Larry Gray, Charles Crockett, Rosemary Cooper and little 'Spec' O'Donnell.

According to Paramount, this production is a forerunner of the smartest fashions of the coming season and is produced on a lavish scale that should make it one of the most striking pictures of the year.

Miss Joy is "The Dressmaker" in the picture, of course, and the fourteen beauties are her models, who exhibit her creations to the pop-eyed citizens of the little town of Clarion, Ill., where she gives a fashion show to stir up trade for the Emporium, the department store, owned and managed by the close-fisted Angus McGregor, played by Torrence.

Forrest is leading man in the production. Miss Joy first meets him as an American army captain in France, and later as junior partner in the Emporium.

Petes 9, Belleville 8 - Pittsburgh Gain on New York - Peterboro Tennis Victories

USUAL BELLEVILLE RALLY CAME ONE RUN SHORT AND PETES WON EXCITING GAME FROM VISITORS

Moguls Outhit Petes 11-9, But Walks Were Costly.

A SHIFTING GAME

Only Two Belleville Players Fielded One Position All Through.

A characteristic Belleville rally, such as the fans have learned to expect every time the Trunks play here, turned a dull game into a most exciting contest on Saturday. The rally fell one run short of tieing the score and the Petes won, 9-8.

The game marked the last appearance of the Belleville team here in this year's Central Ontario League schedule and, although the railwaymen are out of the race, they made things just as interesting as when they opened the season here on May 27.

The contest opened without much life, the teams playing as if it didn't matter. It drifted along for six innings with the Petes gradually piling up a lead until at the end of the sixth the score was 8-2. When the Trunks came to bat in the seventh they livened up a bit and scored two runs on three hits after two were out.

The Grand Change.

Caller-off Gerow then called for a grand change, and it was some shift. Peeney Mills who had been playing right after batting for Casey in the sixth, changed places with his understudy, Harris. Blakely, Tweed product who had been playing short, replaced his fellow citizen, Hughie Keon, on the rubber. Meagher shifted over from second to short and Wicky Ross moved in to the keystone sack from centrefield. Stan Hagerman shifted from left to centre and Keon went to left. For some reason, Vern Weir at third and Harry Mills at first were left unchanged, and were the only Belleville players to cover one position for the whole game.

The shake-up produced result. Blakely started right off with a strikeout, a feat that Keon had found impossible in the six innings he worked. The Petes then combined two hits and a walk for one run, their last in the game.

After trying their hand at new position the Moguls brightened up in their batting and followed a walk with four hits, one a triple by Peeny Mills for four runs. With Blakely on first, one run to tie, and Harry Mills at bat the fans nerves were right on edge but Hap Harrison smothered a hard grounder and beat Mills to the bag for the third out..

Fielding Good.

Each side turned in a good fielding card, having two errors each. Tommy Holyman, after booting an easy chance to start, came right back with a fine running catch back of third which robbed Casey of a hit. He continued to play bang-up ball, making some fine stops and throws. Helson and Whitehouse also handed a bunch of chances cleanly, although the hurler's wild and useless toss to Rose paved the way for a Belleville run, and Hap. Harrison smothered some hard drives. Ash made a great try for Weir's double in the eighth, getting his bare hand on the ball after a long run. A good throw from deep left held the speedy shortstop to two bases on the hit.

Wicky Ross led the Belleville fielder's. The centre fielder seemed always to pick the right spot and spoiled some good drives. The infield played good ball as did both catchers.

Manager Gerow made a slight change in his "Four Horsemen," Blakely batting third instead of Peeny Mills. The shortstop-pitcher justified his inclusion by two hits, a single and a rtiple, while the four leading men collected nine of the visitor's eleven hits. Weir had a perfect average with 3 hits and 2 walks in 5 tries.

Harrison and Ross, with two hits and a walk in four times up, were the leading batsmen for the Petes. Herby Wolfe's double to centre was a drive that would be rolling yet on any other field in the circuit. Helson showed an exception to the usual rule. After dropping a ball six inches outside the right field foul line that would have been a double if fair, he hit one even harder to centre field and got his double anyway.

It was not a hurlers' day. The damp grass made the ball hard to handle . Seven strikeouts formed Whitehouses's quota, and in one inning he was in danger of getting the hook. Keon didn't get a strike out and Blakely got three. Whitehouse walked five, Blakely one, and Keon four, while the latter also hit one man.

The weather was threatening and the crowd rather small. A sprinkling of rain about half way through caused no hold up. Sullivan and Dell handled the game without any dispute arising over their decisions.

Play By Innings.

Weir led off with a fly ball back of second which Wolfe took on the first bounce although it looked an easy out. Ross laid down a neat sacrifice which Helson fielded. Blakely struck out but Harry Mills dropped a hit into right to score Weir. Meagher lifted to Ross.

The Petes did nothing. Harry Mills fielded Wolfe's roller and beat the batter to the bag. Ross took Holyman's fly and Swanston rolled to Meagher.

The Trunks got a man on when Holyman fumbled Harris' grounder after Hagerman had fanned. Casey raised a high one back of third which Holyman picked off. Keon forced Harris, Holyman to Rose.

The Petes took the lead in their half. Rose walked. Harrison forced him but Blakely fumbled the ball and then tossed past Meagher. Ross beat out a single to short, filling the bases. Helson was hit, forcing in Rose. Ash nearly started a double play when he lined to Blakely but the runners got back. Whitehouse hit a long fly to Ross and Harrison scored after the catch. Blakely threw out Wolfe.

Both teams scored one in the third. Weir singled into left. After Swanston had caught a high foul from Ross and had tossed the ball to Whitehouse, the pitcher started to throw the ball around, choosing Abbie Rose to start with. His control was poor and the ball went into right field and Weir took second. Blakely's tap to Whitehouse put Weir on third, from where he scored on a wild pitch. Meagher rolled to Helson.

Holyman scored the Petes' counter. He walked and moved up on a wild pitch staying on second while Swanston lifted to Ross. Rose's infield out, a hard drive which Keon deflected to Meagher, put Holyman on third and he scored when Harrison dropped a hit back of first. Hap started to steal too soon and was run down, Keon, Mills and Meagher. Blakely taking part.

The fourth was easy. Hagerman and Harris struck out and Casey tapped to the box.

The homesters got one in their half. Ross singled over second and scored when Helson hit a liner past Ross for a pair of sacks. Ash gave Blakely a torrid grass cutter to handle, Whitehouse rolled to Keon and Wolfe flied to Hagerman.

Keon started the fifth with a tap to the box. Weir walked and went to second when Ross rolled to Whitehouse. Blakely missed a trio.

The Petes fared equally hard. Holyman and Swanston provided flies for Ross and Weir while Harry Mills smothered Abby Rose's grounder.

Harry Mills shoved one back at Whitehouse in the next frame, which the pitcher knocked down but couldn't field in time, going for a hit. Meagher struck out and Hagerman walked. Harris popped to Wolfe back of second and "Peeny" Mills, batting for Casey, gave Rose a nice roller.

The Petes got four in their half Harrison walked. Ross got a life when Weir booted his grounder. Helson walked, filling the bases. Ash lined to Ross, the runners being held. Whitehouse sifted one past Meagher to score Harrison but the congestion on the sacks was not relieved. Wolfe cleared the bases with a double to deep centre but was stranded when Holyman rolled to Blakely and Weir threw out Swanston.

The Rally Starts.

The Trunks found their batting eye in the seventh. Keon struck out, Swanston having to throw to first. Weir was passed but went out stealing, Swanston to Holyman. Ross hit over third for two bases and Blakely hit down the first base line for three, scoring Ross. H. Mills singled into centre to send Blakely home and Meagher lifted to Helson.

When the Trunks took the field, Gerow worked his grand change. Blakely got away to a good start on the mound by striking out Rose. Harrison altered the welcome by doubling to right. Ross walked and Helson forced him, H. Mills to Meagher. Ash beat out a tap to Weir, scoring Harrison. Whitehouse lifted to Keon who wandered around in left field before making the catch.

The Moguls went on another rampage in the eighth. Hagerman rolled to Helson to start. Harris walked and scored on W. Mills' triple to the bushes in right. Keon bounced a single of Whitehouse's glove to score Mills. Weir doubled to left, Keon holding third. The runners stayed put while Ross lifted to his namesake. Blakely provided transportation home for the pair with a single to centre. Harry Mills rolled to Harrison, spoiling his perfect day.

The Petes got a hit but no runs. Wolfe flied to Weir and Holyman struck out. Swanston got his name in the hit column with a slam that Blakely found too hot to hold. Rose struck out.

The ninth was all Holyman. The shortstop threw out Meagher, Hagerman and Harris, making some nice stops:

Mob Invaded Diamond.

JERSEY CITY, July 26 (Canadian Press).—Grabbing victories in both ends of today's double-header by scores of 5 to and 6 to 3, the Baltimore Orioles made it four games in a row over the Jersey City Skeeters. Following a close decision by Umpire Magerkurth at first base in the fifth inning and the removal of Second Baseman Dowd, several hundred fans rushed from the stands upon the field and made an attack upon Magerkurth. He defended himself by knocking one of the spectators down and managed to hold the crowd at bay until rescued by the mounted police, who rode upon the diamond and drove the crowd from the field. BURNBRAE WIN FROM HOARD'S

Plastered a 13-0 Shut Out on the Seymour Tail-Enders.

BURNBRAE, July 27 — Hoards ball team journeyed to Menie Friday evening to meet Burnbrae in a postponed league game, but were beaten by the unlucky thirteen, Burnbrae winning in six innings, 13 to 0. This is the first shut-out in the league games this season and incidentally Eagleson provided a record for other pitchers to aim at when he pitched a no hit, no run game, only two Hoards men getting on the bags both on errors. Hoards provided the fielding feature in the first when Parks caught Hume's fly to left field and doubled Shillinglaw by a quick throw to second. Walker in his first league game for Burnbrae got two hits and two runs in three trips to the plate.

Burnbrae's next game is with English line at a social at the latter place on Thursday, July 30, at 6 p.m. A good game should result as Burnbrae is in first place and the Line in second and coming strong.

Double-header From Yankees While Athletics Idle—Coveleskie's 13th Straight.

DUGAN INJURED

White Sox Win Series From Detroit—Cleveland Beat Browns.

NEW YORK, July 26 (Canadian Press).—The Washington Senators in their last appearance of the season here defeated the Yankees today in both games of a double header by 7 to 4, and 4 to 3, the second game going eleven innings. Third Baseman Dugan of New York was carried off the field in the tenth inning when his injured knee came out of place. Coveleskie extended his winning strak to thirteen straight in the first game, although he was relieved for a pinch hitter in the ninth inning. The first defeat for the Yankees marked the fourteenth time this season that they have failed to extend a two game winning streak. Scores:

QUAKER OATS DID EVERYTHING BUT GET GOALS

Richmond Scored Three Goals—Browell Missed Penalty.

DEFENSE GOOD

Quakers All Over the Jags—Every Player Was on the Defense.

A four to two goal victory was the verdict of the soccer league match in favour of the Thistle against the Quaker Oats, on Saturday afternoon, at Nicholls Oval, before a fair attendance. Four goals were registered in early stages of the tussel but the blue and white stripe sweater eleven was all over their opponents in the second half but it is the same old cry "missed goals galore" when right into shooting distance. Pulley, a two-year-ago junior finalist, made a good impression at inside right for the Thistle.

Features of the Play.

The opening exchanges, with Quakers facing the sun, were even and uneventful till Craig startled Edgar when he lashed the ball over the bar. At the other end, Dawson did likewise, then Browell went down into the corner where Harry Curtis intercepted a cross that knocked him out for a few minutes, for a corner-kick that proved fruitless. Smith carried the attack down along the wing with Craig who tested Edgar at first chance. The defense returned to mid-field where Carmichael trapped the ball, beat the man on a tackle, passed to his forwards who shot across the goal.

Richmond Got Two.

Scott kicked a twirling ball that landed to Browell. The outside left got the ball on the drop to send across the danger zone, then his centre forward got his foot on the ball, in knee-high height, that was placed into the net. From the face-off, the Thistle went back again to receive a penalty that Browell was trusted with but his parting shot hit the upright. He touched the rebound for the infringement. A little later, Richmond again banged one into the rigging in the same manner as his first one. The exchange continued to be very spicy in every position.

Craig's Snappy Goal.

The next item of note was a Quaker attack that let Craig have one of his first-timers from the wing that completely baffled Edgar all the way as it went into the net. A few seconds afterwards, he ripped one over the bar. Enthusiasm run high at this point of the tussel, both elevens giving the goal-keepers a continuous seige which was worth witnessing. Willshaw and Smith in two successive attacks were very threatening but Edgar was safe in stopping and fisting clear. Then came a turn for the Thistle, right-half and right pair having a great run and Lindsay cut in that took him close in goal ere he shot.

Browell-Richmond Goal.

Scott headed forward, Dawson trapped the ball and left Browell in possession, run ahead and in one of his characteristic left-footers that went over the players' heads, Richmonds' right boot met the sphere in mid-air that was placed in the net before Curtis knew it was there. This was followed up by a fourth goal when Dawson dribbled through player after player, then he shot low and hard into the corner of the upright. Curtis got his hand upon the ball but there was too much sting behind it to prevent a tally. The Quakers replied with a spirited attack but withered away when the Thistle right wing played combination down with the flag-corner. Pulley ran ahead, and again there was an exciting skirmish but no gain accrued and half-time announced with the Thistle leading by 4 goals to 1.

Second Half.

The second moiety saw the Quaker's team rearranged with a formidable attack and a stalwart half-back line that kept the "Jags" guessing on every attack against their goal. J. Wade retired injured but resumed later in not a fit condition. A flag-kick gained and placed accurately in centre of the goal was fisted clear off Smith's head by the goal-keeper.

Quakers All Over Opponents.

The porridge boys were master of the situation when Logan made the Thistle goal-keeper jump to divert over the bar. The corner-kick again had the hard pressed team in a quandary. F. Wade headed forward, Quaker boys shooting right back again but Edgar was unbeatable, although credit must be given to Anderson when he stopped Curtis' splendid effort that was awarded an unsuccessful flag-kick.

Smith Got the Second.

No matter how the Thistle tried to relieve the pressure, the Quaker forwards returned with more vigor than ever until Willshaw tested Edgar from long range, Smith netting from a poor clearance. Immediately afterwards, Edgar was in difficulty from the shots ranged at him. Time and again, he picked them up smartly, then no sooner grasping and fisting over the high ones in creditable manner.

Quakers Still Pressed.

Throughout the latter stage, it was a continuous bombardment that Wade and Anderson seemed to enjoy as the opponents hammered away at the impregnable defense. While making a clearance, Carmichael was winded and retired for a brief respite. Dilatory play by the Thistle [illegible] shadow [illegible] sion [illegible] by the referee against Hepburn when he illegally tackled the goal-keeper when not in possession of the ball. Edgar saved a stinging drive from Gardiner but a faulty pick-up left him in a dilemma, with the sphere lying outside the goal-line and a claim for a goal was demanded by some spectators while the referee was standing at the other side of the goal-post who viewed the play in the best position on the field of play. Some of the spectators when interviewed about the affair were emphatic that the referee gave a correct ruling. Occasional spasmodic raids by the Thistle attack intertwined the final stages until Lindsay on a solo run went right close into goal, shot hard and fast, Curtis fisting out again, a scrimmage ensued that ended in two players being winded. Nothing further happened as the final whistle blew. Thistle 4, Quakers 2.

Goal-scorers—Richmond 3 and Richmond-Thistle. Craig and Smith.

Line ups:

Quaker Oats—W. Curtis, goal; Scott and Honour, backs; Hepburn, Curtis and Logan, half-backs; Craig, Smith, Gardiner, Williams and Willshaw, forwards.

Thistle—Edgar, goal; F. Wade and Anderson, backs; Carmichael, J. Wade and Williams, half-backs; Lindsay, Pulley, Richmond, Dawson and Browell, forwards.

Referee—Alex McKinley.

GIANT PITCHER IS SUED BY WIFE

Hugh McQuillan, of New York Club, Charged With Neglect.

NEW YORK, July 27.— Hugh McQuillan, a pitcher of the New York National League Baseball Club, was sued in the Brooklyn Supreme Court Saturday in a separation action brought by his wife, Mrs. Nellie T. McQuillan of Elmhurst, Queens. She will apply today through her attorneys, J. F. Kelly and Maurice Janklow, to Justice James C. Cropsey for alimony and counsel fees pending the trial.

The basis of Mrs. McQuillan's complaint is that her husband's liking for Broadway and roadhouse night life caused him to neglect his family. This compelled her to leave him a year ago, she said, and return to the home of her parents at Worcester, Mass. Since that time, she says, he has contributed nothing to her support, although she estimates his annual income for the last three years at approximately $13,000, including his share in the world series games, making the amount of his income for the last three years about $40,000.

When his income was the largest of his career, she alleged, her share of it became gradually smaller.

Mrs. McQuillan charges that her husband has been too attentive to Miss Helen E. Goebbel of 1,532 Vyse Avenue, Bronx. Last year Miss Goebbel was a prize winner in a beauty contest at Atlantic City, where she received the title of "Miss Bronx," as the successful representative of that borough.

Girl Denies Statement.

Miss Goebbel is 20 years old and lives with her parents. She denied Mrs. McQuillan's charge Saturday night and declared there was no reason whatever for mention of her name in the court proceedings. She said she knew McQuillan and that was all there was to connect her in any way with the case.

Mr. and Mrs. McQuillan were married on April 24, 1917, at Worcester. Mrs. McQuillan told the court that the five years immediately following their marriage was the happiest period of her life.

"My husband was then a member of the Boston National League Baseball Club and getting a salary of $4,500 a year. Then he was sold to the New York club. His salary began climbing and continued until now, when for five months' service, he receives $9,000 a year. In addition to this he receives his share for participating in the world's series. I have been informed that his share of the proceeds of the series has totalled $13,000 in the last three seasons.

Says He Was Fined for a Party.

Mrs. McQuillan charges that her husband was fined $500 by the New York club in 1924 for being with a party at a roadhouse at Bayside, L.I., on a day preceding that on which he was to pitch in a "crucial series." As a result of absenting himself on another occasion, it is alleged, he forfeited a bonus of $2,000, which he was to receive from the club at the end of the season.

In December, 1924, Mrs. McQuillan says, her husband signed a separation agreement providing for payments to her of $500 a month from May to September, the amounts to be deducted from his salary with the New York club. She received nothing, because the club refused to accept this assignment of salary.

After their separation, Mrs. McQuillan says, her husband sold the contents of their Brooklyn home and has retained the money. Bernard H. Reich, attorney for McQuillan, said the separation action would be contested.

GETTING READY FOR CANADIAN HENLEY

Niagara District Aquatic Club's 140-lb eight-oar crew is shown on a trial spin in preparation for the Canadian Henley meet. The members of the crew are all St. Catharines men. This shell was presented by President Burgoyne, of the Henley Aquatic Association. They are: J. Rose, B. Arnott, Allen Evans, G. Fitzpatrick, H. B. Burgoyne, T. Tymer, O. Lefebre, N. Armstrong, R. Gordon, bow; Len James, cox.

SPORT GOSSIP AND COMMENT.

Saturday's win leaves the Petes sitting pretty, a game ahead of the Ponies, who have, however, two games in hand by postponements. The standing is:

	Won.	Lost.	P.C.
Peterboro	12	7	.632
Kingston	10	7	.588
Oshawa	9	9	.500
Belleville	5	13	.277

* * * * * * * * *

It is still actually possible for the Trunks to finish in a tie for second place, but the necessary combination of wins and losses is not likely to be forthcoming. They are playing in Kingston tonight, and a win for the Ponies means "finis" for the Trunks.

* * * * * * * * *

Kingston and Peterboro will provide the fun this week. On Wednesday evening the locals will visit the Limestone City, and on Saturday they will play back here. These are the last scheduled encounters between the two teams this season.

* * * * * * * * *

The regular schedules of all the leagues are being rapidly wound up. On Saturday we bade farewell to the Trunks, and only five games remain to be played. The various sections of the City League are either playing off or nearly ready to play.

* * * * * * * * *

The wise fans were on hand Saturday. Threatening weather and the low standing of the visitors meant nothing. Any time that bunch of wallopers is present in Riverside Park there will be fireworks before the game is over, and the victory is open until the last out is registered. And the wise birds weren't disappointed on Saturday.

* * * * * * * * *

Usually when a player hits a real drive and it lights foul by inches, his best effort when he returns to the plate is a roller or fly. Not so with George Helson. "Giddy" progressed safely to second base in Saturday's game and was then informed that his drive to right field was foul. Coming back, he took a toehold and smote lustily at one of Keon's offerings. The ball sailed out on a line over second base for a better hit than the first, and George returned to second base with plenty to spare.

* * * * * * * * *

The Junior game tonight will be no tame affair. The Lakeviews have been kicking themselves ever since the last game and are determined that there will be no errors this time and no fourteen strikeouts either. The Electricians played good ball last week and say there will be no third game needed. McDonough is on top of his form and with good support will take some beating. The game is called for 5.30.

* * * * * * * * *

The hitting of the Belleville lead-off men was, as always, sensational. Weir, Ross, Blakely and Harry Mills were up five times each. Here's what they did: Hit 6 singles, 2 doubles, 1 triple and 1 sacrifice; walked three times and struck out twice; raised two flies and grounded out twice. Some murderers' row! —C. J. B.

CRICKET CLUB HAD FINE PRACTICE GAME

Manning's Team Beat Coutts' Selection By 65 Runs.

On Saturday afternoon there was an excellent attendance at practice on the ePterborough Club's grounds and an enjoyable game took place between teams picked by G. Coutts and P. Manning. The latter won the toss and elected to bat first. The first wicket partnership of Frank Dyer and Elliott produced 46 runs before the latter was caught out. Dyer continued to play a forceful innings until bowled by Duggan Jr. when he had scored 41. The bowlers were poorly supported in the field and several chances were missed. With the exception of Ryland and Gatfield the rest of the side were easily disposed of. Walsh took 3 wickets for 16 runs and Duggan Jr. 3 for 29.

The innings of Mr. Coutt's team opened disastrously, the first 5 wickets falling for 10 runs. Dunkerly alone played the bowling with confidence. Mr. Manning's team won easily by 94 runs to 29. F. Dyer bowled well, taking 4 wickets for 11 runs and Manning had the last 2 for 1 run. Scores:

P. Manning's Team

F. Dyer, b Duggan Jr.	41

Peterborough Club members are reminded of the usual practice evenings Tuesday and Friday, and a larger attendance is requested. The next two matches scheduled are: versus Royal Oak C.C., on Saturday, August 1st, and versus Rosedale C.C. of Toronto at the Exhibition Park on Monday, August 3rd.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

Using the open stance, the ball should be played off the left heel the same as with the square stance. That is for woods With the irons and the open stance, play the ball back some—say half way between. You do this because the stance is more opened for the irons than for the woods. With the wood clubs have the hands even with the ball during the address and be sure the club face is at right angles to the ball. With the irons the hands should always be slightly in advance of the ball and the club face slightly opened. Be very careful not to overdo any of these things—it is not meant that the hands be far ahead of the ball or the club face be wide open.

DELEGATE TO COMMUNIST INTERNATIONALE.

Wm. Moriarity, secretary of the Communist Party of Canada, delegate to the executive council of the Communist Internationale at Moscow, is shown speaking to the peasants in the Dagistan hills. The red band around Moriarity's shoulders was put there by an organization similar to the boy scouts of this country. It means that he has been received as one of them, and is a good fellow.

CAVAN NEWS

CAVAN, July 27.—The rain on Tuesday will prove of great benefit to everything

Raspberries are a good crop this year. Wild berries are very plentiful.

Farmers are beginning to plough their hay ground for fall wheat.

Mr. Jas. Paul, Eighth Line, has a field of fall wheat cut, and others are intending to start cutting in the course of a few days.

Here and there in other sections of Cavan, a field is seen in stooks.

Wheat seems to be just an average crop this year.

Alsike harvesting is general.

The weather just now is ideal for cutting Alsike. Ordinarily the men start to cut very early and continue to cut until about ten o'clock or until the sun makes the alsike dry enough to shell. These dark days they can cut all day.

CAVAN, July 25.—Mrs. C. L. McNeil will receive on August the eleventh and twelfth, afternoon and evening, instead of August the fourth and fifth, as announced.

Mr. Cyril Moore who is confined to bed with a broken limb, has developed pleurisy.

Miss Bertha Touchbourn, accompanied by her nephew, Vance Woodhall, arrived home from Hamilton on Wednesday evening. She had been staying with her sister, Mrs. Woodhall since their automobile accident, a couple of weeks ago.

Dr. Woodhall and his wife, while not fully recovered are both able to be around and are improving.

The parish hall at Ida is progressing very well, and appears as though it will soon be completed. The men of the congregation had a bee one afternoon this week, fixing things up on the church grounds in preparation for the garden-party.

Mrs. John Smith went to Toronto on Monday; called there by the serious illness of her sister, Mrs. B. Ballantyne.

HAVELOCK NEWS

HAVELOCK, July 25.—Mr. and Mrs. Wilson of Hamilton are visiting their daughter, Mrs. Wm. Patton.

NEWS KINGS'S WHARF.

KING'S WHARF, July 27.—The weather now is just what is needed for the crops and they look splendid in this locality. The fall wheat is ripe and they are cutting it also the alsike, both are an extra good crop. Rain would be welcome for the root crop, but for hay, alsike and fall wheat it would do harm. The strawberries are gone now and the raspberries, cherries and other small fruit are just coming in. The potatoes are good and a number here have new potatoes.

MALE VOICE CHOIR.

Concert in Victoria Park Was Thoroughly Enjoyed.

The Peterborough Male Voice Choir "occupied the boards" in Victoria Park on Friday evening at the weekly concert under City Council auspices.

The choir, to the number of about forty, rendered an interesting and varied programme of choruses, quartettes and solos, being assisted by Mrs. H. F. Doig, soprano, and Mrs. Kitney, contralto. The contributions of each of these soloists were appreciatively received by the vast audience, as were also the solos by Walter Northrop and Frank Pratt.

The community singing was a special feature, the children around the band stand joining lustily in each number, with Paul Manning at the megaphone.

The choir was under the baton of Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., with Fred Chenhall at the piano, and their numbers were well received.

The piano for the occasion was kindly loaned by Heintzman Hall.

Around The City.

Frank G. Stinson has been taking over the Motor League secretarial duties of Leon Frazer during the half week which the latter has been devoting to organizing the Ontario Tourist Association with headquarters in Toronto.

The log drive of the Peterborough Lumber Co. is now at Little Lake. The company's mills at Burnham's Point will open to-morrow and will continue operations until the freese up.

The workmen employed in altering the merging offices of the City Treasurer and the Tax Collector in the City Building have been working overtime, with the object of completing the work as soon as possible. A brick and concrete safe is nearing completion and it is hoped to have the entire work finished by the middle of August.

The first sample of this season's alsike seed to reach Peterboro came into George Mather's store this afternoon from North Monaghan. Good alsike seed is fetching $6 a bushel.

DEATH SEVERS HISTORIC LINK

Madoc Man Was on Toronto Telegraph Wire When Armistice Flashed.

HEARD THE CLICK.

James M. (Jimmie) Nicol, who died last week at his summer home near Bancroft, in Hastings County, was the first man in Toronto to receive the authentic news of the armistice. At ten minues to three on the morning of November 11, 1918, the telegraph key clicked out to his trained ear the f lash, "Armistice signed."

The newspaper file thus tells the story of his vigilance and adherence to duty:

"The news during the night had indicated that nothing was to be expected until the morning. But there was no let-up in the eternal vigilance that is the price of efficiency. Jimmie Nicol, the Canadian Press operator, was eating his lunch and joining in the desultory conservation, with one ear turned to the key. He had heard the declaration of war flashed into the office and waited four years and three months to hear this click of the instrument that would tell that the slaughter had ceased. Suddenly he stopped in the middle of a bite and jumped to the wire."

It was an intense application to his work over the many years in which he was in the telegraph service that brought about the heart trouble which caused his death. Born at Madoc about 42 years ago, he was a railway telegrapher before he entered the commercial branch, and, when the Canadian Press was organized, he was assigned to The Telegram office, continuing until last February, when he became ill.

It was expected that after spending the summer in Hastings County he would be able to return to duty He was one of the most efficient telegraphers in Canada. He is survived by his widow and 3 children, Cecil, aged 15; Gladys, 12 and Jack, 10; also by his mother, Mrs. S. Nicol and two sisters, Isobel and Mary.

FINANCIAL NEWS.

New High For Smelters With 3,000 Shares Traded In

TORONTO, July 27. (Canadian Pres).— With Consolidated Smelters the leader, this morning's session of the Toronto Stock Exchange was the most active since the bumper New Year's markets. Transaction in smelters were heavier than ever before, passing the three thousand share mark.

The stock was sold up to 116, a new peak, then eased down to 113 1-2 at the noon close, a net gain from last week's close of four and one eight points. Interest was not confined to Smelters, City Dairy, F. N. Burt, Brazilian and Atlantic Sugar all being heavily dealt in. City Dairy came second to Smelters with an advance of three points to 90. Sugar and Brazilian eased off respectively 3-8 and a half, but Bread common gained a quarter and the B preferred a half. Burt closed at noon 2 5-8 higher and Brompton sold up to 23 3-4 a gain.

Prices Rose In Diversified List Of New York Stocks

NEW YORK, July 27. — Canadian Press. — Constructive operations continued throughout the forenoon trading in Wall street, lifting a diversified list of merchandising, motor, independent steel rail and specialty shares to new top prices on gains of late four points.

In contrast with the general upward trend of prices were outbursts of heavy profit taking in oil, baking and tobacco stocks. Pan-American Petroleum issues were hammered down more than two points each; independent oil and gas broke four points and general banking 6. This selling however failed to discourage bullish demonstrations in other sections of the list. Frisco common and preferred were the most conspicuous features in the rail groups, both mounting more than 2 points to high levels. Motors before noon established another peak price at 88 7-8, while a vigorous demand for store issues embraced Woolworth, Macy, May and United Drug.

Call money renewed at 4 per cent.

Firm Tone Maintained On Mining Exchange To-day

TORONTO, July 27. — (Canadian Press.) — A firm tone was maintained in the active trading on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning. Kenora, Consolidated West Dome and Lorrain were the leaders in volume of transactions, but Vipond led the advance with a six cent gain at 122. Teck Hughes advanced four at 177 and Lake Shore two at 620. Keora improved 2 1-4 at 43 3-4 and Lorrain a half at 13, but West Dome remained unchanged.

Material Downturn Shown By Wheat Market To-day

CHICAGO, July 27 (Canadian Press) — Commission houses as a rule were on the selling side of the wheat market early today, and with buying power poor a material downturn in prices took place. Liberal receipts here, about 600 carloads, had a bearish effect, against which an upturn in quotations at Liverpool counted for little. It was said the peak of the movement of winter wheat to Chicago was likely to be witnessed this week. Opening prices, which ranged from 1 1-8c decline to a quarter cent advance, September $1.49 1-2 to $1.49 7-8 and December $1.50 7-8 to $1.51 were followed by set backs all around that carried September down to $1.47 1-4 and December to $1.49 1-8. With some rain in the corn belt, the corn market underwent a moderate decline. After opening at 1-8 to 3-8c off, September $1.03 3-8 to $1.03 1-3 prices continued to sag. Oats reflected coarse of other cereals. Starting unchanged to 1-2c lower, Sepetember 43 3-4 to 44 1-8 all months showed a loss.

Provisions were easier responding to the action of hog values.

In Peterborough Churches

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

"Give an account of thy stewardship," a text taken from the sixteenth chapter of Luke, was the basis of the sermon preached at the morning Masses at St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday.

The story of the unjust steward was reviewed by the preacher, Rev. P. Costello, who said that the rich man of the gospel was a representation of God and the steward was each individual in the world. "We have been placed here to serve God faithfully, and if we do not do so we are unjust stewards. The business man takes stock at times of his worldly possessions, and so we must take stock of how we stand with Almighty God."

A comparison was drawn between the type of person who goes along serving God to the best of his ability, performing his religious duties carefully and practising charity toward his neighbor, whether that neighbor is a member of his own church or outside of it, and the one who neglects his church and his neighbor, preferring to spend his time in seeking the pleasures of this world and making a god of his own desires. Of this man, the type of the faithless servant, God will sooner or later demand an account of his stewardship, to discover if he has failed in making the things of this world a source of eternal merit in the next.

ST. PAULS' PRESBYTERIAN.

Rev. W. A. Campbell, M. A., of Toronto, was yesterday's preacher at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, and the large audiences were rewarded by hearing two sermons of high mark.

The sermons were full of sound doctrine, the morning discourse being founded on the prophet Amos, showing by prayer, oft repeated, how God can deliver His Children from sin with the people doing their duty for the furtherance of God's Kingdom in living the Chirstian life day by day.

Mrs. H. F. Doig, who has been soloist during the month, concluded her services yesterday, and many appreciative comments have been passed upon her part in the musical services. Next month, Mrs. Walter Byers will be soloist.

Rev. William Allan enters upon his term of one year, as stated supply next sabbath.

CABINET MEETS THIS AFTERNOON

Expect That General Election Would Be Under Discussion.

MANY VACANCIES.

OTTAWA, July 27. (Canadian Press). After a recess of nearly two weeks, the cabinet ministers will gather here this afternoon for a meeting which, it is generally assumed, will have some bearing on the General Election prospects. The meeting promises to be well attended. Ministers who have been absent from Ottawa since shortly after the close of the session will be on hand with what information they have gathered as to the political situation in various parts of Canada.

A good deal of interest is being manifested in the numerous vacancies which the government now has on its hands. It is possible that some of those in the judiciary and possibly also in the Senate will be filled shortly but is improbable that there will be much done along these lines until after a decision in regard to an election is made.

Battling Siki Flees From Hospital Despite His Wife's Pleas.

HAILS TAXI.

NEW YORK, July 27 (Canadian Press)—Battling Siki, the Bengalese boxer and former light heavyweight champion, clad in pyjamas, today hurriedly left the hospital in which he was placed yesterday after being stabbed in the neck when he intervened in a street fight in "Hell's Kitchen" district.

Enraged by the refusal of his wife, who visited him at the hospital, to bring him clothes so he could leave, Siki, dragging a newspaper reporter by the arm, lurched into the street and hailed a taxi cab, ordering the driver to take him home.

VICTIM OF ASSAULT AND ROBBERY TOSSED OVER CLIFF AT NIAGARA FALLS WAS CAMPBELLFORD MAN

Albert E. Dunk, Formerly Employed by the Hydro Electric Commission on Trent.

MAY NOT RECOVER.

Spine Broken By Fall—Passed By Persons Who Thought Him Drunk.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 28.—Albert E. Dunk, who was assaulted and robbed at Niagara Falls as related in a press despatch to The Examiner yesterday, was a native of Campbellford, where a number of relatives reside. The first intimation that his friends had of the affair was contained in a telegram which reached them Monday forenoon. His two brothers, William and Robert Dunk, left on the afternoon train for Niagara Falls. Another brother, Raymond, lives here.

The injured man is a son of Mr. and Mrs. James Dunk, who still reside here. While a resident of the town, he was in the employ of the Hydro Commission, but left some years ago to work in the Toronto branch. Besides his three brothers he has two married sisters here, Mrs. V. Farrell and Mrs. A. Brunello. Another married sister, Mrs. C. J. Benbenick, resides in Cleveland.

Mr. Dunk was married to Kathleen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Arnott of Belleville.

His Spine Broken.

NIAGARA FALLS, July 28.—Police both here and in the American Falls are working on clues which they hope will lead to the arrest of the taxi driver and confederate who are alleged to have robbed Albert E. Dunk, of 203 Audrey avenue, Birch Cliffe, Toronto, and then to have thrown him over the 200-foot cliff at Niagara Glen.

Although Dunk was still alive yesterday, it was felt that he could not survive his terrible fall, which resulted in his spine being broken in several places.

If his condition permits, X-ray photos will be taken, and a plaster cast will be applied. Doctors say he may live for several days.

After extricating himself from the tree which broke his fall on Friday night, Dunk managed to make his way to the foot of the cliff some time on Saturday.

From there he dragged himself more than half a mile over a muddy trail. The deep marks left by his fingers in the mud are still visible.

Dunk was found about two o'clock Sunday afternoon by Harry Butcher, Toronto, who was walking through the glen with his wife and baby. He notified Victor Hibbons, a young employe at the Municipal House, who went out to assist pending the arrival of the ambulance and police.

Hibbons said Dunk told him he was not certain whether it was on Thursday night or on Friday that he had been hurled over the cliff.

Haig Alters Program To Meet Blind In Montreal

MONTREAL, July 28. —Earl Haig made an unexpected variation in his programme on Monday afternoon when he caused the party of officers who were accompanying him on his trip to the suburban municipalities, to stop in front of the Institution for the Blind, in order that he might talk to the inmates.

As the party drove past, he observed a group of the patients standing outside the institution, holding out a big Union Jack.

He at once called to his chauffeur to turn back, and got out of his car to inquire who the people were. He stood chatting with the blind men on the sidewalk for a few minutes, and then drove off amid cheering from the patients.

BRUTAL MURDER IS FOLLOWED BY FIRING OF BARN

Body of Woman Found With Head Battered By Fork Shaft and Hoe Handle.

IN THE GARDEN.

Brother-in-law, Who Cannot Be Found, Thought to Have Perished.

CREEMORE, Ont., July 28 (Canadian Press).—The discovery about five o'clock yesterday afternoon of Mrs. Edward Dunseath, aged 30, of Mulmut Township, lying in a dying condition, with her head battered in, about 300 yards from her home, was followed almost instantly by the bursting into flames of a large barn. Frank Dunseath, unmarried, about 40 years of age, and a brother-in-law of the victim, is being sought by police as he is missing. After her husband had gone to the harvest fields, Mrs. Dunseath went out to pick berries. She was seen to enter a little garden about 300 yards east of the farmhouse on her way back and had evidently been engaged in gathering vegetables when she was struck down.

The father of her husband found her in the garden unconscious, but still breathing. Near her were a hoe handle and a fork shaft, both blood stained.

She soon succumbed to her wounds. Dunseath Senior says that just as he came upon the dying woman, he saw smoke issuing from the barn, but gave all his attention to the victim. The smoke was also seen by Edward Dunseath and other farm workers, who rushed to the barn and tried to extinguish the flames, but were unable to check them. It was not until later that Edward Dunseath learned of the attack on his wife.

Frank Dunseath is said to have been on unfriendly terms with his brother's wife. He with his father lived on the farm. He was at dinner yesterday, but afterwards refused to join the others at work and is said to have been acting rather strangely of late. Absolutely no trace has been found of him since the tragedy. It is thought that he may have perished in the flames which consumed the barn. Dr. White, local coroner at Orangeville, last night empanelled a jury which viewed the body of the murdered woman, and the inquest was then adjourned until 2.30 on Friday next in the town hall at Shelburne.

Mrs. Dunseath is survived by two children, a girl of seven and a boy of three. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Whitley are residents of Creemore.

Noon Mass Stopped Until Women Dress Becomingly

FERRARA, Italy, July 28—(United Press) — Fashionable women arriving for the noon mass at the Cathedral here today, found the door locked.

A notice was posted reading: "The noon service will not be resumed until society women dress becomingly in the house of God."

This was part of the campaign fostered strongly by His Holiness for modesty in female dress.

RAIN INCREASES FARMERS WORRY

Wet Weather Has Held Up Haying and Crop Lies in Fields.

HOLD UP WHEAT.

TORONTO, July 28 (Canadian Press).—Agricultural anxieties were greatly increased in some parts of Ontario this morning by heavy and long continued showers which fell all through the southwestern end of the Province. Central Ontario was also well soaked. In many of these districts as also in Eastern Ontario, the weather has been so wet this summer that hay crops have lain for weeks in fields, farmers being unable to get them dried and into the barns between showers.

The harvesting of fall wheat, which promised generally a good crop, had also been seriously interfered with.

PUBLISH SPEECH BRYAN WROTE TO READ IN COURT

Evolution is Indicted on Five Counts in Scathing Address.

DISPUTES BIBLE.

Diverts Attention From Important Things to Trifling Speculations.

DAYTON, Tenn., July 28 (Canadian Press)—The "Tennessee Case," an address prepared by William Jennings Bryan in defence of the Tennessee anti-evolution law, which the late commoner was prevented from delivering at the Dayton trial because of an early termination of the case, was made known to the world today by Mrs. Bryan.

Mr. Bryan indicted evolution on five broad counts; the first of which is that "it disputes the truth of the Bible account of man's creation and shakes faith in the Bible as the word of God."

"Our second indictment," the address said, "is that evolutionary hypothesis carried to its logical conclusion disputes every vital truth of the Bible. Its tendency, natural if not inevitable, is to lead those who really accept it, first to agnosticism and then to atheism."

The third indictment against evolution was "that it diverts attention from pressing problems of great importance to trifling speculation."

Our fourth indictment against evolution hypothesis is that by paralysing the hope of reform it discourages those who labor for the improvement of man's condition."

The fifth charge brought was that If taken seriously and made the basis of a philosophy of life, evolution would eliminate love and carry man back to the struggle of tooth and claw. Christians who have allowed themselves to be deceived into believing that evolution is a beneficient or even a rational process, have been associating with those who, either, do not understand its implications or dare not avow their knowledge of these implications."

INQUEST TO-DAY ON MURDERED CHILDREN

Preliminary Hearing of Mother Will Also Be Held To-day.

SUDBURY, July 28 (Canadian Press).—Crown Attorney Atkins of Saulte Ste. Marie, Magistrate D. M. Brodie of Sudbury, and Provincial Constable Keene, who was in charge of two prisoners, Mr. and Mrs. William Kossack, left Sudbury at 5 o'clock this morning for Elsas where the inquest into the death of the two Kossack children murdered in their home at Argolise, will be held this afternoon. The preliminary hearing of the mother ,charged with killing the two boys, will also be held today.

The husband, who is held on a nominal charge of wife desertion, will attend the inquest as a witness.

STEAMER BEAT RUM BLOCKADE

"Augusta," 2,000 Tons, Got Right Up Hudson and Unloaded Cargo.

CAUGHT TOO LATE.

NEW YORK, July 28. —(Canadian Press. The 2,000 ton steamship Augusta was captured by the customs officers in the Hudson river, off Dickman Street, yesterday after the ship had run the gauntlet of the rum blockade and her crew had unloaded and disposed of a cargo of liquor worth $250,000, at bootleg prices, leaving only fifteen bottles aboard. The crew of 24 men was arrested and the Captain admitted having turned the liquor cargo over to "retailers" for distribution.

OVER THE LIFT LOCK TO STONEY LAKE ON FRIDAY, JULY 31ST, STR. STONEY LAKE WILL LEAVE GEORGE STREET WHARF AT 8 A.M., FOR STONEY LAKE. ROUND TRIP $1.00. 3d26 1542

TAKE NO ACTION TILL REPORT IS SENT BY HYDRO

Committee of the Whole Council Discussed the Street Railway.

LEAVE TO PEOPLE.

Not for the Council to Say "Yes" or "No," Says Mayor Turner.

The non-arrival of copies of Mr. Gaby's report to the Hydro, which he had promised to send to the members of the City Council, resulted in last night's meeting of the committee of the whole being short, without any decision being arrived at. Whatever plan the Aldermen decide on when they have the report will be submitted to the ratepayers at the next municipal election.

Mayor Turner, who presided, said that he had hoped that the copies of the report would be available for the aldermen to have in front of them at the meeting but they had not come. He said that when the Council had discussed the matter and put it into shape so that it could say to the people. "This will cost you so much, will you have it or not?" the people could then vote on it at an election, probably the next municipal election; and he for one, wouldn't think of taking the responsibility of deciding the matter without an appeal to the people.

Alderman Phelan said that from what he had heard it would be useless to put it to the people and that personally he wouldn't take the railway if it were given him for nothing.

Alderman Greene said that the men with whom the Aldermen came in contact in the course of business had motor cars and would not be effected but the people without the motor cars would be. To spend $150,000 for this junk and then to spend $25,000 more in doing it up was not a business proposition and no man around the table would put his money in any such scheme.

Mayor Turner said that it was possible that there was a certain amount of pride and civic spirit that would not like to see the railway closed and the 1700 automobiles in the city, at four people per car, would only look after about one-third of the population. What the Council should do is to get the lowest possible figure and submit it to the people. He wouldn't offer more

ACCIDENT SHOCK FATAL.

Woman of 77 Died in Sarnia Hospital.

SARNIA, Ont., July 28.—(Canadian Press).—Mrs. Helen Harris of London who suffered greatly as result of accident here on Sunday died in the Sarnia General Hospital Monday afternoon. According to Dr. O. C. Young, who attended the injured stated it was the shock of the accident combined with her age of 77 years that caused death. Mrs. Harris was driving with her son George to spend the day in Sarnia when the car wis sideswiped by a milk truck driven by David Dunn of Mandaumin, on the fourth line of Sarnia township.

ONE ABSENTEE FROM CABINET

All Members Except Hal McGiverin Attended Monday's Session.

RESUME TO-DAY.

OTTAWA, July 28.—(By Canadian Press)—"No appointments and no announcements," said Premier Mackenzie King when he emerged from the Council Chamber after presiding over a meeting of cabinet which lasted until after six o'clock last evening. "We are coming back again Tuesday," he added. Other members of the Cabinet also said that there was nothing to announce at present.

It is understood that yesterday's meeting, which began early in the afternoon, was devoted to clearing away a large accumulation of business. This having been done, it is not unlikely that the meeting today will be devoted, at least partly to a discussion of election prospects. There is little probability of a decision for some time to come, however.

The importance of the meetings now scheduled is indicated by the fact that every seat at the council table was occupied yesterday afternoon with the exception of that of Hon. Hal B. McGiverin, minister without portfolio, who is in the West. Hon. Jacques Bureau, Minister of Customs, who has been on the sick list for some time, was present. Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, and Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, both of whom have spent some time in the Prairie Provinces since the House adjourned, arrived in time for the meeting.

UPPER STONY LAKE REGATTA IS HELD AT CROWE'S LANDING

President of Cottagers' Association Welcomed Visitors and Presented Prizes.

MANY COMPETITORS.

W. Willoughby Won Dinghy Sailing Race Silver Cup Award—Other Winners.

Yesterday saw the nineteenth annual regatta of the Upper Stony Lake Cottagers' and Campers' Association accounted for at Crowe's Landing, with a good crowd of cottagers and campers and their friends taking part in the various events and forming an audience for a series of entries which passed off without any mishaps and were, in the main, well contested.

The day was ideal. The opening events were run off under a hot sun, followed later by a cloudy sky and a stiff breeze.

Prizes were presented in the Pavilion, where Dr. J. M. Jory of St. Catharines, president of the Association, spoke a few words with regard to the organization, and welcomed the cottagers and campers and their friends.

Possibly the most interesting of the events were the dinghy race, in which there were four entries (with a sloop accompanying the contestants), the outboard motor race, and the ladies' swimming contest, which saw a very close finish, the tie which resulted being decided by a tossed coin. The ladies' single skiff race was also well contested.

Officers of the Association who were on hand were: the president, Dr. J. M. Jory of St. Catharines, the secretary-treasurer, F. L. Craig of Grand Valley and members of the executive: Dr. R. C. Griffith and D. A. Glassey, of Toronto. In place of the third member of the executive committee, B. M. Chapman of Toronto, W. W. Armstrong of Guelph, formerly of Peterboro, officiated. Official starters were B. L. Simpson of Hamilton, D. A. Glassey of Toronto, and Dr. R. C. Griffith of Toronto. Messrs. Richard Lees of Peterboro and George Burnham of Toronto, acted as judges.

In the evening a dance was held in the pavilion, with Roy Nickrens' orchestra from Peterboro providing excellent music, with much interest shown in Harold Snelgrove's vocal contributions.

BUY PARACHUTES FROM AMERICA

Post Charges That British Government Rejected Type in 1918.

"CAST ASIDE."

LONDON, July 28. — (Canadian Press).— Contracts covering several years and involving a large sum the Morning Post, says have been placed by the British Air Minister for parachutes manufactured in the United States.

The Post points out that British inventors in 1918 were working on a type of free parachute indentical to those now ordered in the United States, but that their designs were cast aside contemptuously.

MORE MERCHANTS ARE OPPOSED TO STREET RAILWAY PURCHASE

Some Say Bus System Would Serve the City Better Than Cars.

SUGGEST OPTION.

D. C. Grant Says City Should Have Three Months' Trial of Radials.

The proprietor of the Downyflake tea room was of the opinion that Peterborough's population was too centrally located for a street railway system ever to be a pronounced success. He said that he was a motor bus fan and believed that they could suitably relieve the situation although in his experience the jitney service occasionally established in East City never met with success.

Maurice B. Pringle said that he agreed with Walter H. Meredith in his "off the bat" reply so that means another adverse vote.

G. L. M. Kirkwood had a unique proposal which the Hydro should use in formulating further suggestions. He said that the Hydro might bait their suggestion with an offer of $150,000 payable to the city when encumbrance was unloaded. Under circumstances such as that the city might have reason to consider a deal.

And right at this point comes the affirmative answer. Fred J. Wheeler connected with the Regent Tailoring Company and acting as temporary manager in the Peterborough store said that his policy and the policy of his firm was for advancement. The abandonment of the street railway, as he saw it, would be a step of retrogression.

He qualified his opinion however, by saying that he was also opposed to burdensome taxes imposed on the small ratepayer.

He said the advance of a city is shown, not by the great buildings, public works, etc., but by the number of people who own their homes. If the taxes are now too high by all means shelve the Hydro proposal but providing that the rates are not especially onerous let the city take it over, make improvements and show an advance instead of retrenching. Improvements mean work and work means money and money means good times.

D. C. Grant had a new one. He replied that radial lines to railway services meant profit and quoted his personal knowledge with Ottawa lines which include a route to Britannia, some miles out of the city. This carried is a profit maker and he said that similar lines in Peterborough, for instance to Chemong, would result favourably.

"If the city," he said, is contemplating taking over the transportation facilities let them get a 3 month option and see what they can do with it. If they can show anything like a profit then let the city take it over but if not then let scheme be abandoned entirely."

N. Sukloff said "The system is not paying just now. If the city takes it over all losses will fall on

Ancestral Instincts Serve Purpose Of His Optic Nerve

BANFF, Alta., July 28.—(Canadian Press)—Eighty-year-old, Peter Wisely, chief of the Nordegg branch of the Stoney Indians, dressed and departed from the Sarcee hospital and walked to Morley, a distance of eighty miles, in two days.

He was confined in the hospital for eye treatment and fearing that the doctors in charge would not permit him to leave in order to bring his tribe through the mountains for the Indian celebration at Banff recently, he took no chances. The "chief" sneaked away early in the morning and walked across the prairies through the extreme heat. He was practically barefooted, when he arrived at the reserve.

Old Peter slept in the open and survived on berries and water. He has only one eye left, and that doesn't serve him very well, but his Indian instinct carried him across country to his goal.

TO USE ELECTRIC TRAINS ON C.N.R. LINE TO OTTAWA

New Electric Locomotive Has Been Tried Out and Found Economical.

CONVENIENT, TOO.

Great Improvement on Cars Put In Service On Pembroke Line.

OTTAWA, July 28 (Canadian Press).—An innovation in Canadian National Railway Transportation between Ottawa and Montreal is anticipated within the next two weeks in the form of high-powered electrically driven trains. The type of electrical locomotive which the C.N.R. anticipates using on the Montreal-Ottawa line has been tried out, it is understood, and found to be most effective both from the standpoint of economy and convenience.

The C.N.R. recently instituted a service between Ottawa and Pembroke by electrically driven cars, which received their power from storage batteries, but the equipment to be used on the Ottawa-Montreal line is said to be a great improvement on this.

SCOUTS IN CAMP.

Boys From Millbrook Church Are Enjoying Holiday at Rice Lake.

The Boy Scouts of the Anglican Church, Millbrook, are camping at Hall's Landing, Woodchuck. Mr. Barnes of the Bank of Toronto staff, Millbrook, is in charge of the group.

The Scouts and Scout Master spend many pleasant hours daily in going on long hikes through the woods, and swimming and boating in the waters of Rice Lake.

"This is just the life for boys to spend their summer holidays!" some of the boys had stated.

Police Station Prisoner Waits Execution To-morrow

There is a prisoner at the Police Station awaiting execution. Unless someone comes and claims the white fox terrier with black and tan markings who was brought into the station with a broken left hind leg, he will have to be despatched tomorrow evening.

He isn't doing any complaining. His leg was broken in some unaccountable fashion and he has to lie still with a cord attached to his collar to keep him quiet. He is lost and he may be shot tomorrow, but he isn't saying a word.

He is a nice dog, one of the sort often described as a "man's dog," with clear, faithful brown eyes and a friendly manner. If his owner doesn't come to claim him, anyone may have him, without any expense, up to tomorrow night.

Mother Unaware Child Was Missing

Had Put Tot on Car Which Grandmother Was to Meet.

WINNIPEG, Man., July 28 (Canadian Press).—After being under the care of the Children's Aid Society for two nights and a day, the little three-year-old girl found wandering on the street in north Winnipeg by a policeman was claimed by her mother, Mrs. Birch, Austin street. The mother was unaware that her daughter was in strange hands. She had put the child aboard a street car with instructions to the conductor to put her off at Phillips and Selkirk, where her grandmother was supposed to meet her.

The conductor put the child off but due to some misunderstanding there was no one there to meet the infant, with the result that she wandered about until taken in tow by a policeman. The mother three days later sent over to the grandmother to find out how the girl was getting along, and the reply she got set her investigating.

SEARCHERS FIND BONES IN BURNED DUNSEATH BARN

Think They Belong to Frank Dunseath, Missing Since Murder.

METAL PARTS FOUND.

Believe Metal Parts Are From a Man's Garters.

CREEMORE, Ont., July 28 (Canadian Press).—Searchers among the ruins of the barn on the farm of Edward Dunseath, which was burned yesterday afternoon, at the same time as his wife, Mrs. Edward Dunseath was brutally murdered, believe they have found remains which indicate that Frank Dunseath, the missing brother-in-law of the murdered woman perished in the fire. Nothing remains of the barn but ashes, and a doctor is being called at once to examine the remains to determine if they are those of a human being. Frank Dunseath has not been seen since before Mrs. Dunseath, his sister-in-law, was found with her head battered in yesterday afternoon. No skull has been found in the ashes of the barn, but several of the bones appear like human joints and there are metal pieces such as would come from a man's garters.

DANCE ENJOYED.

Many People Attended First Dance Held By Hockey Club.

The Peterboro Hockey Club held a very successful dance at Rye's Pavilion, last evening. There was a record crowd in attendance, about three hundred people taking advantage of the fine night, the excellent floor and the good music provided by Ken Blood's four-piece orchestra, to have a thoroughly enjoyable time, with the Hockey Club boys as hosts. Ed. Wright acted as general convenor of arrangements.

GOULD WIDOW WED.

Mrs. Guinevere Gould Married to Viscount Dunsford in Montreal.

NEW YORK, July 28 (Canadian Press).—Mrs. Guinevere Gould, widow of the late George J. Gould, and heiress to a large part of the Gould fortune, was married at Montreal today to Viscount Dunsford, son and heir of the Earl of Middleton.

They were married by Rev. Mr. Hanson, of the American Presbyterian Church and it was announced that they would make their home in London.

DIED OF BURNS.

Buffalo Girl Was Fatally Scalded When Car Overturned.

TORONTO, July 28 (Canadian Press) — Burns received when the auto in which she was riding with her parents overturned proved fatal to two year old Marion Shank, of Buffalo, N.Y., who died in the Hospital for Sick Children here today. Mr. Shank, his wife and two children were returning to Buffalo last evening when the car skidded and overturned into a ditch near Plaxton. Marion was scalded by water from the radiator which had burst.

HATHAWAY REMANDED.

Case Took Only Two Minutes of the Court's Time To-day.

LONDON, Ont., July 28 (Canadian Press)—Leslie G. Hathaway, alleged Thorndale Bank bandit, again presented a gay and debonair appearance on his second appearance in Police Court this morning. He was not asked to plead and his case took up but two minutes of the court's time and concluded with another jail remand for a week.

If you lose or find anything put a small ad. in the Examiner. They bring results.

RUBBER PRICE DROPS.

Sudden Fall in Price of Crude Product on London Market.

LONDON, July 28 (Canadian Press).—Crude rubber prices, which recently rose to an unprecedented height weakened rapidly today under pressure of speculative sales, dropping three and one-half pence for spot quotations. Today's decline brought the price down to 3s. 10d. per pound.

The fall in futures was even more pronounced, all months showing an approximate break of 4½d. under yesterday's closing.

VOLUNTEERS LET OUT.

Half of Hong Kong Force Was Demobilized Yesterday—Rest Soon.

HONG KONG, July 28 (Canadian Press)—Half of the volunteer force called out owing to the anti-foreign strike, was demobilized yesterday. The remainder will be demobilized shortly.

MORE MERCHANTS ARE OPPOSED

the taxes. I don't see how I can favour anything that will increase our taxation."

M. Abramson was more optimistic. "The system might pay if a 5c charge was submitted for the present 7c rate." He thought the idea of running the cars to Chemong might be considered.

A. Pepo was opposed. "Money is scarce enough," he said.

W. J. Spence—"I am entirely opposed to the proposal which will pile up more debts on the city."

T. L. Edwards left a mesage for the Examiner saying he was totally opposed to the proposal.

J. Mill said he would not like to see the car system scrappedr. "Everybody does not own a motor car," he said, "And the street cars are a necessity to many." He had heard of some town which had made a municipally owned car service pay its way. He did not think the motor buses would adequately fill the place of the car service. Reduce expenditure, lower the fares and induce more people to use the cars, were suggestions which if carried out, might make a city owned system a paying proposition.

A. Young thought a reduction of fares and a consequent increase in the numbers of passengers might help to solve the problem, but he said he had hardly been long enough in the city to form an opinion as to the wisdom of the proposal to make a system a city owned affair.

A. B. Warne said he agreed with the majority of the opinions expresed in last night's Examiner.

Folly On Part of City

A. H. Stratton who recorded a negative vote at the Manufacturers' Association when the question came up for consideration, told the Examiner that he thought it would be folly on the part of the city to take over the system. "The Hydro," he said, "should first put the system on a proper basis before handing it over to the city. Why should the city buy a lot of junk at any price? The Hydro suggested that the city should take the service and make it pay. Let the Hydro make the system pay, introducing proper facilities and when the system has been made a paying proposition then the question of the city's taking it over can be considered.

"If the Hydro cannot maintain the service," suggested Mr. Stratton, "the city should encourage the establishment of a bus line run by a private corporation."

BEAUTIFUL FISH SELLER.

Though beauty contests are now rather common and inclined to be passe, it is not uninteresting to note that the most beautiful young lady in all France, as selected by a committee of artists, sculptors and fashion dictators, is Mlle. Adeline Basso, who sells fish for a living. She has a complexion which smacks of the sea.

CLERKED WITH SIR GILBERT PARKER IN CAMPBELLFORD FORTY YEARS AGO

J. E. Crane, of Toronto, Visiting Trent Town After Long Absence.

REMEMBERS PARKER.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 28 — J. E. Crane, a former resident of Campbellford, but whose present home is in Toronto, is visiting friends here for the first time in 40 years. Mr. Crane when a young man was employed as a clerk in the dry goods store of J. and D. Watters, which stood on the corner now occupied b y the Bank of Montreal and which in its day was one of Campbellford's leading mercantile establishments.

Another resident of this town and one who attained distinction in another field, who was a contemporary of Mr. Crane, was Gilbert Parker, who later returned to his home in England and who was knighted on account of the success which he achieved in literature being well known as the author of "The Seats of the Mighty," "The Weavers" and other stories. When Mr. Crane was a clerk here Gilbert Parker was employed in the same capacity in the store of J. D. McKay on the west side of the river.

Both young men attended Christ Church and were confirmed on the same day by the late Bishop Sweetman of Toronto.

Mr. Crane left here for Vancouver 40 years ago and went into the insurance business. For the past six years he has been living in Toronto. Naturally he sees many changes in Campbellford which he pronounces one of the prettiest towns which he has seen anywhere on his travels as well as one of the most prosperous.

Josiah Tinney, who sold his residence on Centre Street about a year ago to W. Kirkham, has bought back the property.

Honor for Burnbrae Man

Alex Hume, the well known breeder of Ayrshire cattle at Burnbrae, has been appointed by the Ontario Government as one of the Ontario Judges of live stock at the animal exhibition in Vancouver and will leave for that city next week. Mr. Hume, who is regarded as one of the best judges of cattle in Ontario, will be director of the Ayrshire exhibits at the big show in Vancouver.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Horkins and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Clarke, all of Toronto, spent the week end at the summer cottage of Mr. Horkins' father, T. J. Horkins at Dam 9. The following Peterboro people were also guests at the cottage: Dr. M., John and Walter Killoran and James Radey; Misses Mary Donahue, Mary McPherson, Peggy and Ethel O'Neil. The party motored to Codrington Sunday evening to visit friends.

VICTIM OF ASSAULT

"He told me," said Hibbons, "that he had pulled himself through the mud until he had reached the main walk a little after mid-day on Sunday.

"Several people came along and all he could do was to gasp out a numbled plea for help. They paid no attention to him at all, but walked right on. Two fellows went past him with cameras and thought that he was drunk.

He could not not move. When we found he could hardly talk. He also said he had tried to get two sticks in his hands with which to pull himself along the ground. This did not help him very much, but cut his hands in several places. He was surely in great pain when we carried him up."

Thrown Over Cliff.

After being taken to the hospital, Dunk said he had gone across to the American Falls on Friday and, after having had several drinks, decided to go back to the Canadian side in a taxi. An auto was hired and he got in the rear seat.

The car proceeded over the river by the way of the lower bridge. As it reached the Canadian side, instead of going up Bridge Street where he was living at the Rosh Hotel, it picked up speed and turned down the river.

Here the car jerked to a sudden stop and another man got in and accompanied them. Dunk began to think that he wasn't being taken home at all and objected. A heated argument followed and harsh words were spoken.

By this time Dunk began to be alarmed. His fears were realized when the car came to a dead stop and the two men came at him.

He did not have a fair chance to protect himself. Both men struck him forcibly. They knocked him down where he lay in a daze while they went through his pockets and extracted around forty dollars and his gold watch.

Without wasting any time, they picked him up, Dunk declares, swung him and then threw him far over the cliff, a few yards from where the scuffle had taken place. He felt himself falling. Half way down the steep incline he crashed into the crotch of a large tree. This both saved him and perhaps killed him as his back was broken with the impact. But otherwise he would likely had been killed when striking the rocky floor of the glen.

As far as he can remember he lay in the position where had had fallen, powerless to move any part of his body, until sometime Saturday morning. His body was numb, all feeling having left it. During the morning he managed to work his way down the cliff to the ground without injuring himself to a greater extent.

He could hear water trickling. With a dull pain throbbing through his brain he crawled to the spot nearest the sound, scooped a little hole in the ground with his finger nails and secured a drink of comparatively refreshing water.

LABOR COMMITTEE STUDIES DOMINIONS

Prerogatives In Case of Another War Are Being Discussed.

LONDON, July 28. — (Canadian Press). — A sub-committee, of the British Comonwealth Labour Conference is to-day considering the problem of Dominion prerogatives in event Great Britain is involved in another war.

The question was referred to the committee after J. Simpson of Canada had declared Canada favoured more autonomy and wanted the war question clarifed and Tom Johnson of Ireland had said Ireland ought not to be committed to entering a war against her own volition.

MEYERSBURG SOCIAL WAS GREAT SUCCESS

Large Sum Was Realized From Gate Receipts and From Booth.

NORHAM, July 28.— The social held on the church lawn at Meyersburg on Thursday evening was a splendid success. The gate receipts amounted to over $91.00 while a good business was done at the booth under the sheds. The Ladies Aid held a bazaar sale which was stocked with useful and well made articles. All were donations, many of which were home made. During the evening nearly everything was sold and a nice sum of money realized. The lawn was nicely decorated with colored tisue paper strung from various corners to a pole in the centre. The Blue Orchestra from Campbellford furnished the program which was highly appreciated. Mr. Hall and Mr. Crossen, of Cobourg, were present with a petition receiving signatures for the release of the south-east corner had a pane in Kingston Penitentiary. Nearly every eligible person in atttendance signed the petition.

During the storm which passed over here on Tuesday evening, the United Church at Meyersburg was struck by lightning. The chimney and roof at the north-west corner were damaged, and the window at the south-easrt corner had a pane of glass and the sash broken in. The floor around both of the stoves, which are situated at either side in the rear of the building, was slivered in severed places.

John W. Newman has put a new iron roof on his barn.

Miss Dora West, of Hamilton, is the guest of her brothers Al. West and Alfred Cliffe.

Mrs. Hawthorne and daughter, Anna of Millbrook were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Wicks over the week-end.

Mr. Hy. Dawson was a visitor to Peterboro on Saturday.

Many tourists spent the week-end at Barnard's Landing, Rice Lake. On Saturday there were many large catches of fish made.

WILLIAM CURRY DIES AT OMEMEE

Born in Peterboro' in 1853—Business Man in Omemee For 38 Years.

OMEMEE, July 27. — Omemee lost one of its most respected and well beloved citizens on Saturday when Mr. William Curry passed peacefully away. Although of a very quiet and retiring disposition, he made friends of almost everyone he came in contact with and his departure will be mourned by a wide circle, who will feel the loss of a personal friend.

Mr. Curry was born in Peterborough and came to Omemee with his parents in 1853, where his father, the late William Curry, established a general business. He received his education in the village schools and after finishing his course in the High school was associated with his father in business. Thirty-eight years ago he succeeded his father in the business and carried it on until four years ago, when he sold it to Mr. Melville Earle, who had been associated with Mr. Curry for ten years before his retirement.

During his life he held several public offices with dignity and credit and his kindly advice and experience will be missed by those left to carry on the work he was always so interested in, and to which he gave his time most devotedly. He succeeded his father as church warden of Christ church, of which he was a most devoted member and for thirty years was superintendent of the Sunday school. In 1887 he was appointed treasurer of the township of Emily, and held the office till December last. He was secretary-treasurer of the school board for many years, and also acted as treasurer of the village of Omemee for a lengthy perjod, still retaining the office at the time of his death.

Mr. Curry had gradually given up some of his work, as four years ago he had an attack of the flu, which left him more or less of an invalid, and on Thursday evening he suffered a stroke, from which he never regained consciousness, passing away at eleven o'clock on Saturday morning.

He leaves to mourn his loss, Miss Louise Curry and Miss Edith Curry, with whom he resided, Mrs. Clarke, of Omemee, and Mrs. Walter Kimpton, of Toronto.

The funeral was held on Monday afternoon. A private service was held at the home at 2 o'clock when the rector, Rev. A. T. Weir, was assisted by Rev. Canon Marsh, of Lindsay, and Rev. Canon Bryan, of Toronto. Afterwards a public service was held in Christ church when the rector officiated.

The pallbearers were Messrs. Richard Grandy, William Stephenson, L. A. Southworth, Richard Cornwall, W. H. McQuade and Fred Bent.

A large number of friends from far and near gathered to pay their last respect to one, whom they had learned to admire, and not a few among the congregation but could recall some kindness or friendly act deceased had done for them at some time or another.

Relatives from a distance were his brother-in-law, the Rev. J. H. Sheppard, of Younstown, N. Y., a niece, Mrs. George Johnson, Toronto, Mr. Walter Kimpton, Toronto, Major Frederick Curry, Brockville, and Wilfrid Clarke, of St. Catharines, nephews; Mrs. Albert Walker, a niece, and Mr. Albert Walker and family, Coldwater; Mrs. W. J. Sheppard, Jr., a niece, and Mr. Sheppard and daughter, Coldwater; Mr. J. R. Hale and Misses Gertrude and Dorothy Hale, of Orillia. Others from a distance included Lady Eaton and Miss Anna MaCrea, Kawandag, Muskoka, Mrs. Mulligan and Miss Ella MaCrea, Lindsay. Mr. and Mrs. A. MaCrea, Toronto. (Mr. Arthur MaCrea, learned the business with Mr. Curry and always esteemed his sterling qualities and prized his friendship.)

Interment took place in Emily cemetery.

Beautiful flowers were sent by many friends and relatives and wreaths were received from Christ church, the Sunday school, the municipality of Emily and the village of Omemee.

Much sympathy is felt for Miss Edith Curry, who is on a five weeks' tour to England and France and is unaware of the sudden death of her brother.

OBITUARY.

WILLIAM JOHN BULLOCK.

(Contributed.)

There passed away at his home in Orono, on Satu day, July 18th, a highly respected resident in the person of William John Bullock, at the age of 75 years and 3 months. Deceased was born near Warsaw.

The funeral service was conducted very ably by the Rev. Mr. Downs, of Tyrone, and Mr. Harry Batten, a nephew, renderd one of his favorite hymns, "Jesus Lover of my Soul."

The pall bearers were three sons and three sons-in-law, namely Howard Bullock, Lakefield; Victor E. Bullock, M.A., of Ottawa, and Wilmot of Orono; and James Fowler, Bowmanville; Bertram Butler, Orono, and Richard Hope, Otonabee.

The late Mr. Bullock was a Methodist in religion. In 1875 he bought a farm and settled near Lakefield, being married to Miss Fitzgerald, who predeceased him about forty years ago, leaving a family of four children, namely Bernard, of Brandon, Man.; Raymond, of Spokane, Wash., Mrs. James R. Fowler, of Bowmanville, and Howard J., of Lakefield, Ont.

He subsequently married Miss Campbell of Nassau, who survives him with the following family: Mrs. B. J. Butler, Orono; Mrs. R. F.Hope, Otonabee; Victor E. Bullock, M.A. of Ottawa, and Ulmont at home.

Two children predeceased him: Clara and Gordon, while living near Lakefield. He was prominent in public life, being a member of Douro council for a number of years; also secretary and salesman for Pine Grove cheese factory, for a good many years.

Of the immediate relatives there are left one sister, Mrs. M. J. Donan, Vancouver, B. C., three brothers, Thomas and George of Essex, Ont.; and Robert of Lakefield.

The remains were interred in the Lakefield cemetery on July 22nd.

DR. W. T. HARRISON.

The funeral of the late Dr. W. T. Harrison was held on Monday afternoon. A private service for the members of the family was held at the home at 2 p.m. and a public service at the Keene Methodist United church at 3 p.m., when the church was filled to overflowing. The Rev. Andrew McLauchlin officiated, assisted by two former pastors of Keene, Rev. L. S. Wight and Rev. W. Harrison, and Rev. John Archibald, of Keene Presbyterian United church. All these spoke in glowing terms of Dr. Harrison and the good he has done in Keene and district.

He was superintendent of Keene Methodist Sunday school for twenty-five years and also recording steward for the same number of years. Mrs. Harrison, who is left to mourn his loss, was also connected with the Sunday school and church for the past fifty years.

Dr. Harrison had been troubled for years with his heart, but even when he was anything but fit to attend to his medical duties, when a call came for him he would never flinch, but go and attend others who probably sometimes were not as much in need of medical aid as he was himself.

Those attending from a distance were Mr. G. M. Bull and W. H. Cunningham of Toronto, Mr. E. C. Sharpe, of Winnipeg, and Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Sharpe, of Toronto.

The floral tributes were many, which signified the esteem in which Dr. Harrison was held.

During the service at the church a beautiful selection was rendered by Mrs. Gilbert Howson, Miss Bryce, Mrs. F. A. Eason, Mr. David Edwards and Mr. Robert McCamus. The choir also sang "Lead Kindly Light" and "Jesus Lover of My Soul" by request.

The pallbearers were as follows: Dr. Munroe of Warsaw, Dr. Fraser of Lakefield, Drs. Morgan, Wood and Scott of Peterborough, and Dr. Walsh of Keene.

MRS. JOHN HAIG.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 28. — One of the largest funerals ever seen in Seymour Township was that of the late Mrs. John Haig, which was held on Monday afternoon to the Tabernacle's United Church cemetery, on the English line.

The large residence was thronged with mourning friends and relatives who listened to an eloquent discourse by Rev. C. D. Daniel, the young pastor, who held up the life of the deceased as a record for all to follow. A long procession of autos from town and country followed the remains to their last resting place.

The pallbearers were J. S. Wallace, Samuel Buchanan, Peter Stephens, W. M. Stephens, W. S. Grills and William Grills, all life long friends and neighbors. With the exception of Mr. Buchanan these were the same pallbearers who officiated at the funeral of the husband of the deceased, a few months ago.

MRS. ALEX INNIS.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 28. — Robert Linn, a member of the Seymour Council, was on Saturday last called upon to mourn the death of his father, James Linn, who passed away at his home in Rawdon. On Monday, Mrs. Linn, wife of the former, was summoned to the bedside of her mother, Mrs. Alex Innis, who died at her home, near Crow Bay. The late Mr. Linn will be buried today, while the funeral of the late Mrs. Innis will be held Wednesday both being laid to rest in the cemetery at Burnbrae, of which church they had been life long and esteemed members.

The late Mrs. Innis whose maiden name was Jessie Pirie, was born in Seymour on July 21st, 1854, so that at the time of her death she was in her 72nd year. All her long life she had been blessed with the best of health, never having been sick for a day until her fatal illness seized her about three months ago.

The deceased was married to Alexander Innis on January 22nd, 1873, and the couple celebrated their golden wedding quietly with the immediate members of their family a few years ago. For 50 years they resided on a farm on the eighth concession ot Seymour, moving to their present home about four years ago. On the old homestead, they raised a family of five sons and five daughters, eight of whom survived beside the husband.

When the war broke out, one of the sons, Edward Augus, who was living in the west, enlisted and went overseas with the second contingent from Moose Jaw. He was one of the many Canadians who fell in the battle of the Somme on September 26, 1916. A daughter, Mrs. John Thompson of Seymour died 18 years ago.

The surviving children are Mrs. Robert Linn of Seymour, Mrs. A. M. Rankin of Collins Bay whose husband is member of the Ontario Legislature for Frontenac County, Mrs. F. Dunk of Warveinesa, Man., and Mrs T. Dunk of Seymour. The sons are Alexander of Cleveland, John and James of Alberta and Hugh, who is employed in the Hydro Power house No. 10, Campbellford.

The funeral will leave the family residence at 1.30 Wednesday afternoon for the Burnbrae cemetery. Rev. D. A. McKenzie will preach the funeral sermon in the church in which the deceased was for so many years a consistent and devoted worshipper.

One of the dying requests of the deceased was that friends would omit floral offerings.

NOT LIKE PETERBORO

All Mayors of French Village From One Family Since 1808.

SURVILLE, France, July 28.— (Associated Press).—The mayoralty of this little village of 316 inhabitants has been in the same family 117 years. The first mayor, Honore Petel, was elected in 1808, and since then five other Petels have held the office.

The last, Alfred Petel, recently was re-elected for a four-year term. He was elected in 1908.

JAIL FOR PROFITEERS

Bulgaria Takes Drastic Steps to Check Excessive Prices.

SOFIA, July 28.—(Associated Press).—Minister of the Interior Russeff has directed the Chief Commission of Provisions to begin proceedings against fruit and vegetable merchants in half a dozen cities to compel them to sell their produce at reasonable prices. Complaints had been made that prices three times as large as they should be were being charged. Some milkmen, who were said to be charging excessive prices, also were included.

The provision authorities were instructed by the Minister not only to fine those found guilty of profiteering but to impose prison sentences of one year as well.

FLIGHT COMMEMORATED

First Zeppelin Went Up 20 Years Ago and Stayed Up 20 Minutes.

FRIEDRICHSHAVEN, July 28. —(Associated Press).—The 25th anniversary of the first Zeppelin flight will be celebrated in this city in August. On his first flight Count Zeppelin succeeded in remaining in the air only 20 minutes. To the coming celebration, a number of prominent personalities in the world of economics and science will be invited.

Count Ferdinand von Zeppelin was born at Constance, in Baden, Germany, in 1838. During the American Civil War, he served as a volunteer in the Union Army. It was while he was in America that he made his first ascent in a balloon. He died in Berlin in 1917.

RADIO ON TRAINS

Japanese Railway Department to Instal Loud Speakers on Coaches.

TOKIO, July 28.—(Associated Press).—Eight special coaches are under construction by the Japanese Railway Department to be used in experimenting with radio service for passengers. The train will be equipped with the vacuum-typed, dual system radio apparatus with an antenna over the entire length of the carriages. It is expected that operators on the train will be able to broadcast messages and also receive telegrams from the various stations. In addition, radio loudspeakers will be installed so the passengers may be entertained by news dispatches and musical programs.

REPORTED CURE

After Pilgrimage to New Shrine in Saskatchewan.

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., July 28.—(Canadian Press).—A miraculous cure attributed to Ste. Therese de Lisoeux, recently canonized at Rome, is reported from Preudhomme, Sask., following a pilgrimage to the shrine of the Saint, consecrated a month ago at Wakaw.

Colin LePage's three-year-old daughter, in 1924 underwent a serious operation for an ear affection. The operation was not altogether successful and for many months the child was under the treatment of a doctor. Recently a pilgrimage was made to the new shrine at Wakaw. The family prayed at the shrine and commenced a novina. On the ninth day the little girl was completely cured and this is attested in a statement of her doctor. He does not refer to any miracle but cites a complete cure, which he calls extraordinary. Following the cure the entire LePage family made another visit to the shrine to offer their thanks to Ste. Therese.

LESS RED TAPE IN IMMIGRATION

Thornton Announces Agreement to Bring in British and U. S. Settlers.

EXPECTS INCREASE.

FORT WILLIAM, July 28. — Canadian Press. — Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railway and a large party of his officials spent a large part of yesterday here on their way west, where the president will carry out his annual summer trip of inspection.

In an address following luncheon at Chippawa Park, Sir Henry announced that the government, the Canadian National and the Canadian Pacific had entered into an agreement to dispense with a great deal of formality and red tape attendant on the ushering into the country of settlers from the British Isles and the United States. Sir Henry believed that the year to come would see a great acceleration of immigration as a result.

GERMAN GHOULS MISTREAT DEAD

Crematory Men Broke Gold From Teeth, Stole Clothing and Coffins.

BURN TWO TOGETHER.

BERLIN, July 28. — Canadian Press. — A new record for ghoulishness is set by the Dresden city crematory. Investigation established here yesterday that they had been breaking gold fillings and crowns from the corpses and selling them. They also stripped the bodies of clothing, and sold it to second hand dealers.

The ghouls, it was further proved, have in many instances cremated two bodies in one coffin and then sold the other. They divided the ashes of the combined corpses into two piles and handed the relatives one of the two as the remains of their dead.

THE FIGURES SAY SO.

Women, says science, are 20 per cent. crazier than men. Dr. William J. Hickson, director of the Psychopathic Laboratory in Chicago, produces statistics, comparisons and various other things to prove it. He's right, of course, because his figures are taken from man's viewpoint, using men as a basis of normal.

By the same method, a woman scientist, if there is one sufficiently skillful, could use woman as a hypothetical normal, and find that men are 20 per cent. crazier than women. So it's an even deal. Each one can rejoice in his own sanity.

It reminds one of the cat in "Alice in Wonderland."

"I am mad," said the cat. And to prove it she added: "A dog growls when he is angry and wags his tail when he is glad. I growl when I am glad and wag my tail when I am angry. A dog is not mad. Therefore I am mad."—Border Cities Star.

CHEW WELL TO SEE WELL?

At first consideration, the statement of Sir Arthur Keith concerning the cause of defective vision seems absurd. Yet he is rated the greatest anatomist in Great Britain and his position as professor of the Royal College of Surgeons adds to his authority.

Dr. Keith rejects the opinion that short sight is due to eye strain. He holds that the diet of civilization is causing the digestive system to break down. Mastication is decreasing, teeth are weakening, palates are contracting, he says, and nervous systems are becoming deranged.

He asserts that the diminished use of the jaws is changing the shape of the face and lengthening the eye sockets, which in turn elongates the eyeballs and weakens the vision.

Dr. Keith is right when he emphasizes the tendency of people to bolt soft or tender food. Hard and tough food, thoroughly masticated, is highly important in the daily diet. Whether it will improve vision may be uncertain, but every authority is agreed that it will promote health and strength.—New York American.

TRADE UNIONS AND THE REDS.

Following the example of the Machinists' International Union, the Chicago Federation of Labor has begun to issue warnings to its members against the activities of Communists.

In their extravagant plots to overthrow existing Governments and bring the world into association with and under the domination of Soviet Russia, Zinoviev and the other rulers of the Third Internationale have laid especial emphasis on the necessity of getting control of the labor unions. Communist groups formed in labor organizations are instructed to take advantage of every instance of unrest to foment strikes, pit the workers against their employers and do all in their power thus to weaken ordered government. Their policy is solely one of destruction.

Except to the unthinking among American workers such a policy could have no appeal. They have no fight with capital, for many of them, as home owners, investors in the stocks of the corporations by which they are employed, depositors in banks and part owners of enterprises of the unions of which they are members, are themselves capitalists. For the same reason they recognize their need of the protection of rational government.

The United States offers probably the most barren field in the world for Communist propaganda. Nevertheless, it is highly desirable that the labor unions, against which Communist propaganda is now mainly directed, should be militantly on their guard. —Chicago News.

PRESTIGE VS. PEACE IN MOROCCO.

Not even those who a year ago were loudest in denouncing "French militarism" will question the sincerity of M. Painleve's desire to end the Moroccan war as quickly as possible. France went into it reluctantly, with nothing to gain. Her object was then, as it is now, to maintain her prestige. At the same time she hoped to end for all time the guerrilla warfare which the Riffians have for so long been conducting against Europeans. She had no special quarrel with the natives, nor did they feel unduly oppressed by the French administration in the protectorate. History has shown that just as the French make poor colonists they make good colonial administrators, being ready enough to adapt themselves to local conditions and to respect the traditions and prejudices of subject peoples. They have never adopted the British caste system, relying rather on fair play and reason than on the outward signs of empire to maintain their sway. Prestige, however, rests on success, and so is always greatly endangered by military reverses. This is particularly true when the ruling power has long been accepted as one of the greatest forces in the world. It is incumbent upon the French to maintain their military supremacy.

M. Painleve knows well that the French budget cannot stand a great increase in war expenditures. Furthermore, he is anxious not to arouse resentment among the native tribes in North Africa with whom France has until recently been on the best of terms. If Abd-El-Krim, therefore, shows any disposition to accept peace on reasonable terms before he is forced to do so by an overwhelming defeat, there is little doubt that he can have it. About the main features of autonomy and local self-government there seems to be little question. The French are willing to give the Riffians all but complete independence. Even the military forces to be at the disposition of the Emir will apparently be large enough for all internal police purposes. As to boundaries, there are more divergent views. The rights of Spain are involved in this settlement, which means that Spain's prestige is also at stake. For so many years the Spaniards have been fighting the native tribes unsuccessfully that they will probably be unwilling to make concessions having the outward appearance of a permanent admission of defeat.

The French Premier has compelling reasons of internal politics to incline him toward any peace which leaves France's prestige intact. The Moroccan war is not popular in France. The people are sick of all wars. Some of the political groups are ready to make capital out of any mishap which may befall the troops in the field. Furthermore, if more credits have to be voted, as seems not unlikely should the present large-scale offensive last long, it will give fresh opportunities for Painleve's enemies to work against him. Conversely, a successful peace would enhance his reputation and prolong his tenure of office. Unfortunately, his negotiations with the Spaniards have not yet been satisfactorily completed, and until this is done the larger problem of a permanent settlement of the North African disputes will be difficult. Spain is none too ready to co-operate with France. The Spaniards remember well how, in their own hours of trial with the Riffians, France gave Spain the cold shoulder. But a crushing defeat of Abd-El-Krim's forces would clear the diplomatic atmosphere. Yet victory is difficult in a guerrilla war carried on in a country where local tribesmen are openly or secretly in sympathy with the enemy.—New York Times.

THE GREATEST GRAIN PORT.

For the fourth successive year Montreal occupies the proud position of the world's greatest grain-exporting seaport. The annual report of the Harbor Commission for 1924 shows that grain aggregating 165,139,399 bushels entered and that deliveries totalling 159,159,688 bushels were made. These figures represent a gain of 39,061,698 bushels exported over the 1923 returns. Other interesting data embodied in the official report reveal a striking increase in the shipping of Montreal. In 1924, the number of vessels arriving were 988 trans-Atlantic vessels, with a net registered tonnage of 3,597,147 tons, and 235 coasting ships of 499,185 net registered tons, an increase of thirteen per cent. over the previous year. Inland vessels making use of the port numbered 5,791, or 198 more than in 1923. When tonnage is considered, the volume of increase is even more marked, rising from 8,195,308 in 1923 to 11,215,764 in 1924. This large expansion is attributed chiefly to the numerous new and more capacious steamers constructed for the Port Colborne-Montreal route. It is also of interest to note that the greatest array of sea-going vessels in the harbor at any one time was on November 4 last, when eighty were recorded.

In an interview appearing the other day in the Montreal Star, Mr. M. P. Fennell, director of trade and transportation for the harbor of Montreal, made some striking and interesting comments on the phenomenal grain trade that has developed between Montreal and the continent of Europe. Some idea of the extent of this trade can be gained from the fact that during the past three months no less than 12,000,000 bushels have been shipped to Hamburg alone. Mr. Fennell, who had just returned from a seventeen months' sojourn in Great Britain and the continent of Europe, where he had been promoting the trade interests of the St. Lawrence ports and of Canada as a whole, remarked that he had seen all the millers of Holland and Germany. As the result he was enabled to give the assurance that an even greater movement of Canadian grain to these countries is certain to come. Fourteen meetings of Dutch millers in Rotterdam had taken place, and Mr. Fennell described the community spirit of the Dutch trading companies as unrivalled anywhere.

Touching on the subject of the value of a first-class port to a country, Mr. Fennell pointed out that Holland is anxious to ship as great a quantity of goods as possible for German consumption through the port of Rotterdam, and Holland, in this endeavor, is being assisted by British financiers. As he put the matter, the Canadian business man can grasp the situation at once when it is realized that only seven per cent. of the business done in the port of Rotterdam is local, the other ninety-three per cent. being goods in transit. Here Mr. Fennell put the pertinent question: "Could anything be more eloquent of what a good port can do for a country? And is not," he further queried, Montreal in the identic l position also with regard to the shipping of American exports via the St. Lawrence?" Touching on the subject of grading, Mr. Fennell mentioned that both the Dutch and German millers were highly pleased with the consignments they got from Vancouver, rating Vancouver 5's as equal to Montreal and Manitoba's 3's. This he attributed to the practice of grading all the wheat, shipped via the Pacific coast, at Vancouver, thus being only handled once immediately before loading.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

SCOT WILL CHOOSE AND NOT BE CHOSEN

Has Had Many Proposals Since Left $50,000 on Condition He Weds.

MONTREAL, July 28.—(Canadian Press):—Despatches have figured in the news relating to the equest of $50,000 left to Alexander Ferguson, Montreal Scot, on condition that he marries. The Gazette interveiwed the young man before he left for Ottawa to take his chance with a girl. "Clamoring swarms" of women, it is said, have beseiged him by mail. Personal appearance plays a large part in each one of the appearance plays a large part in each one of the letters. Some of the writers, who have read that a Scotsman loves his home, tell of their prowess in the kitchen, express absolute certainty that happiness, such as the world has never seen, awaits Ferguson if only he will accept the writers. The flood of offers left the Scot perplexed a little, but only more determined than ever that he will do the choosing and that the choosing will not be done for him.

"I have been thinking the matter over verra, verra carefully," said Ferguson, "and I think I have found the one girl for me. I met her here just after I arrived in Canada three months ago, I liked her then, I like her still, and if she likes me, well,... And that I am going to find out." If the lady in Ottawa says yes, Ferguson will claim his money, go over to Scotland with his bride and say "How do" to his people, then he will return to Montreal and live here.

For, although he walked the streets of Canada's biggest city for three months without finding work, Ferguson thinks the country is fine and only needs $50,000 to make it the best place in the world to live in.

A THOUGHT.

BOTH HAVE THEIR PLACES.

Holidays and working days both have their places in modern business. It is loyalty which makes us put the right spirit in both—loyalty to ourselves and to our employer. Often by putting an earnest spirit into our work we learn how to play and vice versa. After a holiday is no time to come back to the office or factory with lagging spirits. Vacation should put new life into your spirit of work so that when you tackle that old job again it will seem more like play. Playing at work is the best kind of play, provided it works.

The general business world is apt to rate your success in terms of cash, but your business associates will look more toward your character.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, July 27. — With a light run of cattle trade was brisker, prices advancing 25c higher on choice butcher and export cattle. There were about 800 stale cattle left over from last week, and these proved a drag on the market for the common and unfinished steers. Trade was slow and prices no higher for the common stuff, but snappy for anything good.

In the export section Rogers and Maybee took about 400 export steers and bulls. Steers, $7.50 to $8.50; bulls, $4.50 to $5.25.

Choice butcher steers and heifers strong from $7 to $7.50; fair to medium, $6.25 to $6.75; common, $4.50 to $5.25.

Fat cows slow at $4.50 to $5; extra choice, $5.25.

Bulls, slow, $4.50 to $5.

Calves easy, $9 to $10.

Lambs lower, $14.50 to $15.

Hogs firm and 25c higher at $14, off cars.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, July 27 (Canadian Press).—With the peak of the movement of winter wheat to Chicago expected this week, and with the first car of new spring wheat this season arriving today at Minneapolis from South Dakota, the wheat market here showed a downward tendency most of the time today, losing prices on wheat were unsettled, 3-8 to 1 1-8 cents net lower, September 148 1-2 to 148 5-8, and December 150 1-4 to 150 3-8. Corn finished at 1-2 to 1 cent advance; oats 3-8 to 3-4 cents off, and provisions showing 2 to 17 cents decline.

QUEBEC BUTTER AUCTION.

MONTREAL, July 27 (Canadian Press).—At the Quebec Federated Co-operative Society auction sale of butter held here today there were 3,300 packages creamery butter offered of which 2,000 packages of No. 1 pasteurized creamery sold at 37 3-8c per lb., 800 packages No. 1 creamery at 36 3-8c per lb., and 500 packages of No. 2 creamery at 35 3-8c per lb, which prices show a decline of 5-8c per lb. as compared with a week ago.

BELLEVILLE CHEESE

MONTREAL, July 27 (Canadian Press).—At the United Dairymen Co-operative auction sale of Belleville cheese held here today, the offerings amounted to 2,524 boxes of which 61 boxes of special white sold at 21 5-8c per lb, 1,311 boxes No. 1 white at 21 9-16c per lb., and 1,152 boxes No. 1 colored at 21 9-16c per lb., f.o.b., cars at Belleville for shipment to Montreal. These prices show a decline of 11-16c to 3-4c per lb., as compared with a week ago.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, July 27 (Canadian Press).—The market for winter wheat flour was firm owing to the continued light offerings and prices were unchanged. White corn flour in broken lots sold at $7.60 to $7.70 per barrel in jute bags, delivered to the trade.

A feature of the market for baled hay was the stronger feeling for clover mixed and prices have advanced owing to the good demand for this grade for cattle feeding purposes and the fact that the offerings were none too large, and sales of car lots were made at $13.50 per ton, ex-track.

The receipts of eggs were 2,149 cases, as compared with 1,947 for the same day last week, and 1,015 for the corresponding day a year ago.

The exports of butter from the Port of Montreal last week were 26,527 packages which showed an increase of 7,550 packages, as compared with the previous week, and an increase of 25,273 packages with the same week last year, while the total shipments from May 1 to date have been 112,482 packages in excess of the same period for 1924.

The receipts of butter in Montreal today were 6,335 packages, as compared with 6,498 for the same day last week, and 2,777 for the corresponding day a year ago. Owing to the continued somewhat limited trading over the cable and the liberal supplies coming forward an easier feeling developed in the market and prices ruled a fraction lower. The demand from local buyers was also rather quiet and the volume of business on the whole was small.

Cheese Export Heavy.

The exports of cheese from the Port of Montreal last week amounted to 47,312 boxes which show a decrease of 13,433 boxes, as compared with the previous week, and a decrease of 6,502 boxes with the same week last year, but the total shipments for the season to date show an increase of 141,500 boxes with the same period of 1924.

The receipts of cheese today were 23,917 boxes as against 1,879 for the same day last week and 5,938 for the corresponding day a year ago. In sympathy with the easier cable advices that came to hand over the week-end and the lower prices that prevailed at the boards throughout the country, the local market was weaker and prices were reduced 1-4c to 1-2c per lb., with a small volume of business passing.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,A British offiver gi—ves an account of Turkish soldiers in Mesopotamia during the late war which is very interesting. One never sees a drunken Turkish soldier. They do not spend their money on any of the other forms of riot and vice which Western nations indulge in. The reason being that they are not paid anything. They sing from morning till night when not on duty and are reckoned amongst the best fighters in the world. Any of the other infractions of discipline are heavily punished. The British officer speaks of them as a kindly, brave and obedient people. They do not know liberty as we know it, and are subject to the same severe prohibitory type of laws as the ordinary citizens of North America with the exception of Quebec, etc. When prohibition was adopted it was because our system of education and general freedom was too far ahead of us. If you would curb crime and vice you must do it by force, as the Turks do. Christianity or good intentions in any form will never do it. Circumstances are gradually compelling us to adopt the sterner measures of the East. Is Christianity passing?

PROBUS

ROXY AND HIS GANG.

Hotel Martha Washington,
New York.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir:

I was very much pleased with the glowing account that Roxy gave our old home town, Peterborough; it was broadcasted to this hotel on Sunday night.

He spoke of the ovation extended to them and told of the wonderful beauties of the chain of lakes, etc., spoke of Mayor Turner, Mr. Killaly, of the Trent Canal, and several others. He also introduced our principal citizen and addressed him as the Hon. Mr. Gordon, Speaker of the House of Commons, and one of the cleverest lawyers in the Dominion of Canada; also of his kindly placing at their disposal the steamship Bessie Butler.

Sincerely,
L. A. G.

Dear Editor:

On my tour through the various cities of Ontario I have visited many popular bathing beaches. Inverlea Park and beach is a joke for the size of Peterboro. Many small towns show it up. I have had a sore foot for a week, since I went bathing at this park. What do the children of Peterboro find to amuse themselves with at this beach? I see no swings, slides, no amusements of any kind. I also looked the park over for a waste paper basket and found none. The paper and banana skins decay and leave the germs for the children to get some disease from. Also I find a life-guard that can't swim. Who is there to teach the children to swim? I found poison ivy growing beside the trees. When I see an advertisement describing Inverlea Beach I sure will laugh. Thanks.

A TOURIST.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir:

Scientific men never join societies for the suppression or prohibition of anything as they never know when the material may become most useful for mankind. For example, leprosy can be cured by one remedy only, that is, chammoolgra oil mixed with alcohol. No other known remedy will kill the bacillus and but for this remedy one-half the human race would be victims of this horrible and very catching disease. If alcohol were stamped out we would soon find prohibitionists clamoring for its restoration but I do not know if it would not be just as well to teach them the lesson first. To show just how much simon-pure bunk there is in much of this modern social service business I will quote from a letter by a native woman of Nyasaland, Central Africa to that well known New York journal, "The Golden Age", a religious weekly. The letter says: "The white man first came to Nyasaland to give us Christian gospel and now the natives are being kicked and robbed of their wives by the Christian whites." White "civilization" is ruining the native races everywhere, and is ruining the whites. What is the cause? The madess of pride and self-righteousness has lowered people to their own level. Some few years ago the late William Jennings Bryan came east from a visit to the Natchez Indians of the U.S. He had found the poor benighted pretending to cure disease in that tribe by means of sacred stones. Mr. Bryan gave them his gospel and came home to ridicule the poor Indian and say what wonders he had done for him. Now it is found that these "sacred stones" contained radium and that they are of the highest curative value. Poor Mr. Bryan! And all the poor self-satisfied ones!

DUCK IN FURNACE

Thought the Chimney Was a Good Parking Place.

KELVINGTON, Sask., July 23.—(Canadian Press).—When Charles Ferguson, a local resident, and avowed teetotler, touched a match to waste paper in the furnace of his store, one morning recently, he got the biggest shock of his 40-odd years. A lone derelict duck emerged through the blazing doorway and flapped around his feet. It was found to be all right, barring scorched wings which prevented it from flying. The bird was placed on the shore of a near-by lake to convalesce.

It is believed that the duck, of the wild "wood" variety mistook the store chimney for a harbor of refuge, and explored its way into the furnace.

Experiments are being conducted with a plow operated by an electric motor. It is claimed that this plow is automatic and does not even require the ministrations of a hired man while it is busy turning furrows.

REAL GOLD BRICK VALUED AT $18,000

From Webb Mill Will Be Sent to the Federal Mint.

SASKATOON, Sask., July 28, (Canadian Press).—A gold brick valued at $18,000, from the Webb mill at Elbow Lake, which began operation early in July, will be shipped to the federal mint before August1, barring serious mishap, according to Thomas R. Webb, manager of the company. The company is controlled exclusively by Saskatoon business men.

Referring to the history of the mine, Mr. Webb declared great difficulties had been overcome in bringing the mill machinery over the long trails in soggy spring weather. The mine is now fully equipped and can produce steadily, he said.

The Webb interests are the f irst to do any mining in the Elbow Lake area, and while others have been in the field, they have confined their efforts to prospecting and staking.

The mill which recently started operation has a capacity of 30 tons per 24 hours in hard quartz, and as the ore in the Webb mine is 80 per cent. schist structure, it can be more readily handled and could probably be put through 45 to 50 tons. The mill has a crew of forty men, with two shifts in the mine.

In August 1924, the syndicate became incorporated as a limited company and began development of the mine. The average, assay of the whole dump taken from early operations was $204 a ton.

SUES MOTOR LINE.

Echo of Crossing Accident at Windsor.

WINDSOR, Ont., July 28. — (Canadian Press).—An echo of the level crossing accident in which one person was killed and 23 injured, was heard here Monday when suit for unstated damage was entered by Miss Elizabeth M. Butler of Aylmer avenue against the Border Cities Automobile Stage Line.

The crash occurred about midnight May 15, when the bus laden with members of the Daughters of England, returning from installation ceremonies at Kingsville, was run down by an Essex Terminal switching engine at the Howard avenue crossing.

SAAR MINE STRIKE.

Wage Dispute Stirs 70,000 Workers.

SAARBRUCKEN, Germany, July 28 (Canadian Press).—A general strike of Saar miners has broken out over the question of wages. It affects 70,000 workers. It is understood that the dispute originated in the depreciation of the franc, in which most of the Saar workers are paid.

Representatives of the miners have gone to Paris to confer with the Ministry of Labor.

(The Saar Basin is under the government of the League of Nations, and has an area of 742 square miles and a population of 652,818).

CONFERENCE OF LABOR PARTIES WITHIN EMPIRE

Ramsay MacDonald Presided at Opening Session in London on Monday.

MEET ALL WEEK.

Conservative Party Not Only Custodian of the Empire's Welfare.

(Canadian Press).

LONDON, July 28.—A conference of representatives of the Labor parties of Great Britain and the various British Dominions apend Monday in the Empire Parliamentary rooms in the house of commons and will continue this week. J. Ramsay MacDonald, former premier of Great Britain, presided at the opening session of the conference.

Mr. MacDonald, described as "fudge and humbug" the assumption that the Conservative party was the only party in the United Kingdom which cared for Empire. He claimed that the Labour party was the first party to recognize the fact that Emipre development was so important as to require being studied in the Dominions themselves.

Preference Policy.

The Dominions' preference policy was described by Mr. MacDonald as a policy of building a high wall against th foreigner and a lower wall against Great Britain, but the latter never was so low as to prevent the Dominions from extending their industries, he said. Great Britiain did not object to the preference, it being regarded as an indication of the Dominions' goodwill.

Mr. MacDonald suggested a scheme by which committees under government control should make wholesale purchases of goods produced under fine labor conditions to enable the British countries to benefit as communities, not as capitalistic sections.

Obligations in War.

A debate on "Inter-comonwealth Relations" was opened by Tom Johnson of Ireland who said that the time had come when the constituent countries of the British Empire should consider exactly what should be their position in the event of Great Britain becoming involved in another war. The Irish view, Mr. Johnson said, was that they should not be committed to entering a war against their will.

James Simpson, Toronto who with John MacDonald, Toronto, is representing the Canadian Labour party at the conference, said that Canadians also were greatly concerned wtih regard to what their position would be in the event of war. They were very eager to have their position clarified and their responsibilities plainly understood. Mr. Simpson said. He added that there was a growing demand on the part of the peoples of the Dominions for more autonomy in all directions and a wider say in affairs affecting the well being of their citizens.

For the consideration of the question raised by Mr. Johnson as to the position of the Dominions in the event of Great Britain becoming involved in war the matter was remitted to a committee for a report thereon. John MacDonald, Toronto, was named a member of the committee.

WILY REDSKINS INVENTED EARS

Aural Appendages of the Wolf Manufactured to Get Bounty.

FOOL THE EXPERTS

BRANDON, Man., July 28 (Canadian Press).—Indians like many others practice "get rich quick" schemes. A case in point was brought to light at the Indian reserve at Griswold, Man.

Collecting bounty on wolf ears, manufactured from skins of young cubs, was the ingenious method employed.

The ears were turned in to secure the wolf bounty from the municipality. The Redskins figured it was much easier to maks ears than to catch wolves. So well did they make the artificial ears, that municipal officers were fooled for some time. Finally the authorities discovered the ruse and provincial police started an investigation. Three men and a squaw were apprehended. They pleaded guilty to the charge and were warned with a year's suspended sentence.

R. Sculthorp & Sons. Ltd., Contracts To Be Carried Out

All Peas To Be Paid For and Handled in Regular Way.

The above is a re-organisation of a new firm to continue business formerly done by H. Sculthorp & Son of Port Hope, who have been operating the seed and grain business in this section for a number of years. The business, plant, stocks and all contracts were bought by auction from the Liquidator, E. R. C. Clarkson, 15 Wellington Street, Toronto, by Morrow & Company, of 39 Front St. East, Toronto, and it will be of interest to the growers of Peas who received stock from H. Sculthorp & Son during the past winter and spring to know that these Peas will be paid for and handled in the regular way by the new firm of H. Sculthorpe & Son, Ltd., Port Hope.

DAYTON KEEPING VIGILS AT BIER OF DEAD LEADER

Simple Service This Afternoon Near Scene of Recent Evolution Trial.

BURIAL FRIDAY.

The Body of W. J. Bryan Will Lie in State at Washington.

DAYTON, Tenn., July 28.—(Canadian Press).—Watched by his Dayton friends, the body of William Jennings Bryan, who died as he slept Sunday, lay in the front room of a simple Southern home last night. Meanwhile, the invalid widow worked out plans for bearing the body of the commoner to Washington for ultimate burial in the place of the nation's military heroes, Arlington Cemetery.

Humble followers of Mr. Bryan came yesterday to gaze for the last time, into the face of their champion of Christian faith and to pay the last tribute of honor and high esteem.

This afternoon, on the lawn of the Richard Rogers residence where the former Democratic chieftain spent his last days, a more formal ceremony will take place. The public then will review the remains of the dead leader as he lies in state in a bronze casket.

Last Rites Simple.

All details of the last rites for Mr. Bryan will be simple and without display, in accordance with the express wishes of Mrs. Bryan. She has borne her sorrow with unflinching courage and has directed the arrangements for the care and burial of her husband's' remains.

The schedule of the funeral party as tentatively outlined by the widow and her advisers calls for the departure of the body from Dayton on a special railroad car Wednesday morning. Knoxville, Bristol, Roanoke and Lynchburg are scheduled stops en route to Washington.

In Washington it is planned to have the body lie in state for another period while thousands of friends and admirers march by.

Funeral on Friday.

On Friday, at an hour to be determined, the body of Mr. Bryan will be laid to rest. These plans are subject to revision.

From far western states two daughters and W. J. Bryan, Jr., hastened last night to join their mother in Dayton or in Washington. From Los Angeles the younger Bryan and his sister, Mrs. Richard Hargreaves, were on their way to Washington.

GREAT FUTURE FOR THE WEST

Lord Burnham Stresses Need of Populating "Great Open Spaces."

AT VANCOUVER.

VANCOUVER, July 28 (Canadian Press)—"Today the eyes of the world are on the Pacific Ocean as the theatre of the next great series of world events," declared Lord Burnham, president of the Empire Press Conference, whose members, en route to Australia, reached Vancouver yesterday morning.

"It was not without fortunate significance that the delegates realized they were standing on the North Pacific frontier of the British Empire," His Lordship continued. "We recognize the tremendously important part that Western Canada is to play in the future development of the Empire. The great problem now is to fill Western Canada with people, and I am sorry that greater progress is not being made in that direction. Possibly the Canadian government has not pressed its colonization policies as eagerly as it might. Our understanding is that you want your settlers predominantly British, and that is, of course, our desire."

Perfection of inter-Empire communications is the big topic of the Press Conference, thinks Sir Harry Brittain, M.P., chairman of the organization committee.

A tremendous era of expansion in airplane communication is looked for by Sir Harry in the immediate future.

"I am making arrangements to return to England from India by air plane for experimental purposes," he said. "The carrying of mail by air has wonderful possibilities. While the cables can carry the bold outline of the news, the solid background of context by which alone one can understand the cables still travel by mail. If we can shorten the time between Australia and England to one-third of the present time required, what a boon it will be."

BALDWIN TAKES HELM TO AVOID MINERS' STRIKE

Report That Mine Owners Will Rescind Notices For New Wage Scale.

PRESSURE OF PRESS.

Cabinet To-day Drafting a Plan For Emergency—In Session All Week.

LONDON, July 28.—(Canadian Press).—Proof of the Government's determination to leave nothing undone to secure a peaceful issue of the mining dispute, which threatens a serious industrial calamity, was afforded Monday when, after his conference with a trade union committee, Premier Baldwin decided to take a leading role in the negotiations. The Ministers will be in a sort of permanent session throughout the week, ready at any moment to deal with the trouble.

This new turn of affairs seems ta hav had an effect already, for it is unofficially stated that the mine owners will consent to withdraw their notices of the termination of existing agreement and their new wage proposals. The demand for such withdrawal on the part of the country, as voiced by the press and many public men, has become so insistent that the mine owners would likely be in bad odor if they continued to refuse, and if the report proves correct the way will be paved for a successful conference of the miners and owners Wednesday.

Cabinet Plan Today.

The cabinet will hold a special meeting today to draft a plan for dealing with the problem. Whether the plan will include a subsidy is still unknown, but in any case the Ministers must have arrangements made to insure public service, if it is impossible to avert a coal stoppage, with its almost certain paralysis of the country's industries through lack of coal and a possible tie-up of some of the railway traffic.

It is understood that W. C. Bridgeman, First Lord of the Admiralty, who is acting as intermediary, will do his best to obtain some workable compromise at this conference. But if this fails, the Government is to have its plans ready. The belief is still general that the Government will propose some form of subsidy or loan to aid the weaker mines.

REVISING WHEAT CROP.

Hon. W. R. Motherwell Tells of Drought Damage.

OTTAWA, July 28 (Canadian Press).—Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, who came back from the West Monday, does not agree with the estimates of a tremendous wheat crop. "The bumper yields spoken of and anticipated two or three weeks ago," he said, "have been modified considerably by a shortage of rainfall and severe heat in certain districts. Notwithstanding this, however, there is every promise of a good, fair, average crop. Moreover, it will be earlier than usual and will be distributed over practically the entire grain growing areas."

Mrs. Shortt sang "Come Unto Him," from Handel's Messiah, with very pleasing effect.

At the conclusion of the service, the pastor played the Hallelujah Chorus.

NEW REGIME AT HALIFAX HOUSE

Ladies of New Ministers Will Arrive in City During Fall.

ONE TOUCH NEEDED

HALIFAX, N.S., July 28.—(Canadian Press).—The Mail says: "A new regime has begun at the Province Building, and by the early Fall the fact wi llbe reflected in the social life of the city by the arrival here of the ladies of the official circle—the wives of the members of the government, with their children. Mrs. Rhodes and her young people are not expected before the end of August." The writer speaks of the beautiful grounds of Government House and continues: "But a single touch remains to be given to complete the attractiveness of the glowing garden, and that is attention to the old lamps while stand at the entrances. They are picturesque old lamps, suggesting the quaint day of the street "lamp lighter."

HUGO STINNES, JR. BREAKS UP EMPIRE

Final Step Taken in Dissolution of Father's Great Holdings.

BERLIN, July 28 (Canadian Press).—Hugo Stinnes Jr. yesterday sold to a group of United States bankers through Henry Schroeder of London, $5,000,000 of shares in the Deutsch-Luxemburg Mining and Smelting Company. The names of the purchasers have been kept secret here.

The sale marks the final step in the dissolution of the Stinnes empire, for with the sale goes Stinnes' holdings in the Rhine Elb Union, one of the keystones of the late Hugo Stinnes' enterprises.

BRITISH EAGER TO SETTLE HERE

Statement of Canadian Immigration Commissioner in Europe on Visit Home.

MONTREAL, July 28 — "Great Britain is greatly disappointed at the small way in which Canada has participated in the Empire Settlement scheme which provided assisted passages for British people who who were anxious to migrate," said Colonel J. Obed Smith, formerly Canadian Immigration Commissioner and latterly for the whole of Europe, in an interview here yesterday.

"Canada will get immigrants just whenever she wants," Col. Smith said, "but the question arises in Britain and elsewhere, "Does Canada want immigrants?' I hope to find an answer to that question during my stay over here. Personally I do not know.

"We now have the United States not raising sufficient wheat for her own consumption; we have the British market, and in the present state of flux in Europe, Scandinavia, Belgium, Holland, France, Italy, Austria and even Russia are requiring wheat. Most important of all is the new market in the Orient, and if four hundred million Chinese should turn to wheat as a staple, and that is not improbable, then Canada's mission will be obvious.

"But will Canada be ready to fulfill her mission? Not if she does not get a great many more farmers on her vacant lands."

BYNG AT FORT SIMPSON.

The comical antics of the crow again claim our attention.

My friend who has a tame young crow, reports that he and his wife went away over Sunday, putting some food on the upstairs gallery, and leaving the crow perched up in the tree.

The crow flew after them down the street, returning to the house disgusted with them, because they got on a street car.

He ate up all the food on the gallery, or shared it with other crows, for he has been talking to strange ones, then he broke through the screen door, deliberately tearing a worn and broken part. He entered the house like a robber.

When the folks arrived home, my friend's wife screamed, "We are robbed, thieves have been in and ——, just come and look at the place."

Friend husband, poor chap, (he owns the crow), came rushing in and beheld the wreck.

Curtains pulled down off the windows, potted plants upset and up rooted, spoons stuck in all sorts of odd places, dishes broken and on the floor, the cover off the strawberry jam pot and jam on the floor and friend wife's Sunday hat all pulled apart, the trimming on the table but new trimming in its place, for the hat was hanging on the candle bracket on the wall and the crow perched on top of it, doing his best to get the fake diamonds out of the silver buckle, or to get the buckle off.

The crow stood and looked at the folks, while they stood and looked at the wreck.

What friend wife said is unprintable. Everybody can guess what the husband said, which was absolutely nothing. He was sore on the crow, but took the crow's medicine. The crow thought they were approving of his day's work.

We will have to keep an eye on this crow. He's a scream.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

THE FOLLY OF LIVING IN SUNLESS ROOMS

As I write, I am on a railroad train. At the station I saw a young couple and a small boy. The father looked as if he recognized me and came up, calling me by name. He said he knew me because he saw my picture every day in connection with these articles. I must look worse than I hate to believe I do.

The young couple had been spending the afternoon in the suburban town looking for a place to live. The young wife is not well and the doctor said country air is essential to her restored health.

Since their marriage they have dreamed of "living in a detached house with a door-yard." It took ill-health to realize the ambition.

I hate to think how people are forced to live in the cities. It is one of the problems of our social system. How is it to be solved?

Many times I have told you of a square mile I know where live a half-million persons. Twelve live in three rooms. Four sleep in the kitchen every night. Many of the living rooms are inside rooms, without air or light.

No matter how strong you are, you can't stay strong without sunlight. No matter what physical perfection you began with, it won't last without fresh air.

Woman's work is hard enough, no matter where it is done. The burdens of motherhood are trying in the best of environment. But to do justice to the home and to the babies, when the house is sunless, gloomy and stifling, is an impossible undertaking.

Many a young couple struggles along in the face of all these difficulties. From such homes have come thousands of healthy and useful citizens. Mankind has marvellous qualities of adaptability and reactions from the evil of environment.

It should be the aim of every young husband to shape his affairs so that his family can be reared in a house of sunshine and fresh air. It is more important to have a good place to live than it is to have a big bank account.

But, even in poverty, there can be some time every day in the fresh air. Every city has its parks. They are made to use. When a park gets so gorgeous it can't be used by all the people it is of no value to society.

In London there are squares of lawn and beautiful trees, from which the public is shut out by iron gates and fences. When my boy was little he called them "Selfish Parks." A good name for them, I always thought.

But we have plenty of parks where "Welcome" is written everywhere. Get the sunlight and air and freedom of God's Out-of-Doors. Then you will live long and prosper!

BERLIN CELEBRATES CORPUS CHRISTI DAY

First Procession in German Capital for 400 Years.

BERLIN, July 28.—(Associated Press).—For the first time in 400 years, Corpus Christi Day was celebrated recently at the German capital by a public procession. This is taken as evidence of the much more tolerant attitude of the republican regime as compared with the old monarchical. Under the monarchy, the official state religion of Prussia was Protestant, and the king was at the same time titular head of the church. Catholic processions such as are customary in Bavaria, for instance, on Corpus Christi Day were forbidden.

St. Hedwig's Roman Catholic Church early on Corpus Christi Day opened its doors to the accompaniment of trombones to let out a procession of men, women and children, followed by monks and priests in ecclesiastical robes, and nuns and finally by the archbishop under a canopy. At four altars he invoked God's blessing on the crops, and concluded with a prayer for the world's salvation from disease and misery, war and hunger.

PASTRY FOR HEALTH AND A GOOD FIGURE

Danish Baker Says It Keeps the Complexion "Delicate But Glowing."

TORONTO, July 28.—(Canadian Press).—Some pastry each day keeps the doctor away, and more wonderful still keeps the complexion delicate yet glowing, the figure trim, and the spirits well up. This is the considered statement of L. C. Klitteng, probably the first "consulting baker" in the world, and the man responsible for introducing the delights of Danish pastry to the North American continent, passing through the city. "Pastry, properly regarded and used as a fine food, does not make people fat," declared Mr. Klitteng. "In Denmark we have the most beautifully rounded yet slender women, and it is the custom there to serve a piece of pastry before rising in the morning, just as in England tea is brought to the bedside. You seldom see grossly fat people in my country."

TO CLIMB ROCKIES

Japanese Party Will Soon Make the Attempt.

TOKIO, July 28.—(Associated Press).—Under the joint auspices of the Tokio Nichi Nichi, the Osaka Mainishi and the Japan Mountaineering Society, an attempt will be made by a party of Japanese mountain climbers to ascend the heretofore insurmountable peaks of the Canadian Rockies. The party, which will be captained by Mr. Maki, one of the leading mountaineers of Japan, will include representatives from the Peers' School and Keio University. Final preparations will be made at Vancouver.

The climbers will start out from Jasper with 30 horses and a number of native guides and a base camp will be established at the foot of Mt. Colombia. The party is expected to be away about three months.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DOTTY AND HAPPY GIGGLES HELP MAMA AND DADDY HARVEST MOUSIE.

"Goodness!" Dotty exclaimed and jumped upon a log as a little reddish-brown creature scooted from under her feet to a bush. "What in the world was that? I bet my hat it —".

"Go easy on that bet," laughed a merry voice, and Happy Giggles, the wee elfin from Make-believe Land, hopped upon the log beside Dotty. "You might lose your hat, you know."

"Sure enough, I might, Happy Giggles," Dotty laughed. "I very seldom win a bet of this kind. But who is your friend? See, there's his long tail now, sticking out of that brush heap."

Happy Giggles looked down among the cornstalks where Dotty pointed and saw the end of a tiny reddish-brown tail.

"Goodness me, if it isn't Daddy Harvest Mousie," he laughed. "Come out here, young fellow, and apologize to Miss Dotty for frightening her."

The tiny tail disappeared and out peeked a wiggling, reddish-brown nose and two very tiny black eyes. Whe the owner of the tail and eyes saw who was speaking to him, he came running up the side of the log.

"Mr. Harvest Mousie, meet little Dotty," laughed Happy Giggles. "You almost startled her."

"I'm dreadfully sorry," squeaked Daddy Harvest Mousie, "but I guess we're even, for you startled me, too, and almost stepped on my tail."

"I wouldn't harm you for the world," laughed Dotty, stroking the pretty little pointed nose with her fingers. "My, how pretty your white vest is. It goes quite nicely with your reddish-brown coat. Do you live around here somewhere?"

"I did," and Daddy Harvest Mousie wiped a tear from his little black eyes, "until the cornstalks were cut early this morning. The cutters not only destroyed my house, but they must have taken my wife and children with them on a load of hay. I can't find them any place."

"Well, if they took them with them, they must be over in the barn," said Dotty. "Happy Giggles, can't we take Mr. Harvest Mousie over to see?"

"Sure we can," laughed the elfin, and he led Dotty and Mr. Harvest Mousie over to Grandpa Brown's great big red barn. There they found Mama Harvest Mousie and her five little children, sitting in a corner of the hayloft crying bitterly.

"A Place to Spend the Winter."

It was indeed a happy family when Mama and Daddy Harvest Mousie spied each other. They couldn't thank Dotty and Happy Giggles enough for their kindness.

"I was just wishing Daddy would find us," squeaked Mama Harvest Mousie. "This would be an ideal place to spend the Winter. We could get all we wanted to eat and be in out of the cold snow."

"Just the thing!" exclaimed Dotty. "I'll let you stay in Grandpa's barn if you'll let me come out and see you sometimes."

And so it was agreed. The little Harvest Mousie and his family made a lovely nest, and many a long, gloomy day was passed chatting with Dotty during the Winter months. When the following Spring came, it was Dotty and Happy Giggles who helped them back to the cornfield.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

WEDNESDAY, JULY 29.

While there may be certain phases of favorable development on this day owing to a friendly aspect of Jupiter, yet, on the whole, progress may be slow, and postponements and difficulties may complicate the business associations. It might be well to be on guard against false friends and to defer important changes or journeys. The health should be given proper attention lest it prove a troublesome factor. Happier conditions prevail in personal relations.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a troublesome year, in which delays and disappointments may figure. The health should be properly attended to and false friends shunned. There may be some favorable experiences, both in business and in the personal relations. A child born on this day should be popular, talented and ambitious, but its success may depend on the hour of its birth. From noon on benefic prospects reign.

SOLUTION OF YESTERDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

FAMOUS "FIRSTS"

By Temple Manning

THE FIRST STICK OF CHEWING GUM.

"Eat in haste, and repent in leisure by chewing gum!" It is because people realize what an aid to digestion chewing gum is that its vogue has steadily increased. From 1890 to 1900 was the greatest era in the history of chewing gum. Preachers denounced the habit as ugly and vulgar, the press called it a short-lived fad—and the sales of chewing gum steadily rose. In England, children who were found to have contracted the habit were spanked by their schoolmasters.

Making a New Confection.

But as soon as it was learned that chewing gum was an aid to the digestion of food, that it helped mastication and prevented stomach disorders, the press and the pulpit said no more about the habit as an evil.

Gum was first used for the purpose of chewing by the Mexican Indians. When they went out on the plains they found it was impossible to work because no water was near at hand and under the hot sun their throats became parched. Since the chicleasapote tree (from which the best chewing gum is made) abounds in Mexico, one of the laborers found that by chewing the gum it kept him from being thirsty for some time.

But chewing gum was not known to Americans until 1870. At that time a lump fell into the hands of Thomas Adams, who was then on the lookout for a short route to prosperity. His first thought was that the substance might be used as a substitute percha, or soft rubber. He experimented with it and found that the idea was very impractical. A lot of the useless stock was on hand in his laboratory. One day he happened to break off a bit to taste it. He found it was pleasant to chew—and decided that it would make his fortune.

Manufacturers to whom he confided the idea scoffed at him. They declared that no one would chew a substance like rubber and that he had better invest his money in a more useful product. Nothing daunted, Mr. Adams set to work on his own account and sold his article on a small scale to dealers. Orders began to pour in rapidly, and within a few years the thing was a huge success.

By 1890, Mr. Adams was employing 250 men in a factory six stories high. When he died he left his four sons independently rich.

FIRST ORDINATION IN COBOURG CHURCH

Former Methodist Church Inducts Its Elders Under United Church Form.

COBOURG, July 28—The morning service at the Division Street United Church Sunday was of unusual significance, in that the ordination and induction of elders took place for the first time in a church which was first instituted a century ago. The service was very largely attended by an interested congregation and was conducted by Rev. Alfred Brown, D.D., and Rev. W. A. Bremner, associate pastors. The service exemplified an important feature carried over from the Presbyterian church into the union of the three churches, when twenty men were ordained as elders, who, will with the ministers, constitute the session of the new church. The dedicatory prayer offered by Dr. Brown was one long to be remembered. Rev. W. A. Bremner spoke well on "The Office of Eldership."

On Thursday afternoon the King St. United Church of which Rev. Adam Hamilton is minister, held its picnic on Mr. Henry Field's lawn and spent a very pleasant afternoon.

Rev. Mr. Alp of Auburn and Mrs. Alp have been spending the holidays at the home of her mother, Mrs. James Harper, Camborne. Mr. Alp's late father was an esteemed pastor of Harwood and Rosenath Presbyterian congregations a few years ago.

Rev. Canon F. J. Sawers and Mrs. Sawers were in town at the week end. They had been enjoying a delightful holiday at Lake of Bays and will return to Toronto next week.

The preacher at the morning service at St. Peter's Anglican Church was Rev. Mr. Cresall of Gore's Landing and Rev. Temple Stannage Boyle, D.D., preached at Gore's Landing, occupying his own pulpit at night here.

Envoy Cresswell of Toronto is here and conducted the week end services of the Salvation Army of which Capt. and Mrs. Gage are the new officers in charge.

At the Baptist Church the Sunday School and Bible Classes met in connection with the morning service. Rev. J. N. Norton preached a lead pencil sermon for the children, while the subject of his morning discourse was "The God Man."

Rev. T. W. Goodwill conducted the services at St. Andrew's which announces itself as the "only Presbyterian Church in the district."

At the King St. United Church, Rev. Adam Hamilton, M.A. (Glasgow) spoke at night on Coleridge's famous poem "The Ancient Mariner."

At Coldsprings a united service was held in the Presbyterian church.

Rev. Melville A. Shaver of Wrentham, Mass., a former well known pastor of the Congregational Church here was in town for a few days during the week.

Rev. A. E. Balfour Bruce who has been in Pittsburgh and New York City the last three weeks, officiated at Grafton and Centreton Anglican churches Sunday.

Rev. A. H. Brace and Mrs. Brace of Gravenhurst celebrated the 50th anniversary of their marriage one day recently. Mr. Brace is a former pastor of Cobourg Baptist church.

NEW DISCOVERY INVOLVES SITE OF SEPULCHRE

Jewish Exploration Society Has Unearthed 60 Yards of Wall 4 Yards Thick

THIRD OF SERIES

Discovery Incompatible With Alleged Position of the Holy Tomb.

JERUSALEM, July 28.—Part of the wall enclosing Jerusalem built by Agrippa, one of the last Jewish kings, and destroyed by Titus, has been unearthed recently. About 60 yards of the wall, some four yards in thickness, have been uncovered by the Jewish Exploration Society.

This discovery has aroused deep interest in archeological and religious circles. If this is the third of the series of walls built around Jerusalem, it is argued, it brings into question the authenticity of the site of the Holy Sepulchre, which is thus placed outside the city walls.

The third wall was commenced by Herod Agrippa about 40-44 A.D. and was interrupted by the Roman governor of Syria, to be completed later by the Jews before the final siege of the city. By all accounts there were three walls which protected Jerusalem on the north, built successively both for the protection of the weakest side of the defences and to afford room for the steady growth of the city at the beginning of the Christian era. Both the first and second walls were standing at the time of Christ and the place of crucifixion and burial must have been outside them.

Some scholars have contended that the site of the Holy Sepulchre is impossible because it is shut within ancient Jerusalem, it being known that crucifixions did not take place within the city walls. Adherents of this view, especially a large number of the English community, who have always entertained doubts about the location of the Holy Sepulchre, see further confirmation in the discovery of what is believed to be the third wall.

The Jewish Exploration Society, which is conducting these excavations, holds with Dr. W. F. Allbright, Director of the American School of Oriental Research here, that the discovery of the Agrippan wall does not seriously affect "this long smoldering question." Dr. Allbright admits that the situation is awkward.

"Shall we decide for the Holy Sepulchre and against other evidence of little less cogency?" Dr. Allbright asks. "Neither horn of the dilemma is necessary. The present north wall of the city dates back only to Hadrian's time and represents a wholly new line of wall. We are forced to the conviction that archeology rarely affects the question of holy sites. The location of the Holy Sepulchre will remain just as certain or just as obscure as it is today."

Along with this discovery there has been unearthed a mosaic belonging to the late Byzantine period. According to the Greek inscription on the mosaic this was the tomb of a nun, near which there was also apparently a small Christian chapel.

The overhead wire of the average street car line does not have a "life" of over ten years and the replacement of these copper wires is one of the biggest items of expense of every electric street railway system.
